

The Score

November 15, 2021

Hello Friends of The HighArt Foundation (HAF),

The HighArt Foundation
INSPIRE. SUPPORT. ELEVATE.

Words cannot adequately express my gratitude for your continued support. Because of you, The HighArt Foundation has been able to successfully accomplish our mission to "inspire, support and elevate" students, while they pursue their dreams. As we wrap up a successful year, we look forward to another year of assisting more students and curating more performances.

Thank you again and let's continue writing The Score...

HAF Scholarship Recipients Updates

Cecilia Malley is having a wonderful time at Florida State University! She is studying voice under Dr. Eric Reiger and has performed for her studio class. She is active in several clubs across campus, including Asian American Student Union, and a small student-formed Madrigal choir! Malley has performed in concert with FSU's Levana and she performed Mahler's 2nd Symphony. Both experiences were truly electric, and she shared that it is wonderful to be back onstage after so long!

Julianna Watson has been quite busy in her first semester as a freshman at Reinhardt University majoring in Musical Theatre. In addition to the support she received from The HighArt Foundation, she was awarded both a fine arts and a merit scholarship from Reinhardt University for this academic year. She studies voice with Dr. Rebecca Ann Salter. Julianna has appeared in two stage plays this semester. She was cast as Sandrine and Marvalyn in Almost, Maine written by John Cariani. She portrayed Sister James in Doubt: A Parable by John Patrick Shanley and participated in cast talk-back panels after the show exploring character development and themes of the play.

Giving Tuesday is November 30!

It's a global generosity movement unleashing the power of people and organizations to transform their communities and the world. Please visit our website and help us continue to help young artists pursue their dreams. <https://naguandanobles.com>
