

About Tomas Bajza

Hi, orchid lovers!

My name is Tomas Bajza, and my passion for orchids began in the Czech Republic long before I ever imagined it would become a business. After moving to Miami, Florida, I started seriously growing orchids and, like many growers, began with Phalaenopsis, Dendrobiums, Cattleyas, and Vandas.

Everything changed when I discovered miniature orchids. I was fascinated by their incredible diversity and tiny, often extraordinary flowers. What started as curiosity quickly became a passion, and over the years I have built a collection of hundreds of micro and miniature orchid species, including many rare and unusual plants.

I especially enjoy challenging species, including cold- and intermediate-growing orchids that many people believe cannot be grown successfully in Florida. I prefer to experiment, learn through experience, and find out for myself what is possible.

My love of miniature orchids also led to photography, speaking engagements, international relationships with growers and nurseries, and eventually the creation of a business dedicated to sharing these unusual plants with other orchid enthusiasts.

Today, my goal remains simple: to make hard-to-find, unusual, and rare miniature orchids available to fellow growers while sharing what I have learned along the way.

I am still learning every day—and that's one of the things I love most about orchids.
