

A divorcing couple wrote this joint statement after mediating their entire divorce with James:

"Getting a divorce is filled with emotion, expense and uncertainty. James helped both of us wade through the important issues and come up with solutions that worked for each of us and allowed us to move forward. We saved thousands of dollars by mediating with him instead of fighting each other and litigating everything. He helped us talk to each other and when necessary, was there to ensure that each of us heard the other's needs and ideas through him. We would highly recommend James to help mediate a separation or divorce because he is a fair and honest person that understands the importance of not just the result, but also the communication process that builds the foundation for a productive relationship between the parties moving forward."
