

A man and a woman are performing music in a dimly lit room. The man, wearing glasses and a dark jacket, is seated and playing an acoustic guitar while singing into a microphone. The woman, wearing a white shirt and patterned shorts, is seated next to him, also playing an acoustic guitar and singing into a microphone. They are both looking towards the camera. In the foreground, there is a round glass coffee table with a water bottle and a small cup on it. To the left, there is a red sofa and a small table with two water bottles. The background is dark, with some furniture and a lamp visible. The overall atmosphere is intimate and artistic.

A woman with dark hair and headphones is shown in a dark setting. She is looking down with her hands held out, and a warm, golden light emanates from her palms, creating a magical atmosphere. The background is dark and textured, possibly a wall or a cave.

How does the music happen?

My name means ray of light in a dark room, which sort of reflects my music. If I have to describe my sound as a feeling, I'd say it's somewhere between helpless and hopeful.

I'm quite an introvert and shy but I do love the feeling of creating an environment for people to feel something through my music or art.

I cannot pin what inspires me, I'd say the experience of life itself. There's not a lot of thought to where it all comes from but I think the purpose of my life, is to litter art everywhere and I intend to do so unapologetically. I love writing music, poems, stories and remains to be seen...

Film

Alongside her music, Anami is an emerging filmmaker with a distinctive visual voice. She directs all her own music videos, crafting cinematic stories that mirror the emotional honesty of her songs. Her approach blends intimate storytelling with strong aesthetic sensibilities, making each video a standalone work of art.

One of her most recognized projects is the music video for Swarathma, which gained attention for its vibrant visuals and heartfelt narrative. Anami now aims to collaborate with other artists and brands, bringing her perspective on light, duality, and human connection to a wider range of creative projects.
