I have been writing for Shopper Marketing, Modern Healthcare, Youth Today, the ABA Journal, District Administration and other magazines, while serving as editor and project manager for the University of Illinois College of Medicine's alumni-donor publication and two Web sites of Local Initiatives Support Corp. (LISC) in Chicago, among many other clients.

Editor

The Medillan magazine,
Medill Web site
Evanston, Ill.
10-98 to 7-02

My primary duties as Assistant Director of External Relations at Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism consisted of editing both the school's Web site and its tri-quarterly alumni magazine, The Medillan. Both involved writing, reporting, editing, photography and production work.

Managing Editor

The Neighborhood Works
Chicago
3-97 to 7-98

My responsibilities at this bimonthly magazine on community revitalization ran the gamut. I spent the vast majority of my time on editorial duties: writing, reporting, editing, gathering photos, and supervising the designer and student interns.

Assistant Editor

The Public Innovator
Washington, D.C.

I handled all editorial duties for this newsletter on government restructuring at the federal, state and local levels: I wrote and reported stories, assigned and edited freelance work, supervised interns, and coordinated production.

Staff Writer

3-92 to 8-94

At this monthly magazine covering the local legal scene, I primarily wrote and reported stories while also proofreading copy and coordinating production. Chicago Lawyer is published by Law Bulletin Publishing Company.
