

Current National trends indicate that in the United States of America each year more people die of overdoses, the majority of which involve opioid drugs, than died in the entirety of the Vietnam War, the Korean War, or any armed conflict since the end of World War II.

From 1999 - 2017 700,000 have died from a drug overdose

Saving Others For Archie is a grassroots organization providing resources, offering collaborative ideas, and advocacy for change in the opioid epidemic at the local, state and national level.
