

How to File for Divorce

Divorce is an exciting and complicated process. You will need to take your time, reach agreements with your spouse/judge/secretary, prepare all the documents, and do many other things before the procedure ends. If you choose to do it, you will get a hassle-free and fast divorce with almost no effort. That's because divorce law is relatively easy to follow.

- Divorce forms

Before ending the process, it's important to fill out the relevant forms and documents. In divorce, forms are defined as any document that is required for the process of marriage termination. The most commonly needed document is the Petition for Dissolution of Marriage or Legal Separation. This document is designed to lead the way to the uncontested dissolution of the marriage. Other documents that you will need to complete before ending the process are the Summons for Divorce and other related documents.

The information that you provide to the court consists of a short questionnaire. After that, the papers for the uncontested dissolution of marriage are prepared and sent directly to your email.

The email address of the party is the address of the person who initiates the divorce. It is also necessary to know the length of time that the process will take. In general, the length of time depends on the method of divorce you choose and the manner of marriage dissolution you have chosen.

- Online divorce

As a rule, the divorce process is much longer than the standard one. It is possible that it may take up to one year to be completed. However, if you decide to apply for an uncontested divorce, the process will be shorter in both cases.

- The Divorce Process

To get started with the divorce, one of the requirements needs to be fulfilled. First, you need to choose the type of divorce. The options are different. You can either get a standard contested divorce or choose a no-fault divorce.

The latter is what we call a no-fault. It means that neither spouse is arguing against the other. Moreover, if you choose this option, you won't have to accuse your spouse of any wrongdoings.

Forms for uncontested divorce

There are several kinds of uncontested divorce. They include:

- Contested Divorce: This means that you and your spouse have agreed on all issues regarding your divorce. If you have solved all the issues on your own, you qualify to file uncontested divorce forms.
- Non-Contested Divorce: This kind of divorce is how you can apply for the dissolution of marriage without a lawyer.
- Discovered Divorce: This kind of divorce requires at least one of the spouses to have lived in for at least 6 months.

Uncontested divorce forms

To qualify for uncontested divorce, you need to come up with all of the required papers. An uncontested divorce form includes the petition, summons, schedule of meetings, affidavits, and preliminary.

Additional forms for uncontested divorce in:

- Affidavit of Corroborating Witness: A majordomo affidavit is needed to prove the claim that you have lived apart for the past 6 months.
- Schedule of Family Meetings: This is needed to apply for all events that take place after the marriage.
- Vital Statistics Sheet: One of the needed forms to file for an uncontested divorce.

Filing for Divorce: The First Things to Get Ready for

When you have just started the official procedure of getting a divorce, you might be feeling anxious and even confused about what to expect. This is mainly because everything depends on the type of breakup you are going to get through. The first type of breakup is a standard contested divorce, which means that you will have to fight your way through several hearings before the final hearing. What can be better? Only all the supportive services will help you prepare all the documents and schedule of meetings. In this case, it may take up to one month to get through the entire process.

How to File for Divorce in US

In order to start the procedure, you'll have to prepare the appropriate documents and deliver them to the courthouse.

Before the process is finalized, you might need to wait for up to 60 days, which is known as the waiting period. After that you'll receive a final judgment for your breakup. In the next step, you'll have to take another path again and it's a bit complicated, but still it's easy.

Take as much time as needed to heal your mental state

As much as the official procedure caps the punishment for your breakup, you might still face some difficulties after the official breakup. If you suffer from emotional trauma or face some other problems, you might stop taking care of your health. That's because your family will have to come to the end anyway.

Always remember that there are no rules that are impossible to satisfy. You might also face some other problems such as the distribution of your possessions and financial difficulties.

How to complete the divorce as fast as possible

It will be hard to admit that the process of divorce takes more time than just one month. As much as the waiting period, there are also the attorneys consultations that may take place. That's why you should expect to wait for several weeks until the final decision is made.

In the end, after you get the official document that confirms the end of your relationship, you will have to wait for several more weeks. The waiting term in US is not over.

- How to file for divorce in US

If you want to file for divorce online, this option is available in the state. To get through the whole procedure, you must complete the required paperwork and provide all the required papers to the courthouse in your county.

- How to get a divorce in US?

If your relationship is no longer a happy one, you might need to look for a way out. The first step is to communicate with your partner about dividing the shared property. It is best if you can agree on this issue with your spouse. Then you can send a note to your partner that you are deciding to split up and try to meet with him/her. If you have kids, you will need to find a way to support them without they know about your plans. This is how you can reduce the stress you are already feeling.

The next thing you will have to decide on is whether you will have to hire a lawyer or go through the process yourself. For the first option, it might be the best choice for you. It is only natural that you will have to pay a lot of money to get your papers and other documents. However, if you are not able to cover that cost, you may also try to use the cheap online divorce in US. We can provide you with all the necessary files and you will not have to pay any extra money.

- Cost of Divorce in US

When you have decided to split up with your spouse, the most important thing you will have to do is get the necessary US divorce papers. That is not as easy as it might seem at first sight. There are many many different types of such papers.

The basic term that you will get all of the divorce papers for is the petition for dissolution of marriage. This is where the initiating party of the case provides the names of the spouses, details about their marriage, and the reason for the divorce.

There are lots of things that you will have to get involved in before filing for divorce in US. These include completing and filing the necessary papers, serving the relevant papers to your spouse, and waiting for the judges decision.

The average cost of divorce in US is about $15,000. It depends on the manner of divorce you choose. The cost of an uncontested marriage dissolution in US is even less expensive than a contested one. The average cost of divorce in US also includes the filing fees as well as some additional fees depending on the circumstances.

US divorce forms

Below you will get the necessary forms to start the divorce process. Each type of marriage dissolution form requires different documents. The first one is for the case where only one of the partners is the plaintiff. It is the most important document for the successful completion of the case. The second document is the petition for marriage dissolution for dissolution for dissolution of marriage where the initiating party of the case is listed as the petitioner and the answer to the question of dissolution of marriage is stated in the middle of the document.

It is crucial to mention that it is best to indicate the true reasons for the marriage dissolution as either no-fault or fault-based. The former option means that the couple does not have to indicate why they are divorcing as they do not have to determine whatsoever happened in the marriage. The current option is the most expensive and difficult to use.

Preparing divorce documents online

If your situation requires you to take care of extra steps, you are welcome to get a cheap divorce. We will eagerly provide you with all the necessary files and you can start filling out divorce forms online if you agree on the next conditions with your spouse:

- Childcare and visitation (which always includes where and with whom your kids will reside)
- Medical and healthcare costs for your kids
- Tax-related deductions
- Division of assets, belongings, and debts
- Any other disputable matters related to your marital union.

How to file for divorce without an attorney?

Sometimes it may be difficult to interact with your spouse, even when you have an online profile full of pictures and goings. That's why there are many users today who want to file for divorce in PA without a lawyer. This is about changing your lifestyle, spending time, nerves and efforts. While some do it on their own, while the others resort to third-party websites that offer everything you could want.

But now you need to turn in a bigger challenge and that is getting your tiny family to accept your decision without feeling stressed or disappointed. The more you realize about your family's happiness, the bigger your motivation to start taking care of all the problems you have to deal from home.

- Be aware of your stress level

It is not only about the physical state of your body you are living in. It is also the state of your mental state. If your stress level is low, it means that you are not fully aware of your state of mind. That means that you continuously overestimate your expectations of your problems and you start thinking that everything is just not as bad as it seems to be. In truth, many problems are caused by a decrease in stress levels.

How to Cope with a Low Stress Level:

1. Redistribute Exercise to Your Strength

When you are filled with energy, you are ready to climb the highest place to find the inspiration to move on. At first, you will feel sluggish and tired. But after a period of time, you will start to feel refreshed and pleased with your progress.

As a result, you will start getting that distinct sense that you have reached a new goal. You will realize that you are not so lonely as you used to be. Even though the number of friends who have taken you to the new heights of your happiness is growing, you are still far from reaching the top.

2. What to Do to Move Forward after Divorce?

Those who have decided to divorce often struggle to understand what is the most comfortable thing to do next. How to proceed? They have a few things to think about. Starting with the simplest, the most comfortable solution.

It is not too complicated from there. The more you get along with your ex-spouse, the easier it will be for you to find your way to the new life.

However, if you are still eager to move on, make sure that you are not as obsessive as you used to be. That will be a key mistake that you will need to make in any case.

3. Take Care of Yourself

No matter how tough your situation is, don't try to rush to succeed. Take care of yourself. You have just lost someone who you used to love. So, you have to find some way to make your ex-partner feel your pain. Make sure that you are eating well and exercising regularly. Also, make sure that you are not drinking heavily. That will not only make you feel tired, but it will also negatively impact your physical state.

Dozens of other things are going to be in your hands when you divorce. However, it is important to make this your number one priority. This is not only because you have to make a lot of money from the sales of these items. It is also because you have to go through a lot of difficult situations that may bring even more stress. Therefore, if you do not take care of your health, you will not be able to get back on track.

The number one thing that you have to take care of before starting a new life is money. Sure, it is hard to have enough at the beginning. And when you have children, you will have to get more into their routine. However, if you have already got enough and can focus on the things that you have to do, you will be able to finish the first part of the divorce pretty fast. Also, if you have already prepared all of the documents about the divorce, you will be able to simply go back to the things that you were doing. Sure, it will take some time. But you will surely not forget about the things that you did. Moreover, there will be tons of things that you will want to do.

And all of them will require some time. Therefore, make sure that you are ready for that.

How to Get a Divorce Online and More

Here are some tips on how to divorce in the United States.

1. You don't have to spend a lot of time to get the necessary documents
The filing process is not as complicated as it might seem. You only need to make sure that your documents are filed and you have copies of all the papers that you submitted to the court. It doesn't really take long. You will need to make sure that your packet of documents is complete and nothing is missing.

2. Travelling

If you are going to stay in the country, make sure that you are checking your papers every time you want to go out. You can go where you need to visit a notary for a certain fee and require him or her to sign the papers as a sign of approval. Of course, this is not the best idea as you are likely to get stuck in someone's situation and need someone to help you.

3. Accept the services

If you have to accept the services, then make sure that you are planning to get a cheap divorce. Look through the websites that offer this sort of service and choose the best option for yourself. It doesn't make any sense to try to do everything on your own. Instead, hire a lawyer that will do your paperwork for you. This way you will get the required paperwork quickly and easily.

How to get a divorce

If you are considering suicide as a solution to your marital problems, you will probably want to make sure that your plans are not ruined. The first thing you should do is get in touch with your feelings and come to terms with the fact that you have to change your lifestyle to improve your health and overall wellbeing. These steps will help you go through the process without breaking your budget.

The issue is that although you can get papers online, you will not be given the instructions on how to execute the whole procedure correctly. This is due to the fact that you have to take care of your mental state and wellness, and not be in constant stress and emotional tension.

In this case, you will have to take care of your wellbeing online, too. Prolonged exposure to the emotional turmoil can have a harmful effect on your physical and mental health. No matter whether you are seeking a fast divorce or you are hoping to get a long-term happy life without breaking up, you should care about your wellbeing and avoid trackers.

If you are wondering how to file for divorce, you should check if the instructions provided by the legal council of the county where you will be filing. It is an oversight board which provides you with a means of communication between the council and the legal department.

Before filing for divorce, you will have to choose one of the methods of filing. The first option is to file the document by yourself. This way, you are only required to deliver the papers to your partner quickly. Just send an email with the proof of your death to your partner. The second option is to get help from a professional who will prepare all the papers for you. When talking to your partner about the requirement to file for divorce, he or she tells you that it is the court which decides whether to give you a chance to live a second life as a married couple.

The third option is to get a waiver of payment from the legal council. This way, you will not have to pay any money for the service. The court worker will inform you that you have to pay nothing for the lawyers services. The path to this goal is different from the previous one, as you will need to take care of your mental state to be at least half as happy as when getting divorced. With the help of the professional team, you will be able to finally get an uncontested divorce.

When you decide that the only way to get a divorce is to go through the court process is to get an uncontested breakup, you can choose the easiest way of getting divorced. We already talked about how to get a divorce in US, but here are some details on how to file for divorce to complete the process without an attorney.

The basic requirement of this method of divorce is that one of the spouses needs to be living in the United States for half a year before filing for divorce. The reason for this is that the court is faced with too many divorce cases, and too many issues such as custody, alimony, property division and many more. Therefore, before filing for divorce, you need to make sure that you meet the residency requirements. In the case of a standard breakup, your chances of getting a cheap divorce are almost 100%, but the exact probability will vary from the region to region.

How to File for Divorce Without a Lawyer

This process is called an uncontested divorce. It is a straightforward procedure for marriage dissolution with no significant documents or proceedings. You can find out more about it here.

Uncontested divorce

Uncontested divorce is the best option for couples who want to split up as quickly as possible and without extra expenses. This procedure requires less paperwork, has a lower cost and most likely you can manage without an attorney.

However, you need to make sure that you meet the conditions for an uncontested divorce. This means that you must:

- Be living separately for at least half a year
- Notify your spouse about the proceedings
- Create a mutual agreement with your partner regarding all issues related to the divorce (separation of assets and debts, childcare, alimony, and other issues)
- Submit the petition to the court in the county where you or your spouse lives
- Deliver the petition to the courthouse
- Wait until your spouse accepts the petition and either you or your spouse must attend it.
- Be ready for additional costs

The minimum cost of an uncontested divorce is $200. However, if you have to cover extra expenses such as legal charges, legal motions, or court filing fees, your expenses will be even higher.

Preventing the court from rejecting your documents

No-fault uncontested divorces are prohibited by state law and require proof of your intentions to prevent the court from rejecting your documents. At least one of the spouses needs to attest to the fact that youve filed a joint petition.

The court worker will grant you a time and convenient set of hearings to discuss your case and settle your problems. In a contested case, it is very difficult to reach a consensus with your spouse/judge/secretary. But in an uncontested, it is possible to resolve your case by mutual consent.

A No-Fault Divorce

No-fault grounds for divorce are known as the sole reasons for divorce. There are no specific demands regarding the duration of the process, however it usually takes at least one and a half years to complete the entire process.

Uncontested Divorce

Only spouses who have been living apart for at least half a year are eligible for an uncontested divorce. The reason for this condition is the inability of the other party to maintain an active lifestyle, which is usually caused by the impact of the marriage.

Uncontested divorce is a great option for couples that want to get divorced quickly and cheaply. This process:

- You have lived apart for at least half a year
- There is no need to meet any specific residency requirements
- Both of you have already found a compromise on all major issues regarding your future lives
- In this case, you won't have to hire a lawyer
- The court will not investigate any misconduct on your part
- Both of you are willing to finish the marriage within six months

All these conditions are necessary for an uncontested divorce.

Cost of Uncontested Divorce

The uncontested divorce rate is fairly high, especially if you choose an uncontested procedure. The rate might vary depending on the county in which you live, but it ranges between $200 and $285. In some cases, the cost of uncontested divorce is lower. However, in some situations, it is not possible to have an uncontested divorce.

Uncontested Divorce: Major Issues

When divorcing spouses decide to divorce, they have to deal with a number of issues that are related to legal separation. Among such issues are the following:

- Minor children are not willing to be uprooted from their homes or schools. This means that they won't have enough money to pay the attorneys' fees.
- No spousal support is provided.
- The property acquired during the marriage is shared jointly with the other party.
- The wife is not employed and the husband is not valued as a business.

- Thesis of a common-law marriage is not an issue.

However, not all states recognize the fact that uncontested divorce has fewer problems and is possible to dissolve without a lawyers help. In fact, this option is getting more popular among states. Uncontested divorce is becoming more and more popular.

Today, untested divorce is as common as divorce with younger people. Usually, an uncontested divorce is initiated by a couple with no disputes regarding property or guardianship of children. In most states, an uncontested divorce is allowed even if the couple has a common property and have agreed on all other issues. An uncontested divorce is also possible in those states that do not recognize any types of divorce.

How to Divorce Online

There is no need to visit a local court to file a complaint. You and your partner are eligible to file your paperwork in the following states:

- When you and your spouse decide to end your official relationship
- At least one state resident
- At least one spouse must have lived in state for at least six months
- Living separately for at least one year is required
- No disagreement with each other member of the couple exists

How to File for Divorce

At least one spouse must have lived state for at least six months to request a divorce. The petition has to be applied to the court in the county of residence of one of the spouses. It must include all the required details and be filed with the court. It is best to indicate the reason for ending your civil union as irretrievable breakdown.

Note that the process of filing for divorce does not end on the day of hearing. On the contrary, the judge will postpone the hearing until your papers are validated.

How to Complete a Divorce

Completing a divorce is difficult for most couples. But it does not have to be this way.

A year or two ago, this part was considered a no-fault civil union. Nowadays, people preferred to call themselves a no-fault divorce. However, this did not apply to divorces that were declared as uncontested as were cases where there was no physical interaction between the spouses.

Uncontested Divorce

An uncontested type of divorce was developed to help the couple to reach an agreement without the help of a mediator. An uncontested divorce in VA is cheaper, faster and much more convenient than a contested one.

Any legal divorce requires mutual agreement between the spouses. However, there are still some caveats that should be taken into consideration before filing an uncontested divorce.

Uncontested divorce is a great option for couples that are going to be challenged with the task of reaching an agreement. It is possible to achieve this type of divorce through an uncontested procedure. It is beneficial for both parties.

It is important to begin the divorce process with a proper procedure. In particular, you should make sure that an uncontested procedure is carried out in a timely manner. an uncontested procedure has to be carried out in the county where at least one of the spouses lives.

Furthermore, you should also make sure that you have legal grounds for ending your marriage. You have two options for ending a marriage:

If the spouses have already reached a compromise on all controversial issues, such as alimony, division of property, etc., and have no intent of going to court, then they can prepare a joint petition for the legal breakup. In other cases, if there are still some unresolved issues, you'd have to request a hearing in court.

The cost of an uncontested divorce

Much attention is paid to the insurance aspect of ending a marriage. Many couples consider obtaining an uncontested divorce as having no to go to a court to decide the question. However, this is not the case.

The average cost of an uncontested divorce just $160. It covers all the necessary forms you would need to complete in accordance with state laws. If you are unable to pay the full fee, you can request a waiver.

If you are looking for more help or assistance with preparing your papers, our company is ready to come to you!

The process of filing for divorce is not as complicated as it may seem from the very beginning. The first required step is to make sure you meet the residency requirements of the local laws. To be able to file, you must satisfy two additional demands:

At least one of the spouses must have lived state for half a year before the documents are filed.

If the filing party is a citizen of the US, then the demands above should be fulfilled.

If you are wondering how to file for divorce without a lawyer, you should check if your situation allows you to get an uncontested breakup without the help of a lawyer. If your situation allows you to get an uncontested breakup, you can choose this option to avoid the need to pay for the services of a lawyer.

If you want to file for divorce, be ready to prepare the following instructions:

- Submit the petition for the breakdown of marriage to the courthouse.
- Pay the divorce filing fee and submit the completed papers to the clerks office.
- Deliver the papers to your partner by the appropriate means; however, make sure to make the delivery successfully.
- Wait until your partner becomes aware of the action.

How to File for Divorce Using the Help of online service

We are the leading private divorce paperwork providers on the market and offer a full package of documents individually for each uncontested divorce case.

Get an online divorce

Once your marriage is no longer legally valid, you will probably want to move ahead in the process of getting an uncontested divorce. First, you or your partner must agree to the terms of your separation. The easiest way to do this is to send a note to your partner via the Internet. Also, you will need to meet with your lawyer to discuss your rights and obligations in relation to the property, real estate, and other people who may influence your decision. These are very important issues for a quick dissolution of marriage.

The most important requirement for an uncontested breakup is to have mutual consent. This means that both sides must agree to something and they need to declare their agreement to the court. In this way, the process can be rather lengthy and expensive.

Preparing divorce papers

When your case is uncontested, you will not need to prepare any divorce papers. The service we provide allows you to get an easy divorce. The reasonable cost of an uncontested breakup greatly depends on how you choose to do it. The first possible way to get a cheap divorce is to choose the uncontested method of filing divorce papers . We believe that this is the most economical and convenient way to terminate ones marriage. This method allows you to get a full package of documents for your separation without the cost and trouble of a contested divorce. We help you prepare an up-to-date package of documents and you choose not to have an attorney discuss your case in the court. Also, we provide you with all the necessary online help files so that you can file the required documents within hours at home.

The average cost of an uncontested divorce usually amounts to $295. It depends on the attorneys fees and your state's laws on how to divide the marital assets.

Uncontested divorce forms

As a rule, the list of the uncontested divorce papers includes the following:

- Verification
- Settlement agreement
- Entry of appearance and waiver of service.

There may be extra papers that depend on certain circumstances. They will be additional agreements according to the divorce documents served by the court. And if you request the delivery of a package of documents to your partner, you will have to cover all the necessary fees for the lawyers services.

In order to file uncontested divorce papers, one partner has to fill out the entry of appearance and waive of service. This partner is usually allowed to serve the other partner with the documents. If he or she fails to do so, youll have to fill out the Entry of Appearance and Waiver of Service form and provide it to your partner.

The basic requirement for an uncontested breakup is that either partner needs to agree to the terms of the divorce. If you have relations with your partner, it's preferable for you to reach an agreement with your spouse rather than going to court. This will allow you to receive a cheaper divorce.

Uncontested divorce paperwork

If you choose to file for an uncontested divorce, the actual procedure is much simpler than you might expect. Its possible to have an uncontested legal breakup online, and our experts are here to help you prepare all the necessary documents.

As a rule, the list of all the forms you'll need to get and file before going to court is quite long. The best way to shorten the list is to get professional help from our online divorce service. We offer support with filling out the necessary documents and providing directions on what to expect from the filing process.

The filing fee

Although the divorce rate is not always affordable for uncontested divorces, it is still fairly affordable at $300. It depends on the exact fee, but you can expect to cover the filing fees based on the average hourly rate of a lawyer in the community.

The cost of uncontested divorce

As a rule, the average cost of an uncontested divorce is around $80. It depends on the attorney fees, as well as the completion fee, that you will need to pay. The average cost of divorce also includes the filing fees as well as some additional expenses.

Marital dissolution

In order to get a divorce, either partner needs to meet these residency requirements:

Either partner must be a resident of the state for at least 180 days before filing the petition for marriage dissolution.

A marital separation for a period of one year is needed for the most part of the process.

Both partners must present evidence of their decision to the court. It is a serious step to take such an action especially if you plan to get a contested divorce.

Where to File a Divorce in Texas?

When you are ready, the next step would be filing your petition for marriage dissolution with the court in your county of residence. A copy of your petition should be printed and signed. Next, you will have to wait for up to 2 months until the judge validates your petition and the decision will be announced sooner.

Of course, you can also avail of the cheap Texas divorce filing process that utilizes the help of our service. It will save you lots of time, and you dont need to spend it on taking your case to the court.

Get an online divorce in Texas

If your relationship is no longer a happy one, you may be looking for a way to end your marriage. The first and only way to get a cheap divorce in Texas is to get an online divorce. This way, youll get an experienced professional who will investigate all possible arrangements you might make for your wedding. This will allow you to land a legal breakup that wont require you too much time and effort.

Upon filing

The next step is to get yourself familiar with the legal grounds for a divorce. In Texas, these are called the grounds (or reasons) and they control how your marriage will be terminated. They are:

Irreconcilable differences - These means that you and your spouse cannot work together to bring about your marriage and break up. While most of us would think that something like this is impossible, it is not. As a result, if your spouse agrees to work with you, there is no need to file a divorce form.

Adultery - In addition to the reasons, you have to file the ADultery complaint. It is necessary to take this document as it is the basis for the divorce. Once you file it, the judge will review your case in order to decide whether to invite you to the next stage of the process.

Unreasonable behavior - This is a ground that you wont get much notice of unless you need to take care of it. It is a very mild disagreement, which means that you can not get a divorce on impulse.

Character flaws - If your spouse has character flaws, you dont have to worry about the fact that you2 have been raised by each other. Yet, the judge will scrutinize your behavior in the hope of finding your best solution for the relationship problems.

Sexual problems - If your spouse has an issue with sexual penetration, this is a good reason to file for divorce immediately. But if your partner doesnt provide any information about his/her sexual habits, it is a good reason to postpone the divorce for a certain time.

The conviction of the case - If the couple has been living apart for at least 18 months, the judge will not hesitate to enter into the marital dissolution.

Yet, if the couple has been living together for the previous 30 days, the case may be dropped quickly.

No-fault reasons - These are all the reasons that you'll get when filing for divorce without specifying fault of either party. They include:

- Violent behavior and physical or mental abuse
- Misconduct in relation to one's spouse or underage kids
- Conviction of criminal activity
- Insanity
- Abandonment for at least 12 months
- Imprisonment or conviction of a serious crime.

Other reasons may be when the spouses have been living separately for at least 18 months or when there is an imminent risk of their being expelled from the country.

Fault-based grounds - When filing for divorce you are required to provide proof that your better half acts illegally, for example, taking drugs or performing underage drugs. Also, you may allege that your better half is subject to cruelty or neglect. These grounds can be very serious and severe enough to warrant a prison sentence for a certain term.

Reasons that may be waived - Usually, most divorces have some kind of settlement or procedure that you can get. For example, if your partner is getting a divorce because of depression, you may provide proof that he/she is unfit for you. In this case, the judge may postpone the divorce for a certain time and look for other ways to resolve the issue.

Your total package of documents

The way you deliver your documents to the court depends on individual circumstances. However, it depends from simple to complicated.

In the simplest case, your papers will be filed in the county where you or your partner lives. To get an online divorce in Texas, you'll have to prepare one of the following forms:

- Simple Texas divorce form
- E-mail Texas divorce form
- Facebook divorce form
- Business/professional license form
- Residence or citizenship form
- Ancestry form

Will do nothing, and won't be accepted by the court. The more complicated your situation is, the longer and more frustrating it becomes.