OSWEGOLAND FISHIN' FOOLS

Fishing Big Green Lake

Our first ever Event at Big Green Lake was a puzzle that Club President Don DeBoer was quick to figure out. Here's his take on the event.

Don's Pondering the "COMFORT ZONE"

Summer fishing can be tough; hot sunny days, warm water, clear lakes and fishing pressure but the fish are still there and biting if you adjust. Tyler and I learned this at Green lake. We listened to other guys that fished it and took notes from our [club's July] speaker, Mike Norris.

Our comfort zone is not primarily pitching or skipping docks. We don't do a lot of it and then there's the intimidation of not wanting to get tangled up or hitting a boat there plus the people watching you around their property, but over the weekend we got better, and it paid off. Yes, we were shamed a few times as we had to break off a line or troll in and untangle from a post or pull our hook out of wood, - had we not tried this it would have been a disappointing trip but, [after] landing 112 bass over three days, half coming from our new comfort zone, hey, try stepping out of your comfort zone for better fishing.
