To Whom It May Concern:

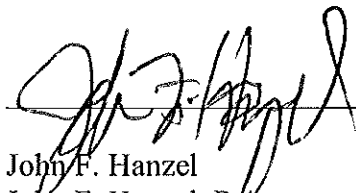

My office, in early October, was retained by Jeremy LeClair in relation to an ongoing dispute he had with Ms. Valaria DeVine. This office no longer represents Mr. LeClair as we formally withdrew as counsel effective October 27, 2016.

During the course of our representation of Mr. LeClair, our office sent correspondence on his behalf. One such correspondence was an email with a formal letter attached to a software program called Salesforce® and their contact a Mr. Andrew Hotchkiss. Based on our understanding at that time, my office made statements in such correspondence that are now known to be inaccurate.

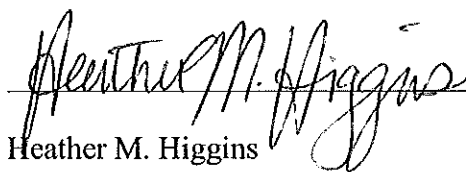

We would like to correct any and all previous statements made by making it clear that we now know such statements to be false. At such time as the correspondence with Salesforce® were made, there was no formal Cease and Desist order filed or signed off on by a court. There was only a letter entitled "Cease and Desist" that had been sent from our office to the then counsel of Ms. Valaria DeVine, a Mr. Rich Koch.

We do not have a document(s) that vest ownership of Salesforce® database in Luxury Auctions Marketing, Inc. (hereinafter "LAMI") as of August 7, 2016. We never saw a document in which LAMI or Mr. LeClair was given ownership of any trademark, domain site or database. The copy of the License Agreement gives a revocable non-exclusive license to use and access the IP and database to LAMI.

Sincerely,

John F. Hanzel
