Getting Through Tough Times

The 2021-22 school year was really hard for us. The COVID-19 pandemic kept affecting families all over India. Like many groups, we faced big problems: we had to switch to teaching online, we collected less money from fees, and we had to follow strict safety rules to stay open.

But even with all these challenges, we never forgot our main goal—to give children who need it most a safe home, good schooling, and real hope. Thanks to our amazing staff, kind partners, and smart new ways of doing things, Nav Jeevan Sanstha not only made it through but kept being a strong support for kids in need.

Safe Homes

Financial Stability

Ensuring Every Child Could Learn

When schools had to close, we made sure learning didn't stop. All our teachers quickly switched to online classes and learned how to teach from home or school using new tools and platforms. We put effort into making remote learning work for everyone.

Still, we knew not all kids had good internet or devices, especially in far-away areas. So, our teachers found smart ways to help—like recording lessons and sending them to parents through WhatsApp.

This way, even students living in the most remote places could keep studying. No child missed out on learning—helping every student was something we made sure to do every single day.

New Hostel Building for the Future

01

Construction Delays

Lockdowns and movement restrictions brought the new boys' hostel project to a halt. Months passed with no progress as the nation prioritized health and safety.

02

Restrictions Ease

As COVID-19 measures relaxed toward the end of 2021-22, we saw an opportunity to resume. The architect finalized detailed drawings for the hostel.

03

Essential Preparations

A borewell was dug to ensure adequate water supply for the new facility. Initial building materials were carefully purchased despite budget constraints.

04

Work Resumes

Construction activities restarted with renewed energy. Though funding remained challenging, careful financial planning allowed us to move forward with this critical project.

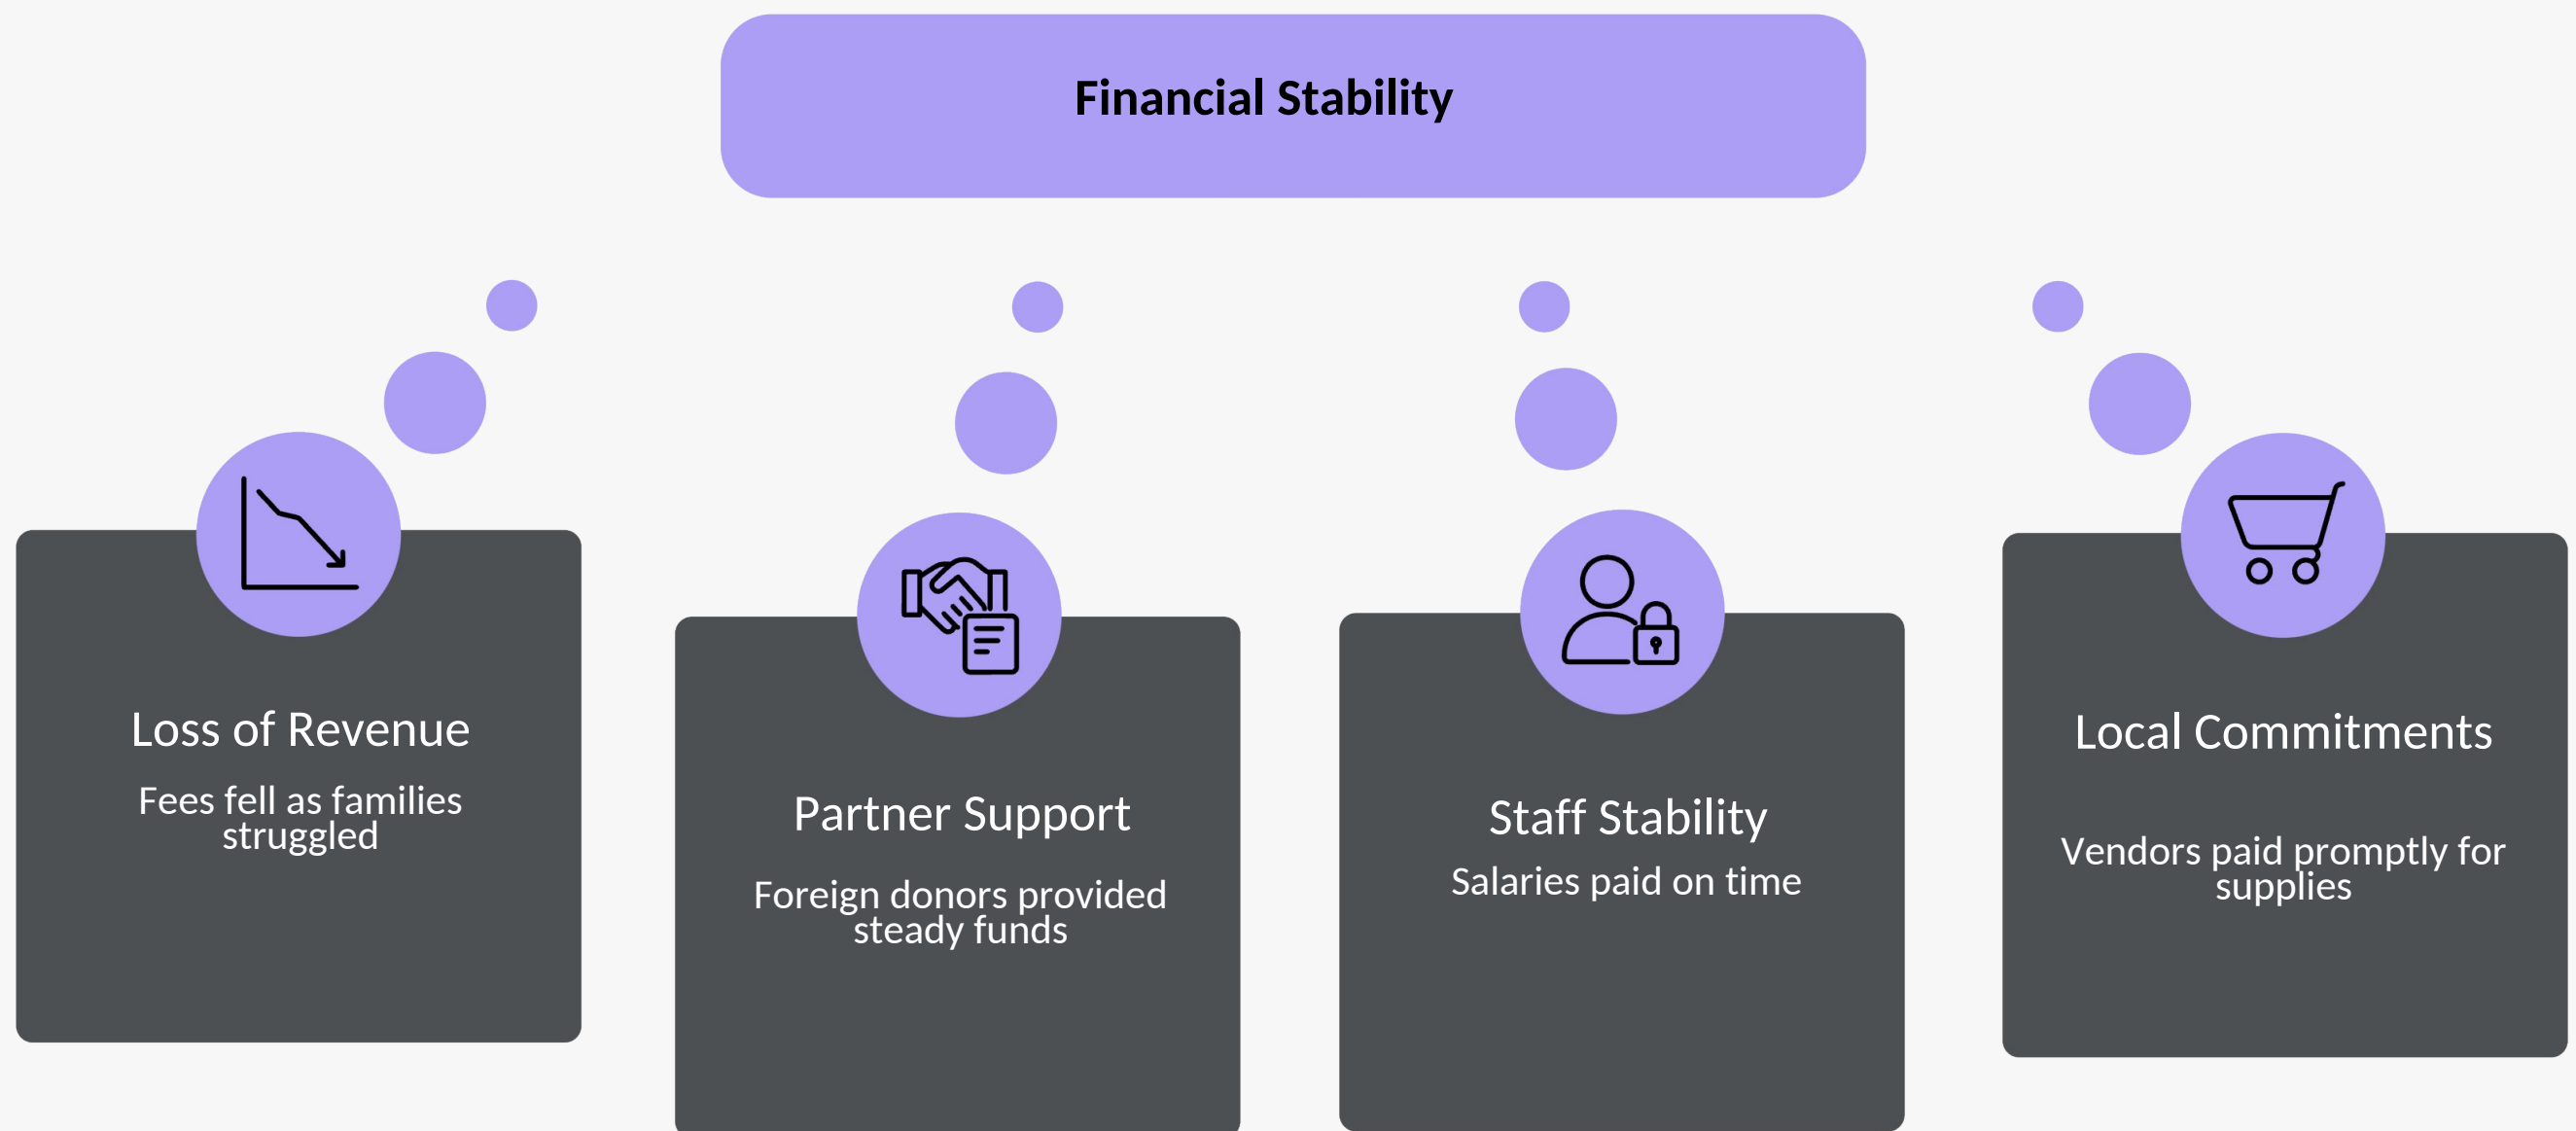

Financial Resilience Through Support from our Donors

The pandemic caused a big drop in our fee income because many families faced financial hardship. Still, we kept up our duties to both staff and children.

We managed this challenge thanks to generous foreign donors, whose steady support helped us pay staff salaries on time and keep things stable.

We also made sure to pay local grocery and vegetable vendors quickly, so food supplies for children and staff were not disrupted. Keeping our commitments to everyone who relies on us became even more important during this crisis.

Stories of Hope and Home

When government regulations prohibited hostel stays during lockdown, some children had absolutely nowhere else to go. We made the compassionate choice to keep them with us, providing safety, education, and daily care. For these children, our hostel isn't just temporary shelter—it's their home.

Moksh, Age 6 • First Class

Moksh arrived after his father left and his mother couldn't care for him due to work demands. Shy at first, this bright young boy is now thriving in first class, building friendships and discovering his potential.

Stories of Hope and Home

Ashish, Class 12 • Future Engineer

Rejected by his father's new family after his mother's death, Ashish survived on leftovers until a village teacher brought him to us. Now preparing for his Board exams, he dreams of becoming an engineer.

Karan, Class Ten • Aspiring Soldier

Karan came to us at age six after losing both parents. While academics aren't his strength, he excels in physical fitness and wrestling. His dream is to join the army, and we're committed to helping him achieve it.

Global Volunteer, Local Impact

In January, we welcomed Thias, a 20-year-old visitor from Holland, who came to us through Annelies van de Ven. Even though the pandemic made things hard, Thias wanted to see our work for himself.

He quickly became part of our family. He ate meals with the children, learned Hindi words, and joined in everyday activities. Thias was most touched by the happiness and strength of the children, even though they had difficult lives. Their positive attitude made a strong impression on him.

Inspiration
Before going back to Holland, Thias promised to support Nav Jeevan Sanstha by raising funds through his family and friends. He was truly inspired by the children he met during his time with us.

Excellence Against All Odds

 Uninterrupted Learning

 10th Batch

 100% Pass Rate

- Nav Jeevan Sanstha is very proud because all the students in our 10th batch passed the SSC exam.
- This great result shows how hard both our students and teachers worked, even when times were tough.
- It proves that with the right help, effort, and good teaching, every child can reach their goals, no matter what problems come their way.

A Place of Hope, Safety, and Opportunity

During 2021-22, Nav Jeevan Sanstha stayed true to its goal, even when money was tight, health worries were high, and running things was tough. We always put the children first and never gave up on them.

We couldn't have done this alone. Our staff learned new ways to teach, volunteers brought happiness, our partners gave financial help, and local vendors made sure we had what we needed.

But most of all, this shows how strong the children are—their smiles, their learning, and their dreams, even when things are difficult. They remind us every day why our work is important and give us hope to keep working for a better future for every child who comes to us.

Thank you to everyone who made this year possible
