What an amazing journey to follow Melissa on her journey of discovering Jesus and the Holy Spirit in a new and fresh way. You get Biblical Spiritual truth but in a delightful fictional story that will cause you at times to stop and ask Holy Spirit to examine your heart. Can't wait for the other two books in "This Present Evil Age" Trilogy to be out.

The Title of this book is the perfect name to describe a surrendered life to Jesus Christ. "The River" illustrates being led and carried by the Holy Spirit on a life in which the Lord asks us for trust without filling in the details on the outcome. The author allows us to enter the authentic world of this fictional traveler's thoughts, doubts, and trust, on a journey accentuated by danger, risk, challenges of faith, and eventual victory. Each obstacle or challenge on the journey required a listening ear and an obedient heart. Yield, let go, trust ... are some of the words that rest in my heart after reading "The River." Those words will take all of us a long way, so thank you Betty Kulich, for this creative presentation.

When I read this book I was immediately captured by the similarities in my own life. There are times I laughed and times I cried but I always felt the presence of Holy Spirit with me as I read. This kind of book can only be inspired by the Holy Spirit Himself and I am grateful to have read it for myself. No one can ever understand what we've been through in our lives except Jesus. And He shows Himself many many times in this book as He truly ispatient loving kind powerful and very much wanting our friendship and devotion. I have been changed by this book. A must read for all who desire a deeper walk with the Lord!

This is the best book for Teachers who pray!

Our work can bring us, The bureaucracy can confuse us to what is our purpose?!

Are we doing this work for ourself, our students... it can take its toll.

Melissa found the River, when she finally decided to take a break from her work. It's human to lose our way & get off track.

I suggest you journal your journey as you read !

I read this book once a week, pray over it & reflect. Building your path takes time!

Your book is amazing. How blessed are we for the revelation and clarity of the supernatural so beautifully presented to the reader. I can see and feel my rod and staff over my shoulder and the mantelpiece that give such peace and courage. One read is not enough . I'm re reading with my daughters. The River calls me to digest all Jesus, Holy Spirt and God want me to share with others.

This book is intriguing, enlightening and even life changing. It drew me in from beginning to end. I found myself in the boat with Melissa, experiencing all she did. The ending brings the reader full circle with her.
