

The Public Works Experience (PWE) is a 501 c3 committed to helping everyone understand the immense value of public works.

Communities large and small depend on these basic services every day, yet public works are often poorly understood, and frequently taken for granted - until something breaks.

BUT - by heightening awareness, PWE fills this gap as THE place to learn about public works and infrastructure, and the importance of the people who keep our communities moving, safe, and clean - - all in an amazing landmark, in an amazing location!

Today more than ever, we are focused on current workforce challenges to help the region's students understand the diverse career opportunities in public works.

Our Master Plan delivers the hands-on engagement that will help educate visitors young and old about public works! Learn more about our vision, as well as upcoming events on our website, or email us at info@PWExperience.org.

Location, Location, Location!

You will find the Public Works Experience in a working pump station. Our Harbor East location is one of Baltimore's fastest growing downtown neighborhoods.

Built in 1915, the Eastern Avenue Pump Station continues to operate incognito - critical infrastructure for the city's public and environmental health, within a beautiful historic landmark. Our location is its own Public Works story!
