About The Super Patch Company

The Super Patch Company, formerly VoxxLife, is a privately held company devoted to drug free wellness, optimal health, and improved human performance.

Years of research and marketing as VoxxLife, founder and inventor, Jay Dhaliwal, has laid the foundation for an innovative new technology called Super Patch. These drug and ingredient free, noninvasive patches are FDA registered and the dermatologically tested and approved medical grade plastic and adhesive are FDA approved. Super Patch is currently available in thirty two countries and counting.

Tactile perception is an innate mechanism for human survival. Representative of our evolved and adaptive sensorial ability to gather information through haptics, the active touch for object recognition and perception by higher centers of the brain. The somatosensory experience is determined by a set of ion channels and receptors; sensitive to thermal, tactile and mechanical stimuli, are shown to be critical to balance, control, and pain alleviation.

The exclusive haptic vibrotactile technology (VTT), developed by The Super Patch Company, is designed to target the known networks of neuronal pathways. Widely distributed neural networks in the brain respond to sensory stimulation. These signals are measurable by electroencephalogram (EEG) and have shown that VTT can influence and modulate brain centers.

"Braille for the Brain". Each Super Patch has a unique dimensional pattern that sends a message to your brain stem that triggers a response much like a QR code scanned by a mobile device. It subsequently recalibrates corrupted neural pathways to optimal factory settings.

People have relied on products such as pain relievers, antacids, NSAIDs, sleep aids, antidepressants, anti psychotics, and synapse inhibitors, attempting to enhance their quality of life. Evidence has proven OTC products and prescribed drugs have devastating effects with both immediate and prolonged use. Wellness practitioners and clients alike are seeking natural, safe solutions for pain relief, stress reduction, deeper sleep, enriched focus and concentration, improved balance, strength and athletic performance, heightened immunity, conquering addictions, and raising homeostatic quotient.

Super Patch recognizes the need for drug free, safe and natural alternatives to achieve maximum performance, whole body wellness and improved quality of life.

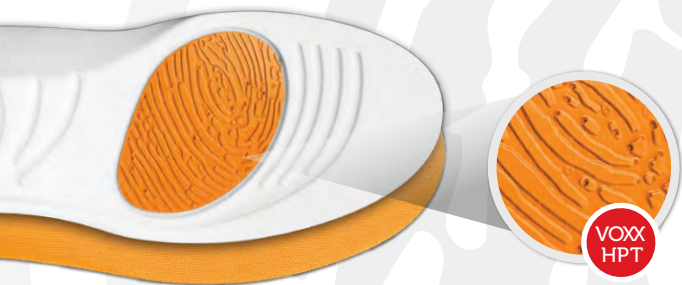

Achievement is imminent with the development of this proprietary, exclusive, and scientifically proven vibrotactile technology.

History of Super Patch

How Super Patch Uses the Science of VOXX HPT

Decades of advanced research based on previous studies in brain stem functionality and the peripheral nervous system (PNS) resulted in the latest discoveries and research in sensory mechano-receptor mapping, brain activity correlated to acupuncture, as well as dermatome stimulation and the different somatic pathways. Secondary and free receptors and related nervous and brain activity were key factors in integrative correlated peripheral nervous system and the functionality of the brain stem.

Understanding the development and impact of VOXX HPT and the relationship between the human PNS, brain stem and the various nuclei is important.

The peripheral nervous system (PNS) connects the central nervous system (CNS) to environmental stimuli to gather sensory input and create motor output. The PNS coordinates action and responses by sending signals from the various receptors such as mechano-receptors and dermatomes to the brain stem. The PNS includes all other sensory neurons, clusters of neurons called ganglia, connector neurons that attach to the brain stem, and other neurons.

The brain stem connects the rest of the brain with the spinal cord. It consists of the midbrain, medulla oblongata, and the pons. The primary input into the brain stem is through the Area Postrema (AP) and Nucleus Tractus Solitarius (NTS). Motor and sensory neurons extend through the brain stem, allowing for the relay of signals between the brain and spinal cord. Ascending neural pathways cross in this section of the brain, allowing the left hemisphere of the cerebrum to control the right side of the body and vice versa. The brain stem coordinates motor control signals sent from the brain to the body. It also controls several important functions of the body including pain management, alertness, arousal, breathing, blood pressure, digestion, heart rate, swallowing, walking, posture, stability and sensory motor information integration.

Decades of research into dysfunction and disorders of the brain stem and associated impact on the nervous system and body, also point to the direct and likely benefits of a brain stem not in dysfunction or disorder, or seemingly in homeostasis.

This research has also led to several conclusions and developments. These different receptors (parts of the PNS) have an integrative relationship between themselves and do correlate to specific nervous stimulation and signals that can be sent through General Somatic Afferent (GSA) Pathways, Special Somatic Afferent (SSA) Pathways, General Visceral Afferent (GVA) Pathways, and Special Visceral Afferent (SVA) Pathways to the brain stem.

Evidence proves that these signals can be very specific and can help the brain stem reach homeostasis and equilibrium which enhances the functions of the brain stem and the reticular nuclei, the monoaminergic and cholinergic nuclei as well as the parabrachial nucleus and periaqueductal gray.

This is the key to VOXX HPT.

VOXX HPT is a very specific sequence and pattern of neuroreceptor activation on the bottom of the feet that triggers a signal that aides in the brain stem in reaching a homeostatic quotient. The VOXX HPT pattern is woven or molded into different products including hosiery and footwear accessories.

The documented results and benefits arising from the products incorporating the VOXX HPT pattern include enhanced pain relief and management, especially in Painful Diabetic Neuropathy (PDN), enhanced postural stability and balance, improved mobility, and overall energy levels.

The concept is simple.

The science is proven.

The results are extraordinary.

The Future of Wellness in a Patch

Super Patch

The Evolution of Socks to Patches

Six million customers can attest to the success of our socks and the advancements of 3D printing made it possible to improve our encrypted technology even further. A benefit of the patches vs the socks is that the consumer has unlimited choices on their ability to address more than one wellness goal or life enhancement. Additionally, patches can be work year round.

The Super Patch Neural Path to Wellness and Performance Featuring VOXX HPT Science

HPT triggers are a very precise neural response in receptors on the bottom of the feet and other areas of the body.

Sensory division of the Peripheral Nervous System (PNS) brings information from the receptors to the Brain Stem and Central Nervous System (CNS).

BRAIN STEM and CNS process, integrate and distribute information and commands based on the information from receptors.

The PNS carries commands from the CNS to the BRAIN STEM and to the Somatic Nervous System (SoNS) and Autonomic Nervous System (ANS) triggering control and response in various functions.

Commands to the SoNS and ANS have direct impact on:

- Vestibular System
- Balance
- Spatial Orientation
- Proprioception
- Respiratory Control
- Motor Control & Posture
- Fight or Flight
- Reaction Time
- Heart Rate Regulation
- Skeletal Muscle Control
- Pain Regulation

People see improvements in balance, stability, power, stamina, reaction time, pain relief, energy, recovery time, posture, cognizance, and sleep.

CENTRAL NERVOUS SYSTEM

The central nervous system (CNS) consists of the brain and spinal cord and is responsible for integrating, processing, and coordinating sensory data and motor commands.

3 BRAIN STEM

The BRAIN STEM is composed of the midbrain, pons, medulla and reticular formation.

The BRAIN STEM plays a role in conduction. That is, all information relayed from the peripheral nervous system to the cerebrum and cerebellum (CNS), and vice versa, must traverse the BRAIN STEM. The BRAIN STEM has integrative functions involved in cardiovascular system control, respiratory control, pain sensitivity control, alertness, awareness, and consciousness.

These areas of the brain and the numerous associated nuclei within, assist the control of many functions of the autonomic and somatic systems such as the vestibular system, balance, spatial orientation, kinaesthesia, skeletal muscle control, fight or flight, reaction time, and pain regulation.

Information processing includes the integration and distribution of information in the CNS and BRAIN STEM.

PERIPHERAL NERVOUS SYSTEM

The peripheral nervous system (PNS) includes all of the neural tissue outside the CNS.

2 The sensory division of the PNS brings information to the BRAIN STEM/CNS from receptors in peripheral tissues and organs.

4 Motor division of the PNS carries motor commands from the CNS/BRAIN STEM to peripheral tissues and systems.

Somatic sensory receptors provide position, touch, pressure, pain, and temperature sensations.

Somatic nervous system (SoNS) controls skeletal muscle contractions.
Autonomic nervous system (ANS) provides automatic regulation of smooth muscle, cardiac muscle, glands, and adipose tissue.

Special sensory receptors provide sensations of smell, taste, vision, balance, and hearing.

Visceral sensory receptors monitor internal organs.

Receptors are sensory structures that detect changes in external and internal environment.
