PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE, Spring 2017

It is a privilege to be able to introduce this issue of the Society's newsletter from the soapbox of the Society's presidency, which I'll gratefully and, I hope, productively occupy for the coming three years. As a long-time Society member with no family roots in Slovenia, I take heart from the Society's tradition of a presidency that in the course of forty years has passed from incumbents born in Slovenia, to non-Slovenes, to North Americans of Slovene descent, and so on in various permutations to the present day. Our Society's very founding in 1973 was the joint project of dedicated Slovene and non-Slovene scholars – and I believe that our strength and potential for wide impact today come precisely from this ongoing alliance of devoted insiders and enthusiastic outsiders who, from different perspectives, see in Slovenia a source of human experience and creativity that is rich and instructive far beyond its small size.

Lately the Society has made strides to actively enable both younger and established U.S. scholars from diverse backgrounds and disciplines to adopt a Slovene research focus. Since its inception in 2014, the Slovene Research Initiative at the Ohio State University – a collaboration of the Society with OSU and the Scientific Research Institute of the Slovene Academy (ZRC-SAZU) – has already engaged five American and four Slovene scholars in fruitful on-site collaborations with their trans-Atlantic colleagues in history, linguistics, classics, ethnomusicology, glaciology and other disciplines.

In the past year we have also provided modest but much-needed tuition stipends to graduate students at several universities, making it possible for them to enroll in advanced Slovene studies coursework. And at our business meeting last November, we voted to award conference travel stipends to graduate students whose original research on Slovene topics has been accepted for presentation at national conferences, such as the fall 2007 annual convention of the Association for Slavic, East European and Eurasian Studies.

Among our oldest and most prestigious incentives, the Society's Rado Lenček Graduate Research Award and Jože Velikonja Undergraduate Essay Award have recognized outstanding student work in Slovene studies since 2000 and 2005, respectively. This coming year we will reach out proactively to college-level international studies programs nationwide to incentivize new student research and submissions for both awards.

These strategic initiatives have been made possible by all of us working together – through our membership in the Society, our annual dues payments, our generosity in contributing to the Society’s various endowment and special funds, our pooling of opportunities and discussion of ideas. The systemic challenges facing scholars - particularly young scholars - in the humanities, social sciences and fine arts are greater now than they’ve been in many decades. In coming issues of the newsletter I would like us to continue exploring how the Society can best maximize its impact in the months and years ahead. For that discussion, I invite your input and would be pleased to hear from you anytime at mbiggins@uw.edu.

CALL FOR 2018 CONVENTION PAPERS

Young Scholars Panel at the 2018 ASEEEES Convention in Boston, MA

For the past fifteen years the SSS has sponsored a panel featuring younger scholars in Slovene Studies. The sessions have been well received and provide an opportunity for the Society to learn about new researchers in the field. If you are currently doing graduate work or have recently completed a graduate degree, and wish to prepare a paper for the 2017 meeting, please contact Gregor Kranjc (gkranjc@brocku.ca) by 15 December 2017.

Senior Scholars Panel in 2018

Since the SSS celebrated its 40th anniversary in 2013, “Old Timers” panels are becoming a tradition. We hope to offer a panel in 2017, using R. Minnich’s guidelines (U of Bergen):

The underlying thought is to mobilize long-term perspectives on developments in the study of Slovenia and the Slovenes by members of the society. We ask older members to reflect over how, in the course of their professional careers, their respective disciplines have adapted (theoretically and substantially) to transformations in the world of the Slovenes.

Anyone interested in preparing such a paper for the 2018 convention should contact Carole Rogel (rogel.1@osu.edu) by 15 December.

FROM THE TREASURER

Contributions to SSS Funds

The Society for Slovene Studies will acknowledge contributions to its special funds: Center Fund, Endowment Fund, Printing Fund, and Rado L. Lenček and Joseph Velikonja scholarship funds. The Printing Fund was established in the early 1980s with a bequest from the estate of Mary Molek. The Endowment Fund was enlarged in the early 1990s with a bequest from the estate of John Nielsen. Fund balances are reported in the 2015 treasurer's report and are available from the treasurer at any time. These funds enable the society to carry out its mission of dissemination of scholarly information about Slovenia and its people. Please remember that your contributions are tax deductible in the U.S. Our deepest thanks to all contributors.

Dues Notices

2016 dues notices will be mailed with volume 38 (2016) later this year. Any notices for dues 2015 or earlier are included with the current journal mailing. Members may pay on line at www.slovenestudies.com.

MEMBER NEWS

Society for Slovene Studies in Washington DC, November 2016

Society for Slovene Studies (SSS), a group member of the Association for Slavic, East European and Eurasian Studies (ASEEES) participates every year with several activities at the ASEEES conventions. In 2016, the convention on the topic "Global Conversation" took place in Washington, DC, on November 17-20. The SSS sponsored panel After Civil War - Historiography in Divided Society was chaired by Petra Svoljšak (Milko Kos, Historical Institute, Slovenia). Ulf Brunnbauer (Institute for East and Southeast European Studies, Germany) discussed at the panel three interesting papers, presented by the SSS members: Gregor Kranjc from Brock University, Canada (The Detritus of Occupation: American Gottscheers and the Memories of World War II in Slovenia); Oto Luthar from the Scientific Research Center, Slovenia (Reading Post-Socialist Memorial landscape and Cultural Wars: Slovenian Anti-Monuments as Continuation of 1941-45 Civil War?) and Bojan Godeša from the Institute for Contemporary History, Ljubljana (Fight for the Truth - Post-Communist Interpretations of the Second World War in Slovenia and Comparison to Other Former Yugoslav Nations). A traditional roundtable on the Slovenian foreign policy has taken place at yearly ASEEEES conventions. In 2016, the roundtable Slovenian Foreign Policy after 25 years: Past Accomplishments and Future Challenges, was chaired by Carole Rogel (Ohio State University) and featured four participants: Charles Bukowski (Bradley University), Božo Cerar (Ambassador of the R Slovenia to the U.S.), James Gow (Kings College, UK) and Peter Rožič (University of Ljubljana).

In addition, several SSS members participated in various roles at other panels. Breda Luthar, University of Ljubljana, presented the paper Jeans and Imagining West (panel: the Popular Culture and Society in Russia, Ukraine and Yugoslavia), and Vesna Mikolič, University of Primorska, delivered the paper National and Minority Languages vs. Global Language in the Cross-Border Area: the Case of Slovenian Istria (panel: Assessing Heritage Language Vitality-South Slavic Languages in the Era of Globalization. Michael Biggins and Peter Rožič were the discussants, respectively, at the panels, Memory of East Europe and Faith Communities Fostering Civil Society in Post-Conflict Bosnia and Herzegovina and Croatia; while Veronika Aplenc, University of Pennsylvania, served as the chair for the panel Public Space and Public Memory. During the convention, the SSS also had its annual meeting to discuss ongoing projects and the future candidates for the SSS executive committee and the SSS president.

The Slovenian Embassy in Washington DC organized the 3rd Slovenian-American Science and Education Showcase, a forum aimed at strengthening cooperation in science and education between the U.S. and Slovenia on November 18, 2016. The VTIS Association (V tujini izobraženi Slovenci), the American-Slovenian Education Foundation and the Society for Slovene Studies as well as several Fulbright Scholars participated in the event. Four Slovene scientists doing research at a variety of American universities or research institutions presented their research: Matjaž Kuntner, Fulbright scholar at the Smithsonian Institutions; Ana Počivalšek, University of Maryland School of Medicine; Damjan Pfeifer, Federal Reserve Board; and Rok Tkavec, Uniformed Services University of Human Science. The Society for Slovene Studies, the oldest of the academic societies, was introduced by Timothy Pogačar. Several SSS members in Washington for the ASEEEES convention, also attended the event. A reception, hosted by the Slovenian ambassador to the U.S. rounded this very interesting and useful networking event.

IN MEMORIAM Rev. Blasé Chemazar, O.F.M., (1928-2017)

Fr. Čemažar, provincial assistant of the Slovenian Franciscan Monastery in Lemont, IL, referred to as “Commissariat of the Holy Cross,” passed away on Apr. 12, 2017. Blasé was born on June 23, 1928 in Chicago, IL. Son of the late Peter and Lucija (née Demzar). The family was from Selca near Škofja Loka, Republic of Slovenia. In Aug 1946 he entered the Franciscan order; and made solemn vows in 1950. He studied theology at St. Mary Franciscan Seminary, Lemont, IL. He then continued his studies at DePaul University, Chicago. He was ordained as a priest by exiled Slovenian Bishop Gregorij Rožman on June 13 1953. He was Chaplain at St. George Parish from 1953-59; and for six months at St. Stephen Parish, both in Chicago. He continued his postgraduate studies at DePaul University in history. He served as Chaplain, St. Therese of the Child Jesus Parish, Johnstown, PA. and also St. Anne's in Moxham from 1961-64. He was Guardian of the Slovenian Franciscan monastery in Lemont from 1964-67; and then he served as a Provincial Delegate and Custos of the Holy Cross Custody until 1977. He was again assigned Custos from 1983 to 2000. In 1980 he was appointed as pastor, St. George Parish until 1982. Fr. Blasé was appointed pastor of St. Stephen Parish where he served from 1989-98 as the last pastor until his retirement. He then lived in the Franciscan Monastery in Lemont. He lay in state until time of Funeral Mass at the Chapel of St. Mary's Friary followed by interment at St. Mary Seminary Cemetery. Fr. Čemažar was a member and supporter of the SSS.
