A letter from the Elders

A letter from the Elders of Divinity Is Eternal.

In celebrating shamanism, we realize a few of our brethren have begun to commercialize and monetize many of our sacred practices.

We wish to add a letter of caution to all those who may be contemplating some sacred practices.

The Truth...

It takes years to ascend to the eligibility to prepare, ingest and partake in sacrament.

In many circles it is only for those who are initiated.

In addition, there are various levels of initiation one must ascend to in order to partake.

Instant enlightenment is not instant. It is achieved with higher level study.

The shortcut that may be appearing before you is not to be taken lightly...

Study, fasting, prayer, meditation and contemplation before Spirit are just a few of the applications that can be used in preparation.

Often, sitters are required in the monitoring of these sacred ceremonies.

The study of learning to sit and hold space is an assignation in and of itself...

Many sitters are nurse practitioners, physicians, as well as other physical and yes, psychological practitioners.

Preparation for sacrament, yes sacrament is a learned process.

The definition of sacrament

Sacrament is a visible, outward sign of an invisible, spiritual grace given by a higher power. It uses physical elements like water, bread, or wine to share in holy love and life with a higher power.

Wielding the tools as prescribed by various spiritual and religious groups should not be taken lightly.
