Notes for Luther Boyden:

Past and Present of Washtenaw County, Michigan by Samuel W. Beakes, Chicago: The S.J. Clarke Publishing Co., 1906. Page 803:

Luther Boyden came to Michigan in the spring of 1826, from Conway, Massachusetts. He looked out and selected his location at the same time Mr. Alexander did, and, as I am told, agreed with Mr. Alexander as to how they would locate what they did of what was subsequently called Boy den's Plains, the agreement being that Mr. Alexander should take west on section 35 and Mr. Boyden on section 36. Mr. Boyden did not stay very long in Michigan at this time, but after locating his land, and making an agreement with someone to break up a piece of ten acres for wheat, returned to Massachusetts, and made all due preparations to settle with his family on his new farm. "He arrived with his family, consisting of Mrs. Boyden and three children, August 26, 1826. At this time there were only two steamboats on Lake Erie. The Erie Canal was the great thoroughfare through New York. No railroads had as yet been built in the world. From the arrival of Mr. Boyden and family to the spring of the year 1828, a few, and only a few, reminiscences of those bygone years have been gathered up. And although we are now able to snatch, as it were, only a few facts from the tooth of time, we may suppose those years were full of adventure and the stirring incidents common to pioneer life.

One, the celebration of Independence Lake, has been noted. Another, of a purely domestic nature, occurred June 18, 1827, when Mrs. Boyden presented her husband with another son, who was in due time christened John Augustus. This, so far as we know, was the second white child and the first white male child born in the township. The cradle, in which this child, as well as the two subsequent children, was rocked, is still in being, and for primitive simplicity and real practical utility is not excelled by any baby cradle either of ancient or modern, foreign or domestic make. It consists of a section of a hollow buttonwood tree about three and a half feet in length, and eighteen or twenty inches in diameter, with a piece of board fitted to the ends, and the log made as smooth and round on the outside that rockers are not needed. One advantageous feature in this cradle over a cradle on rockers is that in case the child should be rocked out on the floor, it would be merely a rolling out and not a falling out. "As Mr. Boyden's first wheat crop began to ripen, he began, to look about for, harvesters. He with the other New England men in the neighborhood had never seen wheat or rye cut with anything but a sickle. But the Moe family having emigrated from New York where grain cradles were in vogue knew well how to use them. So Mr. Boyden having made himself acquainted with these facts, engaged the Yankee with their sickles and the New York men to come on with their cradles. But the cradlers were engaged with this express proviso, that in case the wheat could be well cut with their new-fangled instruments, all right, but failing to do this they must lay aside their long blades with wooden attachments, and conform to the good old way. With commendable promptitude both classes of reapers appeared, each carrying their respective instruments on their shoulders. The trial commenced, and when Mr. Boyden and his Yankee friends saw the New York men sweep down the grain with comparative ease, and lay the swath so evenly, and at such a rapid rate, they felt somewhat as the Chronicles say the Queen of Sheba did, on the occasion of her visit to King Solomon, when it is said of her, after she saw how Solomon did things. 'There was no more spirit in her.' The sickles were speedily laid aside, and those who brought them set at binding.

"During the winter of 1829-30 the good people of the settlement began to see and feel the alarming effects of the free use of whiskey, and began to hold temperance meetings, and they organized a temperance society, and adopted a pledge to abstain altogether from the use of whiskey as a beverage; Mr. Boyden entered heartily into this movement, and did much toward the suppression of the vice of intemperance. In the first month of the year 1830, Mr. Boyden set out to build his first barn. He employed Horace Carpenter to put up the frame. Mr. Carpenter commenced to hew the timber in January, and when the timber was ready for framing he employed C. M. Maynard and a Mr. Goodnoe (who located just west of J. C. Mead's) to assist in that work. The country was so sparsely settled that in order to get men enough to raise a good sized barn, invitations must be extended to the distance of about twelve miles. This was done in this case, east, south and southwest, but, north, there were but two families, and they were within about one mile. It was an unheard of thing to attempt to raise a building without whiskey, but Mr. Boyden determined to make the trial, and when told that he would fail, his reply was, 'Then fail it is.' The 25th day of March was appointed as the day for the raising. The men were invited with the understanding that no whiskey would be furnished, but in lieu thereof a good supper would be provided, of which all would be invited to partake after the frame was up. And although it was an innovation on an old established custom, it was a success. Mr. Boyden, with his indomitable energy, and with the assistance of other temperance men, carried it through, and thus raised the first barn in Webster without whiskey. And in after life Mr. Boyden looked upon this act as one of the achievements of his life which gave him peculiar pleasure.

"The second child born to Mr. and Mrs. Boyden, in Webster, and rocked in the primitive cradle before mentioned, was Edward L. Boyden, who subsequently became the first grandfather born in Webster. "Israel Arms came to and settled in Webster in the fall of the year 1827. He came from Massachusetts. He lived in Webster about twelve years, and then sold out and moved into the east part of Livingston County. He was a good citizen; other than this I know but little of him.

Notes for Karolina Stollsteimer:

Died at her residence in Marion June 11, 1891, Mrs. Caroline Boyden, aged 75 years. The funeral service were held from the residence Sunday at 4 o'clock, Rev. Cope officiating. Caroline Stollsteimer was born in Germany 1a 1816; came to this country when 14 years of age, and at 19 she married Alexander Boyden, In Webster, Washtenaw County, Michigan. The same year, 1835, they removed to the farm in Marion where they both spent the rest of their lives. An energetic business woman, she met the privations of pioneer life with great courage and ability and did her full share in carving from the wild forest one of the finest farms in Livingston County.

She was the mother of eight children and they only know the earnestness and self-sacrifice which she threw into the duties of wife and mother. Her husband died in 1874, leaving her a widow nearly seventeen years, and her only son, William, died in 1877, since which time she has lived with her youngest daughter, Carrie, on a part of the old place.

Notes for Caroline (Carrie) Boyden:

Mrs. Carrie Davis, the beloved wife of Milo Davis, died at her home in Marion, Wednesday evening, Nov. 23, 1898, aged 38 years, 10 months and 2 days. Although confined to her bed but one week, she had been a very great but patient sufferer for many years, waiting the Lord's time and departed without a struggle when He called. All was done for her that loving hearts and willing hands could do, but of no avail. She was a loving and devoted wife and mother, and a good, kind neighbor, loved the most by those who knew her best.

The funeral services were held at her home, Saturday, Nov. 26th, conducted by Rev. G. L. Adams, of Fowlerville, and attended by a large concourse of sympathizing friends and neighbors. Her body was laid to rest in Lakeside cemetery, there to await the glorious resurrection morn. May God bind up the bleeding hearts of those who mourn and help them to realize that their loss is her gain.

Notes for Major Henry Swift Burnett:

Major (USA), Henry Swift Burnett of the 10th Michigan Infantry killed, September 1, 1864, in battle of Jonesboro. While advancing from the position in the open field, the four right companies of the Tenth Regiment Michigan Veteran Volunteer Infantry became entangled in a jungle of briars, several rods in width, and were considerably delayed. They finally extricated themselves and got into their proper place on the left of the Sixtieth Illinois Infantry, advanced with that regiment, and finally took up a position along the first line of the enemy's works... The six left companies of the regiment, unaware of the delay on their right flank, pressed eagerly forward. Finding a gap between our brigade and General Baird's right flank, Major Burnett threw his regiment toward the left, filled the gap, and thus effectually secured the flank of General Baird's right brigade. After entering the woods... Colonel Este requested Major Burnett to form on the left of said brigade. The moment was portentous; delay would be disastrous. Major Burnett moved rapidly to the left, formed in the position desired, advanced, and secured a brilliant success, on a point where Colonel Este's men, before his arrival, saw nothing but destruction, and were ready to surrender. The Tenth Michigan advanced bravely, capturing the Second Kentucky Regiment and parts of the Ninth and Sixth Kentucky, with the battle-flag of the latter. The Second Kentucky tore their flag into shreds, thus preventing it from falling into our hands. The gallant and gentlemanly Major Burnett here fell, his head pierced by a rebel bullet while cheering on his men to storm the second line of earth-works. Captain Dunphy took command, led the charge in person, and routed the enemy after a desperate hand-to-hand fight. The regiment lost 2 commissioned officers (Burnett, Knox) and 17 enlisted men (Perrigo, Cummings, Landon, Thornton, Gibson, Russell, Maxfield, Mattoon, Stewart, Chamberlin, Wright, Jones, Reuhle, Graham, J Jones, Robinson, Watkins) killed, and 4 commissioned officers (Hannibal Nims) and 14 enlisted men wounded.

241. Alice M.¹¹ Starks (Burr Franklin (Stark)¹⁰, Harriet A.⁹ Boyden, Alexander⁸, Luther⁷, John⁶, John⁵, Josiah⁴, Jonathan³, Thomas², Thomas¹) was born 30 Aug 1897 in Waterford, Oakland Co, Michigan, and died 30 Oct 1948 in Sarnia, Lambton, Ontario, Canada. She married Alphonsus Arthur Bachler 12 Dec 1914 in Pontiac, Oakland Co, Michigan, son of John Bachler and Barbara Lochbihler. He was born 18 Aug 1889 in Marine City, St. Clair Co, Michigan, and died 25 Jan 1955 in Port Huron, St. Clair Co, Michigan.

Notes for Alphonsus Arthur Bachler:

Port Huron, Dec. 7, 1936 - A. A. Bachler, manager of the Port Huron Washing Machine Exchange, says business is brisk. The Exchange which is the only shop of this kind in eastern Michigan, extends a cordial invitation to everyone to see the new Thor Washer. Mr. Bachler explains that the importance of this business is greatly under estimated for it is now possible to completely rebuild a worn-out machine for less than one-fourth its original cost. "We replace all parts such as wringer rolls, motor gears, tubs and faucets for every type of machine on the market." The Thor Washer, America's finest washer is handled exclusively by Mr. Bachler. This type washer differs from other machines in that its manufacturers have done away with the common agitators and are using what is known as the gentle hand, which produces a fast, cleaning action. In the Thor washing machine a metal disc is tipped on an angle and gives a circular wavelike motion. This movement is not at the bottom of the tub but in the center of the clothes thus assuring equal agitation of the entire load. The Port Huron Washing Machine exchange has adequate facilities for immediate service and delivery on all machines is prompt and efficient.

Port Huron, August 5, 1940 - Just as there are veteran automobile and airplane mechanics and experts who have been in their chosen profession since the very beginning of these industries, so A. A. Bachler, proprietor of the Port Huron Washing Machine Exchange, 931 Pine Grove Avenue, has had 25 years' experience in every phase of the washing machine industry. There is not a phase of the business he has not personally had experience in, from building, repairing, servicing at home and shop, selling, collecting and study of and handling of, all makes. It is a far cry today from the ambitious yet puny types of electric washers of a quarter of a century ago to the present completely automatic 1941 Blackstone model he is now introducing to the public.

Mr. Bachler recalls that the first electric washers were of the "dolly" type, which in turn gave way to the wooden cylinder system, then came the metal cylinder washers and still later the vacuum cup system. Then a combination of vacuum cup and dryer was put on the market. Fifteen years ago, an important upward turn in the washer industry was the agitator machine which has continued in vogue as the best electric machine-washing system yet devised. Now the new 1941 Blackstone, 25 inches square, 36 inches high, is being introduced by Mr. Bachler that uses the agitator system for washing, but when installed in the home, does the washing without the housewife touching a drop of water. The clothes are put into the machine, a batch of about nine pounds at a time, one switch is turned. Hot and cold water come into the washer and are mixed to the proper temperature and the agitator begins its part of the work. After any length of time previously decided upon by the housewife when she starts the machine, the washer stops the agitator, drains off the soapy water, after first flushing the scummy surface off through the outlets at the top of the tub. Then rinse water comes into the tub, drains off and the blueing water comes next. The final operation is the most marvelous of all the automatic systems, because the inter-round part of the tub begins to spin around noiselessly to practically dry the clothes.

Light articles are ready for ironing as soon as they are lifted from the tub, while heavy clothing needs to be hung up for a few minutes only to complete the drying system. The tub is so clean and styled so neatly that it can be fitted into a kitchen along with other units such as the refrigerator and electric stove and being table high, merely forms another useful top surface on other days in the week. The machine works without noise or vibration and does away with the necessity of stationary tubs and expensive plumbing in the basement.

An example of the machine's superior efficiency and convenience is illustrated by Mr. Bachler when he says that on a Sunday night after there has been a lot of company and there are extra things to wash such as table clothes and napkins, the housewife can throw these articles into the tub, turn on the switch and go to bed. The machine will perform its task without further attention and shut itself off and in the morning the housewife can lift out the batch of nearly-dry articles, throw in some more and prepare breakfast and proceed to do this during the morning between other household duties until the wash is completed and never get her hands in water.

The Washing Machine Exchange handles the Blackstone, Thor and Meadows washers in new models and a large number of used washers of all makes. There are more than 10,000 parts stocked in the store and shop for speedy repair servicing at home and in the shop.

Port Huron, March 3, 1941 - Appreciation of why more than 10,000 washing machine parts are stocked in the Port Huron Washing Machine exchange, 931 Pine Grove Avenue, of which A. A. Bachler, is proprietor, is realized when one learns that there are more than 140 different makes of power washers. Then there are sometimes as many as 40 different models of electric washers made by a large number of these different manufacturers. To keep all these parts properly classified and ready for instant replacement duty requires an expert in the washing machine industry. Mr. Bachler who, although by no means an "elderly" man, is a veteran when it comes to the washing machine business. He has had more than a quarter of a century of experience in the industry and practically grew up in the business. This explains why the thousands of washing machine parts are arranged so neatly on practically every bit of wall space in his well-equipped repair shop.

The Exchange, the only shop of its kind in this part of the state, north of Detroit, provides speedy repair service on all makes of washers and also vacuum cleaners. With so many parts on hand repair service for the most part is speedy and efficient so that when a breakdown does occur, the weekly wash will not have to be postponed. As many as 15 washing machines, seldom any two of the same make, are often in the shop for repairs at the same time. The "ifs and whats" require an expert. Besides new machines of the Thor and Blackstone types, Mr. Bachler also handles rebuilt washers and prices on these range from about $17 up.

Mr. Bachler points out that there is no need of any housewife trying to get along without the use of her washing machine or vacuum cleaner because it is out of service on account of some mechanical breakdown. He will gladly give a free estimate for the service it needs. Furthermore, there is no need of trading it in on a new one every-time it refuses to function properly. Mr. Bachler says: "We extend the life of many an old washer and vacuum three to five years, with very little expense. "But, I say, if you insist on trading in on a new washer be sure and get all you can for your trade-in allowance. We will allow you up to $25 trade-in allowance on any of our new washers. So I say there is no good reason why any housewife should be without a washer these days for we can repair your old one or we will sell you the latest new washer that needs no oiling for 10 years, no mechanic to operate it; it is safe, and simple; easy to clean; easy to pay for."

Port Huron, April 14, 1941 - "Looking to the future is like working on a jig-saw puzzle. We have made it easy for housewives to do the washing with marvelous electric machines, but have neglected to make it as easy for the masses to get bread and butter," A. A. Bachler, proprietor of the Port Huron Washing Machine Exchange, 931 Huron Avenue, says. Mr. Bachler, called "Washing Machine Al" by his friends the first "A" of his initials stands for Alphonsus has had more than 25 years' experience in the various departments of the washing machine industry.

He was born in the home his grandfather built on the Indian trail, now Marsh Road, two miles west of Marine City, the son of the late John and Barbara Bachler, pioneers of the River district. His forefathers came from Switzerland. Mr. Bachler lives with his daughter, Mrs. Gwynne Hall and family. He is a widower and besides Mrs. Hall has two other daughters, Mrs. John Downs, Port Huron, and Mrs. Walter Weston, Jackson, Michigan, and two grandchildren.

Not a high-pressure salesman, Mr. Bachler lets his display room "sell" for him because he is busy servicing all types of washers and has a stock of 10,000 parts lining the walls of his shop to provide speedy service. He has a system of financing purchases in his shop that is simple. Because of low overhead, Mr. Bachler can maintain attractive price ranges on new as well as used washers, vacuums and other appliances. Used washers are accepted as part payment on new washers. Before coming to Port Huron several years ago, Mr. Bachler conducted an electrical store in Marine City and previous to that managed a washing machine store in Mt Clemens.

Port Huron, Feb. 16, 1942 - A. A. Bachler of the Port Huron Washing Machine Exchange, 931 Pine Grove Avenue, discusses the washing machine business and repair service under war time conditions in the following article. The washing machine for the home laundry will undergo one of the greatest changes in designs and performance in the washing machine history after the war. A few of the leading manufacturers are now experimenting with designs. The Blackstone automatic which is perfect in design and performance was just being introduced to the public when the war interrupted its manufacture. After the war there will be more of these automatic washers on the market.

The washing machine of tomorrow will be absolutely noiseless, automatic, of perfect design, with no handling of water or clothes. I would say that if you have a washer in your home today, keep it operating as long as possible. If a machine is in bad condition it can be repaired for a reasonable sum to keep it running from one to three years. The average electric washing machine costs the owner $12.50 a year or 25 cents a week. For example, a washer costs $62.50 on an average and generally will last five years without service. After the initial purchase of the machine has been accounted for in five years, is where the repair man comes in the picture. We can keep the washer in running condition for from $5 to $7.50 per year. This is an average we have found in the last seven years of servicing washers in this district.

In order to do this repair work efficiently and speedily it is necessary to have a large stock of all wearing parts to fit the many types and models that have been on the market up to the time of the war. There are about 150 different makes and 50 or more models. We have in stock a long list of parts, such as belts not only for washers but vacuum cleaners, refrigerators, all sizes of wringer rolls, motors, cords, bearings, bushings, couplings, gaskets and gears. Many hours have been devoted to putting the shop in tip-top order for the duration. We are now making plans to keep all washers in service and in case new parts cannot be purchased we can "manufacture" parts that will keep the machine operating.

We are asking our customers to assist us in every way, so we can give them good service. For instance when the washer gets out of order, if in calling, a customer will give the name and model and what is apparently wrong with the washer we can save time and extra trips by bringing a new part to replace the worn or damaged one. This plan is to save gas, oil, tires, auto and man power during the war. This does not mean we will discontinue our free estimate at your home. Vacuum cleaner, Gibson refrigerators, Zenith radios, Gibson ranges, Thor Ironer, and washers, and Blackstone washers are stocked.

Port Huron, Sept. 30, 1945 - The Port Huron Washing Machine Exchange, will occupy the entire first floor of this new building, on or about December 1. The outside of the building has been entirely renovated with new siding and a complete glass front. The interior of the building is being thoroughly reconditioned. A large sales and display room has been added, and the new office and machine shop, which is being equipped with the very latest type of equipment, will be ready for a grand opening on or about the first of December. At this time the Exchange will feature the New Thor Automagic Washer. "The corner when completed will be one of the outstanding Electrical Appliance Sales and Service centers in Eastern Michigan." Mr. A. A. Bachler says. "The building occupies one of the best locations in the city, and offers plenty of parking and service space." Mr. Bachler has been in this same location for the past fourteen years, and has made his business a real service to the public in this district.

Port Huron, Jan. 25, 1955 - A. A. "Al" Bachler, 65, of 4509 North River Road, resident of Port Huron 20 years, died unexpectedly today in his home. Mr. Bachler was born Aug. 18, 1889, in China Township, and attended schools in Marine City. He and Irene Cox were married August 18, 1943. He formerly owned and operated an electrical store in Marine City and was at one time president of Macomb County Maytag company. He also owned and operated the Port Huron Wash Machine Exchange until 1945 when retired because of ill health.

Bachler is survived by his three daughters, Mrs. John R. Downs and Mrs. Walter C. Weston Jr., both of Port Huron, and Mrs. Allan Hornby, Dearborn; two step-daughters, Mrs. Leroy Dickinson, Port Huron, and Mrs. Kenneth E. Smith, Van Dyke, Michigan; a brother, Joseph A. Bachler, Marine City; two sisters, Mrs. Johanna Smith, Wyandotte, and Mrs. Wilfred Burns, Trenton; 11 grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

The remains are in the Hartley-Foster funeral home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

312. Margaret Jane (Marjorie)¹² Ferguson (Sylvia Sarah¹¹ Williams, Nellie¹⁰ Burnett, Elizabeth Ann (Eliza)⁹ Boyden, Alexander⁸, Luther⁷, John⁶, John⁵, Josiah⁴, Jonathan³, Thomas², Thomas¹) was born 03 Dec 1929 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan. She married Robert Lee Daniels 21 Dec 1950 in Chelsea, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, son of Warren Daniels and Gertrude Storms. He was born 10 Mar 1929 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, and died 01 Sep 2012 in Chelsea, Washtenaw Co, Michigan.

Notes for Margaret Jane (Marjorie) Ferguson:

Marjorie Daniels, 84, is a lifelong Resident of Chelsea. She has decided to close her antique store on Main Street after 25 years. An auction of her merchandise will begin at 10 a.m. May 28. Marj, as she likes to be called, is the widow of Chelsea Lumber owner Bob Daniels and the mother of actor Jeff Daniels.

The couple lived in New Jersey, staying in Bayonne and Woodbury, before the Navy transferred Bob to Athens, Georgia. Life was good there as Bob was an instructor at the Supply Corps School. When his discharge came, they thought about staying in the south, but the call from Chelsea was too much for them. The couple came back to town as Bob worked for the lumber business and Marj became a homemaker. "We liked it here," Marj said.

Marj said she saw the potential Chelsea had and organized many fundraisers that involved bringing the first fashion show, first home tours and a 4-H club the Fair Acres, to town. The young couple began to take an active role in the affairs of the community.

In 1961, Bob, at 31 years old, was the mayor. During this time Marj entered the Mrs. Michigan contest and came in second. She was told she lost because her family was so young at the time (Jeff (the actor) was 5, Jody was 2 and John 1); the winner's children ranged in age from 8 to 18. During those years she was judged on her homemaking talents, community involvement and what kind of marriage she had. Marj maintained her community involvement and when the Chelsea Community Hospital opened in the 1960s, she was a buyer for the gift shop for nearly 12 years. After that she worked with a friend who owned her own antique store. "I put two and two together and decided to open my own shop," Marj said.

Son John had purchased the former Sylvan Building which had fallen into disrepair. He renovated the building, transforming what had once been home to the Sylvan Hotel into a mix of retail space and professional offices.

Her family's impact on the community is well known with Jeff opening the Purple Rose Theatre to Chelsea as well as helping with the Chelsea Center for the Arts. Husband Bob and a friend are credited with bringing Craig Common from his job as a corporate chef in Ann Arbor to opening a restaurant downtown. "He was only going to stay 13 years, but he's been here for 27," Marj said. Chelsea has always possessed a progressive streak and it has kept that spirit alive today, she said. She appreciates the growth and new buildings that are popping up all over town.

But that meant an active and involved local government. "There isn't a street without a curb today," Marj said, crediting the village and city councils for keeping the town's appearance up. "They do a really good job." The local schools are another feather in the town's cap as it reflects the area's forward-thinking tendencies, she said. "We have always been progressive, never going backwards," Marj said. Don't expect to find Marj at the auction. "It would bother me to see items for less than I paid for it," she said.

Notes for David Randall (Randy) Shaver:

South Bend, April 14, 1998 - A Rochester man was killed and a state police trooper injured when their vehicles collided Monday near Rochester. Richard L. Smith, 67, of the 2500 block of Barrett Road, died about 2:30 p.m. Monday April 13, 1998 at Parkview Memorial Hospital, Fort Wayne Indiana State Police Senior Trooper Randy Shaver, 44, was in fair condition Monday evening in Woodlawn Hospital, Rochester, with a broken arm and leg injuries, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Police said Shaver may have narrowly escaped a fiery death, thanks to the efforts of Fulton County Sheriff Bruce Baker and passing motorist Tim Hays, a manager at Scotts grocery store. Baker cut off Shaver's seat belt. Police credited the seat belt with saving the trooper's life. Smith was not wearing a seat belt, but his airbag did deploy. Police said Shaver was responding to another accident about 9:30 a.m. Monday on Indiana 14, near County Road 1075 East. He was driving his squad car east on Indiana 14 with his siren and emergency lights in operation. Smith, who was driving a pickup truck north on Barrett Road, apparently did not see the on-coming squad car, police said. After stopping at the stop sign, Smith pulled into the intersection and the truck struck the squad car in the passenger side door. Shaver's car flipped over and caught fire. Both vehicles came to rest on the north side of the road.

Rochester, May 26, 2001 - A state police trooper testified that the driver of a pickup truck moved into his path just before a collision that killed the truck driver. The widow of Richard Smith sued Randy Shaver and the state police after the April 1999 wreck, claiming that her husband died because Shaver was driving too fast and did not use enough caution. The wreck occurred on Indiana 14 as Shaver was responding to a traffic accident. He testified Wednesday during the trial in Fulton Circuit Court that he was approaching an intersection when he first saw Smith's truck and braked to slow down. Shaver said he also changed lanes to give extra room between his squad car and the truck.

"I noticed the truck make an extremely abrupt start and an abrupt stop, which led me to believe, since I was over here in the other lane, that he had seen my lights," Shaver said. "I increased my speed, got back into my accelerating, believing he had seen me." Shaver testified Smith continued onto Indiana 14. "Last time I seen him, he was right at the center line," Shaver said. The trooper said he was not able to avoid the collision. Smith was thrown from his truck and died, while Shaver's squad car overturned and caught fire. He broke his right elbow, a wrist and his left knee. He has had four surgeries and was off work 27 months, returning to patrol in late March. An attorney from the state attorney general's office, which is representing Shaver and the state police, asked him why he was driving an estimated 70 to 80 mph & when he did not know whether the wreck he was responding to was serious. State police procedure is to treat unknown wrecks as injury accidents, Shaver said. "It's important to get to the scene, as quickly as you reasonably can," he said.

He married Kathleen Rosemary Treado 13 Jul 1979 in Washtenaw Co, Michigan. She was born Aft. 1955.

Notes for Jeffry Warren Daniels:

Actor Jeff Daniels was born Feb, 19, 1955 in Athens, Georgia but raised in Chelsea, Michigan. He is the son of Marjorie J. (Ferguson) and Robert Lee Daniels, who owned The Chelsea Lumber Company and was also mayor of Chelsea. Jeff attended Central Michigan University, but became involved in acting and dropped out to pursue a career as an actor. Daniels made his feature film debut in Milos Forman's Ragtime (1981).

Daniels went on to prove himself to be one of Hollywood's most reliable and versatile actors with roles in successes such as Terms of Endearment (1983), The Purple Rose of Cairo (1985), Something Wild (1986), Arachnophobia (1990), Dumb & Dumber (1994), Pleasantville (1998), The Hours (2002) and Good Night, and Good Luck (2005), to name a few.

Alongside screen work, Daniels has many stage credits to his name and is the founder of The Purple Rose Theater Company in Chelsea, Michigan. He is also a musician and songwriter and has recorded two albums. Daniels is married to his childhood sweetheart, Kathleen Treado and they have three children.

Jeff Daniels said he left Michigan and his hometown of Chelsea back in the mid-1970s because he wasn't sure he could make it in the family lumber business. A few years later, the actor and musician came back because he wasn't sure how long he would last in the entertainment business. His second career path certainly proved to be the right one.

In an interview with the Lansing State Journal, Daniels shared thoughts about leaving Michigan and then returning for good to live and raise his family, and about his upcoming tour of small towns in Michigan, joined by his son and his Ben Daniels Band. Daniels will be in Grand Ledge on Aug. 15 for the third stop on a 14-city tour. "If I were helping my brother run the lumber company, we might be facing bankruptcy," Daniels said. "Fortunately for him and for my dad, and for everyone at the lumber company, though I worked there for four summers, I came out of that, those four summers in high school and college, with even less appreciation of wood than I had going in, so it was obvious that this was not to be." After leaving Central Michigan University in 1976, Daniels left for New York and a few years later learned he could make a living as an actor. "I was 30 years old. And I was in the middle of shooting 'The Purple Rose of Cairo,' and Woody Allen told me I was good," he said.

"And I remember coming back to the apartment in New York and telling (my wife) Kathleen, I said, — I didn't say I'm going to be a big star, now — I looked at her and I said, 'I now know I can make a living in this business. Because if I'm good enough for Woody Allen, I'm good enough for anybody.' And that was the turning point."

'I'll already be home' - Following the success in 1985 of "The Purple Rose of Cairo," he moved back to Michigan, unsure of how long his movie career might last. "I have just always been fatalistic about a movie career, particularly when we moved back to Michigan in 1986," Daniels said. "In a business that's so youth driven. You become old news. ... And it is really a business that doesn't care if you're here on Tuesday. It doesn't care. "So, I said, 'That's more than likely to be the case. I'll last as long as I can. However, when it's over, I'll already be home.' "So that was one reason we moved back to Michigan. And the other was that we understood how to raise our kids there. We didn't understand how to do it elsewhere, and we just decided that's the most important thing, and that's what we decided to do."

He considers the child-raising a success, and talked about touring with his son as one mark of that success. "He's in his 20s. And to have one of your kids speaking to you in (his) 20s, there's a victory in that," Daniels said. "But to have him want to share the stage, to have his talents as a musician, and the band's talents, as a musician over the last seven or eight years have just grown so much. "I can't wait to see what we put on the stage. We've got a whole set list and demos, but we go into rehearsal later this week. And we'll be pounding it out, so that by the time we get on stage, we've got a good show. "The father-son thing will not be lost, nor will it be ignored."

The tour began Aug. 13 in Bay City and ends Aug. 29 at the Marquette Area Blues Fest. In between are stops in Coldwater, Cheboygan, Rockford, Manistee and Ann Arbor, along with stops in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Family time - Daniels attributes some of his family's closeness to life in Chelsea and traveling around Michigan to play hockey. "I'm a big fan of soccer, however, we went hockey and never looked back," he said. "Ben was 8, and Luke was 5 when they started in hockey in Ann Arbor. All those 5:45 a.m.'s on Yost Arena ice on Saturday and Sunday. All the way through the end of high school. "I tell parents now, it's not whether the kid excelled, it's not, 'Why didn't you shoot instead of pass,' 'You've got to work on your slap shot.' It's not that," he said. "It's the drive there and the drive back. And you talk about anything else except about the game. And we believe that the time we spent doing that, and not focusing on pounding your kid to be better at the next game when he's 12 damn years old, is one reason we're so close as a family when the kids are in their 20s."

Living in Chelsea, Daniels has found the space to live the life he looked for. "I don't put myself in a position to be bombarded," he said. "I think the people around town where I live do a great job. They can smell outsiders. "Often it's the case of 'Where does Jeff Daniels live?' and they go, 'We have no idea who you're talking about.' So they're very protective for the most part."

Staying close to home - And for the most part, he and his wife are happy to stay there. "I have a lot of trouble leaving home. I've really set up my home situation where I really don't have to leave for weeks at a time, which drives my wife crazy," he said. "But we live on a lake, and I'm very happy there. Very content there. People, especially during the summer, they go up north, and they go on vacation, and they go wherever, and we kind of look at each other and go, 'We're already there.' "He makes an exception for chances to cross the bridge. "I love the escape. I love Marquette and the kind of majesty that is Lake Superior. It just feels different up there," he said. "That lake is alive, and it's a beast. You stand on the shore in summer, or in January, you respect it. ... Serious nature going on up there." As it turned out, Daniels didn't have to worry about failing in the movie business, appearing in more than 60 films as well as a number of TV productions, most recently the Emmy-award winning "The Newsroom" on HBO. Daniels also founded the Purple Rose Theatre Company in Chelsea, writing 15 of the plays produced there. He has provided the voice for some "Pure Michigan" promotions.

'That creative road' - A lesser known aspect of his life has been as a songwriter and singer, producing five albums to date. The music brought him to New York in the first place, and his acting career followed. He talked about the creative process in acting and writing. "Athletes talk about being in the zone. Creatively, whether that's the muse or whether that's tapping into your imagination," Daniels said. "As an actor, you don't plan everything. You kind of go moment to moment, just bounding down that creative road between 'Action' and 'Cut.'

"On 'The Newsroom,' every day was like that. You come in prepared, you know it, but you're wide open to whatever Emily Mortimer brings to it, or (Aaron) Sorkin brings to it, or that changes it in the middle of a take. That's where the thrill is, the excitement is. "It's the same thing with writing. You can be writing and, yes, there's structure, yes, there is technique and the mechanics of writing the good story. But you wait for the discovery. You wait for that thing that pops up, and then you chase it with your fingers across the keyboard. ...

"And there are days when it ain't there and you've still got to write the 10 pages or you've still got to do four more takes, and that's where the theater technique kicks in, where you're doing it eight times a week. Whether you're feeling it or not, you make the audience feel it. "But the thrill of discovering it, on your feet, in front of the camera, or as you're writing it, that's what you're looking for every day."
