Oaxaca Food & Wine Festival Expands In Its 3rd Year Craft Beers, Mezcal & Corn Whiskeys Join the Festival

(Oaxaca, Mexico) Following two sold-out years, Dolce Events & Marketing has announced a new, expanded version of their Mexico-based event with the Oaxaca Food, Wine, Craft Beer & Spirits Festival taking place from Wednesday, February 24 through Sunday, February 28, 2027.

From the team behind the award-winning Key West Food & Wine Festival, this five-day Oaxacan experience includes seven curated events offering an intimate look at the intersection of ancient indigenous flavors in contemporary gastronomy from well-known chefs to hidden gems. The festival will showcase Mexican wines, Oaxaca's thriving craft beer movement, tours and tastings with Oaxaca's most well-known spirit, mezcal, and the lesser-known corn whiskeys produced from heirloom varieties.

Unlike many large-scale festivals, this event limits its capacity to maintain an upfront, face-to-face connection with local chefs and artisans, from urban Michelin restaurants to neighboring villages. "Oaxaca's appeal is built on cultural storytelling, not only with food but also with its history in pottery, textiles, weaving, and folk art", said Donna Shields, event director and part-time Oaxacan expat.

"Everyone knows Oaxaca for its iconic mezcal and legendary moles—which we absolutely will celebrate—but we're also introducing travelers to fantastic emerging Mexican wines, locally crafted beers, and hands-on experiences with indigenous Zapotec artisans and their crafts."

Tickets & Logistics: The intimate nature of the venues means space is strictly limited with tickets on sale starting November 1, 2026. Tickets are sold only on the official festival website and only in advance. The all-inclusive VIP Pass includes access to all seven events, a commemorative wine glass, and a curated swag bag filled with locally made Oaxacan products. Tickets can also be purchased for individual events.
