Meet Ify...

Hello! My name is Ify, and I'm a compassionate, dedicated, and patient professional with a strong passion for helping others. I have years of experience working with people from different backgrounds, including children, students, and individuals with varying levels of support needs.

I have experience supporting individuals on the autism spectrum in both home and community settings. My work has involved assisting with daily living activities, implementing behaviour support strategies, promoting communication and social interaction, and encouraging independence.

I focus on building trust and understanding each person's unique needs, strengths, and sensory preferences. Through patience, empathy, and consistency, I help create a calm, structured environment where clients feel respected, safe, and supported to achieve their personal goals.

I enjoy building genuine connections with people and creating a positive, respectful, and caring environment wherever I work. My background as both a teacher and support worker has helped me develop excellent communication, organisation, and problem-solving skills.

Outside of work, I love reading, cooking, listening to music, travelling, and spending time outdoors. I also enjoy volunteering and learning new things that help me grow personally and professionally. I believe in treating everyone with dignity, empathy, and kindness, and I always strive to make a difference in the lives of those I support.
