LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- In advance of preparing to be a fully reporting company under the rules promulgated by the SEC, Dreamlife Technology, Inc. has added an investor relations point of contact to the team. His primary focus will be on short-term and long-term business and finance strategies in the technology sector. The Company is currently listed on the OTC: Pink under "IBRC". "Our goal is to bring awareness of this first ever stand alone artificially intelligent holographic technology and communicate to the potential tech investor who may have little or no knowledge of its existence," says James Lay CEO.

On June 1, 2017, the Board of Directors for Dreamlife resolved to file its notice of company-related action with FINRA regarding its name change, reverse stock split and other action deemed proper in advancing its invisible screen ultrasonic force field holographic technology media platform. This action is currently pending. In the interests of increasing shareholder value and operational transparency, the Company has retained the services of Rachel Carlsen of Carlsen Financial Firm, as CPA, in order to proceed with the preparation and filing of its registration statement under the 1934 Exchange Act. The Company will update this release upon the filing of its registration statement.

Dreamlife further announces that the previously disclosed merger with Avita Beverage did not close as anticipated, and thus the prior disclosure should not be relied upon.

About Dreamlife Technology, Inc. Dreamlife Technology is focused on two primary Technologies; one is an artificially intelligent holographic being that can interact with you, have a conversation with you, as well as recognize you and physically touch you! The other technology is a first ever soft target anti-terrorism defense platform for airports, schools, shopping malls and other public gathering places.
