Together we achieve more and pull together with one goal: to press authentic wines in our home town of Röschitz in the Weinviertel. Whether in the vineyards, in the cellar or in marketing: we share the work and grow together. We have always received support and inspiration from our parents and grandparents. We have been cultivating the different plots of our winery organically since 2013. We do this out of conviction, not because fashion demands it. The extra work (and lower yield) is rewarded with more typicality and character: we let nature take its course, promote the self-healing powers of the vines and at the same time preserve the most valuable resources - the soil of our Röschitz region. The grapes ripen earlier, form less sugar and alcohol, require less sulfur and thus ensure fresh, long-lived and straightforward wines. The result is wines the way we love them.
