Honoring Bob Gamberella

Former U.S. Olympic Director | Global Advocate for Athlete Protection

Bob Gamberella has long stood as a pillar of excellence in the world of sports. As a former U.S. Olympic Director, he has devoted his career to ensuring athletes are equipped with the tools they need to succeed - not just in performance, but in protection. A visionary leader with a global perspective, Bob has always understood that true athletic excellence begins with safety and support.

His belief in my patented innovation - the Bionic Bra(TM) - has meant more than words can express. From the very beginning, Bob recognized the global significance of this groundbreaking invention. He knew that female athletes around the world have long been underserved when it comes to true protective gear. With unwavering excitement and wisdom drawn from decades of Olympic leadership, Bob championed the Bionic Bra(TM) as a transformative leap forward for women in sport.

His mentorship, encouragement, and belief in the mission have fueled this movement from the start. Bob Gamberella has not only been a cheerleader behind the scenes - he has been a trusted advisor, a guiding voice, and a true friend. His legacy of leadership continues to ripple through every phase of this journey.

Today, I am honored to recognize Bob's powerful support and the role he has played in helping the Bionic Bra(TM) stand tall as a global solution for female athletic protection.
