CREATING THE BOND NEVER BROKEN

Chewing is a self rewarding behaviour. Unlike many other unwanted behaviours, ignoring it will not see it extinguish.

At K9EDGE, we reward positive choices, trade rather than take away, and encourage positive chewing options.

CHEW TRAINING

Why dogs chew.

Biologists tell us chewing is all about toning jaw muscles. Dogs no longer need to split bones and grind down marrow to survive, but the urge is hardwired into them. And into some more than others. Some dogs live to chew; others can take it or leave it. How often dogs chew and what they chew also fall under individual taste.

What is certain is that chewing is normal and healthy, not a behaviour problem. But it can still be a regular problem—for you and your furniture.

It's not a phase.

Puppies do chew more, yes. But chewing isn't like teething in babies; it won't peter out and eventually stop. All dogs chew some and some dogs chew a lot. Whether you have a puppy or a newly adopted grown dog, give him plenty of allowed things to chew right away to get him hooked on those instead of your shoes.

Kongs or similar style toys are excellent options for directed chewing.

Use a small amount of peanut butter, cheese whiz, or dog friendly spreadable, add some kibble or small treats....then FREEZE the entire toy.

Give your dog one of these whenever you leave the house or as a positive focus when they are in a chewing mood.

The things dogs chew.

Edibles: Chew bones, pigs' ears, bully sticks, greenies, raw hides, etc.

Non-Edibles: Tennis balls, nyla bones, Kongs (without food), etc.

Dissectible Things: Plush toys, rope toys, Hide-A-Bee (Squirrel, Bird) etc.

Puzzle Toys: Stuffed Kong, stuffed marrowbone, tricky treat balls, etc.

Experiment to find out what your dog prefers. Always have a mixed selection at hand and rotate different types of chew options to keep your dog interested.

The training part.

Step 1. Prevent mistakes. When you can't supervise, put your puppy or dog in an enclosed, dog-proofed area with a sanctioned chew option.

Step 2. Teach good chewing choices. Audition a range of chew options until you find the ones that most appeal to your dog. Dogs have texture preferences, so try to match what your's likes. If he is attacking the couch pillows, try giving him plush toys. If he is eyeing the table leg, try a bone. Praise liberally when your dog chews something allowed.

Step 3. Interrupt mistakes. If your dog chews the wrong thing, interrupt and trade him for something he can chew on. Praise liberally when he does.

Step 4. Repeat if needed. If mistakes happen a lot, revisit step 1. Go back to using an enclosed, dog-proofed area until your dog is consistently making better chewing choices.

Training Tip: Rotate different types of chew options to keep your dog interested.

Troubleshooting: Is your dog suddenly chewing a lot? Is this a new habit? Make sure he is getting enough exercise and has access to things that are okay to chew.
