Join us in celebrating the work of artist Josh Millis. His latest exhibition is a love letter to New York City public education and the spaces that inspire the next generation of creative minds. With vibrant paintings, drawings, and digital works, Josh interprets the interiors of NYC public schools through personal compositions of color, pattern, and form.

Presented by TenBerke's Artist Program, which has supported artists for more than two decades, this exhibition brings together art and architecture in a unique setting. All paintings and drawings are for sale.
