Charitable Donation Tax Receipts for Gifts In-Kind

Receipts for gifts in-kind may be issued for donations of auction items by individuals or businesses for the item's fair market value (as long as the fair market value can reasonably be determined), according to the following information taken from the Canada Revenue Agency website:

Donations of cash, goods, land, or listed securities to a registered charity or other qualified donees are eligible for a charitable tax credit. For a donation to be eligible, the transfer of ownership has to be voluntary.

Examples of donations that do usually qualify for charitable tax credits include:

- Money, securities, ecologically sensitive land, certified cultural property, capital property, personal-use property (such as paintings, sculptures, jewellery, stamps, and coins) and inventory (such as art, antiques, rare books).

Examples of donations that do not usually qualify for charitable tax credits include:

- contributions of services, such as time, skills, effort;
- the payment of a basic fee for admission to an event or program (for example, fees for daycare or nursery school facilities);
- the purchase price of a lottery ticket or other chance to win a prize, even though the lottery proceeds benefit one or more charities;
- the payment of tuition fees (exceptions exist);
- gift certificates donated by the issuer (may qualify under specific circumstances as indicated in guidance CG-007); and
- pledges.

Was there a transfer of property?

Only gifts of property are eligible for official donation receipts (for example, cash, computers, equipment). Gifts of service, and promises of service, are not gifts of property, and are not eligible for an official donation receipt. Gift certificates that an issuer donates do not constitute property and are not eligible for official donation receipts. However, a gift certificate purchased and then donated does constitute property, and may be receipted at its fair market value.

Did the donor receive an advantage? When a donor receives an advantage or consideration for a donation, part or all of the donation may no longer qualify as a gift. See Split receipting for more information on advantages.

Examples of advantages might include: a ticket to an event; use of property; or a dinner and/or performance at a fundraising event.
