Have a great time folks!

ABOUT TOWN

Traffic Jam on Hartford and Vine causes stress among pedestrians.

Checker game between local bankers and couple, Mr. and Mrs. Howard and Penelope Hightower of the Bank of Ohio proves to become tense. Will there be a bank benefit this year with Mrs. Hightower as chairwoman? We will have to wait and see.

Maxine Thunderbolt (above with switch-blade). Sheriff Steel (sits in chair looking worried)

Steampunk Outlaw, “Mad” Maxine Thunderbolt acts out towards Sheriff Clyde Steel. Tuesday afternoon at the local barber shop Thunderbolt comes close to cutting Steel. After the altercation, Maxine was placed in custody by constable Makeshift McCoy. She said, “The voices inside my head made me do it.” Since then she has been reduced to bartending at the local Mystic Saloon.

The incident was caught on film by local photographer. “You’ve really done it this time,” said Steel. “Steel and Thunderbolt go way back,” claims a secret source. Word has it, they were partners at the Police department before Thunderbolt was shipped out for military duty - secret lovers in fact. While Maxine was away - Clyde Steel did play. He took up with mortuary consultant and Gypsy, Scarlet Shantytown.

When Thunderbolt returned home, Steel had already moved on to the next lady in waiting (Shantytown).

“It’s a Love/Hate relationship between Thunderbolt and Steel”, says constable McCoy. Makeshift McCoy, previously had his own personal feelings towards Shantytown and had intended on marrying her. But McCoy gave her up for the police academy. So while Thunderbolt and McCoy were both otherwise occupied, they were getting the shaft by Steel and Shantytown. Sounds like too many ladies and not enough Steel to go around.

Since then, Thunderbolt and Shantytown have been at each others throats, playing practical jokes on one another for public humiliation. Watch out for flying tomatoes!
