Arctic Strategies and KPMG Canada collaborate to advance major Arctic initiatives

Iqaluit, Nunavut (April 27, 2026) - Arctic Strategies Inc. is pleased to announce a collaboration with KPMG Canada to help shape and deliver major economic and infrastructure initiatives across the Arctic.

This collaboration brings together Arctic Strategies' vision, credibility, and execution capability with KPMG's national project development and delivery capacity. It responds to a significant opportunity in the Arctic, shaped by devolution, critical minerals, and the development of strategic economic, energy and transportation corridors that support long-term prosperity and security.

Together, the organizations will support Inuit-led planning and decision making by combining strategic insights with national technical depth.

"This collaboration builds on the work I have led across the Arctic and reflects the scale of opportunity ahead. Arctic Strategies brings the vision and lived experience. KPMG brings the national technical depth. Together, we are ready to support major Arctic initiatives," says PJ Akeeagok, Founder and President, Arctic Strategies.

According to Zach Parston, National Infrastructure, Capital Project and Sustainability Leader at KPMG Canada, the collaboration strengthens KPMG's ability to support northern project development through its Major Project Delivery Office (MPDO).

"Interest in Arctic and northern projects has intensified, driven by economic, defence and sovereignty considerations," says Mr. Parston. "We're excited to work with Arctic Strategies. Our collaboration positions us to support clients across the North with an approach tailored to the unique challenges and opportunities of Arctic project delivery."

The collaboration creates a new Inuit-led advisory platform to help shape and deliver major Arctic initiatives, including strategic corridors, complex infrastructure and long-term regional planning. It aligns national technical capabilities with Inuit priorities, governance structures, and development objectives.
