Notes for Jordan Marbourg:

Alleged Infidelity of a Wife - Summary Vengeance by the Husband 1864, Cambria, Pennsylvania

On Friday morning a week, a shocking tragedy occurred in Johnstown, Cambria County, Pennsylvania, in which two old and influential citizens were the participants. The particulars, as given in the Pittsburg papers, are as follows:

Mr. Joseph Moore, an auctioneer, of Johnstown, on her recent return from nine months service in the army, ascertained that his domestic happiness had been destroyed, it is alleged by Mr. Jordan Marbourg, a wealthy merchant of the town.

On hearing of the intimacy said to exist during his absence between Marbourg and Mrs. Moore, who is represented as prepossessing in appearance and of a dashing disposition, Moore called upon the former, and after an explanation, told him he would shoot him. Mrs. Marbourg, hearing of Moore's threats, appealed to him not to take her husband's life, but the outraged husband would not listen to her.

On Friday morning, Moore arose early, and, leaving his house, visited a grocery store near the postoffice, where he remained between eight and nine o'clock, when Marbourg passed by Moore started out immediately and caught Marbourg by the collar, saying "Get down on your knees, I am going to kill you. My wife made a "clean breath of it last night. She told me all, and gave me a portion of the money which you paid her." Saying this, he drew a revolver and fired - the first shot taking effect in the region of the heart.

Marbourg fell forward, and Moore discharged two balls into his head, and then fired a fourth which took effect in the left arm. Marbourg fell over and almost instantly expired. Moore walked to a magistrate's office, surrendered himself, and was committed to jail to await the action of the authorities.

The deceased man leaves a most estimable wife and eight or nine children - the eldest, a son, about twenty years of age. The murderer has a wife and one child. He was personally popular with all classes, a perfect gentleman in his dress and manner, and was not without influence in the community. The deceased was a prominent citizen, a merchant of Johnstown for thirty years, and had accumulated a large fortune. Both of them were members of a church.

Mrs. Moore, has already been remarked, is a woman not wanting in personal charms. Of late years, her husband, although attentive to business, has not been pecuniarily a well-doer, and it may be the desire for more than her husband could furnish, her, coupled with the charms alluded to, has been the cause of her fall, if, fallen she has. Mrs. Marbourg, who is a most accomplished woman, is a native of Philadelphia.

INDICTMENT for murder. P. S. Noon, District Attorney, E. B. Foster, James Potts, and A. Kopelin, for the Commonwealth. John Scott, B. G. Childs, C. L. Pershing, B. McLaughlin, and R. L. Johnston, for the prisoner.

The facts are sufficiently detailed in the charge to the jury by TAYLOR, P. J.—Joseph Moore, the prisoner at the bar, is charged in the indictment which you have been sworn to try, with the murder of Jordon Marbourg. The case requires of this court, and of you, gentlemen of the jury, the discharge of the most solemn and responsible duty ever cast upon a court and jury. The life of this unfortunate prisoner, on the one hand, and, on the other, the maintenance of the law made and ordained to shield and protect life, are committed to us; and the discharge of our respective duties to the one and to the other, is required of us alike, according to our best judgment, under the solemn sanction of an oath. It is our duty to state to you the law, and to indicate the questions for your decision which arise in its application. It is your duty to apply the law, as you receive it from the court, to the facts in evidence, as you have received them from the witnesses, and heard them discussed by counsel, and so make up your verdict. We have written and pondered every word we have to say to you; and it is our earnest prayer that you may be guided to conclusions which will discharge the solemn obligations of the oath taken by you all when you entered that box, and result in "a true deliverance between the Commonwealth and the prisoner."

Murder, as defined by the common law, is committed, "when a person of sound memory and discretion, unlawfully killeth any reasonable creature in being, and in the peace of the Commonwealth, with malice prepense or aforethought, either express or implied." "A person of sound memory and discretion" is one who has sufficient knowledge to know and understand the nature of the act, and that it is a violation of his moral and social duty, and will subject him to punishment. But everyone is presumed by the law to be sane, and to possess this measure of understanding, and he is responsible for his acts, unless this presumption be overcome by facts and circumstances disclosed in the proof of the principal fact, or shown by affirmative evidence in the defense. Malice, in its legal, as distinguished from the popular sense of the word, does not mean spite or malevolence against the deceased in particular, but that the fact has been attended with such circumstances as the ordinary symptoms of a wicked, depraved and malignant spirit; a heart regardless of social duty, and fatally bent on mischief. It is either express or implied. Express malice is when the killing is with a sedate, deliberate mind, with formed design manifested by external circumstances, such as previous threats or menaces, former grudges, and concerted schemes to do the party bodily harm. Implied or legal malice means that the fact has been attended with such circumstances as carry with them the plain indication of a malevolent spirit. The law implies malice in every deliberate cruel act committed by one person against another, however sudden. Every unlawful killing is therefore murder, unless it be shown to be a less offence, or no offence at all.

This is murder at common law, and this is murder in Pennsylvania. Our statutes furnish no new definition of the crime. What was murder at common law is still murder; but our statute, for the purpose of more just punishment, distinguishes between different acts of malicious homicide, and divides murder into murder of the first and murder of the second degree. It is in the language of Act of 22d of April, 1794, re-enacted in the Act of 31st March 1860, that "all murder which shall be perpetrated by means of poison, or lying in wait, or by any other kind of willful, deliberate and premeditated killing, or which shall be committed in the perpetration of, or attempt to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery or burglary, shall be deemed murder in the first degree, and all other kinds of murder shall be deemed murder in the second degree; and the jury before whom any person indicted for murder shall be tried shall, if they find such person guilty thereof, ascertain in their verdict whether it be murder of the first or second degree."

The duty is imposed on the jury, when they find the prisoner guilty, of discriminating between the two degrees of murder, in the verdict. It is not difficult, usually, to recognize the murders in the first degree, here specifically defined; but more difficulty has arisen in determining whether a particular murder is included in or described by "any other kind of willful, deliberate, and premeditated killing." This phraseology evidently means a degree of deliberation similar to that indicated in the defined cases of "murder perpetrated by means of poison or lying in wait; and from the case of Mulatto Bob, 4 Dallas 145, tried by Chief Justice McKean, soon after the passage of the Act of 1794, down to the present day, the uniform judicial construction has been, that whenever there plainly appears to have been a formed design, or a specific intent, however suddenly formed, to take life, it is murder of the first degree. When such design, or intent to kill, is not shown beyond a reasonable doubt, or when there is a reasonable doubt whether the murderer, when the mortal wound was inflicted, intended anything more than to do great bodily harm, it is murder in the second degree. The test inquiry is, did the prisoner, at the time, deliberately aim at life, and intend to kill?

A response to this inquiry must be given by the jury, from all the evidence. Such deliberation and design may be shown—and it is for the Commonwealth always to make it out beyond a reasonable doubt—by express evidence of such design, or by circumstances and conduct which necessarily imply it. It may be an irresistible inference from the weapon used, and the manner of its use. If, for example, he deliberately aim a loaded pistol at the head or breast of another, and discharge it; or if, with deliberate aim, he cleave the skull with an axe, it could not admit of a moment's doubt that he intended to kill. And if he had time to deliberate and form such design, though but for a minute, and did so, it is a "willful, deliberate, and premeditated killing," and murder of the first degree. This has been the uniform construction of our statute; and, with the report of the commissioners to revise the penal code before them, that they had made "no attempt to interfere with the law of murder as it has existed since the Act of 1794," for the reason that it had "been so thoroughly considered, and its construction and its meaning so entirely settled by a long course of judicial decisions," the legislature, in 1860, adopted, without the change of a word, the old statute.

A homicide, indicted as murder, may be reduced to manslaughter, by evidence which rebuts the presumption of malice; or to no offence at all, by evidence showing it to be justifiable or excusable.

Manslaughter is the unlawful killing of another without malice. It is a killing which usually happens in a sudden heat and quarrel, and upon sufficient provocation. The law, from tenderness to human infirmity, considers a homicide committed in passion, upon what it judges sufficient provocation, as committed without malice, and therefore, only manslaughter. Provocation, without passion, or passion without provocation, is not sufficient for the purpose. And provocation, such as will avail for the purpose, has a defined legal signification. No breach of a man's word, no trespass to his lands or goods, no insult by words, no matter how provoking or insulting they may be, will free a party killing from the guilt of murder. And this is especially true where the party killing upon such provocation, makes use of a deadly weapon. "This is most wisely settled," as Judge King remarks in The Commonwealth v. Green, 1 Ash. 297; "for dreadful would be the state of society in which the law would listen as an apology for taking human life, to such notions of insult or provocation as a licentious and ill-governed spirit would give rise to."

This is the law of homicide, so far as it is necessary to state it, at least at present, in this case; and we now turn to the evidence to which the law is to be applied. The testimony of the many witnesses proving the homicide, which is not denied, presents, as was properly remarked by one of the prisoner's counsel, no conflict, except that slight discrepancy in the statement of details which is always to be expected when several undertake to describe an exciting transaction. We learn from them, that on the morning of the 12th of February, about eight o'clock, the prisoner, who, as it appears by other evidence, had been informed by his niece, living with him, of a report in circulation about his wife and the deceased, the truth of which he had in the meantime been industriously engaged in investigating, was observed standing at Frazer's corner (in view of the house of Jordan Marbourg, the deceased, and the post-office, in Johnstown), looking one way, and the other, and noticeably excited. From there he walked to Mr. Wehn's store, and upon Mr. Wehn's invitation, went in and sat down, and remained there about half an hour. During that time, Mr. Wehn was reading or talking to him, though he appeared to pay no attention, but seemed to be steadily looking towards the street through the glass door. He then rose up and went out. Mr. Wehn, who had seen Marbourg, pass, followed to the door, and says that when he came to the door, he saw Marbourg coming out of the post-office, and saw the prisoner catch hold of his coat collar. About this time the noise attracted the attention of a number of other witnesses, who all give substantially the same account of the horrid occurrence which followed, with some discrepancy respecting the expressions used, the order and turn in which they were made, and perhaps, some other unimportant details. We gather from all their statements that the prisoner caught and held the deceased by the collar with his left hand, brandishing a pistol which he held in his right hand, over his head, and pushing him back against the building, and drawing him out from it, at one time striking him on the forehead a slight tap with the pistol. Before he took the pistol out of his pocket and afterward, he accused the deceased with having seduced his wife when he was in the army fighting for his country; with having ruined his family; that his wife had confessed all that morning; told him to get down on his knees and confess, or repent; said that he would be justified in shooting him, but hated to have his blood on his soul. His appearance is described as wild and excited, his manner violent and boisterous, and his language profane. During this time, the deceased made no resistance, seemed to be paralyzed, and in a subdued or low tone was denying the charge. At length, at some expression made by the deceased, the prisoner became more excited, let go his hold, stepped back, brought the pistol down to a level with the head of Marbourg, aimed, and fired the pistol. Five shots were fired all of which took effect, one of them, which lodged in the brain, being sufficient, as Dr. Lowman testifies, to have produced instant death. This altercation lasted about one and a-half or two minutes. The prisoner, after the shooting, put the pistol in his pocket, took off his hat and walked away some distance, talking aloud, and to no one in particular. Dr. Jackson said to him, "Joe, that's a terrible revenge;" he replied "he had ruined him and his family." To another, at the same time, he stated that he could not help it. Soon afterwards he went to the office of Irvin Rutledge, Esq., and said he had come to surrender himself into the hands of the law. This is an outline of the evidence as it describes the homicide. You have heard it all from the stand, and heard much of it read and frequently referred to in the argument. Your recollection will supply the various and varied expressions of the prisoner and the deceased during the altercation, and the language used by the witnesses in describing their appearance and manner. It will be remembered that Levi B. Cohick, testifies that on Saturday, the prisoner, when engaged in ferreting out the report, made the remark that if it was true, he could settle the matter between him and Marbourg in a very few minutes, and on Monday " he told me that if the report was true, he would shoot Marbourg in one or two minutes." Thompson Kimmell testifies that about the 6th of February the prisoner remarked to him that it was bad enough, and that if it was true, he could settle with Marbourg in a minute. He turned to Marbourg and said "if this report was true, he would kill him in two minutes—he would come Sickles over him." Captain Hite testifies that on Friday, 5th February, the prisoner, in a conversation with him, said ".if he found they were guilty—he was rather under the impression it was a slander upon his wife—but if he found Marbourg guilty, by the eternal God he would kill them dead in their tracks." The witness understood him to say in this connection, that if he found it to be a slander, or that they were guilty, he would kill either.

This simple statement of the undisputed facts, in view of the law as we have given it to you, gentlemen of the jury, discloses, beyond any room for reasonable doubt, if the prisoner was at the time responsible, a willful, deliberate, premeditated killing.

The defense, as stated in the opening argument for the prisoner, is two-fold:

"First, that the homicide was justifiable, under all the circumstances.

"Second, that the defendant was not a responsible agent."

1. Upon the first proposition here stated, it is surely unnecessary to dwell a minute. We are surprised, indeed, to hear it asserted or hinted even, here, whatever might be said elsewhere, that, if the prisoner was at the time a responsible agent, this is, or in any possible view of it could be, a justifiable homicide. Justifiable! There is no ground for a reasonable doubt that the prisoner acted at the time under the belief that the deceased had committed adultery with his wife; or that he had sufficient reason for that belief. Judging from his terrible earnestness when he uttered it, added to the evidence of the guilty intimacy which he had discovered, and of course involving her, it is no doubt true, as he said, that she had "confessed it." But if he had caught them in the very act, and instantly killed Marbourg, it will not be claimed surely, that our law would hold him guiltless. It would not have been justifiable homicide. That would have such a provocation as would have reduced the killing to manslaughter. That is all. But he would still be guilty of manslaughter. We are told that the Jewish law punished adultery with death; but that is not the law of Pennsylvania. This court, and you, gentlemen, have not been sworn to administer the municipal law of the Jews. Our law has not made adultery a capital offence; how could it justify the infliction of that penalty? Or, if that were the penalty, how could it justify any injured party in taking the law into his own hands; becoming the prosecutor, court, jury, and executioner, and in sending, without a trial, or an hour's warning, the accused culprit into the presence of his God? To come to such a state of things would, we submit, be "progressing" backwards. "There would be exceedingly wild work taking place in the world," Judge Park well remarks, "if every man were to be allowed to judge in his own case." If he may claim to do it in one case, why not in another? As a remedy, too (as the facts in this unfortunate case afford the most touching illustration), it is absurd almost to madness. Without any resulting good, without restoring anything lost, it gives one hundred-fold more publicity to the family disgrace under which he smarts, beside bringing upon himself the indelible stain of blood. And while, as a remedy for his wrongs, he brings these aggravated evils upon himself, by his lawless act, he inflicts the deepest injury upon others who are as innocent as himself of the crime he would punish, and as much injured by it. Mrs. Marbourg, as, with true Christian philosophy, she reminded the prisoner, was as much injured (since a woman must be allowed as keen sensibilities as a man) by the criminal conduct of his wife and her husband, as he was by the guilty conduct of her husband and his wife, and each one of her nine children was as innocent as his son, and yet his act visited her with the desolation of widowhood, and made her children orphans. There are persons, we know, who ignorantly and thoughtlessly, or wickedly, proclaim that the adulterer should be shot down, and who busy themselves in propagating that morbid and mischievous sentiment; but it requires very little discernment to see how much wiser the law is, than the reckless impulses of human passions.

We repeat, gentlemen, the homicide was not justifiable under all or any of the circumstances. Nor have we been able to arrive at the conclusion that the prisoner had legal provocation such as would extenuate it. We do not find the law to be so. Besides, to say nothing of the evidence of express malice, dating back a week, could it admit of a reasonable doubt that there was more than sufficient time for passion to cool? We turn, therefore, to the other ground of defense.

2. Was the prisoner, at the time of the homicide, a responsible agent? or, in other words, was he insane?

The just principle upon which this defense rests, is, that one whose perception of right is perverted or destroyed by mental malady, is not responsible for his actions, any more than an infant. The law imputes to them no guilt whatever; and, when such a state of mind at the time of the commission of an act sought to be punished as a crime, is shown to have existed, it is the duty of the jury to find the defendant not guilty. And by a recent statute of this Commonwealth, the Act of 31st March, 1860, known as "the revised Penal Code," it is enacted that "in every case in which it shall be given in evidence upon the trial of any person charged with any crime or misdemeanor, that such person was insane at the time of the commission of such offence, and shall be acquitted, the jury shall be required to find specially whether such person was insane at the time of the commission of such offence, and to declare whether he was acquitted by them on the ground of such insanity." This, as it is indicated in the statute, so that he shall be treated and provided for as his unhappy situation and the safety of the community in which it is thus ascertained to be unsafe to let him go at large, may require; and such, should the defense set up in this case prevail, will be your duty.

The law, gentlemen, which must govern your inquiries, and to which you must apply, and by which you must judge of and pass upon the facts relied upon to establish the defense of insanity, as declared by all the judges in England, in Mr. Naghten's Case, and by the English courts ever since, and by almost every American court, including the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, and by the most able and eminent judges, among them Chief Justice Shaw of Massachusetts, and the late distinguished Chief Justice Gibson of Pennsylvania, and in the words which we have felt it to be our duty heretofore to state it to a jury in a capital case, is this?

"Every man is presumed to be sane, and to possess a sufficient degree of reason to be responsible for his crimes, until the contrary be proved to the satisfaction of the jury; and to establish a defense on the ground of insanity, it must be clearly proved, that at the time of committing the act, the party accused was laboring under such a defect of reason, from disease of the mind, as not to know the nature and quality of the act he was doing, or if he did know it, did not know that he was doing what was wrong." However others may speculate, it is the duty of a jury to bring the evidence to this test.

Upon this general subject, we state to you the law as applied to a case before the judges of our own Supreme Court (three of them present), in the language of Chief Justice Gibson:

"Insanity is mental or moral; the latter being sometimes called homicidal mania, and properly so. It is my purpose to deliver to you the law on this ground of defense, and not to press upon your consideration, at least to an unusual degree, the circumstances of the present case on which the law acts.

"A man may be mad upon all subjects; and then, though he may have glimmerings of reason, he is not a responsible agent. This is general insanity; but, if it is not so great in its extent or degree, as to blind him to the nature and extent of his moral duty, it is no defense to an accusation. It must be so great as entirely to destroy his perception of right and wrong; and it is not until that perception is thus destroyed that he ceases to be responsible. It must amount to delusion or hallucination, controlling his will, and making the commission of the act, in his apprehension, a duty of overruling necessity. The most apt illustration of the latter is, the perverted state of religious obligation which has caused men sometime to sacrifice their wives and children.

"Partial insanity is confined to a particular subject, the man being sane on every other. In that species of insanity, it is plain that he is a responsible agent, if he were not instigated by his madness to perpetrate the act. He continues to be a legitimate subject of punishment, although he may have been laboring under a moral obliquity of perception, as much as if he were laboring under an obliquity of vision. A man whose mind squints, unless impelled to crime by this very mental obliquity, is as much amenable to punishment as one whose eye squints. On this point there has been a mistake as melancholy as it is popular. It has been announced by learned doctors, that if a man has the least taint of insanity entering into his mental structure, it discharges him of all responsibility to the laws. To this monstrous error may be traced both the fecundity in homicides, which has dishonored this country, and the immunity which has attended them. The law is, that whether insanity be general or partial, the degree of it must be so great as to have controlled the will of its subject, and to have taken from him the freedom of moral action.

"But there is a moral or homicidal insanity, consisting of an irresistible inclination to kill, or to commit some other particular offence. There may be an unseen ligament pressing on the mind, drawing it to consequences which it sees but cannot avoid, and placing it under a coercion which, while its results are clearly perceived, is incapable of resistance. The doctrine which acknowledges this mania is dangerous in its relations, and can be recognized only in the clearest cases. It ought to be shown to have been habitual or at least to have shown itself in more than a single instance. It is seldom directed against a particular individual; but that it may be so is proved by the case of the young woman who was deluded by an irresistible impulse to kill her child, though aware of the heinous nature of the act. The frequency of this constitutional malady is fortunately small, and it is better to confine it within the strictest limits. If juries were to allow it as a general motive operating in cases of this character, its recognition would destroy social order as well as personal safety. To establish it as a justification in any particular case, it is necessary either to show by clear proof its contemporaneous existence evidenced by present circumstances, or the existence of a particular tendency developed in previous cases, becoming in itself a second nature."

We introduce here, and answer, the written points submitted by the prisoner's counsel:

1. "The court are requested to instruct the jury that if they believe that at the time of the killing the defendant was in such a state of mind as to be unable to apply the test of right and wrong to the particular case, he is not a responsible agent, and the verdict should be, not guilty."

This is the test or criterion, in passing upon evidence of the existence of insanity, in its common and usual forms, to a degree that will relieve from responsibility; and we answer the point in the affirmative.

2. "The court are requested to instruct the jury that if they believe the prisoner to have been governed by an uncontrollable impulse; his will no longer in subjection to his reason, owing to the excited and continued impetuosity of his thoughts, and the tumultuous and confused condition of his mind; that, goaded by a sense of grievous wrong, he was wrought to a phrensy bordering upon madness, which, for the time being, rendered him unable to control his actions or to direct his movements, their verdict should be not guilty."

We are at some loss to understand what is here meant. If the point is predicated of moral insanity, which is recognized in Mosler's Case, 4 Barr 264, and which we recognize, we affirm it. We recognize moral insanity, however, as they did, as of uncommon occurrence, and evidence of the existence and operation of which, since it cannot be tested by the general rule applicable to the common and usual forms of insanity, is to be received and passed upon in view of the cautions suggested in the case referred to. If the point means more or less than we have supposed, we refuse our assent.

You will inquire, then, gentlemen, whether the prisoner was laboring under moral insanity, and in doing so, you will remember the cautions suggested in the case read. The general test here fails, for in this mania, it seems, one may be drawn on to consequences which "he sees, but cannot avoid," and "be aware of the heinous nature of the act." There is little, in such case, to distinguish it from an ordinary criminal act. "To the eye of reason, every murderer is a madman." In the commission of every crime, the judgment and conscience are overborne for the time by temptation to evil, acting upon the wickedness of the heart and exciting the evil passions to overmastering strength; but to allow that to excuse, would be to make crime its own justification and evidence of its own innocence, and to strike at the foundation of all accountability. It is well said, therefore, that "the doctrine which acknowledges this mania is dangerous in its relations, and can be recognized only in the clearest cases." The evidence adduced to establish it should be subjected to the strictest scrutiny. "It ought to be shown to have been habitual, or at least to have shown itself in more than one instance." "To establish it as a justification in any particular case, it is necessary either to show by clear proofs its contemporaneous existence, evidenced by present circumstances, or the existence of a particular tendency developed in previous cases." Is there such proof here? Were the shots fired at the deceased without discrimination or without a motive? Had a tendency to such acts been developed in a single instance in the whole life of the prisoner before this act of homicide, or has it been since?

If the prisoner was not laboring under moral insanity, you will inquire whether, upon the evidence here, he was laboring under mental malady of any kind, so as not to know and understand the nature of the act he was doing, and that it was wrong and would subject him to punishment. And we propose to detain you but a short time longer, with a few observations upon the evidence in this part of the case.

It is claimed on the part of the prisoner that his appearance and conduct, on that occasion, explained and accounted for by other evidence heard in his behalf, evidenced insanity. The witnesses state that he was wild and excited in his appearance, violent in his gestures, his voice raised to a high and unnatural pitch and heard in a crying tone, and his expressions, some of the witnesses say, were incoherent. The witnesses themselves were of course more or less excited, and they use their own words to describe his conduct and to express their own impressions. Some express his manner and appearance as "excited" and "wild;" some of them say he was in "a phrensy." They testify that he swore profanely, and used also low and vulgar expressions.

The question here is, was this the incoherent raving and phrensyed conduct of a maniac or one at the time insane, or was it the violence of one excited by passion and seeking revenge? Was it insanity, or was it anger? You will judge. Violent gestures, loud tones and excited looks are the natural expressions of anger, varying in degree with the temperament of the person and the intensity of his passion. Profanity seems also to be the natural language of angry passion. The witnesses say that his appearance was different from what they had ever noticed it; but none of them had ever seen him angry. Was his conduct natural or otherwise, supposing him to have been sane and to have sought out Marbourg and shot him down, in revenge for an injury? If, calm and unexcited, and as the witnesses had always before seen him, or with a smile on his face, instead of the fire of anger in his eye, he had met Marbourg and shot him down, without any assigned or known motive, and then turned around and walked calmly away, without manifesting any excitement or concern, what would have been the conclusion, that he was sane or insane?

It is claimed also that his appearance and conduct, on that occasion, wore in such striking contrast with his habits and character through his whole life, as to exhibit a complete transformation, which is only reasonably explained on the supposition that the sad calamity that had befallen him, the evidence of which he had confirmed that morning by the confession of his wife, acting upon an excitable temperament for a week, during which he had ate and slept but little, had dethroned his reason. And it is true that he has shown, by all the witnesses, not merely a good, but a very good, an excellent character. It has been shown, too, that he has long been a regular, punctual and an exemplary member of a church; an elder, occasionally officiating for the preacher in his absence; that no one had ever heard him use a profane or vulgar word, or any expression which might not have been used in any company. All this is entitled to your consideration, and to such weight as you think it deserves, in determining the question of his sanity.

Is it probable, the inquiry naturally arises, that if his reason had not for the time been overthrown, he would have acted and talked in a manner so inconsistent with his whole previous life, and so contrary, apparently, to his very nature, as exhibited in the proof of his excellent character as a man and a Christian? And yet it is not to be forgotten that men of the most exalted personal and religious character have fallen into crime. David, who was a man after God's own heart, was guilty of adultery, and, to hide it, of murder. And we read that when the mob had taken his Divine Master before the high priest, "Peter sat without in the palace, and a damsel came unto him saying, thou also wast with Jesus; but he denied before them all, saying, I know not what thou sayest." He was accused by another, "and again he denied with an oath, saying, I know not the man." And "after a while they that stood by accosted him with the same accusation; then began he to curse and to swear, saying, I know not the man." He soon afterwards "went out and wept bitterly." Peter 'was guilty of lying and profanity. It was conduct grossly inconsistent with his religious character; but it is not intimated that he was insane. The Saviour, "who knew what was in the heart of man," said to his followers, "watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation." And an apostle said, "let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." Such is human nature, that a good character is no certain guaranty that its possessor may not fall into sin, and but feeble evidence against clear proof of guilt. Still we commend this evidence to your consideration upon this question of insanity, and you will allow it all the weight you think it merits in the prisoner's behalf.

It has also been shown that one of the prisoner's brothers is insane, and has been a raving maniac for twenty-eight or thirty years; and that he has a sister, who, as some of the witnesses expressed it, is a weak-minded woman. She is married and has children, but, in the opinion of some of the witnesses, is not capable of giving proper attention to her children and her domestic affairs. This evidence was offered and received to show a hereditary taint. Insanity is, no doubt, a hereditary disease, which may appear and re-appear, overleaping sometimes a generation; and proof of its existence in a family is pertinent evidence on a question like this. The evidence here, however, going no further than we have stated, is very slight. It does not appear that his parents or any of his ancestors have been insane, or any of the family, except one brother. But, if such proof were made, the force of it would only be to show a liability, or a predisposition at most, to the disease. That is not the disease. If a hereditary taint were established, it might aid in solving the question, whether his unusual conduct is most reasonably ascribable to insanity or anger. You will judge whether this evidence sheds any light on the question.

We all remember, too, that the prisoner became suddenly ill here in this room on last Friday, and it has been shown that, after he was taken to the jail, he was laboring under delirium, and was, for a short time, phrensied and raving. He imagined there were persons there trying to injure him, and he wanted the sheriff sent for to protect him, when the sheriff was there, trying to calm him. He wanted to see his son, when his son was present. He fancied they wanted to shoot him, and that he saw blood on his breast. He continued in that state near half an hour, when he fell asleep and awoke rational. This was delirium, "resulting," as Dr. Bunn testifies, "from depression following high nervous excitement, and resembling mania a potu." During its continuance, there can be no doubt he would not have been responsible for any act done by him. But the question is not what was his condition on Friday, but on the 12th of February, when he shot Marbourg. The evidence has no other bearing on this question than as it may tend to show the existence of some predisposition to delirium or mania, under like circumstances, and from a similar cause, and of the same character. He had been under excitement a week before the homicide. This fact, with the evidence now under consideration, it is argued, explains and accounts for his conduct at that time. It is not made to appear, however, that he labored under any delusion then. He was dealing with a real character, and for a reason then given. To the excitement up to that time was added that of the terrible tragedy, of everything that has followed to him, and of this trial, and yet we do not learn that he had any mania or delirium during the intervening month. That mania, too, results from and follows excitement; while he was under high excitement at the time of the homicide. It is to be remarked, also, that in mania a potu, with which Dr. Bunn classes it, the patient is not fierce, but fearful; his delusion being apprehended danger to himself, which he is trying to escape; and so it was with him on Friday.

On the other hand, it is urged that the prisoner, during the whole of the week before the homicide, was ferreting out and trying to ascertain the truth of the reports concerning his wife and the deceased; going from one person to another, and from place to place, as he discovered some new source of information; comparing statements and noticing discrepancies, in his efforts to get at the truth, as counsel would prepare a cause; that, after having satisfied himself of the truth of the reports, he provided the loaded pistol and went to the vicinity of the post-office, where, as it is alleged, he expected to find the deceased; waited and watched, lying in wait for him in Wehn's store, as it is also alleged, till he passed; followed him to the post-office, and shot him down—what he declared a week before he would do, if he found the report to be true, and giving that reason for it at the time and afterwards. In all this, it is argued against the prisoner, he was following out and executing a deliberately formed and repeatedly declared purpose, reasoning at every step, and knowing and understanding what he was about. It is urged, also, that he afterwards went to the office of Irwin Rutledge, Esq., knowing where it was, and that he was a magistrate; stating to him that he had shot Marbourg, and had come to surrender himself into the hands of the law, expressing at the same time his belief that God would forgive him, and his willingness to be tried by a jury of his country. This, it is argued, all clearly shows that he knew at the time the nature and consequences of the deed, and knew and understood before what tribunal he was answerable for it.

You, gentlemen of the jury, will take into careful consideration the whole evidence, and determine the prisoner's responsibility. This is all we have to say to you.

If you find the prisoner guilty, you will state in your verdict the degree of his crime, or of what you find him guilty. If you find him not guilty on the ground of insanity, the only ground on which you can acquit him, it will be your duty to state that you find he was insane at the time of the commission of the act, and that you acquit him on that ground.

And now, gentlemen, we have discharged our duty. We have dealt faithfully with this case. We sit here, as you sit in that box, to discharge our duty, as you must discharge yours, under the solemn obligations of an oath. Having done so, according to our best judgment, no conscious self-reproach, which we should of all consequences most dread, will ever rise up within us to disturb us in the future. For other consequences, we are not responsible. It is not our province, nor yours, to make the law, but to administer it. It is not for us or for you to remit its penalties; the pardoning power is lodged in other hands. Whatever the result may be, to the prisoner or to the public; whether it be a result which will convict the prisoner, or acquit him; that will vindicate the law, or strike it down; whatever the result may be, we are acquitted at the bar of our own conscience.

The case, and the responsibility of its decision, are now with you.

Notes for Edmond S. (Edward) Marbourg:

Bedford, Pennsylvania - Last week our townsman, A. B. Egolf, received word of the death of Edward Marbourg of Elyria, Ohio, who died in that city at the home of his brother-in-law, H. J. Egolf, on Tuesday, February 2, 1915. Mr. Marbourg was formerly from Schellsburg, and was a brother of the late Dr. Frank Marbourg.

Elyria – Edward S. Marburg, agent for the Berkshire Life Insurance company, passed peacefully from this life, Tuesday afternoon Feb. 2, 1915, at his apartments on East Avenue, having been ill for the past few months, due to Bright's disease. The deceased was a native of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, until 20 years ago, the opening of the steel plant at Lorain, attracted many Johnstown people to this city. The deceased would have been 65 years of age had he lived until but the active life he led, combined with his simple manner of living, led one to believe him a much younger man than he really was. For many years, Marbourg, by hard work, enjoyed the reputation of being one of the most successful agents in the employment of the Berkshire Life company and he prized the success attained by him along that line.

His devotion to his niece, Miss Anna Egolf, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Egolf, of Middle Avenue, was remarkable in this, age and generation and served to bring out one of the chief characteristics of the deceased, who devoted the greater part of his life to make others happy. The deceased was one of the most respected members of the Masonic and B.P.O.E. lodges of this city and his departure from life of activity and social relations, will be regretted in fraternal circles as well as in the hearts his many personal friends. The funeral will be held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Egolf, Thursday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, the burial to be private.

Notes for Dr. Hezekiah Wilson Marbourg:

History of Cambria County, Pennsylvania, Volume 2. By Henry Wilson Storey. Page 564:

Hezekiah Wilson Marbourg, M. D., late of Johnstown, who was a capable and efficient physician and surgeon and a citizen of worth and character, was a representative of a family of German ancestry which numbered many professional members.

Maximilian Marbourg, M. D., grandfather of Dr. Hezekiah W. Marbourg, was born in Marbourg, Austria, and studied medicine in the college at Munich, Germany. Soon after his graduation from this institution he came to the United States and located in Baltimore, Maryland. He removed to York County, and from thence, after a short time, to what is now Coopersdale, or the Twenty-First ward of Johnstown, Cambria County, Pennsylvania, where he practiced his profession with success for a number of years. His remains were interred in the old Union burying ground. His wife, a native of York County, Pennsylvania, bore him children: 1. Alexander, a merchant of Johnstown, who later removed to Washington, Iowa, and died there; 2. Frederick, see forward; 3. Jordan, died during the Civil war; 4. Charlotte, married Daniel Seigh, the family removing to Iowa, where she died.

Frederick Marbourg, second son and child of Dr. Maximilian Marbourg, was born on the family homestead in what was then Perkinsville, and is now the Twenty-first ward of Johnstown. He received a common school education, and then entered upon a mercantile career. At one time he was in a business partnership with his brother Alexander. He resided in Centerville, Indiana County, Pennsylvania, for a number of years, later returned to Johnstown and established himself in business in Market Street. He and his wife were members of the Lutheran church, in which he held the office of elder. His political affiliations were with the Republican Party. His death occurred about 1862, and his widow survived him until 1882. He married, at Centerville, Indiana County, Pennsylvania, Eva Lydia Sides, and several of their children were born in Centerville, the others in Johnstown. The children were: 1. Betsey, who married Michael Jack and died in Johnstown; 2. Dr. Jeremiah Lavimus, who was graduated from Jefferson Medical College in 1854. He practiced medicine until the outbreak of the Civil war, when he was made assistant surgeon and rendered excellent service. At the close of the war he practiced his profession in Bedford, Pennsylvania, until 1895 when he removed to Tacoma, Washington, and from thence to Seattle, where he died; 3. Hezekiah Wilson, see forward; 4. Charlotte, who married James Gardner, and died in Cumberland, Maryland; 5. and 6. Sarah and Annie, who died unmarried.

Hezekiah Wilson Marbourg, M. D., second son and third child of Frederick and Eva Lydia (Sides) Marbourg, was born in Centerville, Indiana County, Pennsylvania, August 5, 1833, and died in the city of Johnstown, during the disastrous flood of 1889. He attended the public schools of Johnstown, and prepared himself for college in that city. He matriculated at Gettysburg College, and was graduated from the theological department of that institution, but was never ordained. He then took up the study of medicine with Dr. John Lowman, then entered the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated with the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1857. He immediately established himself in the practice of his profession, and with the exception of one year spent in Philadelphia, his entire medical career was passed in Johnstown. During the latter part of 1863 he took up military service and served one year as contract surgeon. He practiced continually until his death, meeting with the success which attends well directed effort in any trade or profession. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church; of St. Paul's Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, of Philadelphia; and of the Cambria County Medical Society, in which he served as secretary for a number of years.

He married (first) Wilhelmina Rachel Wright, who was graduated from the Women's Medical College in Philadelphia, and practiced for a period of one year. She bore him children: Eva L., wife of McClellan Leggett, of Johnstown, and Edgar M., a physician of Colorado Springs, Colorado. Mrs. Marbourg died in 1870. He married (second), in March, 1872, Esther L. (Wright) Nippes, widow of J. Charles Nippes, who was killed at the battle of Gettysburg, by whom she had one child, Chester W. C. Nippes, a farmer of Indiana County. Mrs. Marbourg is a daughter of William and Rachel (Lukens) Wright, of Philadelphia, and a granddaughter of Elizabeth Johns Lukens, a Quaker preacher in Philadelphia. William Wright was a civil engineer, professor of languages in Philadelphia, and was a man of prominence. Esther L. (Wright) (Nippes) Marbourg was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. She was educated in the public schools of her native city, and subsequently pursued a course of reading in medicine under the preceptorship of Dr. Benjamin B. Wilson, of Philadelphia. She entered the Women's Medical College of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, in 1869, and in March, 1872, was graduated with the degree of Doctor of Medicine. Shortly after graduation she came to Johnstown, where she has been engaged in the successful practice of her profession since that time. She was one of the incorporators of the Conemaugh Valley Memorial Hospital, being the only woman among the incorporators, and has served on the staff of that institution. She is an honored member of the Cambria County Medical Society, the Pennsylvania State Medical Society and the American Medical Association, having been a delegate to the meeting of the latter association when it convened in Chicago, in 1887. She is also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the work and interests of which she takes an active part.

Marbourg V. Lewis Cook Manufacturing Co. Filed November 2S, 1884. Attachment—Defrauding Cueditohs—Affidavit—Dissolution.

In an action instituted by a creditor against the defendant on a claim not clue, an attachment was sued out under the provisions of sections 230 and 231 of the ("ode. The affidavit charged, among other things, that the defendant had sold and conveyed and otherwise disposed of his property with the intent to cheat and defraud his creditors, and to hinder and delay them in the collection of their debts. Upon the hearing of a motion filed by the defendant to dissolve the attachment upon !lie ground that the affidavit for the attachment was untrue, it was shown by the creditor that the defendant was insolvent; that he had executed to another four promissory notes, and to secure the same had given to the payee thereof four chattel mortgages; and that he had included in the notes and chattel mortgages an amount of indebtedness in excess of the bona tide amount due to the payee of the notes, with the intent to transfer all of his non-exempt personal property to the mortgagee in payment and satisfaction of an indebtedness very much less than the face of the promissory notes, and for the purpose of cheating and defrauding his other creditors, and also for the purpose of hindering and delaying them in the collection of their debts. Held, that upon this showing the court properly overruled the motion to dissolve the attachment. Wallneh v. Wyhe, 2si Kan. 138; Wtnstead v. Ilulme, 32 Kan ;8. C. 4 Pac. Kep. 'J94.

Error from Nemaha County.

Action brought January 7, 1884, by the Lewis Cook Manufacturing Company against Oscar O. Marbourg, in the district court of Nemaha County, to recover $1,721.56 upon two certain negotiable promissory notes executed by the defendant to the plaintiff, which said notes were not due at the time of the tiling of the petition. At the same time the plaintiff filed the affidavit of H. C. Solomon, its duly-authorized attorney, for attachment, which affidavit was in due form, and, as grounds for attachment, alleged that "the said defendant, Oscar O. Marbourg, had sold and conveyed and otherwise disposed of his property with the fraudulent intent to cheat and defraud his creditors, and to hinder and delay them in the collection of their debts; that the said defendant, Oscar O. Marbourg, was about to make a sale or conveyance and disposition of his property with the fraudulent intent to cheat and defraud his creditors, and to hinder and delay them in the collection of their debts, and was about to remove his property with the intent and to the effect of cheating and defrauding his creditors, and hindering and delaying them in the collection of their debts." At the same time plaintiff filed an undertaking and attachment bond, which were, in all respects, in due form of law. Thereupon the clerk of the district court issued an order of attachment to the sheriff of Nemaha county, and on January 7, 1884, at 2 o'clock p. M., he executed the same by attaching a large amount of goods, wares, chattels, and personal property as the property of Oscar O. Marbourg, in Nemaha county, and the order of attachment was thereafter, in due form, returned to the clerk of the district court. On February 4, 1884, the defendant filed his answer to the petition of the plaintiff, containing a general denial, and stating that the plaintiff's pretended cause of action had not accrued at the time the action was brought, and also alleging that he had paid all sums, of every kind and nature, that were due, or to become due, to the plaintiff from him. To this answer the plaintiff filed a reply containing a general denial of all the allegations therein. On February 5, 1884, the defendant filed his motion to dissolve the attachment for the following reasons: First, because no sufficient affidavit or bond had been filed as required by law; second, because the proceedings for attachment were irregular, informal, and void; and, third, because the facts stated in the affidavit for attachment were untrue, and without any foundation; and also filed his affidavit, which was duly verified, denying the truth of each and every ground- set forth in the affidavit for attachment. This motion was heard at the April term of court for 1884. Affidavits and oral testimony were introduced upon the hearing thereof. The court made and filed the following conclusions of fact:

"(1) On or about September 9, 1882, the defendant embarked in the hardware business at Sabetha, a city of about 1,500 inhabitants, in this county. He had recently purchased E. J lot 4, block 29, in Sabetha, which had a business building thereon, and he purchased his opening stock of hardware about September 9, 1882, amounting to about 86,000, from the Western Hardware Company, a corporation doing a wholesale hardware business at Atchison, Kansas, of which corporation his brother, W. W. Marbourg, was president and manager. Said corporation failed in business on September 25, 1882. Within a few months afterwards said W. W. Marbourg bought up and took assignments of the claims of creditors against the corporation, but the business had never been resumed.

"(2) Said defendant remained in business until January 2, 1884, and was apparently carrying on a large trade, and his goods were stored in several localities in Sabetha for want of room in said business building. At said last date his stock was very large for that place, there being two other tolerably large and one other small hardware store in Sabetha. In some of the lines of his trade he had enough goods for two or three years, while in other lines he was not overstocked, although having a good supply. Between August 1, 1883, and January 1, 1884, he had become indebted to merchants and manufacturers for goods over the sum of $18,000, nearly all of which indebtedness matured in January and February, 1884.

"(3) On or about January 2, 1884, the defendant executed and delivered to said W. W. Marbourg four several promissory notes, which were secured by four chattel mortgages, as follows: First. A promissory note for 83,287.10, to the order of said W. W. Marbourg, in ten days, with interest at ten per cent, per annum from date, secured by a chattel mortgage on all wagons, wagon and buggy, phaeton, and spring-wagon parts, in building known as Baker carpenter shop, on lot 7, block 27, Sabetha, and also said building on said lot 8, all wagons set up on lots 9 and 10, block 29, Sabetha, and all wire, smooth and barbed, mixed paints, axes, picks, buggies and buggy parts, clothes-wringers, nails, scales, and all hardware, merchandise, goods and chattels, and all other property, of every kind and nature, in said buildings or on said lots. Second. A promissory note for 86,000 payable to the order of said W. W. Marbourg in 30 days, with interest at 8 per cent, per annum from date, secured by a chattel mortgage on all hardware, wire, nails, cutlery, shelf goods, stoves, tinware, woodenware, guns, clocks, buggies, paints, oil and lead, and all goods, chattels, wares, and merchandise, and all other property, of every kind and nature, in building occupied by O. O. Marbourg as a hardware store on E. £ lot 4, block 29, Sabetha. Third. A promissory note for 84,000, payable to the "order of said W. W. Marbourg in 20 days, with interest at 10 per cent, per annum from date, secured by a chattel mortgage on all stoves, ranges, wagons, nails, buggies, parts of buggies, barbed wire, fence staples, buckthorn wire fencing, corn-shellers, and all goods, chattels, wares, and merchandise, and all other property, of every kind or nature, in the two sheds occupied by said O. O. Marbourg as store-houses on the west end of O. O. Marbourg's homestead, known as lots 1 to 12, block 6, in Sabetha. Fourth. A promissory note for 87,949.33, payable to the order of said W. W. Marbourg in 40 days, with interest at 12 per cent, per annum from date, secured by a chattel mortgage which covers and describes all of the personal property mentioned in the first three mortgages, and, in addition, all feedmills and wagons in and around said store building, and all goods, wares, and merchandise in the Whittenhall barn, used as a store-house; also two wagons standing in front of said homestead in the street; also the books of account of said O. O. Marbourg, showing indebtedness due said O. O. Marbourg, and all other merchandise, goods, wares, and chattels held by said O. O. Marbourg, or under his control, used in the business of said O. O. Marbourg, or dealt in by him in the hardware and implement business, and not before more fully specified, and situate in Sabetha, Nemaha county, Kansas. But said mortgage is given subject to said other three mortgages for 83,287.10, 80,000, and 84,000, respectively. Each of said mortgages contains provisions for the taking of immediate possession by the mortgagee when in his judgment the possession and custody of the same in said O. O. Marbourg shall be deemed unsafe, or upon the issue of any attachment or other legal process, or in case the mortgagee shall deem the security insufficient, and that the mortgagee may sell at public or private sale without notice, for cash, or on credit, and that all expenses of caring for and selling the property, as well as said indebtedness and interest, shall be paid out of the proceeds of sale.

"(4) At the time of taking said mortgages said W. W. Marbourg also requested the defendant to convey to his mother, Anna M. Marbourg, of Shellsburg, Pennsylvania, said E. J of lot 4, block 29, Sabetha, and the- defendant and his wife did so make a deed of conveyance of said property on January 2, 1884, which was then handed to said W. W. Marbourg. The consideration for said deed was a first and bona fide indebtedness of $2,000 from the defendant to his mother, which the defendant had been owing for many years, and on which he had kept the interest paid up, without paying any part of the principal.

"(5) On January 3, 1884, at 8 o'clock A. M., said W. W. Marbourg filed said four chattel mortgages and said deed with the register of deeds of this county, and said mortgages were duly filed and entered, and said deed duly recorded.

"(6) As soon as said chattel mortgages were executed, and before the filing thereof, said W. W. Marbourg, with the consent of the defendant, took possession of all the property covered by said chattel mortgages, including the books of account, and said W. W. Marbourg left said accounts, amounting to about 81,000, with his attorney at Sabetha for collection.

"(7) After making said chattel mortgages and said deed, the defendant had remaining no real estate except his homestead, and no tangible personal property except his household goods and other exempt personalty, and no visible or apparent means of paying any of his other creditors unless there should be a surplus in the hands of said W. W. Marbourg after satisfying said chattel mortgages, which amounted in nil to ¥21,236.43.

"(8) On or about January 4, 1884, said W. W. Marbourg sold and transferred all of the property covered by said chattel mortgages except one buckboard, one phaeton, and the accounts and account-books, to Harvey L. Whittaker of Atchison, Kansas, for the express consideration of $21,000, of which 81,000 was paid down, and for the remainder said Harvey L. Whittaker executed and delivered to said W. W. Marbourg four promissory notes, payable to his order, each for 85,000, and payable in GO and 90 days, and 4 and 6 months, respectively, with 8 per cent, interest thereon. Said Harvey L. Whittaker was in possession of said property when the first attachment in these cases was levied, and all of said property was taken from his possession by the sheriff on the attachments in these cases, but said property had not been in any way removed either by said W. W. Marbourg or Harvey L. Whittaker when said attachments were levied, but the same remained in the same condition as before the execution of said chattel mortgages.

"(9) Although the defendant was indebted to said W. W. Marbourg, and said W. W. Marbourg held certain evidences of indebtedness against the defendant before the execution of said four promissory notes and said four chattel mortgages, yet said indebtedness was not near so large as the aggregate of said four promissory notes, as the defendant must have known; but the real indebtedness was greatly enlarged by the defendant in said four promissory notes, and as so enlarged was secured by said four chattel mortgages for the purpose and with the intent on the part of the defendant of transferring all of his non-exempt personal property to said W. W. Marbourg in payment and satisfaction of his indebtedness to said W. W. Marbourg, which was very much less than 821,236.43, and very much less than the value of the property covered by said chattel mortgages, and for the purpose of cheating and defrauding his other creditors who had sold him goods, and hindering and delaying them in the collection of their debts, and not for the mere purpose of preferring said W. W. Marbourg a," a creditor for the amount of the real, actual, and existing indebtedness of the defendant to said W. W. Marbourg."

And thereon the court made and filed the following conclusions of law:

"(1) Shortly before the commencement of these actions, and the issue of orders of attachments therein, the defendant had mortgaged, transferred, and disposed of his property with the fraudulent intent to cheat and defraud his creditors, and to hinder and delay them in the collection of their debts.

"(2) The several motions to dissolve the attachments in these actions, on the ground that the causes for attachment alleged in the several affidavits are untrue, should be overruled."

Motion to dissolve was overruled. The defendant excepted, and brings the case here. Everest d Waygener, for plaintiff in error.

Smith d Solomon, T & J, for d B & C, Conicell d Wells, J. D. McCutne, and Jackson d Royse, for defendant in error.

Hubd, J. The creditors of Oscar O. Marbourg, to the number of 21, instituted actions in the court below against him by attachments. The aggregate amount sought to be recovered in these several actions was about $17,000. Nearly all of the actions were brought upon claims not due. A large amount of property was attached. The affidavits for attachments on the claims not due, alleged, among other things, the grounds set forth in section 230 of the Code. The affidavits /or attachments upon the claims due were drawn under section 190 of the Code. In each case, O. O. Marbourg filed a motion to dissolve the attachment, alleging that the grounds set forth in the affidavit for attachment were untrue. The motions in all the cases were heard at the April term of the district court for 1884, and on the hearing thereof it was agreed, inasmuch as each of the motions presented the same questions, that all should be heard together, and the evidence taken in any one case was used and considered in all the other cases, so far as the same were relevant and competent. On the hearing, the court below overruled the motions to dissolve the attachments in each case, and the plaintiff in error now seeks to have this court review and reverse the action of the district court. Three questions are presented by plaintiff in error, as follows, viz.: First, that the findings of fact of the court below were not sustained by the evidence; second, that the court below erred in admitting to be read in evidence a copy of a bill of sale, without any effort being made to obtain the original, which was shown to be in existence; third, that the court erred in admitting other incompetent evidence.

The court, at the request of the parties, made its conclusions of fact and of law. Among its conclusions of fact was the following:

"Although the defendant was indebted to said W. W. Marbourg, and said W. Marbourg held certain evidences of indebtedness against the defend*^t before the execution of said four promissory notes and said four chattel mortgages, yet said indebtedness was not near so large as the aggregate of said four promissory notes, as the defendant must have known; but the real indebtedness was greatly enlarged by the defendant in said four promissory notes, and, as so enlarged, was secured by said four chattel mortgages for the purpose and with the intent, on the part of the defendant, of transferring all of his non-exempt personal property to said W. W. Marbourg in payment and satisfaction of his indebtedness to said W. W. Marbourg, which was very much less than $21,236-43, and very much less than the value of the property covered by said chattel mortgages, and for the purpose of cheating and defrauding his other creditors who had sold him goods, and hindering and delaying them in the collection of their debts, and not for the mere purpose of preferring said W. W. Marbourg as a creditor for the amount of the real, actual, and existing indebtedness of the defendant to said W. W. Marbourg."

It was held in Wallach v. Wylie, 28 Kan. 138, that where a chattel mortgage was executed purporting to secure certain alleged indebtedness largely in excess of the bona fide indebtedness actually existing between the parties, and such excess was fraudulent, that the mortgage was void in toto and could not be sustained, even to the extent of the actual debt covered by the mortgage. This, upon the ground that the statute of the state provides that every transfer of property made with the intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors is utterly void and of no effect. Comp. Laws 1879, p. 464, § 2. See, also, Winstead v. Hulme, 32 Kan. ;S. C. 4 Pac. Rep. 994.

Therefore, if there was evidence sufficient to sustain this finding of the district court, the attachments were properly sustained. The question was one of fact only. The testimony presented to the district court was not wholly by affidavit. Several witnesses, among others, J. E. Black, a former partner of O. O. Marbourg, Ira F. Collins, and John Brady, gave their testimony in person to the court. We have read carefully the whole record, and are convinced that the findings of the court, and especially the finding above quoted, were sustained by the evidence presented in the court below. In a case of this kind we cannot retry the facts upon the evidence and determine upon which side the preponderance exists. All we can do is to look into the evidence and see whether it is sufficient to sustain the findings of the court below; or, in other words, to see whether there is such a lack of evidence that we can say, as a matter of law, that the findings are erroneous. Gibbs v. Gibbs, 18 Kan. 419; Railway Co. v. Kunkle, 17 Kan. 145; Wilson v. Lightbody, 29 Kan. 446. Under the findings of fact the district court committed no error in sustaining the attachments. The other errors complained of, under this view, are immaterial, and therefore it is unnecessary to consider them.

The ruling and order of the district court will be affirmed.

The above and foregoing decision in easy No. 3,363 also disposes of cases Nos. 3,304, 3,365, 3,366, 3,367, 3,368, 3,369, 3,370, 3,371, 3,372, 3,373, 3,374, 3,375, 3,376, 3,377, 3,378, 3,379, 3,380, 3,381, 3,382, and 3,383. In all of these cases the ruling and order of the district court will be affirmed. (All the justices concurring.)

Hiawatha, Kansas - Oscar O. Marbourg, a resident of Sabetha for 45 years, died at that place Sunday, Nov. 16, 1914. Mr. Marbourg was the lumberman in Sabetha in the early day. He had many acquaintances among the old timers in Hiawatha and other Brown County communities. At his funeral Wednesday an eulogy was delivered by George W. Hook, a life lone friend of Mr. Marbourg. The Sabetha Star has the following to say of Mr. Hook's talk: The speaker said that his acquaintance with Mr. Marbourg dated from the time when, young, handsome and prosperous he came to Sabetha in 1870. As a lad he regarded the young man with a sort of hero worship and the heritage of a kindly and sympathetic nature which he left had always seemed to Mr. Hook to fulfill his Ideal of nature's nobleman. He had often heard his friend assert that an honorable life was the only one worth living and the good which one was able to accomplish was the only thing worth remembrance. Mr. Marbourg, said his friend, never lost the gift of forgiveness, and during his king life he was never heard to speak ill of a neighbor. Children remember him as the kindest man of their acquaintance and he was never too busy to soothe their childish heartaches. Previous to Mr. Marbourg's death they had often discussed the life beyond and the assertion had always been made by his friend that he was without fear of death but regarded the grim doorway from mortality to life everlasting. Thru the adversities of his later years he maintained his cheerful disposition, showing no bitterness because of the comparative deprivation which he suffered but was always the kindly, cheerful man that he had been in more prosperous days.

Notes for Sarah J. Whittenhall:

Sabetha, Kansas - The death of Mrs. Oscar Marbourg, which has been expected for several weeks, occurred Monday night June 7, 1920 at her old home on the north side. For a year Mrs. Marbourg has been failing, and for some time it has been known her death was only a question of a short time. The devotion of her girl hood friends is worthy of comment. Their devoted care and thoughtfulness made the last days of Mrs. Marbourg happy.

The following taken from the Nemaha Comity History tells of the girlhood of Mrs. Marbourg. She came here a tiny girl with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elihu Whittenhall. She married Oscar Marbourg here. Two has lived all her life in Albany Harry Sabetha. Mrs. Marbourg told Emma story herself just as it is written, to the author of the history. "Elihu, why did you bring me and my daughters to this dreadful country?" cried Mrs. Elihu Whittenhall, shivered as the wind, too, shivered, and whistled around the log cabin, high on the Albany hill, and trembling at the stealthy patter of the wolves' feet on the roof above her. 'We will make money here,' answered her husband, his eye on the vision of the country as it is now, sixty years later. "It will be a wonderful land." "But with four little daughters cuddled close to her, thousands of miles from the New York home, on the desolate, windswept prairie, no vision came to Mrs. Whittenhall. "Still her husband's vision was realized, altho neither she nor he lived to see its full realization. Mrs. Whittenhall was college bred, carefully nurtured, tenderly reared, in a New York home. She graduated from the Oxford New York Academy in the class with Governor Seymour, of New York, and other distinguished men. Away from all this, overland, by train, steamboat, and mule team, bringing with her the only piano in the State of Kansas, and four little daughters, is it any wonder she trembled at wolves, who made themselves as much at home as pet dogs; shivered at weeping prairie winds, and shrank from stray Indians, who walked into her house and took anything which caught their vagrant, childish fancy?

"To the high hills of Albany, they came in 1857 and located their farms. Any of the magnificent land which their fancy chose, could be had for the simple act of sleeping and eating on the ground desired and the payment of $2.50. But before long, within the following year, other New Yorkers came out. Other frail, delicate, courageous women risked comforts, quiet, calm and peace to break the prairie and pioneer with their husbands. Edwin Miller, accompanied by Mrs. Miller, W. B. Sloeson, John L. and William Graham came out to Kansas; and Albany, the mother of Sabetha, was colonized and named in compliment to the capital of their native state. Mr. Miller built a hotel, and then Mr. Whittenhall built a frame dwelling, and the family removed from the confined quarters of the log house, almost filled by the big square piano, so bravely standing for the refinement and elegance of its former surroundings in its New York home. The Whittenhall house was built of walnut lumber, big timbers and all, a real treasure in these days when Kansas black walnut is so valuable, and for which European aristocracy pays a big price.

"Mrs. Whittenhall lived several, happy, contented years on their farm at Albany, but she died before Albany was moved to Sabetha and never dreamed that her husband would own almost half the town, which was eventually electric lighted, heated by municipal steam, governed by commissioners, and with all the intermediary improvements of the modern city. Mrs. Marbourg concluded, 'If mother could only have seen these electric lights.' " Mrs. Marbourg was Sara Whittenhall, born in 1851 at Addison, New York. Her childhood was spent at Albany. She was married September 18, 1876 to Oscar O. Marbourg, whose death occurred about five years ago.

Two children were born to them; who lives in Gary, Indiana, and Emma who died in childhood. The funeral was held at 10 o'clock Wednesday, interment at Albany by the side of Mr. Marbourg. Mrs.

Marbourg was the last of the family of little daughters who braved the terrors of the prairie and overland travel with their mother and father, to start the commonwealth of Kansas.

Funeral services were conducted by Reverend Elledge. Robert Bressemer, Dr. Rucker and Misses Ruth and Wilhelmina Bressemer sang beautifully. Many floral offerings attested the esteem in which Mrs. Marbourg was held. Mrs. Marbourg had many friends, old and new, who could not forget her kindly ways.

Notes for Adam Goodling:

A. M. BARNER ARRESTED - Juniata Tribune, Mifflintown, PA - Thursday, November 1, 1900, page 1
HE IS CHARGED WITH KILLING ADAM GOODLING,WHO WAS MURDERED ON THE 2ND OF OCTOBER DETECTIVES WORK UP THE CASE; IT IS CLAIMED THEY SECURED SUFFICIENT DAMAGING EVIDENCE TO WARRANT TAKING THE ACCUSED INTO CUSTODY – WAS BROUGHT HERE AND COMMITTED TO JAIL

Ever since the day the news was received here, about noon on the third day of October, that a most foul murder had been committed in Susquehanna Township, the night previous, rumors have been rife as to suspects, that a certain person was strongly suspected as the one who committed the foul crime, and that an arrest would certainly be made in a day or two. Time went on, and after awhile detectives were put at work of running down what all called "the cowardly assassin," and what headway they were making in their efforts was only known to a few. But it leaked out the other day that sufficient circumstantial evidence had been gathered to warrant an arrest, and that the sleuths were putting two and two together, and making every effort known to the profession to substantially form a complete and strong chain around and tightly fasten the crime of killing aged Adam Goodling on the suspect, and that he would be arrested soon.

Sheriff S. C. Stoner received word on Monday that those working on the case had conducted their efforts in such a satisfactory way that warranted an immediate arrest. That county official and ex-sheriff Samuel Lapp left here on Monday evening for Susquehanna Township, where the recent murder had been committed, and arrested Absalom M. Barner, the man whom the detectives seemed to think committed that most cowardly murder. The accused man was brought here on Tuesday afternoon and taken before Justice of the Peace C. B. Horning, who committed Barner to jail to await a hearing at some early future day.

S. E. Dressler, a Pittsburgh detective, a working member of the Perkins Detective Agency of that city, who was one of the sleuth-hounds on the case that were employed by the county authorities, made the charge and swore out a warrant against Barner, charging the accused with murder, on what it is said to be alleged facts acquired by the detectives, indicating the guilt of Barner.

The crime that the Pittsburgh detectives seem satisfied can be proven against the accused is the killing of Adam Goodling, at the time an aged Susquehanna Township farmer, who was shot on the night of October 2, while sitting on a rocking chair in one of the lower story rooms of his modest little home. The murder was committed between 8 and 9 o'clock on that evening, the shot being fired through a partly-opened window. The weapon was a shot gun loaded with No. 4 shot, and almost the entire charge struck the murdered man in the face, killing him instantly.

The word was quietly passed around town Tuesday morning that the officers would return here with their prisoner on Way Passenger, and there was quite a crowd of town people and a number of residents of nearby sections, whose business pursuits brought them to town early in the morning, gathered on Bridge and Main Streets, where they anxiously waited for their arrival. But the 10 o'clock train did not bring them, and the crowd separated and those two principal streets again took on their usual quiet of an ordinary day.

It was about the noon hour when it was definitely given out that the prisoner would be brought here on the 1:11 train, and a short time before train time the streets again had a holiday appearance, the quiet crowd all seeming anxious to see the man charged with the crime of killing a fellow creature. Their curiosity was soon satisfied. Just as soon as possible after the arrival of the train the two officers and the prisoner were driven over from the station in Bergey's bus, up to Squire Horning's office, and then there was a great rush to get into the small quarters to hear what would be said against the accused; but all were disappointed. All that was done in the case was the making out of the commitment, which required but little time, and the prisoner was taken to jail. It was at the accused's request the hearing was postponed, and the time set for it will no doubt also be as he desires.

The prisoner did not seem to be in any way excited over his arrest on the grave charge made against him. To all outward appearances he was the least exercised of any in the crowd, and his every action was of a man that had no fear of the final result being in his favor. The accused was arrested some years ago, being charged with "assault and battery, with intent to kill." He was indicted by the grand jury at the following term of court, but on being tried, was acquitted.

Since the formation of the county in 1831 there have been nine indictments for murder in the first degree returned by grand juries. The trials of the cases resulted in the acquittal of four of the accused; a verdict of murder in the second degree in one case and manslaughter in one. There were three sentenced to be hanged, two of which were executed, the other one having his sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

The first trial was at the December session in 1852, for the murder of John Jackson, which resulted in a verdict of murder in the second degree, and the convicted man served a term in the penitentiary. The second was at the December session, 1859, when one Andrew Limbert was tried on the charge of murder, and the verdict was "not guilty." At the April session, 1861, one principal and two accessories were tried for the murder of Henry Auker, and resulted in the conviction of one of murder in the first degree and the other two of second degree murder. The first paid the penalty of the law by being hanged by the neck until dead, and his companions in crime each served long terms in the penitentiary, one of them dying during his penal service. In 1863 at the December session, the man indicted for the murder of Charles Brown, colored, was found "not guilty." The next case was tried in 1878, at the December session, when two principals were indicted on the charge of murder in the first degree, but both were acquitted. At the December session, 1882, there was a murder trial, and the result was acquittal of the accused. In 1884 at the September session, the trial for the murder of Charles Kepner was held and a verdict of manslaughter was returned, the accused being sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of years. At the April session in 1886, the second verdict of murder in the first degree in the history of the county was rendered by a jury. It was the Nancy (Funk) McMeen murder case. The convicted man was sentenced to be hung, but his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, and he is still confined. The last case tried was for the murder of the old blind man, James Carpenter, which was at the February session in 1894. There were two accused principals and both were indicted for murder in the first degree. One pleaded guilty as accessory after the fact, and received a penitentiary sentence, the other one was convicted and paid the life penalty.

What the present case will result in coming developments will decide. _____ for greatly as to what will be the result. JUNIATA JUSTICE, By Marian Mertz, 1998; 147 pages, 18 illustrations, 3 maps, index and references

Juniata Justice is a true story of a heinous murder. It was committed in the year 1900 in Susquehanna Township, Juniata County. The victim was a middle-aged man of no particular talent, and with no outstanding traits, just an average citizen by the name of Adam Goodling. He was killed by a shotgun blast through his kitchen window as he sat in a rocking chair talking to his wife.

The finger of suspicion pointed at once to his nearest neighbor, Absalom Barner, who lived just over the ridge. Barner was a man of many talents: a schoolteacher, surveyor and a Justice of the Peace, with an unblemished reputation. He had, however, driven all of his friends and neighbors crazy for months telling anyone who would listen about his suspicion that Goodling had been having an affair with his wife.

The tale is told using official documents including written reports from a Pittsburgh Detective Agency hired by the Juniata County authorities, transcripts of the preliminary hearing and newspaper accounts in the local papers. Grizzly details abound to whet the appetite and the imagination of the reader of this old time crime story.

Notes for Adam Goodling:

A. M. BARNER ARRESTED - Juniata Tribune, Mifflintown, PA - Thursday, November 1, 1900, page 1
HE IS CHARGED WITH KILLING ADAM GOODLING, WHO WAS MURDERED ON THE 2ND OF OCTOBER DETECTIVES WORK UP THE CASE; IT IS CLAIMED THEY SECURED SUFFICIENT DAMAGING EVIDENCE TO WARRANT TAKING THE ACCUSED INTO CUSTODY – WAS BROUGHT HERE AND COMMITTED TO JAIL

Ever since the day the news was received here, about noon on the third day of October, that a most foul murder had been committed in Susquehanna Township, the night previous, rumors have been rife as to suspects, that a certain person was strongly suspected as the one who committed the foul crime, and that an arrest would certainly be made in a day or two. Time went on, and after awhile detectives were put at work of running down what all called "the cowardly assassin," and what headway they were making in their efforts was only known to a few. But it leaked out the other day that sufficient circumstantial evidence had been gathered to warrant an arrest, and that the sleuths were putting two and two together, and making every effort known to the profession to substantially form a complete and strong chain around and tightly fasten the crime of killing aged Adam Goodling on the suspect, and that he would be arrested soon.

Sheriff S. C. Stoner received word on Monday that those working on the case had conducted their efforts in such a satisfactory way that warranted an immediate arrest. That county official and ex-sheriff Samuel Lapp left here on Monday evening for Susquehanna Township, where the recent murder had been committed, and arrested Absalom M. Barner, the man whom the detectives seemed to think committed that most cowardly murder. The accused man was brought here on Tuesday afternoon and taken before Justice of the Peace C. B. Horning, who committed Barner to jail to await a hearing at some early future day.

S. E. Dressler, a Pittsburgh detective, a working member of the Perkins Detective Agency of that city, who was one of the sleuth-hounds on the case that were employed by the county authorities, made the charge and swore out a warrant against Barner, charging the accused with murder, on what it is said to be alleged facts acquired by the detectives, indicating the guilt of Barner.

The crime that the Pittsburgh detectives seem satisfied can be proven against the accused is the killing of Adam Goodling, at the time an aged Susquehanna Township farmer, who was shot on the night of October 2, while sitting on a rocking chair in one of the lower story rooms of his modest little home. The murder was committed between 8 and 9 o'clock on that evening, the shot being fired through a partly-opened window. The weapon was a shot gun loaded with No. 4 shot, and almost the entire charge struck the murdered man in the face, killing him instantly.

The word was quietly passed around town Tuesday morning that the officers would return here with their prisoner on Way Passenger, and there was quite a crowd of town people and a number of residents of nearby sections, whose business pursuits brought them to town early in the morning, gathered on Bridge and Main Streets, where they anxiously waited for their arrival. But the 10 o'clock train did not bring them, and the crowd separated and those two principal streets again took on their usual quiet of an ordinary day.

It was about the noon hour when it was definitely given out that the prisoner would be brought here on the 1:11 train, and a short time before train time the streets again had a holiday appearance, the quiet crowd all seeming anxious to see the man charged with the crime of killing a fellow creature. Their curiosity was soon satisfied. Just as soon as possible after the arrival of the train the two officers and the prisoner were driven over from the station in Bergey's bus, up to Squire Horning's office, and then there was a great rush to get into the small quarters to hear what would be said against the accused; but all were disappointed. All that was done in the case was the making out of the commitment, which required but little time, and the prisoner was taken to jail. It was at the accused's request the hearing was postponed, and the time set for it will no doubt also be as he desires.

The prisoner did not seem to be in any way excited over his arrest on the grave charge made against him. To all outward appearances he was the least exercised of any in the crowd, and his every action was of a man that had no fear of the final result being in his favor. The accused was arrested some years ago, being charged with "assault and battery, with intent to kill." He was indicted by the grand jury at the following term of court, but on being tried, was acquitted.

Since the formation of the county in 1831 there have been nine indictments for murder in the first degree returned by grand juries. The trials of the cases resulted in the acquittal of four of the accused; a verdict of murder in the second degree in one case and manslaughter in one. There were three sentenced to be hanged, two of which were executed, the other one having his sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

The first trial was at the December session in 1852, for the murder of John Jackson, which resulted in a verdict of murder in the second degree, and the convicted man served a term in the penitentiary. The second was at the December session, 1859, when one Andrew Limbert was tried on the charge of murder, and the verdict was "not guilty." At the April session, 1861, one principal and two accessories were tried for the murder of Henry Auker, and resulted in the conviction of one of murder in the first degree and the other two of second degree murder. The first paid the penalty of the law by being hanged by the neck until dead, and his companions in crime each served long terms in the penitentiary, one of them dying during his penal service. In 1863 at the December session, the man indicted for the murder of Charles Brown, colored, was found "not guilty." The next case was tried in 1878, at the December session, when two principals were indicted on the charge of murder in the first degree, but both were acquitted. At the December session, 1882, there was a murder trial, and the result was acquittal of the accused. In 1884 at the September session, the trial for the murder of Charles Kepner was held and a verdict of manslaughter was returned, the accused being sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of years. At the April session in 1886, the second verdict of murder in the first degree in the history of the county was rendered by a jury. It was the Nancy (Funk) McMeen murder case. The convicted man was sentenced to be hung, but his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, and he is still confined. The last case tried was for the murder of the old blind man, James Carpenter, which was at the February session in 1894. There were two accused principals and both were indicted for murder in the first degree. One pleaded guilty as accessory after the fact, and received a penitentiary sentence, the other one was convicted and paid the life penalty.

What the present case will result in coming developments will decide. _____ for greatly as to what will be the result. What will come out bearing directly on the case at the hearing so far as known here is only conjecture on the part of all but the officers making the charge, and we will defer judgment until the complaint against the prisoner is fully substantiated.

Notes for George Washington Hess:

Private Washington Hess, born June 8, 1845 son of Henry and Julia (Messersmith) Hess. Joined the 200th PA Volunteers for term of one year and collected a $100 bounty. He was mustered into service at Camp Curtin Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. August 20, 1864. Enrolled when he was only 19 years old and his listed occupation is recorded as a "miller." Military records describe him as being 5ft. 7in., blue eyes, and light hair. Pension papers say that Washington Hess "took ill with typhoid fever" approximately two weeks after enrollment with the unit. Washington was sent to the US Hospital at York, PA where Washington fought his fever. As he battled his fever, both of his legs began to swell and his left leg became ulcerated. Testimony of a fellow sick soldier, William Stine, said that "although Washington's leg was still open, he returned to the 200th PA Regiment in the middle of January 1865."

Washington then participated in the following battles and events of the war:

Siege of Petersburg December, 1864, to April, 1865.

Dabney's Mills, Hatcher's Run, February 5-7, 1865.

Fort Stedman March 25.

Appomattox Campaign March 28-April 9.

Assault on and capture of Petersburg April 2.

Occupation of Petersburg April 3.

Pursuit of Lee April 3-9. Appomattox C. H. April 9.

Surrender of Lee and his army.

Duty at Nottaway C. H. till May.

Ordered to City Point, thence to Alexandria and duty there till May 30.

Mustered out May 30, 1865.

During the Assault on Petersburg, Washington was wounded slightly in the shoulder but continued on with the regiment. He was present at each muster until the end of the regiments term and mustered out with the unit 5/30/1865 at Alexandria, Virginia. After the war he married Catharine Einstein 7/8/1866. They were wed by the Rev. C.J. Deininger. They had five children. Washington became a cigar maker until he applied for an invalid's pension for the "injuries and continued pain of his ulcerated leg."

Dr. G.M. Fickes of Seven Valleys, PA described Washington as "temperate in all things, sober, industrious, clean, careful, and his condition is in no wise brought about or aggravated by any vicious mode of living." Washington died January 17th 1917 from Heart Failure and Rheumatism.

Notes for Conan Wyatt Bertram Barger:

Webster City, Iowa – Conan Barger, the young son of W. B. Barger of the Webster City Business College, had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday Dec. 8, 1913 while playing around a newly built cistern at the J. W. Hittle home on First Street. Conan had been playing around the cistern while two laborers were working in the bottom and accidentally fell in, a fall of about 12 feet. Luckily for the boy he struck one of the workmen on the shoulder with his head, which deflected his headlong fall so that he struck the bottom of the cistern on his side. He was immediately taken out of the well and taken into the Hittle home, where medical assistance was called. It was found that beside being knocked unconscious he was unhurt. Today, with the exception of being rather sore, from his frightful experience, Conan does not feel any the worse for his fall.

Washington, June 25, 1954 - A message service to men in the armed forces begun by the National Catholic Community Service with the co-operation of Conan Barger, Maryland amateur radio operator, is now a booming USO-NCCS program. Radio operators (nicknamed "hams") are forming a network by which the "USO Ham-Grams" are relayed. Thousands of 15-word holiday messages have been beamed throughout the world.

Baltimore, Maryland, Nov. 28, 1956 – Conan W. Barger, a "ham" known as W3CVE in District Heights, Maryland, was nominated the other day for the 1956 Edison Radio Amateur award by some person or persons unknown to him in Leavenworth, Kansas. The prize is bestowed annually for exceptional wireless service, and Civil Defense officials in Maryland believe Mr. Barger was nominated because he makes friendly radio contact with American soldiers and sailors in distant lands Who it was that nominated him from the famous penitentiary town, however they don't know, either.

Notes for Anne Marie Boyd:

Franklin and Marshall College - Four years after Ann Boyd Barshinger W'43 permanently endowed the Ann Boyd Barshinger Scholarship Fund, the results are clear; investing in bright students of modest means is a gift that keeps giving. Mrs. Barshinger established the fund in 2010 with a $4 million gift, providing financial aid to students from central Pennsylvania, the first of whom graduated in 2014. Mrs. Barshinger's generosity empowers talented students to elevate their lives and, in the process, has strengthened the College's fabric. Barshinger Scholars play football and rugby, achieve dean's list honors, participate in student government, and are quoted in The New York Times. They are artists, psychology majors and future business leaders.

Mrs. Barshinger and the late Richard Barshinger's legacy at Franklin & Marshall also includes leadership in funding the Ann & Richard Barshinger Life Sciences & Philosophy Building and the Barshinger Center for Musical Arts. In addition, Mrs. Barshinger supported the creation of an ecumenical College chaplain position, a spiritual resources for all Franklin & Marshall Students. And she has made it a point to provide ongoing care to her scholars, noting, "It is a very enriching experience to know that, in giving to financial aid, I'm helping support the future of talented young students who are our neighbors and friends."

Marriage Notes for Richard Barshinger and Anne Boyd:

Red Lion - Miss Ann Marie Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Boyd, Glen Rock, and Richard S. Barshinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barshinger, 18 South Main street, this place, were married at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church, North Main street. Rev. Dr. Oliver K. Maurer, pastor of that church, performed the single ring ceremony before an altar decorated with palms, candelabra, white chrysanthemums and pompons.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a mid-Victorian basque model gown, fashioned of white net and soiree taffeta with net rounded yoke outlined with Chantilly lace. The long sleeves ended in points over her hands. Her headdress was of a two-tier fingertip-length veil, cap shaped with seed pearls. Her bouquet was of chrysanthemums and pompons. Mrs. Irwin Trout, this place, the bridegroom's sister, was matron of honor and the bride's only attendant. Mrs. Trout wore an all-white floor-length dress of nylon with white lace bodice. Her white headdress had a shoulder length veil and she wore white lace elbow mitts. Mrs. Trout carried a bouquet of deep pink chrysanthemums and pompons. Warren Ziegler, York, a friend of Mr. Barshinger, was the best man, and James Neff, Red Lion, another friend, and Richard Boyd, Glen Rock, a brother of the bride, were ushers. Mrs. George Fritz, York, a friend of the bride, was the organist. She played "O Perfect Love" during the ceremony, traditional music for the processional and recessional and these other numbers, "The Rosary," "I Love You Truly" and "Clair de Lune." The bride's mother chose an all-black dress with gold accessories while Mr. Barshinger's mother wore a black dress with powder blue accessories. Both had corsages of yellow pompons and talisman roses.

Mr. Barshinger's parents were hosts for the reception at their home after the ceremony. A three-tier wedding cake, lopped with a miniature bridal couple, was the table's centerpiece. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Barshinger will reside for the present at the home of the bridegroom's parent. The bride is a graduate of William Penn Senior High school, York, class of 1941, and is employed by Charles H. Bear and company, York. Notes for Gladys Mabel Libhart:

Gladys Mabel Libhart DeWalt Neff left us to go to heaven on February 7, 2021, exactly two months after celebrating her 100th birthday. Her special 100th birthday was marked with socially distanced visits from family and friends at the Pineville Rehab and Living Center on December 7, 2020. Gladys' late parents, Harry Nelson Libhart and Martha Elizabeth Snyder, were living in Bainbridge, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, when she was born and where she was educated. Her brother, Harold Libhart, also preceded her in death. After living in Massachusetts, New York, Tennessee, Ohio, Maryland, Michigan, Illinois and Florida, North Carolina became her permanent home.

Gladys' first husband, Elwood Richard DeWalt (Woody), was killed January 21, 1945, while serving in the Army in World War II. He was the recipient of the Purple Heart Medal and is buried in Luxembourg, Belgium. Their son, the late Richard Elwood DeWalt Neff, was born right before his father was deployed to Europe to serve in the 318th Infantry Division. Gladys met, and then married, Eugene Hildebrand Neff (Charlie) in 1947. With their marriage, their family grew to include Charlie's two children, Sara Neff Meck and the late Jack E. Neff, both of Pennsylvania. During her years living in Charlotte, she was the Director of Volunteers for the Carolina's Institute of Rehab from 1963-1968 and worked as secretary for the Greater Charlotte Area Red Cross, retiring in 1986. In her retirement years, Gladys enjoyed playing bridge, volunteering for The Shepherd's Center of Charlotte, the Charity League of Charlotte and at her church, St. John's Episcopal Church.

Gladys is survived by her daughter-in-law, Joyce Lee Neff, three grandchildren: Rick, his son, Richard; daughter, Leslie Fredell, her husband, Mark and their children, Grant, Ryan and Zackary; daughter, Lesa Didier, her husband, Reggie and her daughter, Rylee Boate and extended family and friends.

The family would like to thank Kerri and Victoria Braden for their loving care of Mrs. Neff during her last year at the Pineville Rehab and Living Center. They would also like to thank Ruby Ofel, who was a dear helper to Mrs. Neff. There will be a socially distanced outside memorial service for Mrs. Neff at 11:00 am, Saturday, February 13, 2021, in the Memorial Garden at St. John's Episcopal Church, 1623 Carmel Road, Charlotte, North Carolina, 28226, with interment in the church's columbarium. In lieu of flowers, please make memorial donations to The Memorial Garden, St. John's Episcopal Church.

Notes for Leon Dennis Kauffman:

A 14-year-old York RD 3 farm boy was fatally injured early Saturday when a plow horse kicked him, fracturing his skull. According to Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kauffman, parents of the victim, Leon Dennis Kauffman, the lad and his father were plowing when the mishap occurred near their home, near Yorkana, at about 11 a.m. The youngster died of a depressed skull fracture at the York hospital at 5:55 p.m., Saturday, without regaining consciousness. Coroner Lester J. Sell issued the death certificate. Mrs. Kauffman told a reporter for The Gazette and Daily yesterday that her husband was leading a plow team of two horses and young Leon was steering the plow as the couple tilled the soil in a field near their home. In dragging the plow from one furrow to another, one of the horses seemed not to be doing her share and Mr. Kauffman slatted that he instructed the boy to strike this horse with a stick. The actual accident was not witnessed by either parent but a brother, six-year-old Jerry who was about 12 feet behind Leon at the time, told his parents that as Leon struck the beast she reared on her front legs and tried to kick him with both hind feet. The youngster said that one foot went over his brother's head, while the other struck him in the left eye.

Hearing the younger child's cries, Kauffman rushed to the aid of his injured son, attempting to stop the "gushing" of the blood with his handkerchief. Kauffman drove Leon to the office of Dr. C. J. Atkins, Red Lion, where hospitalization was ordered. The parents stated that their son was then rushed by his father to the York hospital where he was admitted and placed in an oxygen tent. Leon, who would have been an eighth-grade pupil at Fairview school, near Holtz, this coming school year, was the fourth in a family of six sons.

Surviving, besides his parents, are: his brothers, Richard, Donald, Jerry and Jason, all at home; Glenn, Camp LeJeune, North Carolina; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Alice Kauffman, York, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Messersmith, Loganville. Rev. B. D. Rojahn, pastor of Otterbein Evangelical United Brethren church, Spry, will officiate at the funeral services at the Purd A. Riedel Funeral home, Dallastown, at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Interment will be in Yohe Union cemetery.

Notes for Arlene M. Goodling:

ERIE - Arlene M. Goodling, 89, former and long time resident of Lawrence Park, passed away October 10, 2009, at St. Mary's East Gallagher House, Erie. Born in Lawrence Park, on May 13, 1920, Arlene was the daughter of the late Walter H. and Gertrude Attig Goodling. She graduated from Lawrence Park High School in 1937, and in 1941 from Thiel College, Greenville, with a B.A. in History. Arlene then pursued her nurses training and graduated from Johns Hopkins Hospital School of Nursing in 1947, where she was also a member of the U.S. Cadet Nurse Corps. She completed her formal education with an M.S. in Public Health Nursing from the Frances Payne Bolton School of Nursing at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio in 1952. Early in her career, Arlene taught French and History for a year at West Springfield High School, Springfield, and worked at Baltimore City Hospital, the Neuro-psychiatric Institute of Hartford, Connecticut, and at Case Western Reserve University Hospital. She continued her career with the Visiting Nurses Association of Erie County, eventually as Education Director and later as administrative head of the Visiting Nurses Association in Euclid, Ohio.

In 1965 she took the position of Dean of Women for Emmaus Bible College, Oak Park, Illinois, a position she held until her return to the Cleveland area in the early 1970's. Toward the end of her career, she returned to her childhood home in Lawrence Park and to psychiatric nursing at Hamot Hospital, from which she retired in 1985.

Throughout her years, Arlene's Christian faith informed her life both at work and at leisure. She was deeply involved with her many church families wherever her work took her. An able violinist, her passion for music inspired a lasting appreciation. Few have been as loyal and giving a friend, or as skilled and devoted a listener, especially with children and young adults. Many will recall with fondness the fun, care and dignity she shared with them. She was and will always be treasured by her family, including especially her dearly loved sister, her nieces and nephews, to whom she devoted so much of her time and creative energy, and by the many people for whom she was medical, practical and spiritual support during serious life crises.

Arlene is survived by her sister, Anita Goodling Simpson, age 92, of Fair Oaks, California; her nieces and nephews, Cheryl Haviland of Fair Oaks, California, Linda Goodling Christensen of Trumansburg, New York, Carol Goodling of Newfield, North York, David, Gordon and Paul Simpson, both of California, Philip Simpson of Florida, and David and James Goodling of Warren, New Jersey; and six grand-nieces and nephews. Arlene was preceded in death by her brother, Earl W. Goodling and his wife, Blossom Harcourt Goodling.

A Graveside Service and reception for family and friends will be held at Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church Cemetery in Shrewsbury at 3 p.m. on Saturday. In lieu of flowers, please consider a donation in Arlene's name to one of the following charities or to a charity of your choice: Erie City Mission, 1023 French St., Erie, PA 16501; Visiting Nurses Assn. of Erie County, 2253 W. Grandview, Erie, PA 16506; or Lawrence Park Historical Society, 4230 Iroquois Ave., Erie, PA 16511. Notes for John L. Snyder:

Mayor John L. Snyder died last night Oct. 8, 1969 at 9:05 while undergoing emergency surgery at York hospital. The 76-year-old mayor was stricken at his home shortly before 7 p.m., and was rushed to the hospital in the city ambulance, escorted by two city police cars. He was admitted to the hospital at 7 p.m. and immediately taken to the intensive care unit, where his condition was described as serious. At 8 p.m. Mayor Snyder was taken to surgery for a suspected rupture of one of the main arteries from the heart, a hospital spokesman said. Dr. H. Malcom Read, York county coroner, attributed death to a ruptured abdominal aneurysm. There will be no autopsy, the coroner said.

Mayor Snyder, a longtime Republican who called himself an independent in party politics, resided at 223 East Princess Street with his wife, Mrs. Mary Frock Snyder. During his active years in city politics, Mr. Snyder was elected to two four-year terms on city council and three terms as York's mayor. City officials last night expressed shock, and grief in the wake of the mayor's surprise death. Councilman E. Nelson Read told of having chatted briefly with Mr. Snyder yesterday afternoon at a downtown department store, and neighbors reported having seen the mayor walking his dog last night about a half hour, before he was stricken. Enroute to the hospital, the mayor was given artificial respiration in the ambulance. Upon arrival at the emergency room, a resuscitation team attended the mayor, who was reported as having responded to the emergency treatment. Mr. Snyder was 'the son of the late Issiah E. and Sarah A. Koller Snyder. He was a member of St. Paul Lutheran church, a Mason, and a former director of the Conservation Society of York County.

Mayor Snyder, who for many years operated an insurance business at 223 East Princess street, became York's first "strong mayor" under the city's new form of government when he defeated Attorney Henry B. Leader, a Democrat, in 1961. All told, Mr. Snyder's career as an elected public official in city politics spanned a period of over 35 years, during the course of which he served two consecutive terms as a member of city council and three terms as Mayor. He was a member of city council from 1932 to 1940, when he served as the city finance director. His first term as mayor spanned the years 1944 through 1948. He won the post by defeating Democrat Guy S. Boyd, a former president of York City School board. In 1947, Mr. Snyder was defeated in his bid for reelection by Democrat Felix S. Bentzel. In 1959, Mr. Snyder attempted a comeback, but lost a close election for mayor to Democrat Fred A. Schiding. After topping Leader in the 1961 vote, Mr. Snyder went on to defeat Albert L. Hydeman Jr., a downtown merchant, in 1965. The mayor, considered by himself and others to be an independent or maverick Republican - made no bones about his distaste for the present form of government. Under the old system, the mayor and four councilmen had dual executive and legislative functions. The present form, which went into effect in 1962, established an executive department separate and independent of city council. Mayor Snyder's last two terms in office were marked by conflict and disagreement between the city's chief executive and members of city council, racial tensions and disorders, and the decline of the city's population and affluence as the flight to suburbia took wing.

His critics charged that the city was dying because the mayor showed little inclination to provide leadership for programs to get the city moving again. These critics said the mayor's administration was marked by a lack of enthusiasm for urban renewal and rehabilitation and they pointed to the moribund Farquhar tract to buttress their argument. Civil disorders also plagued Mayor Snyder's last term in office, and here again, his critics charged the mayor with a marked lack of initiative in trying to solve the root causes of the city's difficulties in the area of human relations. But even the most vocal of Mr. Snyder's critics felt that he was a man of honesty and integrity, whose personal character was above reproach. Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night.

Nov. 12, 1969 - The will of Mayor John L. Snyder, 76, of 221 East Princess Street, who died Oct. 8, 1969, has been filed for probate in the county Register of Wills office. The handwritten will disposed of the estate of the late Mayor estimated at $7,000 in personal property. The will named Mary A. Frock, who later became Mrs. Snyder as executor of the estate. Notes for Viola Beatrice Thoman:

Mrs. Viola Thoman Hendrix, 27, Maryland Line, Maryland, formerly of Jefferson, died in an ambulance enroute to the York hospital last evening July 2, 1946 of a bullet wound of the head. Baltimore County police at Towson, Maryland, said Mrs. Hendrix, the wife of Carroll Hendrix, was accidentally shot by her 16-year-old nephew, Louis Gaither, Baltimore, who had arrived at the Hendrix home two hours previously for a week's vacation. Officer E. H. Andrew said the youth had fired a .22 caliber rifle at a bird in a tree and that the bullet apparently ricocheted and struck Mrs. Hendrix.

The officer reported young Gaither could not see Mrs. Hendrix who was on the opposite side of a chicken house. The first inkling he had that anything was amiss was when he heard the cries of Kathleen Hendrix, five-ear old daughter of Mrs. Hendrix, who saw her mother fall to the ground. Mrs. Hendrix was taken to the office of Dr. Paul D. Shaub, Shrewsbury, who ordered her removal to the hospital. She died as the New Freedom ambulance was carrying her to the hospital here. Lester J. Sell, York county coroner, said the bullet entered the base of the woman's skull. Baltimore county police said no charges would be preferred against young Gaither but that he would appear in juvenile court as a matter of routine. Mrs. Hendrix was a member of Greenmount United Brethren church, near Jefferson. She attended Bethany Reformed Sunday school at New Freedom.

Besides her husband she is survived by two daughters, Kathleen and Cynthia, at home; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Thoman, Jefferson; grandfather, Leonard K. When Ray stepped off the plane, he felt an instant love for the Sierra Nevada Mountains, accepted the job and moved out west. He started his own herd of cattle in 1964 while he was working and showing cattle for the Double Diamond Ranch. Ray eventually became the ranch general manager overseeing the two ranches in California and the home ranch in Reno. Ray held this position until the ranch sold. He greatly admired Wilbur D. May and appreciated the opportunities that he was granted while working under Mr. May, and would often tell stories of the celebrities that he had met.

In 1995, Ray and Michelle Purdy, along with her daughter, Tawni, joined their households and love of Angus cattle. Ray worked for the Nevada Department of Agriculture and the University of Nevada, Reno during this time. In his spare time, he greatly enjoyed helping Tawni raise her show steers. Many hours were spent caring for the animals, and Ray was immensely proud of the Grand Champions that were raised from the family herd.

He is survived by his longtime companion, Michelle, daughter Tawni (Chris) Steiger; his mother, Jean of Indianola, Iowa; his brother Richard (Jane) Nyswonger of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa; niece Karen (Greg) Blockhus, great-nieces Katherine and Natalie Blockhus; great-nephew, Daniel Blockhus, all of Minnetonka, Minnesota; and many aunts, uncles, and cousins. He was preceded in death by his father, Marvin Nyswonger.

Ray was buried, along with other members of his family in the I.O.O.F. Cemetery in Indianola, Iowa. A celebration of life will be held October 5, 2014 from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the Sage Hill Events Center, 7370 Desert Way, Reno, Nevada 89521. The family requests that any donations be made in Ray's memory to the Western States Angus Auxiliary or the Washoe County 4-H Leaders Council at 365 Vera Drive, Reno, Nevada 89511

- 3499 vi. Ralph Leroy Quador, born 01 May 1941 in Militen, Colorado; died 24 Jan 2000 in Taylor, Loup Co, Nebraska.

Notes for Ralph Leroy Quador:

Almeria, Jan. 28, 2000 - A Loup County rancher found dead in his home was shot several times in the head and killed, the county attorney said. There were several suspects in the killing of Ralph Quador, 59, and police hoped for a break in the case soon, said Tom Schwarten, an investigator with the State Patrol. County Attorney Greg Jensen said Wednesday that investigators had narrowed the time of death to between 8:30 p.m. Sunday and 8:30 a.m. Monday. A ranch employee found Quador's body on Monday morning. Quador's ranch is about two miles north of Almeria, a small community 10 miles west of Taylor and 50 miles south of Ainsworth.

Lincoln, June 29, 2000 - A Broken Bow woman charged in the slaying of her sometimes boyfriend has waived her right to a preliminary hearing. Maxine Betts, 31, was bound over to district court for trial. Her arraignment was set for July 13 in Broken Bow, said Barb Strong, county court clerk. Betts is charged with first-degree murder in the Jan. 24 shooting death of Taylor rancher Ralph Quador. Nebraska State Patrol Lt. Pete Peters said it was a difficult case because Quador lived alone on his ranch and was not a popular man. Peters has said of fleers basically had to work with an entire county of suspects.

Almeria — Ten days after an Almeria rancher was found dead in his home, the investigation into his murder continues, Nebraska State Patrol Sgt. Tom Schwarten in North Platte said Thursday. While suspects have been identified in Ralph Quador's death, no arrests have been made, Schwarten said. "The investigation is continuing with a large amount of interviews and other work being completed," he said. "Everything is going on schedule, including lab analysis" of evidence.

Quador, 59, was found dead about 8:30 a.m. Jan. 24, 2000 in his house on his ranch two miles north of Almeria in Loup County. Investigators narrowed the time of death to the 12 hours prior to when he was found. Schwarten said earlier this week that the patrol had received a preliminary report on autopsy results, but he would not elaborate on the details. A forensic pathologist in Scottsbluff conducted the autopsy. Marie Clarke, assistant attorney general, will prosecute the case. District Judge Ronald Olberding approved a motion for a special prosecutor on Jan. 28. Loup County Attorney Greg Jensen filed the motion because he thought he had a conflict of interest with representing Quador in his divorce case. Jensen has a private law practice in Ord, with an office in Taylor.

Broken Bow, Jan. 19, 2001 - Charges against the woman accused of killing a Loup City rancher were dismissed Thursday, a week after her confession was thrown out as evidence. District Judge Ronald Olberding granted the state's motion to dismiss first-degree murder and use of a weapon charges against 32-year-old Maxine Betts. Olberding last week ruled Betts was illegally coerced by the Nebraska State Patrol to confess to killing her sometimes boyfriend Ralph Quador, 59, after officers made false statements and false promises. Belts had told police that she did not remember killing Quador, but that in a dream she saw herself beside his bed with a revolver. She was arrested in May on the day she mentioned her dream to police after being interrogated for more than five hours. Quador was shot six times in his bedroom last January. Betts was the last known person to speak to Quador, and she reported his death to authorities.

Defense attorney Jerry Soucie said Betts was not released on a technicality. This wasn't a situation where some police officer failed to say the right words off a Miranda warning form," Soucie said. The judge found her statements were coerced," he said. "The statements that she made didn't fit the physical facts." The Nebraska attorney general's office said it disagreed with the judge's decision to throw out Betts' confession. However, the office said it would be difficult to appeal his ruling so it asked that the charges against Betts be dismissed. The dismissal of charges does not prevent the state from refile charges against Betts in the future, but Soucie says his client is innocent. "Setting the statement aside, there weren't any physical facts that suggested Maxine Betts drove 35 miles from her apartment up to Tabor and shot this guy," he said.

Lincoln, July 7, 2000 - The Internal Revenue Service is trying to collect $730,000 in what it alleges are unpaid federal income taxes from the estate of slain Taylor rancher Ralph Quador. In a lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Lincoln, the IRS alleges Quador did not pay income taxes for 1990-93. Quador lived alone on his ranch 10 miles east of Taylor. The 59-year-old was found dead in his house Jan. 24, shot several times in the head with a .22-caliber handgun.

1644. Solomon Leonard⁷ Pugh (Lydia Elizabeth Lillie⁶ Berkheimer, Catherine⁵ Hoke, Lydia⁴ Geiselman, Elizabeth³ Goodling, Johann Peter (Gudling)², Johann Peter¹ Gutlin) was born 25 Jul 1879 in Gore, Hampshire Co, West Virginia, and died 13 Feb 1957 in Lindsay, Tulare Co, California. He married

Lena Belle Christner 14 Sep 1902 in Olathe, Douglas Co, Missouri, daughter of ? Christner. She was born 28 Jun 1882 in Painsville, Lake Co, Ohio, and died 31 Aug 1954 in Lindsay, Tulare Co, California.

Notes for Solomon Leonard Pugh:

History of Orange County California with Biographical Sketches, by Samuel Armor. Historic Record Company, Los Angeles, California, 1921.

S. L. PUGH. — A well-posted, successful oil man who thoroughly understands his business is Solomon Leonard Pugh, the former superintendent of the Heffern Oil Company, now connected with the Orange County Drilling Company, a contracting concern; he is also growing oranges on his splendid nine-acre orchard, thereby demonstrating his knowledge of horticulture as well as of oil. He was born in Romney, Hampshire County, West Virginia, on July 25, 1880, the son of J. W. Pugh, a farmer who came to Missouri and now resides at Mansfield in that state. He had married Miss Lillian Burkheimer, a West Virginian, and she also is living. Our subject is the oldest of the seven surviving children, and was brought up in Virginia until four years of age.

Going to Missouri with his parents, he attended the public schools there, and in that same state, on September 16, 1902, was married to Miss Lena B. Christner, after which he followed farming. He purchased a farm in Douglas County and operated it with success until he came to California in 1910.

Landing at Bakersfield, he entered the oil business, first for the Howell and Davies Oil Company, and then for several companies in Taft. He next entered the service of the Head Drilling Company, and after that with the Associated Oil Company in Taft. In 1917, he removed to Brea, to work for the amalgamated Company, and then he helped drill four wells for the Head Drilling Company.

In 1919, Mr. Pugh became superintendent of the Heffern Oil Company, and he was also made a stockholder and a director. They have about 300 acres in their lease, so that he had a position of much responsibility. He belongs to the Oil Workers' Union, and is likely to do his full share in the development of Orange County's hidden and untold liquid wealth.

Three children were granted Mr. and Mrs. Pugh, two still living — Thelma Marie and Everett Fowler. Mary Lillian died, aged two years and eight months. Mrs. Pugh attends the Baptist Church; Mr. Pugh belongs to the Modern Woodmen of America, and has been affiliated with that organization since he was eighteen years old. In national politics he is a Democrat; but he does not favor party politics in local movements. In 1918 he traded his Missouri farm for a nine-acre ranch, set out to Valencia oranges; he has a fine home there and enjoys the alternation of ranching with his oil interests.
