Yogadancer Series- current study of abstract inspired figurative drawing and making sculptures of them one day.

The idea of dancing figures was inspired by Aliah Selah & Lotus Heart Yogadancers music videos she produces. Aliah developed 18 Qigong “call out” moves for unified movement on nature shoots. The Lotus Heart Yogadancer form blends the sacred movement of: Qigong, Yoga, with Contemporary and free flowing organic dance – see her music videos:

I made the box out of a 2x4x8 piece of pine wood. I put the hinges, the clip, and handle on it too - along with the wood legs.

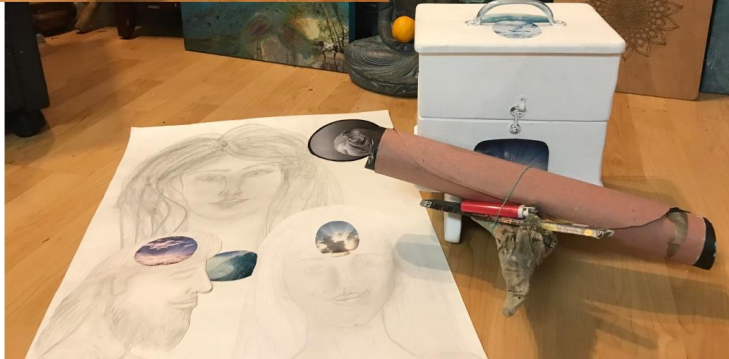

Then, I found this piece of driftwood in the tool room that no one claimed. So I begged them to give it to me, and they finally did. THEN, I found out it fit perfectly (no screws needed - it wedged in) to make the dragon head.

Blessing our healing waters...

All for the vision of a better world.

Aliah Selah's song
"Bless The Water"
was used in Austin, Texas to help the S.O.S. efforts to save Barton Springs against a developer polluting the water in the watershed
for everyone.
Aliah's TV shows helped promote the cause and covered the progress while Aliah Selah played at the benefits concerts.

On Aug 8th 1992,
a glorious victory happened for the people who passed the S.O.S Ordinance
- a voter-driven initiative to protect Barton Springs against unrestricted development in the Barton Creek Watershed.
In 2016, Aliah produced an electronica version of
"Bless The Water"
and a new music video was released for World Water Day - showcasing at the
the Hot Springs Festival
in New Mexico.

Across The Universe 2013

who both understood love is all that's what's real.
His spirit is smiling now as disclosure brings our New Earth. Something they understood way before ∞ peace seemed possible.
