THREAT LEVEL: EXTREME

THREAT ASSESSMENT

01

Subject is assessed as an extreme-level figure due to absolute political authority over Eurussia and direct influence across military, parliamentary, and provincial structures.

Despite a noted decline in direct governance, subject retains the ability to mobilise national assets, command loyalty across multiple factions, and alter the balance of power through a single directive.

Subject's current instability introduces unpredictability into decision-making processes, increasing risk to overall continental stability.

PSYCHOLOGICAL PROFILE

02

Subject exhibits signs of prolonged withdrawal from active leadership following the death of his spouse. Behaviour is characterised by self-imposed isolation, increased alcohol dependency, and reduced engagement with governance responsibilities.

This decline has impacted both internal authority and external perception of strength, particularly among close affiliates and family members.

Despite this, subject retains underlying leadership presence and authority when engaged. Historical patterns indicate capacity for decisive action when required. Relationship strain within the Whitfield family is evident, with reduced confidence from immediate successors noted.

SERVICE HISTORY

03

Subject has ruled as King of Eurussia for several decades, overseeing a period of relative stability and consolidation of power across the continent.

Established and maintained centralised authority through Parliament, military structures, and strategic alliances.

In recent years, subject's direct involvement has diminished, resulting in increased autonomy among subordinate figures and shifting power dynamics within the capital.

SPECIALIST CAPABILITIES

04

- > Absolute political authority over Eurussia
- > High-level diplomatic influence across continental structures
- > Strategic alliances with key figures including Luke Walker and Andrew Romanov
- > Ability to mobilise military forces at will

NOTE: Subject remains the central authority within Eurussia despite reduced active governance. Perceived weakening of leadership has contributed to internal power shifts. Re-engagement by subject may significantly alter current political and military trajectories.

01

Subject is considered a high-priority threat with capacity for sustained lethal engagement against both military and civilian targets. Direct confrontation is strongly discouraged without overwhelming force.

PSYCHOLOGICAL PROFILE

02

Subject displays extreme antisocial behavioural patterns consistent with advanced psychopathy. No measurable empathy or restraint observed. Demonstrates a clear preference for domination through fear, humiliation, and prolonged violence.

Motivations are not aligned with traditional power structures. Subject does not seek political control or authority, instead operating with singular focus on the total destruction of perceived enemies — former allies included.

Behaviour in prior engagements indicates enjoyment derived from the psychological and physical suffering of targets. Subject has been observed prolonging confrontations beyond tactical necessity. No remorse recorded across any documented incident.

Combined with extreme operational competence, subject is considered one of the most dangerous individuals in active classification.

03

Former FLAME operative. Records indicate high combat efficiency prior to defection. Subject went rogue during active wartime operations. Circumstances surrounding defection remain [REDACTED BY DIRECTORATE].

Subsequent activity suggests alignment with destabilising forces operating outside Eurussian command structure.

SPECIALIST CAPABILITIES

04

- > Close-quarters combat (extreme proficiency)
- > Advanced weapons training
- > Rotary aircraft operation (helicopter)
- > High endurance and physical resilience

NOTE: Subject should not be treated as a conventional combatant. Standard protocols are unlikely to be effective. All encounters to be reported to Citadel command immediately.

THREAT LEVEL: EXTREME

THREAT ASSESSMENT

01

Subject is assessed as a high-command battlefield authority with the capacity to decisively influence large-scale military operations through strategic coordination, force distribution, and sustained command presence.

Unlike conventional high-threat individuals, subject does not rely on isolated acts of violence but instead exerts control through structured military execution. Under subject's command, unit cohesion, discipline, and operational efficiency increase significantly.

Direct engagement is not advised. Disruption of subject's command structure would be required to meaningfully reduce operational effectiveness.

PSYCHOLOGICAL PROFILE

02

Subject displays a controlled and disciplined psychological framework shaped by duty, expectation, and prolonged exposure to frontline command conditions. Emotional expression is limited, with decision-making prioritising outcome over sentiment.

Subject demonstrates high resilience under sustained pressure, maintaining clarity in environments where command breakdown is common. Trust is selectively assigned and rarely extended beyond proven individuals.

Leadership approach is structured and uncompromising, favouring order, accountability, and long-term stability over short-term morale.

SERVICE HISTORY

03

Born in Phoenix City, subject was raised within the central power structure of Eurussia. Military training and leadership development were established early, leading to rapid advancement into command-level roles.

Subject was assigned to the Southern Trench and assumed full operational control of Central Command. Under subject's leadership, the trench has maintained defensive integrity despite resource strain and sustained external pressure.

SPECIALIST CAPABILITIES

04

- > Large-scale battlefield coordination
- > Strategic defensive planning
- > High-pressure command decision-making
- > Advanced military training and tactical oversight
- > Personnel discipline and force stabilisation

NOTE: Subject represents a command-level threat. Removal or compromise may result in temporary destabilisation of trench operations. Continued monitoring is recommended.

THREAT LEVEL: EXTREME

THREAT ASSESSMENT

01

Subject is assessed as an extreme-level threat with the capacity to decisively influence battlefield outcomes through command authority, combat proficiency, and sustained operational success.

As PMC Commander, subject maintains direct control over large-scale military assets and personnel. Presence within an active theatre significantly increases allied effectiveness and reduces operational failure rates.

Subject combines frontline combat capability with high-level command oversight, allowing for both direct engagement and coordinated force deployment. Multiple successful campaigns have been attributed to subject's leadership.

PSYCHOLOGICAL PROFILE

02

Subject exhibits highly controlled and disciplined behavioural patterns consistent with elite military training. Decision-making is direct, efficient, and outcome-driven, with minimal tolerance for hesitation or deviation from objective.

Demonstrates strong internal structure shaped by formal training and sustained command responsibility. Emotional restraint is pronounced, with personal factors rarely interfering with operational judgement.

Subject shows strong loyalty to key affiliates, particularly within the Whitfield family and trusted command figures. Behaviour indicates a preference for order, control, and decisive resolution over prolonged conflict.

SERVICE HISTORY

03

Graduate of FLAME Academy, receiving the highest level of military training available within Eurussia. Subject advanced rapidly through operational ranks, demonstrating exceptional combat proficiency and leadership capability.

Records indicate participation in multiple military campaigns, with a consistent pattern of decisive victories and suppression of opposing forces.

Notably, subject is the only recorded individual to have survived a direct one-on-one engagement with the Angel of Death. Details of the encounter remain restricted.

SPECIALIST CAPABILITIES

04

- > Advanced combat proficiency (close-quarters and ranged)
- > High-level command and battlefield coordination
- > Strategic campaign execution
- > Elite military training (FLAME Academy graduate)
- > Sustained operational performance under pressure

NOTE: Subject represents one of the most capable command-level threats currently active. Engagement without significant numerical or strategic advantage is strongly discouraged.

THREAT LEVEL: EXTREME

THREAT ASSESSMENT

01

Subject is assessed as an extreme-level threat with the capacity to influence and control continent-wide outcomes through political authority, financial oversight, and strategic manipulation of governance structures.

As Chancellor of Eurussia, subject maintains direct control over continental finances and trade networks between Phoenix City, Greentown, and Krashnov. This position grants sustained leverage over both military operations and civilian stability.

Threat is not derived from direct combat capability, but from subject's ability to shape decisions at the highest level of command, often without detection.

PSYCHOLOGICAL PROFILE

02

Subject exhibits highly controlled, calculated behavioural patterns consistent with long-term political dominance. Displays strong confidence in personal judgement, coupled with a belief in intellectual and strategic superiority over peers.

Behaviour indicates limited emotional attachment to individuals outside of their strategic value. Patterns suggest traits commonly associated with high-functioning sociopathic profiles, including emotional detachment, manipulative interpersonal behaviour, and absence of observable remorse.

Ideological shift observed following the return of David Whitfield. Subject has developed a belief that the Whitfield family has become ineffective, with increasing conviction that leadership authority should be transferred to more capable hands.

SERVICE HISTORY

03

Originating from Shackleton Province, subject advanced through political and administrative structures to assume the role of Chancellor of Eurussia.

Subject's rise was significantly accelerated through marriage to Elizabeth Whitfield, providing direct integration into the Whitfield family and increased proximity to executive authority.

Maintains long-standing position within the Citadel, serving as chief advisor to Wayne Whitfield while overseeing continental financial systems and inter-provincial trade operations.

SPECIALIST CAPABILITIES

04

- > High-level political strategy and manipulation
- > Continental financial and trade control
- > Institutional influence within Parliament
- > Long-term power consolidation
- > Psychological leverage over key individuals

NOTE: Subject represents a systemic threat rather than a physical one. Removal or disruption may result in widespread instability. Continuous monitoring is critical.

THREAT LEVEL: EXTREME

THREAT ASSESSMENT

01

Subject is assessed as an extreme-level threat based on confirmed engagement reports and historical combat activity.

Subject is considered among the most lethal known operatives within Eurussia. Recorded involvement in the Hatchet Hills conflict indicates responsibility for mass casualties among PMC forces, with estimated losses exceeding one thousand personnel.

Subject operates independently with no confirmed command structure or external support. Engagement patterns suggest deliberate targeting, high situational awareness, and controlled execution of objectives.

Direct confrontation is strongly discouraged.

PSYCHOLOGICAL PROFILE

02

Limited data available.

Subject exhibits behavioural patterns consistent with disciplined and highly trained operatives. No evidence of erratic or unstable behaviour. Actions appear controlled, deliberate, and outcome-focused.

Lack of communication, identifiable allegiance, or ideological expression suggests operational isolation. Motivation remains unconfirmed.

No recorded instances of negotiation or surrender.

SERVICE HISTORY

03

Subject first identified during the Hatchet Hills conflict, where PMC forces encountered sustained and coordinated resistance from a single unidentified combatant.

Multiple field reports attribute high-value target eliminations and large-scale personnel losses to the subject.

Confirmed engagement with David Whitfield resulted in a draw. Encounter details indicate subject possesses combat capability equal to top-tier FLAME-trained operatives.

No verified records prior to Hatchet Hills. No confirmed sightings following the conflict.

SPECIALIST CAPABILITIES

04

- > Extreme close-quarters combat proficiency
- > High-level tactical awareness
- > Precision targeting and execution
- > Stealth and environmental adaptation
- > Sustained combat endurance

NOTE: Subject remains unidentified. All available data is derived from limited field reports and a single confirmed high-level engagement. If encountered, assume lethal intent and capability exceeding standard elite operatives.

THREAT LEVEL: VERY HIGH

THREAT ASSESSMENT

01

Subject is assessed as a high-level threat due to combined influence over Krashnov's military forces and industrial infrastructure.

Field intelligence indicates strong loyalty from elements of the K Militia, providing effective control beyond formal command structures. Subject's access to weapons production and supply networks enables sustained military capability and strategic independence.

Unlike purely political actors, subject possesses military training and demonstrates willingness to engage directly when required. Alignment with Chancellor Lionel Brady extends subject's operational reach beyond Krashnov.

PSYCHOLOGICAL PROFILE

02

Subject exhibits calculated, power-driven behaviour with a clear focus on consolidation of control. Decisions are pragmatic and outcome-oriented, with little regard for moral or political constraint.

Intelligence indicates long-standing rivalry with Andrew Romanov, accompanied by a belief that current leadership lacks the strength to maintain authority. Subject demonstrates intolerance for perceived weakness and a willingness to act decisively to remove or bypass it.

While not defined by overt brutality, subject has shown readiness to engage in direct action when necessary, indicating a balance between strategic control and personal enforcement.

SERVICE HISTORY

03

Subject advanced through industrial and military structures within Krashnov, securing influence across both sectors.

Established control over resource production and leveraged supply dependency to gain support within the K Militia. Expanded influence into military command through internal loyalty, effectively positioning himself as the dominant operational authority.

Formed alliance with Chancellor Lionel Brady, providing material support to external operations.

SPECIALIST CAPABILITIES

04

- > Military command and combat training
- > Industrial resource control
- > Supply chain manipulation
- > Strategic positioning and expansion

NOTE: Subject represents a consolidation of military and industrial power within Krashnov. Willingness to act both strategically and directly increases threat beyond standard political actors. Internal instability within Romanov leadership may increase likelihood of unilateral action.
