The Prodigal Son

We all know one, been one, or are waiting for one to come home.

From Father Rich

In today's wonderful Gospel passage of the story of the Prodigal Son, there is a dynamic that most of us struggle to get to in many of our relationships as a result of the brokenness, we have experienced in those relationships.

It is captured in the middle of the story when the younger son, having gone through his inheritance with riotous living, finally reduced to poverty, wishing he could eat some of the food he was feeding the pigs, at last comes to his senses (or, if you prefer the terminology of the 12-step recovery program, he finally, "hits rock bottom.")

Formulating exactly the words he will use to beg some forgiveness from his father—for he now knows he is undeserving of any forgiveness and so is seeking only to be treated as one of the hired hands, nowhere near the prestige of a son—he sets off for home.

The story tells us that the father spotted him a long way off. In other words, he was sitting on the porch, looking down the road, in hopeful anticipation of his son's return. How many days has this been the father's position? When he spots his son, he leaps up from where he was, and runs down the path, overjoyed that his son is indeed home! And the son begins his recited script, begging for forgiveness. To which the father pays no attention whatsoever! Instead, he is all about getting him dressed up and shouting instructions to get the preparations underway for the party!

What's missing? I think for most of us, as overwhelmingly grateful and moved as we are to hear this story, we know that in our own lives our reconciliations too often have a lingering sense of withholding. We forgive, but...we find we can't let go of the hurt, even though we want the breach healed. We forgive, but we discover we are still holding on to the pain, the resentment, the bitterness of the betrayal, the offense.

How can we move beyond that? The answer is, not easily. Every now and again we might be able to forgive and leave it all behind. But too often that doesn't happen. Perhaps we have to start with the awareness we are not God. We hold on to our hurts for longer than we know is healthy for us. So first of all, we have to give ourselves permission to be human. The second step is to call to mind that God has forgiven us for whatever our offenses in the past have been. And if we truly feel this in our hearts and souls, can we not try to stir that into letting go of the pain and suffering from whatever we are struggling with? Finally, we may need to replace our thought processes with something more positive. One of the most effective tools is to switch from focusing on the pain and suffering to focusing on all we have to be grateful for. Eventually, we might even be able to move far more quickly to the actual celebration of joy which accompanies all reconciliations. What a great work for this week of Lent!

Congratulations to Therese Schreiner, her talented cast, crew, musicians, and all the volunteers who produced Just a Dream Away last weekend. What a great theatrical evening!

~ Father Rich

Growing in Faith: Hope & Rejoice

Some things just go together so profoundly that it is almost impossible to separate them like...spaghetti and meatballs, Laurel and Hardy, Ernie Banks and the Cubs. As we near the halfway point in our Lenten journey, we may be tiring. The clarion call "Remember, you are dust, and unto dust you shall return!" has faded even more than the ashes that were crushed onto our foreheads. We need to pause and catch our breath, refocus and move forward.

We are given "Laetare" Sunday and the command to rejoice in the prayers and the readings of this weekend's liturgy. Why rejoice? This is Lent, after all, isn't it? We cannot rejoice without hope and without hope we will give up. It's as simple as that. God's chosen people rejoiced when they finally ate from the bounty of the Promised Land. The father and his sons rejoice at becoming a family again. None of this could happen without remaining or rediscovering hope in their hearts.

These are hard times to be hopeful. Violence in our community and city, chaos in every level of government, religious leaders that have lost our confidence, uncertainty about the future in so many ways.

These and so much more are precisely the reasons for Lent and for us to heed St. Paul. Rejoice! We are called to be ambassadors of a new creation. Through us, the old failed ways will and must pass. When we reconcile ourselves personally with God on our Lenten journey, we will bring others from despair to rejoicing as we work together, as we work for Resurrection.

Lent 2019: Our Invitation to a Second Chance Week IV

Today's Gospel story of the son asking his father for his share of the inheritance is one of the most beloved stories in the entire Bible. We often call this the story of the Prodigal Son. And that is a fitting title because prodigal means spending lavishly, even to the point of being wasteful. Which is exactly how this son spent the inheritance once his father gave it to him. But it would be equally appropriate to call it the story of the Prodigal Father, for the father is beyond lavish in the mercy and forgiveness he showers upon both of his sons.

It is hard to imagine more disrespectful ways for a child to speak to a parent than the exchanges both sons have in this story. The younger son basically tells his father he just can't wait anymore for him to die. He is impatient to get on with his life and needs the inheritance now. And the older son is so enraged with the situation he finds upon his return from working in the fields and his father's generosity in welcoming back the younger son, he forces his father to come out of his own house to try to get his son to take part in the welcome home celebration. This older son has been obedient, in one sense, but beneath the thin veneer is a fury of ingratitude for what he already has.

In today's epistle reading from St. Paul's letter to the Corinthians, he explains that God has reconciled the world through his son, Jesus Christ. We are now entrusted with that mission of reconciliation.

Reconciliation doesn't mean we go back to the way things were. If everything had been fine, there wouldn't be a need for reconciling. Reconciliation is all about restoring a relationship in order to forge ahead in a new and healthier and more complete way. We are changed and because we are changed, so also will be all those with whom we are in a relationship.

This is a normal, human urge. It is like when we have stumbled upon a beautiful work of art, heard a gorgeous piece of music, been shocked at the beauty of a sunset, and so on. There are two simultaneous feelings within us in those moments -- we are filled with awe and gratitude at being visited with such beauty and wonder, AND we want to share this gift with others.

Isn't that the very heart of the story of the Prodigal Son? The father is so delighted to have his son back he immediately orders a party to share his joy with others.

Perhaps during this fourth week of Lent, each of us might consider what moments in our own life have led us to want to share with others such goodness. And also, when have I truly felt reconciled and when have I reached out to others in the hopes of reconciling? Lent is our invitation to a second chance. God always gives us a second chance. Are we giving a second chance to others.....and to ourselves? Share the good news!

Lenten Reconciliation Service

Next Sunday, April 7 at 3:00 pm in Church, please join in our Lenten Reconciliation Service, celebrating the forgiveness of our sins which was gained for us through the Passion, Death, and Resurrection of Our Lord, Jesus Christ.

This service lasts less than an hour and offers us time for reflection and quiet prayer. It also includes absolution of our sins in preparation for the celebrations of Holy Week and Easter.

Almoner's Program

This Lenten season, we have continued the Almoner's Program to help us connect with those we come across in our daily life that are struggling. Each Sunday during Lent, we have a second collection, and take that money and purchase McDonald's gift cards with $5.00 pre-loaded on the card. After Sunday Masses, parishioners are invited to take as many pre-loaded gift cards as they think they will likely use during the week to give to people they encounter on the bus or el, or at certain intersections, or anywhere and take the time to have a short, kind exchange with the recipient.

If you've taken part in this program, I'd love to know how it went. If you have any stories to share, or any thoughts about this program, please email me at kchears@stgertrudechicago.org.

R.C.I.A.

The R.C.I.A. (Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults) group has been gathering since September to learn about the Catholic faith and our sacred traditions. At the Easter Vigil on Saturday, April 20, this class of six will become members of the Catholic Christian community or Received into Full Communion with the Catholic Church.

We'll continue to share their stories in the bulletin as Easter approaches. Please keep all of our Elect and Candidates in your prayer during these weeks of Lent.

Hello, my name is Vu Truong. I am 39 years old and this is my daughter, Lauren, and fiancée, Mimi. Lauren is currently 14 years old and is a freshman attending Northside College Prep. She and I have enrolled in this year's R.C.I.A. program to be baptized into the Catholic church.

We decided to convert to Catholicism after seeing how much Mimi has improved her life since converting through the same RCIA program two years ago. Lauren and I both have had no religious background in our upbringings, but ever since we've been attending Mass at St. Gertrude's for the past two years, we've truly been inspired to join the community and convert to Catholicism along with Mimi.

We chose St. Gertrude parish to walk us through our spiritual journey because of its kind and welcoming community.

TODAY—Second Scrutiny of the Elect: At the 8:00 am Mass today, the R.C.I.A. will celebrate the Second Scrutiny as they continue their journey to the Easter Sacraments.

The Scrutinies are a three-week process of prayer and self-examination for the Elect as they uncover and heal whatever is sinful in their hearts and strengthen all that is upright and good. Today's prayers ask that as they prepare for their anointing at the Easter Vigil, they begin to see as God sees, recognize Jesus as the light of the world, and bring that light to those they encounter each day.

Care for our Common Home

From today's readings: "Whoever is in Christ is a new creation."

As a new person in Christ, you can start to recognize that all creatures are connected to one another.

In Laudato Si, Pope Francis points out that we must act now. He states, "Each year sees the disappearance of thousands of plant and animal species which we will never know for reasons related to human activity."

Let's learn to take care of our precious home which includes all plant and animal species.

This week's tip: Use public transportation or carpool.
