Volunteers in Mission are a vital part of our ministry. They travel as a team for approximately a week and a half to two weeks to one of our distribution locations. Currently, our distributions are in the Dominican Republic, Sierra Leone and the Navajo/Dine Reservation in northern Arizona.

They load and unload the supplies, assemble ovens side-by-side with the prospective oven recipients as well as cooking and doing dishes with our seminar participants. At the conclusion of each of three two-day seminars, the Volunteers help with distribution of ovens, making sure every component is included with each oven.

As a Volunteer in Mission, your job is not only to do your part to make sure the cooking seminar happens and the ovens get distributed, but also to interact with the seminar participants, to hear their stories, witness their joys and aspirations as well as challenges and to come back and share what you have seen, felt and experienced.

To learn about upcoming opportunities, contact us via phone or email and we'd be happy to tell you what is currently available and to put you on a list to be informed of new opportunities as they arise. Don't miss out on this life-altering experience!
