

There isn't a Ranger unit near to us - so I don't think it's worth telling the Guides about what they could do

The Rangers are told about all the opportunities that they can do: YLs, Queens Guide Award, DofE, Peer Educator, Inspire

The Rangers just leave when they become 18 years old, if they haven't already left

Our nearest Ranger unit regularly visits our Guide unit and tells the Guides about the exciting activities they get up to

Most Guides leave when they get to teenage - they just lose interest

We encourage our older Guides to form a special Patrol that allows them to use time at Guides finding out about Rangers & YLs

A Girl's Journey in Guiding

We never join in with the Guides or the District events because as the Brownie Leader I'm too busy

We have regular joint meetings and activities with the Guide unit that our Brownies normally move to

I keep hold of my Brownies until they are 12, because they don't want to go onto Guides and they help me out with the younger girls

Older Brownies are always encouraged to find out about or visit Guides

I just leave it up to the girls if they want to move on - it's not my job!

We share our waiting lists at District meetings to ensure girls are offered places to join a unit that has spaces

Start

We can't afford the Ready for Rainbows books for our Rainbows, so we don't bother

Rainbows always experience a special evening of celebration when it's time for them to move on to Brownies

Brownies meet at a different place and on a different evening to us, so we don't have any contact with them
