Meet Bravine....

Hi, I'm Bravine - a Melbourne-based support worker. I'm calm, reliable, and respectful, with hands-on experience helping people live safely and independently. I hold current First Aid/CPR, Manual Handling, Working with Children, Police Check, and NDIS Clearance.

Outside of work I enjoy walks in local parks, light gym sessions, and cooking simple, tasty meals. People I support appreciate my friendly communication, sense of humour, and focus on making each day run smoothly.

I like spending time with family and friends, exploring new places, and trying out different recipes. I also enjoy reading and taking walks, which helps me stay balanced and energized.

I have valuable experience working with autistic individuals, supporting them in different aspects of daily life and personal development. Over time, I have learned the importance of patience, empathy, and clear communication. I focus on understanding each person's unique needs, preferences, and strengths, so I can provide the right level of support that helps them thrive.

My work has included assisting with routines, building social and life skills, encouraging independence, and creating a safe, supportive environment. I have also collaborated with families and other professionals to ensure consistency and holistic care. These experiences have taught me to appreciate diversity, celebrate progress—no matter how small—and always approach care with respect and compassion.

I'm really looking forward to working with you and supporting you in the best way possible.
