By 1979, Corning was mass producing the refined optical fiber invented by Keck in Wilmington, North Carolina. In the early 1980s, the telecom company MCI placed an order with Corning for 100,000 km of fiber a year, in effect signaling that the telecommunications industry had finally realized the revolutionary potential of Keck's invention. Today, more than 90% of long-distance data in the United States is now sent through the optical fiber Keck and his team designed and produced. Optical fibers, which can now carry 65,000 times more information than the copper wires they replaced, ultimately allowed for the development of the Internet in the early 1990s.

Later Work - After his initial success with low-loss optical fiber, Keck continued working with Corning to make optical communications more viable. Keck was responsible for inventing numerous optical couplers and splitters, which greatly extended the applications of optical fiber. He was elected Editor-in-Chief of the industry-leading Journal of Lightwave Technology in 1989, a position he held until 1994.

Moreover, Keck began to rise within the corporate ladder at Corning. After beginning as a senior research scientist in 1968, almost 30 years later, in April 1997, Corning appointed Keck the Division Vice President of Core Technology, Optics and Photonics – Science and Technology. During his management tenure, Keck was a key figure in establishing Corning's modern innovation ethos, and also helped guide Corning into the emerging field of photonics. By the end of his tenure with Corning, Keck was well-regarded in the scientific community as an expert within the fields of molecular spectroscopy, gradient and aspheric optics, guided-wave optics, fiber sensors and optical fiber waveguides, and research management.

After Corning - Keck retired from Corning in 2002, after spending 34 years with the company. Throughout his career, he served the company in numerous capacities, and at the time of his retirement he held the position of Vice President and Director of Research. Immediately after his retirement, Keck helped establish the Infotonics Technology Center in Canandaigua (town), New York, a collaborative organization between private industry and government focused on photonics and nanotechnology innovation. Due to his expertise in both photonics and research management, he was elected the first Chief Technology Officer of Infotonics, a position he held briefly.

Dr. Keck and his wife, Ruth Keck, currently reside in Big Flats, New York, outside of Corning, New York. He has two adult children, both of whom are also involved in technological fields: Lynne Vaia, a civil engineer, and Brian Keck, a software expert. He is involved in local philanthropy in Corning, holding board membership for the American Red Cross, the Community Foundation, and the Science Center. In addition to still consulting for Infotonics, Keck remains active in the science community, serving on the oversight board for the National Institute of Standards and Technology, the IPO Education Foundation Board of Directors, as well as holding the position of Vice-Chair of the National Inventors Hall of Fame Board of Directors. Furthermore, Keck is a benefactor of his alma mater, Michigan State University, where he also currently sits on the Advisory Board for the university's College of Natural Science, of which he was a graduate.

Awards and honors - For his many contributions to the science of light, Dr. Keck has received numerous accolades. His alma mater, Michigan State University, named him a Distinguished Alumnus, and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute granted him an honorary degree in 2004. For his discovery of low-loss optical fiber in particular, Keck was inducted into the National Inventors Hall of Fame in 1993, after which he served as President of the National Inventors Hall of Fame Foundation. He is also a recipient of the Department of Commerce American Innovator Award and the SPIE Technology Achievement Award. For his work with photonics, Keck was honored with Laurin Publishing's Distinction in Photonics Award in 2002.

In 2000, U.S. President Bill Clinton awarded Keck, along with his fellow Corning researchers Robert Maurer and Peter Schultz, the nation's highest honor for innovators, the National Medal of Technology, which recognizes those who make lasting contributions to enhancing America's competitiveness and standard of living. Their award citation read: "Their invention has enabled the telecommunications revolution, rapidly transformed our society, the way we work, learn and live – and our expectations for the future. It is the basis for one of the largest, most dynamic industries in the world today."¹⁵

Professional Membership - Keck is a member of many professional organizations, including the National Academy of Engineering, the Optical Society of America, the Optoelectronics Industry Development Association, and the IEEE.

Patents - Throughout his career at Corning, Dr. Keck acquired 36 U.S. patents and authored more than 150 papers in the areas of optical fibers and fiber components. Selected patents are listed below: U.S. Patent 3,659,915 (1972-05) Maurer, et al., "Fused Silica Optical Waveguide." U.S. Patent 3,711,262 (1973-01) Keck, et al., "IV Method of producing optical waveguide fibers."

Oral History Transcript - Dr. Donald Keck:

Interviewed by: Tom Lassman Location: Corning, New York Interview date: November 2, 2004
Lassman: This is Tom Lassman here with Dr. Donald Keck, in Corning, New York, on November 2, Election Day, 2004, for an autobiographical interview. Thank you for taking the time to participate in the interview. I will start with some family background. You were born in 1941, in Lansing, Michigan? And, if you could give me a little background on your family history there, father's occupation background, mother's background and occupation?

Keck: Well, the background is so terribly important in weighing the foundation for what a person does in their career. My father was a physicist himself. There's rich rich history and content in his life, as well. He had studied at Michigan State University. Back in those days, you didn't often go right to school after you graduated from high school. He graduated as valedictorian. My dad graduated, as I said, as valedictorian of his class and then had to work a couple of years before he went to school.

Lassman: And, what's the time period for this?

Keck: He, well, he was born November 2, or November 1, 1905. So, he would have been ninety-nine this year. Died three years ago. Ninety-six and a half. Three years. No, two years ago, 2002. At any rate, he went to Michigan State, studied electrical engineering at Michigan State, was interested in science from the get go. He had five other siblings, one of whom went to college. The others, well the other, the other brother didn't, he was a farmer. Two of his sisters went to college. So, there was a history in the Germanic family of going to college. And, this was perhaps not that typical in those days. But, the Keck family believed in education, and very strongly so. So, he worked two years, put himself through school. He met my mother in East Lansing. She was born in East Lansing, grew up there, outside of East Lansing.

Lassman: Were your mother and father first generation born in America — how far back did they go?

Keck: My mother was second or third generation. My dad, my dad's mother came over from Germany when she was seven years old. My grandfather, on his, on my dad's side, had been here one generation already, and had participated in the family business in the Ann Arbor area.

Lassman: And, what was that business?

Keck: Well, there was a Keck furniture firm that was a major employer in Ann Arbor, Michigan. I don't know when it was founded, but they had a thriving furniture business in Ann Arbor, Michigan, and my grandfather worked as part of that. And, later he went into agriculture in Utica, Michigan. That's where my dad grew up. So, he went through school in electrical engineering and then taught at Michigan State University, taught in the physics department for a number of years. And by then he had gotten a masters degree, had studied with the geology department at Michigan State, and was gravitating toward geophysics as a career. That was not at all a typical profession in those days.

Lassman: This would have been in the 1920s?

Keck: Yes. 1926. Twenty-six he graduated from Michigan State. So he had a number of positions after that. He worked for a period of time, got into geophysical prospecting with Dow Chemical, and Pure Oil prior to the Depression.

Lassman: So, this was after he was done teaching?

Keck: After he had — I misspoke. I've got the history a little bit wrong. His teaching came after he came back from the Pure Oil exploration geophysical tour in Venezuela.

Lassman: How did he get to Dow Chemical?

Keck: After he graduated from Michigan State he eventually got into earth resistivity in a geophysical sense. And, I'm trying to remember whether he did the — he was already into geophysics at the time that he got the job at Dow Chemical.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: The number of scientists that were going into industrial firms — again, this was early in that evolution when industrial firms were recognizing the benefit of having trained scientists on their staffs in various capacities. At any rate, my father had spent some time at Dow Chemical. And, then went to Pure Oil, and did exploration, geophysics in Venezuela looking for oil, prior to the Depression. So, it was 1927, 1928, somewhere in that general time frame.

Lassman: Was Pure Oil a separate company?

Keck: Yes, as far as I know, it was not connected with Dow Chemical, if that's your question?

Lassman: When he was at Dow was there a research laboratory where he was working?

Keck: I think so.

Keck: He went, for a couple of years down to Venezuela prospecting for oil, for Pure Oil.

Lassman: And, what were the techniques at that time?

Keck: Well, he had worked with a gentleman by the name of Bill Rooney. I'm trying to remember where he came from. But, he was a physicist, and he had developed some earth resistivity measuring techniques looking at strata in the earth. That was apparently beginning to be used in the prospecting for oil reserves. So, my dad led a small team down to Venezuela and for a couple of years they prospected in the Lake Maracaibo area, south of that. And, about that time the Depression hit, and Pure Oil called them back. During the Depression, he did various and sundry things like everybody did. One of the interesting things was — pearl buttons were the rage back in those days, and he picked up clams along the Muskegon River in Michigan, with the gentleman that he went to Venezuela with, a gentleman by the name of Frank Betz. And, Frank became a longtime family friend over the years. I knew him as we were growing up, as I was growing up. But, they'd collect clamshells in the Muskegon River and then drill buttons out of them and sell those for the clothing industry, because pearl buttons were a big deal. Somewhere around here [Laugh] I've got a bunch of pearl buttons and belt buckles. But, after the Depression he then taught at Michigan State.

Lassman: Did he go back for more training?

Keck: Well, not quite yet.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: He was at Michigan State with a masters degree, teaching in the physics department. And it must have been then in the, late '30s that Michigan State began to try and upgrade their physics department. They hired a young professor who had just gotten his PhD from, I believe, Iowa, or Iowa State. One or the other. A gentleman by the name of C.D. Hawes. And, that'll come back later on. And, they had to make room for this person on the faculty. And, Hawes had a PhD, and my father didn't. So, basically he was dismissed. They offered him some sort of a teaching position, but he was clearly not a tenure-track faculty. So, it was at that point that he decided to go on for a PhD, and he went to the University of Michigan, eventually getting his PhD in 1941.

Lassman: In what?

Keck: In physics.

Lassman: In what specific areas?

Keck: Well, he again, pursued this notion of earth resistivity, and developed some of the offshoots of the so-called Tice equations, basically solving Green's function in the earth, and did a joint thesis between the geology department and the physics department, at the University of Michigan. But, his degree was from the Rankin school, at the University of Michigan. And, I recall that at the time he said that S.A. Goudsmit was on the faculty at the University of Michigan and that he had studied under Goudsmit for one of his courses, I guess the electricity magnetism course. But, later on, as I studied physics of course, that name came up. And, so, that was kind of an interesting piece of family history.

Lassman: Can I just interject a couple of questions?

Keck: Sure.

Lassman: You mentioned that when your father went back to Michigan State that the physics department was in the process of upgrading itself? Do you know a little bit more about what that context was?

Keck: It's in that treatise that he wrote. So, I can try and dig that out over the lunch hour, or a break, or whatever, and we can go through that a little bit.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: He did delve into that a little bit.

Lassman: That's fine.

Keck: As to who the chairman of the department was, and that information is in there.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: [137]

Lassman: And then, the other question I have is about the research that he was doing when he was going back for his PhD. What was actually happening within geophysics? Was he taking a more mathematical approach to prospecting? Was it becoming more professionalized in that sense? I'm just trying to get a sense of what the strands of research were in that time.

Keck: He tended to be more on the experimental side, which is, frankly, where I gravitated as well. But, he did develop a theoretical background for geophysics. All I remember is the so-called Tice equations that somehow — well, I think they're associated with earth resistivity. But, now having said that, they may have more to do with diffusivity in an aquifer. So, I may not get (or be?) too definitive on that.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: He did, he eventually did both of those things. After he got his PhD in '41, of course, the war was on. And, he went to the Naval Ordnance Laboratory in Washington, and the family moved down there. He got his PhD, I think, in December of '41, and I was born in January of '41. I was almost a year old by the time he actually got his doctorate. I have no idea where the monies came for that. I never did ask. He had earned, certainly, some with Dow Chemical and Pure Oil, and I suspect there was some of the Germanic tradition of saving money and so on. So there was never a debt associated with his college, as far as I am aware, for either he nor my mother.

Lassman: Did your mother also work?

Keck: She went to Michigan State. She studied English literature for the most part. Eventually taught school, got a teaching certificate, and taught school in Michigan. She stopped that when they moved to Washington, and I was born by that time. She basically became a housewife at that time and raised the family. In Washington, my dad used some of the same measurement techniques that he used in earth resistivity, basically a bridge measuring technique to for submarine warfare. And, apparently, they were looking to put sensors across the entryway to the harbors along the coastline, during the war, to detect infiltration of submarines. It was looking at the electrical potential that's developed between metals and seawater. They could pick up the minute potential by passing the current through the seawater and then looking for changes in that, at the bridge points. It was a four-point measurement system. He did that through the war. When the war was over, he returned to East Lansing, which was my mother's home, and at that point he started a private consulting business in geophysics.

There's a company now called Keck & Associates that he started when I was in high school around 1957. And, in fact, I worked for the company and developed a lot of the things that I learned how to do, as part of that, and under his mentorship. It was a wonderful experience growing up. My dad was just an excellent excellent teacher. And, at lunchtime, he and I would talk and he'd pose problems and then help me through to a solution of various mindbender types of problems and so on. It was just a rich environment to train, to mentor, a budding scientist. In many respects it was perfectly natural that I was going to gravitate into some field of science. I remember — I don't know how the story got back to me, but probably when I was first going to school, you know, kindergarten or first grade, or some grown-up asking what I was going to be, and I said I was going to be a geophysicist, and they didn't know that I knew the word, let alone what a geophysicist was. But, at any rate, it was just part of the growing up in that environment. And my mother was very strong on education. Obviously, very learned, and both of them were avid readers, and so I wound up doing a lot of reading as I was growing up. And for some reason or other, I've, I do more of my learning by oral techniques now than reading, but back then I did a lot of reading.

Lassman: You mentioned when your father came back to East Lansing in 1945, he started his consulting business? Was he consulting to the big oil companies?

Keck: No. He took an entrepreneurial approach. I don't know exactly how he got into it, but there may have been a gentleman by the name of John Farris, that worked for the State Geological Survey, the State of Michigan Geological Survey. I remember him coming to the house — I was in elementary school — and talking often with my dad, and asking questions and so on. And eventually, he got into the field of groundwater hydrology. He still used the same prospecting techniques that had grown up in the oil industry, but to look and be able to predict where you might, what strata you might find water in, and he eventually built that business. His primary client was the Layne Company, or a whole host of Layne companies that specialize in drilling wells for cities and municipalities. Layne Northern was the one in Michigan, but there's Layne New York, and Layne Florida, and Layne Northwest, and a whole host of Layne companies that had sprung up. And so, he wound up being essentially retained by them as his primary consulting service.

Eventually he started the company Keck & Associates, and started a two-prong company. One was the consulting business that would analyze geophysical data, resistivity data, electrical logging of wells, gamma ray logging of wells to ascertain what the geologic strata was, and then knowing the strata and the permeability of the strata he developed — and this is probably where these Tice equations come in, now that I think about it, having to do with diffusivity through permeable strata. Given the strata you solve the differential equation to predict the drawdown cone if a city started pumping, you know, a million gallons of water a day out of the thing, how far out does that cone stand in the surrounding countryside. He specialized in, as I was growing up, how you got water out of the aquifer. Jumping way ahead, when he sold the company to a young geologist, Bob Minning, at that time, environmental issues were the rage, and it was just the reverse. You wanted to know, if you dumped some stuff, where it was going to go.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: So, you turned the equations around and went the other way, which I always found somewhat interesting. He consulted for many municipalities through this Layne company, and eventually through International Water Supply in Canada, another large client, based out of — outside Toronto. At any rate, as these water demands from cities got bigger and bigger, why the litigation started cropping up, and so he wound up having to testify in courts of law as to — was a city impairing "Joe's" well two miles outside the city when "Joe" suddenly ran out of water? That part he really didn't much care for. But, the other part of Keck & Associates that I got involved with as a high school student — he began to build these instruments for the water industry that large companies like Schlumberger had for oil prospecting. They had all sorts of electric logging, and gamma ray logging, and multi-channels, and all sorts of things. My dad essentially, well innovated — I won't say invented — the corresponding instrument for use by the small well companies. We built earth resistivity instruments that we then sold to the Layne companies, or anybody for that matter. I had a hand in building and developing a gamma ray logger.

We put one of those together. We tried to build a seismograph. Seismometry was beginning to start finding a way into the groundwater industry. I built a little water-level recorder; recording the drawdown cone in wells was a big deal. You'd have little test wells and often they were small bore and the question is, "how do you go out and measure the depth to water as a function of time, while you pumped the primary well?" We built these little things that had a bob that went down and when it contacted the water's surface it completed the circuit around through the earth, and we just set a little sensor circuit that would, if it, if the water went away why a motor would drop it down until it contacted again, and then it would sit there — or the other way around, the motor would wind it back up if the water level came back up. So, my first industrial experience was working for my dad's company as a high school student, and later as a college student.

Lassman: Were these batch production instruments, or did you mass ...?

Keck: One of a kind.

Lassman: I see. Did that ever expand to manufacturing?

Keck: Eventually. Eventually Keck & Associates — well, I guess in its heyday it probably had twenty, twenty-five people, half of them doing the consulting part, and half of them doing the instrument building part. But, it was not a big, big industry, or big market or anything like that.

Lassman: On the consulting side, were they PhD physicists? Did your father recruit scientists?

Keck: No. Bob Minning had a masters degree, and a couple of the people he trained. Colleges weren't teaching this sort of a curriculum, so it was essential on-the-job training. The Layne Company had a young fellow that wanted to get into this, and my dad took him under his wing. He was always a tremendous fan of education.

Lassman: Did he continue to teach, by the way, while he was in this business?

Keck: No.

Lassman: I mean formally.

Keck: To people like me. Yes. Not formally, no. But, I can't tell you the number of people that he would slip money to for them to continue their education. I had a cousin that, well two cousins that I'm sure he subsidized heavily. Then he had a young fellow that worked with Keck & Associates, well two of them in one family, and he encouraged them and helped fund their college. And then a young fellow that was going to Michigan State that was putting himself through school doing odd jobs, wound up helping my dad prune trees when he was beginning — after my dad had retired and was in his seventies. And, he basically loaned him the money to go through school. Education was always high on the family hit parade.

Lassman: You mentioned siblings, and I want to make sure we go into this a little bit more. Were there any siblings who came into the business?

Keck: No.

Lassman: What were their backgrounds?

Keck: He had six brothers and sisters. My mother was an only child. One of my dad's brothers, the oldest, got a masters degree and eventually became a professor at Michigan Technological University. In fact, he came up with a float process for extracting copper from ore that I believe is still, or was, some years back, still being used. He was the first in the family to become educated. My dad was the second to the youngest. The eldest daughter didn't go to school. The next brother studied a little bit, but I don't believe ever graduated. He studied agriculture, and eventually had a large fruit farm in the Detroit area. The next sister became a teacher and taught for many many years in the Detroit school system. And then my dad, and then the youngest sister became a pharmacist, but she and her husband had a pharmacy in the Detroit area. My mother was an only child, grew up on a farm, as did my dad. They were accustomed to hard work. And, one of my dad's favorite sayings was, "count that day as lost whose low descending sun, sees not from your hand some useful labor done." So, that was a kind of a mantra that I grew up with. And he came from the farm background. And I sort of growing up, prided myself that all my cousins were on farms. We'd go out, and Sunday dinners, and holiday gatherings, and so on, and you were always interacting with the farm community and so it became second nature to me to enjoy that sort of life, as well as the life that my dad was creating vis-a-vis his professional career. I had always, as I say, prided myself on being able to associate with all sorts of sociological strata, and I think that was an important trait as I evolved in my career.

Lassman: Now to focus on your childhood activities, and hobbies. Are there any things that stand out?

Keck: You asked about siblings. I, there was one brother that died, that was born two years before I was, and died two weeks after birth. And, at that time, the Rh factor was not well known. And, it turned out my dad and mother had conflicting Rh blood factors. I don't know whether that was the case in Ronnie's death or not, but in some sense I'm a bit lucky to even be here.

Lassman: Do you have other siblings?

Keck: No. I'm an only child. They, I guess they, after Ronnie died they learned about the Rh factor and basically decided that it just wasn't appropriate to continue to have more in the family, or try to. It would be too risky.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: I'm, I'm guessing. I don't know. So, my childhood, activities, hobbies, and so on. Where to start?

Well, one of the other neat features of my growing up was that I grew up next door to my maternal grandparents. Paternal grandparents were in Detroit, so we'd go down there and visit them maybe every couple of months. Believe it or not, it was quite an ordeal to drive to Detroit.

Lassman: Was East Lansing primarily an agricultural community, removed from the big city?

Keck: Well, no. Lansing, at the time that I was growing up, was probably 50,000 people. It's probably now, it may be pushing a million. In East Lansing, the population came and went with the terms on campus. In the summer, it was pretty deserted. Well, we can get into that perhaps a little bit later. I wouldn't say it was a rural community. Clearly my relatives had farms on the outskirts; Grand Ledge, and so on, so there's lot of rich farmland around the area. But, I grew up a quarter mile east of the Michigan State campus. And, as I say, my grandparents, maternal grandparents lived next door. My grandfather was a very big influence on my life, as well as my father. My father, of course, brought in the professional and the engineering side. My grandfather never went to college, but he could do almost anything. The man had worked with his hands, had done every type of skilled labor in his lifetime, had been a fire chief, had been a deputy sheriff. I was constantly in awe of him as I was growing up learning how the world worked. But, his last jobs were as a carpenter. And so, he had a wonderful set of tools, and could make lots of things; as could my dad, he was a very skilled craftsman as well.

He could do woodworking, but also developed the ability to do machine, metalworking, and things like that, as well as the electrical and electronics and things like that. But my grandfather had obviously come from that agricultural side. So, one of the family mantras was, well, you didn't buy something if you could make it. Any number of tools they would make. My dad made a jigsaw. My grandfather had a homemade drill press. And, his shop at home had — you see the old factories with the long power bar, a motor at one end turning the long rod, and then you got pulleys. His shop had that. A drill press was connected to one. You unhooked the belt or hooked it up depending on what machine you wanted to run. It was always fascinating to be around my grandfather, and learn how to do things. And, we had a tractor, and had five acres on the Red Cedar River. Over time, we developed the low lying land along the river, pulled out all the willows and brush, and eventually created a large pond there that we kids skated on in the winter when I was in high school.

Lassman:Let's move on to your development of interest in science technology, mathematics. You mentioned your father had a profound impact on that?

Keck:Yes.

Lassman:Were there tinkering? You mentioned chemistry sets, things like that? Books that you read?

Keck:Yes. My dad had, for his consulting business, he had assembled not only a rich chemistry lab, but also an electronics shop. We had an oscilloscope in the house, which was virtually unheard of today, a Dumont Oscilloscope. I think Dumont was one of the first. Well, it sprang out of radarscopes during World War II, and they gravitated into the scientific instrument business with the oscilloscopes.

Keck:I remember this big green oscilloscope. And, we'd hook up microphones to it and my dad would show me my signature coming out of the carbon microphones. I mentioned, this early notion that I was going to be a geophysicist, and that must have been kindergarten or first grade that I had this realization. My dad had all these things in the basement, and I would constantly be watching him do some experiment, or solder something together, and so I began picking up some of those same sorts of things.

Lassman:Let me just switch the tape over.

Keck:Had an erector set I remember that they got me early on, and enjoyed in fabricating things away from the drawings that they'd give you. They'd say, "Build this. Build that." And, I didn't want to do that. I'd try and develop some things on my own. It must have been some sort of a science fair, maybe, about the time I was in sixth grade, so what would that have been, 1953? I built a motor. I had an electric train. I got it for Christmas. I had a transformer as part of the train, and my dad sort of sketched out what this motor should look like, and I remember it took a big spike, the largest one we could find, that was the shaft of my motor, a nail. A sixteen penny nail, or something like that, and cut the head off it, and that became the shaft of the motor, and it had a metal magnetic, the oscillating — what do I want to call it? It's not the armature. The starter on a motor, and I wound the coils. My dad had copper wire laying around as part of his activities in building these instruments [for his business]. And that motor, we first hooked it up with batteries, and then I eventually put it on the, on my electric train transformer. That was one of the first things to begin learning about commutators, and magnetics, and electricity, and so on. I've forgotten when my dad — I remember him teaching me the physics of a curve ball. I did sports and all sorts of things growing up. I wasn't totally obsessed with science as some, some of our learned and notable scientists are. I led a pretty standard kid's life, as I was growing up. Sports were big for me. Baseball was big. Soccer was not yet commonly seen in this country.

Lassman:Were there any books that you read as a child that were particularly influential, that guided your interest in science and technology?

Keck:Well, I remember the first science books that we got, must have been first grade or second grade, were fascinating and they were kind of generalist types of science books.

Lassman:Books that you had in school?

Keck:Yes. They were the things that interested me most in school. I can't say that I remember any science books.

Lassman:Popular books?

Keck:I remember reading the stories of dogs, as I was growing up. As I say, I enjoyed sports. There was a book that we counted the stories of a number of sports, of baseball notables. And, I enjoyed that. My mother had me reading in the Tom Sawyers, and things along that line. But, I don't remember that there were that many science books. We went to the library every now and again. I can't tell you the books that I remember taking out of the library. Well, at any rate, there was a hobby show that existed in Michigan. It was put on by Oldsmobile, as I was growing up, and I remember going to that and seeing all the things that kids were building. And, sometimes I'd go home and try and duplicate — it was a science fair — duplicate some of the things they had. I never entered it, and I don't know why. What else did we do growing up?

Lassman:What about religious orientation in the household and in the community; was that an important part of life?

Keck:Yes. My dad had been raised a staunch Lutheran, but as he got into college he and my mother began attending an interdenominational church, the People's Church, in East Lansing. Probably about the time that I was just beginning high school, there was a branch of that church that began in our neighborhood, close to our neighborhood, Edgewood United Church of Christ. That became the church that I attended during the formative years, high school and early college. Very much interdenominational, Protestant. I do remember as I was growing up that I thought that Catholicism was the favored religion and the Protestants were in the minority. But, little did I know, I guess. At any rate, we always had salmon loaf on Friday at school, and I hated salmon ever since that day. What other things did I do? Well I always enjoyed creating things. It was the only thing I can think of at this point. Model railroading was of interest to me, and more or less so from just buying the parts, but more on instrumenting the layout. It was probably in, again, fifth, sixth, seventh grades, that I had a layout down in the basement. I learned some of my first experiences with household power by blowing several fuses, reconnecting the wrong thing to the fuse box, and shorting things out.

So, you began to gradually learn through experience. But, my folks — they didn't ignore me by any means, but they let me try lots of things. They encouraged me to take things apart, see how they worked. So, from probably fifth grade on, if something broke in the house, first, my dad would take it apart. He'd see how things were put together, and then gradually he was busy consulting, so my mother would bring the thing to me and said, "Can you see if you can fix the coffee pot, or fix the toaster?" Or, fix this that, and the other thing." I wound up always tearing things apart and had the shop and everything there to do all of that. I've thought since then, one of the features of the National Inventor's Hall of Fame is they have a training area at the Akron Hall, where kids can come in and barter to, they bring something from home and they get so many credits for a piece of old equipment that's broken and then, kids will tear it apart and they'll get a coil for this, and begin to make stuff on their own. I always thought that was just a wonderful wonderful thing, because that was clearly one of the things that I enjoyed doing. I think it helped in my later career, of not being afraid to try something different, and tear it apart, and see how it works, and then put it back together and try and improve upon it.

Lassman:I see.

Keck:Cardboard boxes were important, again there's this creativity thing. I didn't have a lot of store-bought toys. You made your own. I loved cardboard boxes, and I'd cut holes in them and make crawl spaces, and make buildings for my model railroad set, as well as lots of electrical stuff. I built myself a big control panel for my model railroad set with all sorts of switches. Loved lots of switches and lights everywhere, and hooking things up.

Lassman:This would be a good point to jump into your high school time period. This would have been around the early to mid '50s that you entered high school?

Keck:Yes. I graduated in 1958, so I was a freshman in '53-'54.

Lassman:I'd like you to talk a little bit about your high school experience, if there were any mentors you had. Peer group, and so on, focusing on your interest in science and technology and broadening out to other areas of interest.

Keck:Math was always of interest to me, and it came easily to me. I enjoyed it all the way through elementary school. I remember somewhere in high school, well we had a, what I considered an excellent math teacher, Mrs. Kelly, Ruth Kelly. She just had a very good way of teaching math. I recall one day that a class was giving her lots of trouble, and she made some comment about how... They had already separated us into college preparatory and the vocational students, which I didn't really comprehend, I don't think, at that time. But, nevertheless, there was a tracking that they were doing with students.

Lassman: Was that vocational to go into local industries?

Keck: Yes. That sort of thing. I recall. Oh Sure. Mrs. Kelly was chastising our class because we were too boisterous and weren't learning, and so on, and she said, "You have geniuses in this class and it's a shame." And, I made some comment and she said, "Donald, you're the last person that should be making a comment like that." And, everybody interpreted that I was one of the people that had an IQ test that had scored at the genius level, and I don't know whether that was true or not, but I remember it. As I said, the math just seemed to come easily to me. And, perhaps it was her teaching techniques, but I enjoyed it, and I did well in math. I did terribly in English. Much to my mother's chagrin. One of the laments that I've had since then was that I enjoyed history in elementary and junior high, and then in high school I didn't pay enough attention, or didn't enjoy it. I don't know whether it was the teacher, or what, but I've often thought that that was one of the subjects that young people really need to learn more about. All the things we don't know in this world is the history that we don't understand. Harry Truman, I believe said, made some quote like that. I might perhaps come back to that later on. But history is so important in all that we do, and clearly in the sciences. I mean, if we don't understand what's gone before you how do you build on it and carry it to the next level? So Mrs. Kelly had a major impact on me.

Lassman: Was this a large high school? Our graduating class was fifty-eight, in 1958. I did not distinguish myself in high school. I graduated in the middle of the class. I enjoyed things, extracurricular activities. We did the normal things of dividing into boys and girls. But there was the group from, well the agricultural side, the rural part, and then there was the group that were growing up in the brand new subdivisions that Oldsmobile executives populated. They were the professional haves versus the have-nots. I recall that I had friends across the spectrum. One of my best friends later became best man in our wedding, Roger Shaw. He was scientifically inclined; engineering eventually was what he gravitated into. No I can't really say that — there were scientifically minded folks in both camps. I was going to say that more of the rural folks were destined to become the scientists and the engineers, compared to the professionals, but I can't really make that generalization in my high school. There were some in both camps. But, in my high school so much of it had come easy for me up through the seventh grade anyway. The eighth grade was probably the spot where I started thinking I had it made and sloughed off. I didn't particularly pay attention to the schoolwork. But Mrs. Kelly had an impact. And then, it may have been my freshman year, a new science, physics and chemistry teacher came to the high school, to [761] High School, Mr. Walbridge. He had a significant impact on me.

Lassman: How so?

Keck: Well, on two counts. Again, as I went through high school the only sport that I participated in — I was too short for basketball and too small for football, and so baseball was the only major sport that I played. And I wanted to pitch. I grew up next door to my best friend, Rich Belknap. And his dad had been a minor league ball player, a pitcher, in fact. And he'd go out evenings and hit fly balls to us, and teach us some of the intricacies of the game of baseball. I wanted to be a baseball player. And, somewhere along, in my growing up, my dad, I remember it vividly, he was running his consulting business and I came into the house and had been frustrated playing baseball and I said, "Dad, how do you throw a curve ball? What makes a baseball curve?" And, he took time out from the middle of the day, from work, and he was a magnificent artist, and he drew the baseball and showed the pressure differentials and the spinning ball, and Bernoulli, and so on. He didn't give me all those names, but basically told me the physics behind the baseball, and why it curved. And, so in high school, I didn't have a lot of speed but I had a wicked curve ball. And, in fact, I was trying to find the article this morning. I either threw a no-hitter or a one-hitter against one of the neighboring teams my senior year. I was our pitcher in my senior year. Batted 0.440. And, so as I say I got involved in lots of stuff associated with sports. Well, and the other thing I enjoyed were the extracurriculars. I got heavily involved in doing anything but schoolwork. So, there was an Audio Visual Club and we showed movies and ran the tape recorders and did all the electrical stuff, and so I naturally gravitated to that.

Lassman: That makes me think of this time period when you're in high school in the '50s, on the larger scale we're seeing this transition from vacuum tubes to solid-state.

Keck: Yes. One of my term papers was on the transistor. For high school English. I don't remember whether it was my junior year or my senior term paper, but one of the other of those years the transistor had just recently been invented by Shockley and Bardeen, and my dad had told me that John Bardeen was at the — I believe it was Bardeen — was at the Naval Ordinance Lab with him during the war. That's when he had known him. Again, interesting ties there, the relatively small scientific community that existed.

Lassman: Did you tinker with tubes and solid transistors, and that type of...?

Keck: Well, yes. Now, I'm glad you said that. I had totally forgotten. I made, I don't want to call it an organ, but a transistor that would oscillate different frequencies depending on what resistor you put in the base lead. I made little switches out of cutting up a tin can and stapling them on a board and had a rivet. When you pressed the tin can down and the tab on the thing would make contact and beep at one frequency and then the next one would beep at a different one. And I had, I guess I had eight notes.

Lassman: Did you do that at home?

Keck: Yes. Did that at home. And, that was in high school. Must have been early high school, because it was a crude, crude thing. I think that was before the term paper on the transistor. Well, I've lost it at this point. But, I should have injected that vis-a-vis hobbies and interests — my mother was a fan of breadth of knowledge; don't become too specialized too early. And so we bought a piano. It must have been fourth or fifth grade, I think, when I started taking piano lessons. Mrs. Schneider was the typical epitome of piano teachers back in those days. The person you think of with the ruler to slap your knuckles if you don't keep your fingers arched. But, I had good finger technique and so on, and I took lessons from her for six years. I can't remember when I stopped, but it must have been in junior high school. Well, fourth through eighth is only four years. Maybe I started in third grade.

Well, at any rate, I had taken six years of piano lessons and had gotten to a point where I could sight-read pretty well, and did enjoy it. I wasn't going to win any competitions or anything like that, but I do recall my music teacher, piano teacher needed to get accredited and so I had to perform before the Michigan State music faculty judging her ability to teach by playing pieces over at the campus. So, music eventually became important to me, and later on, interestingly, well Jim Hillier [of RCA], in fact, was one of the guys that was chatting about it. A great many of the inventors in the National Inventor's Hall of Fame also are very musically inclined. There is an affinity between science and musical arts for whatever reason. At any rate, that certainly came home to me later on. Another thing that I should mention, growing up, again my dad was —, "invent something. Don't buy it, make it." And, he could think of all sorts of ways to make money. And so, I was constantly challenged to try out some of these things.

One of the things that he had done early on was to reclaim silver from photographic solution. Back in the days lots of film — silver had precipitates coming out of the film processing and before you put electrochemical cells in the tank to automatically reclaim the silver, they were flushing all sorts of silver down the drain at the processing laboratories. My dad had this notion that if you picked this stuff up, in particular from x-rays, big plates, there was a lot of silver to be had. I'm sure it was the Depression mindset that trained him to this sort of thing. He had done some reclaiming of silver from photographic solutions. I remember then going around with him to pick up the "hypo" (sodium thiosulphate) solutions from, in particular, the tuberculosis sanitarium that existed in East Lansing or Lansing at the time. We had built a big box and lined it with plastic and we'd go with pails and pick up the hypo solutions from the sanitarium, carry it to this tank in the trunk of the car. Corrosive stuff. Then we'd go home. We have a cover on it but it always had sloshed out and so there were rust holes in the trunk of our car. But then you'd pass it through steel wool and you'd get a chemical replacement reaction taking place of silver. It takes the place of the iron in the steel wool, and you get silver wool.

Lassman: How much did you accumulate?

Keck: Well, as I was growing up, he had done this for a period and then had stopped. I guess I must have been in high school. And he encouraged me: "You need spending money, right? So, why don't you try this?" So, I learned all about this. I remember going out to a junkyard and I got a big bathtub, an old bathtub, and brought it down in the basement. A steel, porcelain-lined bathtub. And I caulked up the outlets with tar, I think. At any rate, something that wouldn't leak. And then I went over to Michigan State. There was one place on campus that had processing of film. Many other places already had these cells, the TB sanitarium had long since ceased to exist. It wasn't needed anymore. I did the same thing he did. I went and got buckets of hypo solution, brought it back, poured it in the bathtub, and then I had a whole bunch of test tubes that I'd pack full of steel wool, and had a serpentine path. It was fun to watch the silver gradually replace the steel wool. You can see it migrate through these tubes. As it was getting the last one, why I'd stop the things and take the first ones out and dump the silver sludge out and replace it. I eventually got about $70 back.

Lassman: That's a lot of money.

Keck: Selling the silver wool to Goldsmith in Chicago. Don't ask me why I remember that name. He was a metal refiner in the Chicago area that we sent the stuff to.

Lassman:Well, in the fifties, $70 is a good hunk of change.

Keck:We got a lot of change back. I could fill up the tank, and gasoline was — I think when I got my driver's license, gas was eighteen cents a gallon.

Lassman:Far cry from today.

Keck:Just a little bit. Just a little bit. So, I learned a little bit of chemistry as I was growing up. What else did I do? Well, yes, the transistor was around.

Lassman:Well, you had mentioned when you were on the AV Club; you were interested in extracurricular activities with the AV?

Keck:Yes. Yes. Yes. Yes.

Lassman:Things and so on.

Keck:Yeah. Audiovisual. And then, I didn't want to act on stage, but they needed a stage manager. So, I became the stage manager and created the sets and the lighting for all the plays. I think I started doing that as a sophomore, and understudy to one of the seniors at the time. And, I took over. I remember one, we needed a spotlight for one of the plays. Didn't have a spotlight in those days. So, I got a slide projector and made a little hole the right size in a piece of cardboard, and put in the slide projector and ran it across and it made a nice white spot on the stage, that I could illuminate the particular individual that we needed to highlight. And, we needed to dim the lights. And so we went over to Michigan State — and I'll come back to why a little later on — and got a big variac from the physics department.

Lassman:I'm sorry?

Keck:A variac. A variable transformer.

Lassman:Oh. Okay.

Keck:That would handle the amperage that I had on the stage lights. So, instead of flicking them off why I could actually dim them.

Lassman:Oh. I see. Yeah.

Keck:And, so again ...

Lassman:More of the mechanical ingenuity?

Keck:Well, the creativity.

Lassman:Comes out?

Keck:And the innovation. It was the part that I remember.

Lassman>You mentioned with the, when you were talking about your peer groups, others, in East Lansing. Ultimately, I take it there was a heavy auto, was there an automobile presence there.

Keck:Yeah. Yeah.

Lassman:I mean, primary manufacturing?

Keck:Yeah. Of course, Olds started in Lansing. R.E. Olds, his house we used to, now it's a museum, and we'd visit it, and I remember visiting it. So, that was, that was big. We didn't have any science museums at the time. Now, now they've, what the physics faculty at Michigan State had a large hand in creating a science museum in the Lansing area.

Lassman:I want to get a sense of where the graduates of the high school were going? Were they going to work in local industry? Was there a group like you that was planning to go to college?

Keck:Yes.

Lassman:What was that?

Keck:Very much so. There were two tracks. There was a college track and the vocational track. A couple of the fellows were growing up on family farms, and they later took over the family farm. They probably made more money than all of us put together by selling the family farm. And, it was right at the outskirts of a growing metropolitan area. It got to be very valuable countryside. Dick Dickinson had a family farm. Ron Unruh[981] who married a a cousin of mine had a farm. Bob Cooper, my catcher on the baseball team, grew up on a farm. But, the college track, Roger Shawl got a masters degree. No. He got his doctorate in civil engineering, and eventually worked his way up through, I think he wound up at NSF, eventually, in some director-level position. The class valedictorian, who wasn't in science, but very industry politics-oriented, Ted Warner. I just learned, when he called me up a few days ago after learning I was the so-called father of fiber optics, that he had spent the last six or seven years with the Clinton Administration as Assistant Secretary of Defense. So, he had certainly made it big. And, I'll be honest with you, I don't know where the rest of the class has gone.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck: We were not a very well connected class.

Lassman: When you were preparing to graduate in 1958 what were your thoughts about post-secondary education?

Keck: There was no question I was going to go to college. The question was where? When I was born, there was an uncle, Uncle Lute, a bachelor uncle that had taken out a savings bond, a $1,000 savings bond in my name. I always knew I had the money to go to college. But, we certainly didn't have the money to send me anywhere. My dad had done okay, and we were probably in the upper middle class, but we weren't making the money my dad and mother were making while, as I said, was a housewife and did lots of volunteer things after I had graduated. She never, never went back to teaching school. But, you know, we didn't have the money to send me to an Ivy League school, or anything like that, and frankly, it never crossed my mind.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: MSU, I was a quarter mile east of the campus. It was the street I grew up on. Michigan State had become such a part of life. When I was a Boy Scout, we got to usher at the football games. I had this silver reclaiming business with the school, with one of the departments there. And, this professor, C.D. Hawes that had taken my dad's place at Michigan State, was still in the physics department, and our families became very close friends. The guy had taken my dad's place, and my dad, mother, and they became fast friends. I'll fill you in more on that later on. I grew up with his [C.D. Hause's] son. We were about the same age. Jerry was a little older than I was. But, growing up we both had cottages on the same lake up in the middle of Michigan. So, summers we were up at the lake all the time swimming, and boating, and this, that, and the other thing. Both of us got into boats. My dad loved to fish. Duane Hawes, C.D. Hawes, loved to fish. So, they went out fishing, and Jerry and I went frog hunting, turtle catching, swimming, and eventually water skiing. That became a big part of my life. I had saved — I had a paper route. I guess I had that probably freshman, sophomore, and junior year. I think I gave it up my senior year. But, that gave me enough money. And with the money I earned from that I could afford to buy an outboard motor.

My dad bought a boat that I could put a large outboard motor on. So, I had a little twelve-foot boat with a 25-horse power engine on it. Moved pretty well for its time. And I, Jerry and I grew up water skiing. And, he had a boat. He loved woodworking. He had a beautiful wooden boat. At any rate, much to my dad's chagrin, we learned how to water-ski instead of fish. And, later on, as a junior in high school, we went down to the Grand River in Lansing and started water skiing. My high school buddies, Roger Shawl, and Don Harvey, John Haga, those four were the main ones. Alan became a schoolteacher. I don't know whether he specialized in anything scientific. But, we were all pretty good at math, and kind of prowled around a lot together. They were from the rural side of the tracks. And Ted Warner, and Chuck Sauer, and Case Hoonhout[1096], they were from the other side. The "haves" side of the tracks. And, they were all good in math. So, we were in this math class together, and so on. Oh gosh that was one that I remember, when I was eighteen. We had a substitute for Mrs. Kelly. Mrs. Kelly we, she was a good teacher, but we really misused her.

Lassman: That's fine. Go ahead.

Keck: I can't remember the substitute's name, but he was an old fellow, balding, short, and he was an excellent substitute teacher. He collared us boys and captivated us, when Mrs. Kelly was out sick for something. I remember one of the first views of physics I had was from this guy. We must have been sophomores, I guess. Somebody was goading him. I don't know the context now in which he said it, but he had the kid come up to the front of the class, and he said, "I bet I can push as hard as you can," or something to that effect. He put his hand up, and encouraged the kid to put his hand out. And he said, now push. And he pulled his hand back, and the kid went down. And somehow, he wove it into Newton's law. The reaction doesn't equal the opposite reaction. For some reason that stuck in my brain too. But there are two more stories I wanted to get in. Mr. Walbridge...

Lassman: This is the physics teacher?

Keck: This is the physics, chemistry teacher. The normal regimen was you took chemistry in your junior year and physics in your senior year. I'd had him for chemistry, and enjoyed it. But gosh. We were cutups. I remember in one chemistry class — oh gosh, what was it? Well, there was one kid in class that just, well he was very naive, and we were always playing pranks on the poor kid — Jerry Largent. He was all there, but he just wasn't swift. And so, in chemistry class we had it rigged up. We told him before class that when we give him the signal he was to turn on the water. And, we had a hose hooked up that was going to go into somebody's lap down the way. When he turned on the water, of course, the hose was stacked [Laugh] in his lap. Anyway, so this happened in Mr. Walbridge's class. He knew something was going on. He didn't know exactly what we'd done, but he eventually found out and let us get away with it. I always liked Mr. Walbridge.

Lassman: In the physics class that he taught, I'm curious about the content? Granted this was in high school but was he introducing you to some of the latest developments in physics.

Keck: No. Pretty fundamental. When I say fundamental, pretty routine sorts of physics.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: Mechanics, motion of bodies, friction. Those sorts of things. We must have gotten into light at some point, but I'll be honest with you, I don't remember it in high school. I remember doing the inclined plane experiments with blocks of wood, and things like that, and enjoying it, and being fascinated by it. Mr. Walbridge was, again, he was eclectic. Somehow, he played baseball too, and I remember him coming out, the senior year, I was pitching, and he showed me how to get more whip in my throwing motion. He was an interesting fellow. He lost his wife while we were in school, from cancer, I think, but I'm not sure. He had a beautiful baritone voice, and I wound up accompanying him in a number of assemblies. He would sing the National Anthem, or the Lord's Prayer, depending on what the thing was. But, the one that stands out in my mind, I remember — I hadn't studied the theory of music. My teacher, I'm sure, had given it to me, but I hadn't paid a lot of attention to the theory, and I lament that to this day. I was more into the mechanics of the music, and sounds, and things like that. And, I remember, for some reason or other, I found it easier to play sharps than flats, and Mr. Walbridge gave me the Lord's Prayer music. I think it was in four flats, and I transposed it to three sharps. Well, of course this moved it up a note. And, I remember him straining to hit the high note. And, he came over to me and asked later on. And then he understood what I had done. But, I didn't give it a thought that he might have trouble hitting the note. But, that one sticks out in my mind. The other thing that I remember in building things; we talked about the transistor, and there were all sorts of circuits that were out and around, things that you could build using the transistor. The notion — the transistors that first came out was Raytheon CK721, 722, 723.

Lassman: These were transistors you could buy?

Keck: Yeah, you could buy. Had three wires coming out the bottom, and a little thing the size of your little finger, with the active element. We were burning out several of them before you learned how to hook the things up. But, people would publish circuits that you could build using a transistor. I'm sure the organ was one of those. You saw a circuit someplace and then went down to the shop and put it together. We had old speakers laying around, and so I could build the thing. But, one of the things that they built was a bi-stable oscillator-type thing where you put in one of the base legs and it would flip one way and allow current to go through this leg. Or, if you put the opposite polarity on, why, it would flip the other way. It would latch one way or the other depending upon how you biased the base of the transistor. So my dad wound up using it in one of the, in designing one of the earth resistivity instruments. We needed to take the DC batteries that we took out in the field and get an AC signal to put power to the electrodes in the earth resistivity instrument. He had experimented and played with a smaller vibrator, bi-stable oscillator-type thing. I said, "You know, I could make a tachometer out of that." And, by this time, I must have had my outboard motor. And then I was wondering how I could get a tachometer on my outboard motor. I had put this transistor circuit together. I remember, in fact, I made a plastic box to put it in, and went down to "Plastics Manufacturing," and I had watched them making pieces, gluing them together with the methylene chloride.

Lassman: This was a private company?

Keck: Private company from whom we bought plastic parts and pieces that we used in the resistivity instruments that I was building for my dad. I just watched how they did some of the things, and then built myself a little box about, three inches square, and two or three inches deep. And, I put my model vibrator bi-stable oscillator circuit in there, and had a meter on it. I just hooked it up to the spark plug and pulled off an impulse, and had this, these transistors flopping back and forth, and giving rise to a voltage that could dictate a reading on a meter. I built a tachometer. I always thought that was one of the neater things that I had done. Other things that we did, a neighbor boy — rocketry was just starting to come into vogue. My dad had, during the war, he would go over to the Library of Congress. He was down in Washington by himself. My mother and I stayed in East Lansing. He would go back periodically and consult with the Naval Ordnance Lab.

Lassman: This was during the war?

Keck: This was after the war — WW II.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: Yes, I misspoke. And, he'd go over to the Library of Congress and read in the evenings after work. He didn't have anything else to do in the city of Washington. I remember one of the things he brought back was the formula for gunpowder. We fixed up some gunpowder; I don't know now what I did, but later on, I was probably in high school, maybe a senior, and the kid next door had gotten a rocket somewhere. And, rocketry — '58, Sputnik. He had this toy rocket. I don't know how he knew that I knew how to make gunpowder, but we mixed up some gunpowder. Boy, we could have blown the house apart. Didn't have to worry about OSHA [Occupational Safety & Health Administration], and any of that stuff. At any rate, this, we put it in the rocket and we had a couple of wires and touched it off, and up the rocket went, two or three hundred feet in the air.

Lassman: When you were in high school, at this time, what are you doing during the summers, in between?

Keck: Generally worked for my dad. In the company.

Lassman: Okay. I see.

Keck: And then weekends we'd go up to the lake. Water-skiing. Starting my junior year, in Lansing, there was a dammed up section of the Grand River, and they had a boat launch, public boat launch. There was a boat club there, Lansing Boat Club. The river was not used at all. It wasn't polluted. It was brown. The water wasn't clear, or anything like that. And we never could figure that out. We kids started going down there in the summer, after work. I'd hitch my boat up and take it down, and we'd water ski on the Grand River. There was nobody else around. It was beautiful. You could go for miles up the river. And, I had my tachometer on the boat, of course. Well, at any rate, we met up with a couple of guys up the river that had a much bigger boat. They had twin seventy horsepower Mercury engines on the back of a catamaran. A "Powercat". They saw us water-skiing, and they started paling around with us, and of course, we had this big boat. So, we decided we'd start putting on water ski shows. We got pretty good at it. We had slalom people, and eventually we built pyramids. I usually climbed. I was one of the smaller guys so, Al Harvey and John Haga were the two bigger guys. And, they'd ski the bottom and I'd climb up to the top on the three-person pyramids. And later on, we got to the point where we got some girls involved. And, they'd climb up to the top and we would, I think we built a five-person pyramid. We tried to put a person three, three tiers high. Never could get one up there.

Lassman: That's pretty ambitious.

Keck: But, we continued that into graduate school; and college we were still going down there. Because Ruth would get on, my wife would get on my shoulders, and we'd ski around on a slalom ski with her sitting on my shoulders. And, eventually we got so we could ski without any skis. I could do that. We had a nice little water ski show that we'd put on for people on a Sunday afternoon. So that was one of the things we did in the summertime.

Lassman: In addition, you said, to working?

Keck: In addition to working.

Lassman: To working for your father?

Keck: A lot of —, the message in all of this is, to young kids is, you know, you can have a well-rounded career, and a well-rounded growing up experience, or whatever, and you don't have to specialize until at some later point. You can still have a very successful career. But, you're laying the seeds all the way along. This notion of building things rather than buying them, that we got from my grandfather, and from my father, and so on, were all, all important then later on with the things that I did as an industrial scientist. I remember my grandfather and me built a hay rake. He came up with the idea. We tore apart an old, I don't know, you've seen the great curved tines that they used to have on hay rakes?

Lassman: I can't say as I have.

Keck: Obviously not.

Lassman: But, I'll take your word for it.

Keck: Well, he knew of a fellow up in the rural outskirts of Lansing, an old family friend, who had a rusty old hay rake. We went out and got these long curved tines that had a spring on them. We brought that back. We built a hay rake. Let's see, I was probably in junior high school for this. We're not even through page...

Lassman: We're just at the top of page two [of the question list]. That's fine. We've got plenty of time. We get to the end of high school, you've decided to go to Michigan State, and you had this connection with Hawes, Professor Hawes in the physics department.

Keck:I really didn't connect with any professor during my undergraduate work.

Lassman:Did you start out knowing that you were going to major in physics?

Keck:No. I originally had signed up at Michigan State in electrical engineering. The transistor had obviously come out a couple of years ahead. It looked like there was going to be lots of jobs in semiconductor activities.

Lassman:You're thinking about this already, as a freshman?

Keck:Well, in high school we had a guidance counselor, Mrs. Lamb, Thelma Lamb. Had all the seniors go through a career course where we looked at all sorts of different careers, and the term paper was you had to pick the career and explain why you wanted to go into it, and things like that. And, we didn't get too specific. Engineering was the one that I think I wrote on, as I recall. As I sort of had in mind that engineering was the direction that I was going to go, as opposed to straight science in physics.

Lassman:Is this the term paper you wrote on the transistor?

Keck:Different course, different term paper. It was just one on career guidance, and so on. The reason I was laughing at Thelma Lamb; because I was not doing particularly a stellar job of my high school career, and as I say graduated in the middle of my high school class of only fifty-eight, I remember my folks later on telling me that during one of the parent-guidance teacher conferences, Thelma Lamb had told them that Don had better start looking at a vocational education, that he wasn't going to be a professional, that he just didn't look like he could make it in any professional occupation.

Lassman:Interesting.

Keck:They didn't tell me this until much later in my life. So, at any rate, I was accepted at Michigan State in spite of my mediocre grades. My kids did all sorts of studies of different schools, and what's the best school. And, you know, they knew the rankings. I don't remember any of that.

Lassman:And, was that typical among your peers?

Keck:I think. Yes. You didn't know that much about the world. You were much more regional in your focus. Well, remember, that from my parents' generation, they didn't move more than twenty-five miles from where they grew up for the most part. My mother grew up twenty miles from Grand Ledge where she was born. And, my dad, a little bit better, he got out of Detroit and came up to East Lansing, so regionalism was much more the norm. I remember somewhere along the line thinking to myself that now I was going to be a citizen of the world, and not stay in the home area. I honestly don't know about the rest of my classmates, how many of them are still in the Lansing area, and how many of them left. I've cited two examples. I do know that people left and did very, very well in very high places.

Lassman:When you entered as a...

Keck:Go ahead.

Lassman:When you entered as an electrical engineering student...

Keck:Well, actually...

Lassman:As an engineer.

Keck:I submitted my application as an electrical engineer. Somewhere along before the first class my dad and I had a talk. I don't remember specifically the things that were said, but he counseled that a physics education would give me much more breadth and an ability to go in any of a number of directions, whereas electrical engineering would be very, very specific. His council was to get the broader physics education. And, I don't remember now whether it was before I actually started the first class that I wrote to Michigan State and asked to change majors. Or whether it was when I first entered. But, I changed my major to physics very, very early on, at that juncture. In some sense, it didn't matter. The first two years were pre-programmed. I mean, you took a set of broad, broadly based courses in sociology, social science, communications skills, writing, speaking, natural science was required of all the, all the students. What in the heck was the fourth one? There are four base courses. Oh math, of course. And then some general math course.

Lassman:Were there any language requirements?

Keck:No. I had taken two years of Latin in high school. For the most part, I don't remember a thing about Latin. It was supposed to have helped me greatly in grammar, but in high school, I really wasn't paying a whole lot of attention, frankly. Now I do lament that, that whole, well, period. I did not cover myself with any kind of glory in high school and wished, in retrospect, that I'd studied more. For some reason or another, in college, that notion got out of my system. I don't know what it was that caused me to change my outlook, but I realized I had to do better. And, I remember vividly the middle of the term of your freshman year, the principal of the high school came over to school, to college, and got a number of the school graduates, the Okemos high school graduates that were at Michigan State, together, and just was asking us questions about how we were prepared. At the time, we had our midterm grades. My grades were higher than any of my high school colleagues. And, the principal of the high school was absolutely flabbergasted, Mr. Harrison. At any rate, so from almost day one in college I changed my way of thinking, and began to study harder and do better.

Lassman: In the physics department, were you taking engineering courses along the way?

Keck: No. I moved into a full-blown physics curriculum. You took sophomore physics, the general physics course, and I remember that — no I take it back. It was later on. Alfred Leitner was the fellow that taught the sophomore physics class. And, he was good. He loved to teach. Alfred Leitner.

Lassman: You took physics during freshman year also?

Keck: No. The regimen was, you took, sort of like high school. You took chemistry in your freshman year, and then physics was reserved for your second year.

Lassman: Got it.

Keck: So that you had your calculus math class in your freshman year. Took physics in the sophomore year.

Lassman: In high school, then, how much math did you have in high school? How far did you go?

Keck: In those days we didn't do calculus. We had algebra I and II your freshman and sophomore years. Trigonometry was the junior year. And then geometry, I think, was the senior year, or vice versa. I don't remember now.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: We had not gone into any calculus in those days. So, the first calculus I had was in college. That was a rude awakening for me. I did not do well in college math, even though I'd done well in high school math. Actually, later on [I] realized that I learned most of the math that I know in my physics class, not in the mathematics class. The mathematics at Michigan State, at the time they prided themselves as being the epitome of mathematicians, and so it was an esoteric mathematics — the only word I can think of to describe it. The practicalities of it were just not that forthcoming, in the calculus and advanced calculus. I think the differential equations class that I had; that was good. That was, got very practical, but Professor Lehrer wrote the book, in fact, and did a nice job of it. But, most of the later math that I learned was done in the, later on in the physics classes, quantum physics, or whatever.

Lassman: What was it about that that made it easier for you to pick it up? Learning it in that physics context as opposed to the mathematics department?

Keck: I heard a term used a few years ago at a National Academy of Engineering discussion of education in the sciences and math. They called it metacognitive learning. The gist of it was that if it's something out of your experience base that you're learning, hearing something and relating it to, you learn it much better, and in a longer lasting form. The only explanation I can give you was that the physics was talking about real-world problems and things like that. I could relate to it and get a handle on it as opposed to just doing some mathematical manipulation or operation, or prove, you know, some proof or what have you. At any rate, I still would argue that I learned most of my mathematics in my physics classes, not in any of the math classes that Michigan State taught, anyway.

Lassman: So, you've taken me up through your sophomore year.

Keck: Yes. That Fred Leitner really turned me on to physics in that class. He was just an excellent teacher, and made it fun. The sophomore physics experiments that he ran, just masterfully, masterfully done. He was an old German, heavy German accent. But, he was my first experience with the physics department. Later on, to my chagrin, when I got into the meat of the physics course and physics department, I learned that the head of the physics department at the time was pressuring Leitner. Fred wanted to be a good teacher, and the physics department at the time was pushing for him to become a research scientist. They wanted a heavy research base. They wanted people doing work outside of the teaching; that you weren't to be known simply as a good teacher. You had to be known as a knowledgeable and reputable — not reputable, but a well-known scientist in your own right by publishing learned works and things like that.

Lassman: Had that not been the case in the physics department?

Keck: I can't give you a whole lot of history on that, but clearly, for this tenure of Sherwood Haines — I mean he had a long tenure.

Lassman: He was the chairman?

Keck: He was chairman of the physics and astronomy department. Clearly he was moving the department to be a much more research-oriented department as opposed to someone, somebody that was content with good science teaching. And, that always bothered me, because I thought you had to have a balance. Leitner was good at it, and wanted to be known as a teacher of young minds. Later on, it turned out, he made some NSF films on superconductivity, and so that was his research. He was still teaching, but he brought money into the department doing NSF grants to film, do these teaching films on superconductivity. But, he eventually left Michigan State, and he had a profound impact on me later on. As a matter of fact, and went to West Point. I don't believe he's still there. He may not be alive any longer but he had left.

Lassman: Talking about your instructors, generationally was this a younger group or an older group?

Keck: Ah, good question.

Lassman: In the physics department.

Keck: A mix. Fairly balanced. Leitner was probably one of the older ones, and then we had some younger ones. One terrible one that taught an electronics course that just could not teach. But, yes, the older ones knew their way around and clearly, they were the ones from whom you learned — from whom I learned the most. But, they had a number of young ones. Well no, I guess I can't say that. Julius Kovaks was fairly new in the department, and he taught quantum mechanics. He was a fairly recent acquisition. They had done a little bit of hiring and gotten a couple of younger people, but by in large it was a middle to later career type physics department.

Lassman: Was there a connection with the engineering departments?

Keck: No.

Lassman: As an undergraduate?

Keck: The College of Natural Science and the College of Engineering could have been on two separate campuses for all the connection there was. Although, well I shouldn't say that. The engineers had to come over and take sophomore physics.

Lassman: Okay. That's what I was going to ask.

Keck: So, yes. The College of Natural Science provided a service to the university by teaching that course. I remember my dad, I guess, trying to instill in me a good feeling toward physics and science, and said that when he taught the sophomore physics course, if you remember that, he had any number of medical, premed students that were taking the course and they just couldn't hack it and couldn't understand it. He was always holding the physicists at a higher plateau than some of the people who later took care of our good health. But, I mean obviously we know now that you need all kinds, and there are other types of learning and the ability to store and so on.

Lassman: Let me go back just for a second. You mentioned your father, again. When he was teaching there in the '20s, did he had an active research program also, or was it just teaching?

Keck: The only reason I'm hesitating, Tom, is that he told me about one experiment he ran one day, about putting a beaker of water at the focal point of a paraboloid out in the sun and watching it to see it boil. And, it didn't. And, we added some India ink to the water, and it boiled instantaneously from the increased absorbed energy, and splattered India ink all over him. I think the true answer is that Michigan State probably didn't have a research component in those days.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: It was not a research university; other than just from curiosity of the professors in trying various and sundry things to demonstrate for classes. I think that's the context in which the India ink experiment was tried. He was trying to find, something he would show in a lecture model demonstration as to focus.

Lassman: Getting back to the curriculum that you were taking. At what point do you start getting exposed to some of the newer advances in physics — you mentioned there was someone there who taught quantum mechanics? I'd like to get a little more information to your first exposure to the frontiers of physics, if you're getting that at this point in your education. And, also, again, what kinds of textbooks are you using?

Keck: Well, the textbook that we used in sophomore physics was Sears and Zemansky.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: Red book.

Lassman: Was that a commonly used book?

Keck: I believe that was probably, at the time, the most widely used sophomore text around the nation. Now, I may be wrong on that. I always lamented, by the time I was in graduate school, or freshman, or first-year graduate school, Halliday and Resnick ...

Lassman: That's the textbook I used in ...

Keck: Came into being, and it was so infinitely better than Sears and Zemansky.

Keck: So, this would have been '63.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: And, how long it had been out, I don't know. But, I can look it up and find a copy. I probably still have the text. Cutting-edge science.

Lassman: And, I'd be interested to know what courses you were.

Keck: Well, the general regimen was that in your junior year, for the majors, you took mechanics, you took electricity, and magnetism, as I recall, and a math class, probably differential equations. And I, others of my friends, Roger Shawl for example, took a lot more electives than I did. I tended to take more of the offerings in the physics department itself. My electives were, physics — astronomy was an elective course for me. It was only a one-credit course that was taught by the physics department. So, you got kind of the old-style physics, the mechanics, the electricity and magnetism in your junior year, and then modern physics, I think was what it was called, and optics were in your senior year. Usually, that was the sequence that people took. And what else? What else did we take? I guess solid-state physics was in one of those. They would have been more on the cutting edge. There was an electronics course that I said this one terrible young professor taught. His name escapes me now. Frank Blatt taught solid-state physics, and he was an experimentalist, and he could not teach solid-state physics to save his soul. But solid-state physics was kind of just beginning, with the transistor beginning to be one of the mainstream courses. I guess you would say it was on the cutting edge.

Lassman: Okay. I see.

Keck: Fermi surfaces and that sort of thing. Paul Parker taught modern physics, he taught the Schrodinger equation, and the Bohr theory of the atom, and that sort of thing in the modern physics course.

Lassman: Is it called modern physics, or...

Keck: I think it was called modern physics. I'll have to go down and look. I don't remember. A thin book. Solid-state — what did we use? I think we used Blatt's notes. He was an arrogant guy, full professor, and I think he just gave us mimeographed notes.

Lassman: You didn't have a textbook?

Keck: I don't remember in undergraduate having a textbook. In graduate solid-state — what's the famous solid-state textbook?

Lassman: Kittel?

Keck: That's it.

Lassman: Charles Kittel?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: Oh my, now I don't remember. You're taxing me. I'm going to have to go down and pull out my transcript somehow or another, assuming I can find them. But, there must have been some sort of a quantum mechanics course too, but it was taught from, it was probably taught from a wave into things. Well, no, it must have been — Jim Gordon was the teacher. And, I can't remember whether we had that in my senior year or whether it was first year in undergraduate school.

Lassman: He taught quantum mechanics?

Keck: Well, I don't know that it was called quantum mechanics. Now, what would it have been called in...? My first exposure to the Schrodinger equation. And he was a magnificent lecturer, worked over at the cyclotron. He was hired — Michigan State, I guess about the time I was an undergraduate, began the building of the cyclotron, and a lot of my colleagues in the physics department worked over at the cyclotron for extra money.

Lassman: This was as — colleagues? As an undergraduate?

Keck: Yes. And I didn't. In fact, I didn't work at all. Well, I was still working, as an undergraduate, with my dad's company, any time that I had. That was how I was getting the money and doing all these things. Well, I can't remember on Jim Gordon. I'll have to think more about it. But, he was a magnificent teacher, and he was blind. Or, legally blind. He wore very thick glasses and probably could see, you know, shapes and that sort of thing. But, just had a magnificent penmanship and you would see him feeling his way along the board to find where to put the — but, he did a magnificent job. So, that was my first exposure to the new wave particle reality sorts of notions that were — I guess that while I'm here, no, they weren't on the cutting edge, by any means, at that time. [NAME 615] and all those who done their work in the mid-twenties and so on. But, the implication was that it was still believing, thinking at the time in physics.

Lassman: Well, when you think about that, your undergraduate curriculum, would you say that there was an emphasis more on the experimental side versus the theoretical side? Maybe that's a different way to put the question?

Keck: No, it would definitely have been more on the theoretical side.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: Well, I mean, the classic experiments were described and taught, Michael C. Morley, and so on. Paul Parker, who taught the modern physics class, I'm sure he brought in examples of that. And, Goudsmit, with the electron spin. So why would I say it's more theoretical? Well, I mean, just because, you know, you've got to learn that, that set of mathematics associated with understanding how the world works, and so on. You were learning more — well, that's when I learned my mathematics, is in those undergraduate courses. Far more so than in the math classes. So, eventually I graduated, as an undergraduate, with honor.

Lassman: In '62?

Keck: In '62. And, the graduate record exam was just starting to come into being, I think.

Lassman: Let me backtrack just for a second.

Keck: Go ahead.

Lassman: Just when you were getting ready to graduate, what were your thoughts about a career?

Keck: Oh, there was no question I knew I was going on to graduate school.

Lassman: What was the thinking there?

Keck: I'm sure I told people privately that in contrast to my engineering friends, Roger Shawl in particular who could, who had been schooled to be able to do something useful from the get go, I didn't think my physics education positioned me to do much of anything. And, that I just had to go on and take the next step in that education. Now, knowing absolutely nothing about industrial corporations and how so much of the training is on the job, and learning that you had the sufficient base to do more than you thought you could. But clearly, in my mind, I hadn't learned as much as I needed to learn. Not as much as I thought I needed to learn.

Lassman: What, what are your peers doing, when they're graduating? Are they going on to graduate school at MSU, or different universities, or are they moving into industry? I just want to get a sense of what the class, what your class is doing, or if there are trends there? If what you're doing is different?

Keck: Well, two of my closest associates, or friends in undergraduate didn't go on. One of them took a job with Goodyear Aerospace. The other one went on to get an MBA, Probably made more money than I have. What did Marti Schwarzman do? I don't know, but she was having a rough time of it, so she, my guess is she didn't go on. I don't even remember now. I think we had twenty physics graduates.

Lassman: Was the undergraduate program small?

Keck: I mean, I looked at it, you know, your sophomore class was 200 strong, and a huge lecture hall, and I don't think I knew what was going on in those days. And, here I thought most of these were physics people. Well, they're obviously not. They're engineers and premed and all sorts of stuff. So, our modern physics class, which slowly began to, the beginning of my senior year, we began to gel and know the people around us, there was probably only twenty or twenty-five people. Well, I would wager that it was probably half and half, that half would go on and half didn't.

Lassman: Half would go on to graduate school?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: That's what I mean. But that's purely a guess.

Lassman: As an undergraduate, when you're getting ready to finish, are you being encouraged by faculty members, to go on to graduate school? Are they preparing students for careers in teaching and research?

Keck: I'd have to say that the counseling that I got as an undergraduate was not all that great, that the physics — I can't even tell you today — I think Bill Kelly was my, was supposed to be my academic advisor. And, I don't recall that he ever gave me very good advice. I think most everything that I did was much more as a result of interactions with my father than it was with any of the faculty at school.

Lassman: What was Kelly's background?

Keck: I want to say high-energy nuclear. Having said that, that may not be right. It's probably medium-energy nuclear. It was nuclear physics, and he would have been at Michigan State for three or four years. Lassman: So, he was one of the young...?

Keck: He was younger faculty, and therefore probably hadn't yet gelled and what mentorship, what you had to give to young students.

Lassman: Were there any other faculty members who filled that role?

Keck: Well, I don't remember any of them encouraging me particularly to go on to graduate school. I remember Paul Parker, who taught modern physics, and later he was associated with my graduate group, I remember, vividly, sitting in his modern physics class — and he was another one of those excellent teachers who just made things very interesting, little anecdotes, or the way he said things, or the way he presented it — and I'd sit in his class and envision myself teaching. I fancied that I could, I could do what he was doing, someday. But he was just impressive, and yet not arrogant, and you could readily relate to him as being someone that you'd want to emulate. But, I don't remember any counsel to go on to graduate school. As I said, the graduate record exam, I think it was just being, or just coming out, or coming into being, or maybe I was just naive and it was the first time that Michigan State administered it. But, they gave it to us as juniors. I remember taking it then, and doing not well. Then I think I took it as a senior. A 95th percentile sticks in my mind.

I don't remember the top scale, but I think it was in the high percentiles. So clearly, I had learned a lot more physics by the time I graduated than I knew as a junior. Obviously not too surprising. But they wanted us to take it anyway, as a junior, so they could begin getting some benchmarks and benchlines, and there was something associated with the department that they were encouraging us to take that. But the other part that I remember, Sherwood Haines, I mentioned him as the chair of the department, and he was your, well I held him up as the epitome of the arrogant physicist. Every conversation it was about physics, and always trying to show how learned he was, and so on. I never, for some reason or another, that never dissuaded me from wanting to be a physicist, I don't think I ever wanted to be the physicist that, you know, was the one that was the most quoted, or the most published, or that sort of thing, which was what he encouraged all the faculty to aspire to. As I say, he was definitely trying to upgrade the physics department, as I perceived it, to get on a national, to-be-recognized, scale.

Lassman: That might have had something to do with your decision maybe not to follow that track?

Keck: Possibly. But I just remember that working in the background. I don't remember...

Lassman: I don't want to put too much emphasis on it.

Keck: Necessarily being swayed by him, but I remember him as being someone that I didn't want to emulate.

Lassman: Okay. I see.

Keck: And Parker as being someone that I did.

Lassman: But before we jump forward, into the graduate experience, there are a couple of things I want to ask about. And one that, in particular, you mentioned, when we were talking about the curriculum, you took an optics course.

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: I want to ask a little bit more about that. First, to get a sense of what that course was, and what it is that you're learning, and also to see, is there then in the beginning, on your part of the development of an intellectual interest in this field, where you're beginning to go from the broad, generalization to actually where you're thinking a little bit more about, "Well, here's an area that I might be interested in." Specialized?

Keck: Yes. Absolutely.

Lassman: Tell me that story.

Keck: So, guess who the professor of optics is? C. D. Hause.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: Our family friend. And, I don't recall him as being — well, part of it was, there was so much baggage that came along with Duane Hawes. He was a wonderful individual and I don't mean to belittle him at all, but I knew he'd had a nervous breakdown. He had been chair of the department prior to Haines coming, and I suspect the stress and things just had gotten to him. And so, as a friend of the family we knew of that. Well, I just knew him too well. But, he taught a good optics course. He was not a great lecturer, but certainly adequate.

Lassman: Do you know what his background was, before he came to Michigan State?

Keck: I don't. I never looked back to see what his thesis was. He came to Michigan State and eventually created a molecular sciences group at Michigan State that he and Thomas Harvey Edwards, and Paul Parker, were principals. So, there's a molecular spectroscopy and molecular physics group at Michigan State that he had built over the years.

Lassman: And, do you know a rough time period when this is? That he would have been doing this?

Keck: Well, I was the next to the last graduate student that he had. And, he's probably had twenty. He was well along in his career at the time that he was my professor. So, I don't know. Well, as far as I knew his career was associated with infrared molecular spectroscopy. And he built a spectrometer, infrared spectrometer, from scratch, at school. And then I assume that while he was chair of the department he used that as a time to build up the group, and Parker came in as the theorist for the group. And, Harvey Edwards was the experimentalist. Hawes was much more of an experimentalist than he was a theorist.

Lassman: There was an active research program in this field?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: A long-standing, time period?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: Yes. So the optics course; typical optics, lenses, and we did lots of retracing, lots of early lens design. I remember him telling me that aspherics were not, he couldn't make them. Which, I found out after I got to Corning. But, he had told us that a Schmidt corrector, a 48-inch Schmidt corrector, with the aspheric profile of a telescope primary, could record better pictures than the 200-inch Palomar telescope. That was the benchmark. I do remember growing up being enamored with the 200-inch telescope. It was made in the mid to late '30s.

Lassman: Didn't Corning make the lens?

Keck: But, I remember reading a book or seeing something, about the making of the Palomar telescope. And that would have been in high school. So, that fascinated me. So the optics, we did lots of lenses and it bordered on the aspherics. The part that I enjoyed most was when we got into wave optics. And, Fabry-Perot interferometers, and Michaelson and began to do interferometry, and that, that aspect of optics, physical optics. No. Yeah. I don't know. What do we call that branch of optics anymore? Physical optics is the lenses, well now wave optics are.

Lassman: Did you also have connections to his research? This molecular research group, at all?

Keck: No.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: No. As an undergraduate I must have spent most of my time working with my dad. And, while I probably should have, I didn't do any of the work that my colleagues were doing. A lot of them had odd jobs, part-time jobs in the physics department there at Michigan State.

Lassman: During summers, are you going back and working for your father also?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: Just a few more questions on the undergraduate side? Extracurricular activities, things that you're doing?

Keck: As undergrad? We had a hockey team. An intramural hockey team that we, well we kids played pond hockey. I mentioned that we carved out this pond behind our house, and in the wintertime, it froze over, and it was just about the right size for a hockey rink. So, all my high school buddies, on a Sunday afternoon instead of watching the football games we'd be over there playing hockey. Went to Michigan State, and there were enough of us still there, around, that we had a team. And, oh, I vividly remember that first game. We signed up. Al Harvey found our way around and signed us up for an intramural game, and we learned we were supposed to appear at the hockey rink on such and such a time, and so on. And, the day before, Al came around and was making phone calls desperately saying, "Hey, I understand the guys that we're playing against have got pads and everything, and they raise the puck, and this is real hockey." And, we didn't have any pads, and we didn't have any gloves, or anything. So, we took pieces of cardboard, corrugated cardboard, and taped them to our shins and that was the only padding we had in these games. And, I don't remember whether we won or lost the first game, but we played and — oh good grief. I don't remember whether it was sophomore or junior year. We played for three years, and the team morphed over time as various of my colleagues would leave school and go to some other school, or do something else totally. And so it started out as high school buddies to begin with, and then by the time we, I guess we placed second. I don't think we won it. But one year out of twenty, thirty fraternity teams and everything, we placed second. And, that was the year that we were playing one of the games, some guy propped his stick in my mouth in order to be able to stand up, as he was falling down. So, my two front teeth are capped, as a result of hockey. We didn't have mouth guards or anything in those days. So, that was one extracurricular thing that I did.

Lassman: Were there things, as part of the university, too, that you did? Organizations?

Keck: Well, we started a physics club. The first physics club at Michigan State. Was it under the auspices of — I was going to say Sigma Pi Sigma, but I'm not sure that's right.

Lassman: That's the physics honorary?

Keck: Which eventually I was inducted into. I don't remember, now, the physics club. But, I remember we formed it, and I was elected president.

Lassman: What kinds of things did you do?

Keck: Not a whole heck of a lot. We had speakers come in.

Lassman: Speakers from...?

Keck: Well, it was a regular colloquia series that the university had. And so, the club would attend those.

Lassman: The university or the department?

Keck: The department. I'm Sorry.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: The physics department. And, I remember these were always, the epitome of learned lecturers, that you couldn't understand or, at least as an undergraduate you couldn't understand.

Lassman: And were you expected to attend these?

Keck: No. It was purely voluntary.

Lassman: And do you remember any of the...?

Keck: Notables? No.

Lassman: Okay. What encouraged you to set up this physics society?

Keck: I don't remember whose idea it was. It may have been Haines', Sherwood Haines'. But, he just thought it was something that students should be doing. One of the things we did, I think we held some sort of a session with new potential physics students, physics majors. We encouraged them, or told them what, being a physics major was like, and that sort of thing. So, I remember that. There was one presentation we had to make, and I don't remember now with what that was associated, some visiting group that the physics club was asked to make a presentation, and tell what we did, and so on. And I don't remember what I said. I just remember we had to do it. Obviously, it was not terribly memorable. The physics department didn't have a lot of — well, we eventually had a softball team. And, with my baseball background that put us in good stead. And one year we did, I think it was probably my senior year, we fielded a real good team because some fellow from, I had no idea where, asked us if he could practice with the team. It turned out he was a softball pitcher. And, the guy could throw a ball, a softball fast pitch, and make it just bounce around and do all sorts of things. Nobody else on the team could catch the guy except me. So, I wound up as his batting mate and we, by in large, would strike out the opposing team. It was just a question of us to get a run or two. And, so we did pretty well. So, those other things that I grew up with as a high school student carried with me. I still enjoyed that breadth of activities and the sports.

Lassman: Did you keep up with the piano?

Keck: I did. But, for my own enjoyment. I wasn't taking lessons anymore. And, I — there was a period after I stopped taking music lessons where I didn't do anything. And then one day, I just started playing for a matter of enjoyment, and began to pick up more and more pieces of music and learn pieces that I heard on the radio, or heard at a concert, or something like that. So, eventually playing Chopin and things like that from the classical age. But the lament that I had was my buddy Rog Shawl, from high school, could play by ear. Never took a music lesson in his life, and he could play any pop tune that came along. And, so all the girls at all the parties, why Rog was the center of attention. And, here I could play the classical repertoire to some degree. That didn't cut it. And, to this day, I still lament that I can't sit down and play in a cocktail setting at the piano. But, I did continue playing the piano in college and did eventually pick up some pop tunes. But, I play for my own enjoyment.

Lassman: Another question here. When does the future Mrs. Keck appear on the scene?

Keck: Graduate school.

Lassman: What's that story?

Keck: Well, it must have...?

Lassman: You had known each other, is that right?

Keck:No.

Lassman:You had mentioned the water skiing?

Keck:Well, yes, but we did that, we still were doing that in graduate school.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:And now, I'm going to have to ask her whether it was my freshman year, freshman graduate school year, or sophomore. I think it was my first year as a graduate student. And, it was about this time of year. And, my boat was still in the water up at a lake, in Lake Michigan. And, Roger Shawl, my high school buddy, must have been going on for his masters at Michigan State. So, he went on. Ted Warner eventually went on and got an advanced degree, and those are the only ones of my high school class that I know of that went on to graduate school besides myself. And Roger had this girl in whom he was intently interested and wanted an excuse to meet with her, because she was about to marry somebody else, and had been asked. And so, Roger said, "Could we double date, and go up?" I told him maybe this weekend I had to go up and get the boat. He said, "Oh fine. I know a, we'll get a date for you and we'll go up and get your boat." And, I didn't know anybody at that time that I thought of to date. And, Rog had met Ruth at some college gathering, I think associated, well I'm sure associated with the Lutheran Church in East Lansing. And somehow, Roger had gotten associated with — I don't think Jeannie was part of that. But at any rate, so Jeannie Niedermeier and Rog, and Ruth and I went up to pick up my boat. And that was my first date with Ruth, a blind date. And then we just kept dating from that point on, and eventually married in '65. This would have been '63.

Lassman:And so, what's her family background?

Keck:She came from, comes from the upper peninsula of Michigan. Her family is Finnish, one hundred percent. Maternal grandparents, I believe, came over from Finland. I'm sorry, paternal grandparents. Maternal grandparents were here. Grew up in a very, very small town of Ewen, Michigan in the Upper Peninsula. We often kid her that there are fifty people in town, if you count the dogs and the cats. And, she came down to Michigan State, and obviously, we met there.

Lassman:What was her field of study?

Keck:She was studying what they now call human ecology. Home economics was what it was called at the time. Her dad was a county extension agent who had graduated from Michigan State and liked the upper peninsula; had grown up there, and returned. And, basically was helping the farmers in that area make a living. Bringing the latest agricultural, and ways of running farm businesses to the people in that area. He did that until he retired. I can't tell you the year now. You'll have to ask Ruth.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:So, at any rate, Rog asked Jean to marry him on the way home in the back of our car. And, eventually she said yes, and they've been happily married ever since. And, Ruth and I eventually got married two and a half years later.

Lassman:Would you like to take a break? This might be a good place.

Lassman:Resuming on Tuesday afternoon. We were talking just briefly about the optical physics course you had taken. And then your completion of your undergraduate studies, and now moving into graduate school. You might have mentioned this before — oh, did you want to say something?

Keck:Well, I was just going to begin to tell you about the graduate school. And, I don't remember exactly how it came about. I hadn't done much in the way of thinking about a response to go to graduate school.

Lassman:That's what I was going to ask you, if you had?

Keck:But, one day Duane Hause, Professor Hause, came to me and said that if I wanted to continue with graduate studies that he had, he would give me a graduate assistantship in his molecular spectroscopy part of it. I didn't know that much about molecular spectroscopy. I had kind of liked all the stuff I was learning, quantum mechanics, associated atoms in the modern physics course, and things that I'd learned there. And, a number of, I mention MSU had a cyclotron that they, I think, had started building when I was an undergraduate, but then it continued into graduate school. And, they were the ones that had all the money in the physics department. High-energy physics was the rage and everybody that was going to be a real physicist was going into high-energy nuclear physics. And, Kelly was doing low-energy nuclear physics. That's really his department. My advisor that I had mentioned earlier. He was my undergraduate advisor.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:It just triggered with me that he was in low, low-energy nuclear physics. But the preponderance, the department was moving in the direction of high-energy or low-energy, in nuclear physics. And, Henry

Blosser had been hired to lead the cyclotron work at Michigan State. So, a lot was work in that direction. I knew I didn't really want to go in that direction. That hadn't appealed to me. We did a smattering of nuclear physics, I guess, in one of the undergraduate courses, and that just didn't turn me on. So, when Hawes offered me the assistantship — and he must have done it early in the year of my senior year, probably while I was taking his optics course. So, again, [we] didn't have any more money than we had when I went into undergraduate. So this seemed like a good offer and I didn't know anything better to do, so I continued my career at Michigan State and got both the masters and ultimately a PhD at Michigan State, working in the molecular spectroscopy group there with Hawes.

Lassman: Did you think at all about not continuing on in graduate school, of pursuing other career options?

Keck: No. As I said earlier, the notion I had coming out, as an undergraduate in physics was that I needed more training to be marketable. I'm sure out of naiveté, but, well I knew if, I had mentioned that I had envisioned myself as a physics teacher, a la Paul Parker, and what a role model he was, and knew that I couldn't teach if I didn't have a PhD. So, at that point I, there was no question I was going to go on to graduate school. And, my dad had a PhD and so it was just perfectly natural that I would continue on, continue on with the PhD.

Lassman: You mentioned there's the low and high-energy physics research going on at the cyclotron. Then there's Hause's group in molecular spectroscopy. Are there other fields that are going on?

Keck: Yes. There was work in low-temperature solid-state physics. There were a couple of professors doing that. Well, three. Jay Cowen, Frank Blatt, Bob Spence. Spence was doing nuclear magnetic resonance. Cowen was doing electron spin.

Lassman: That's relatively new at this point?

Keck: Yes. Spence would gradually build up a feeling for which ones of the professors were well known in the broader physics community. And Spence was kind of the old vanguard of the faculty. He was the most published in this new field of nuclear magnetic resonance, and had done some original work, and built up early capability in that area. Cowen was a fairly young professor, but very dynamic. My best friend in graduate school, George Johnston, worked for Cowen. And so, our groups were continually getting together, and he was doing low-temperature, electron spin. I've forgotten what Frank Blatt was doing. There was a group that was doing cryogenics. Leitner had started it. Leitner was still there during my graduate schooling. I guess he left Michigan State after I graduated. But, there was someone else that joined, and I can't tell you know who that was that was doing, again, low-temperature physics.

There was a group, Egon Hiedemann, in ultrasonics, that was at Michigan State. And, Hiedemann had a name from back in Germany or Austria, where he'd come, from whence he'd come. So, he was well published, and presumably nationally known in ultrasonics. Blosser was beginning to make a name for himself in the cyclotron circles. But, I think the general, my general impression of Michigan State — I confess I don't know whether I formed this after I had left and began to see more of the world, but was that it was ... Well, basically the status of Michigan State. But, as I say, I judged that it was really mediocre in the overall spectrum of places that were teaching physics. And, Haines, clearly, was trying to increase its stature. And, he hired Michael Harrison, and I believe he came out of the RCA laboratories. I mean, he was trying to get some of the industrial people back in to bring the latest techniques, technologies if you will. Harrison was in, he was a solid-state physicist.

But, Blosser's was really the group where they were adding people and high-energy nuclear physics, so all sorts of designers and mathematicians to calculate cyclotron orbits and shapes of pole faces for magnets, and very sophisticated stuff, chewed up tons of computer time, and really were the, well, the bulk of the department, both in students as well as faculty. And, we always kind of looked askance at them being in some of the other lesser fields, as they envisioned it, lesser fields of physics. But, at the end of the day, the training we got was perfectly adequate to get out and do a job in physics. And so, I'm, I really never lamented the fact that I, when I got to Corning, there were lots of MIT people, and people from Caltech. And some of the notable schools. But, I never really felt that I was ill prepared, or anything like that, coming out of Michigan State. Got kind of a good physics education grounding, and so on.

Lassman: In graduate school, this is in '62, you already mentioned that there's a very strong emphasis toward the nuclear physics. Do you come in with a large class of graduate students, a small class? How many are joining the spectroscopy group?

Keck: Well, not a lot because the spectroscopy group didn't have tons of money.

Lassman: Where did a lot of that money come from?

Keck: Largely NSF. Harvey Edwards had an Air Force — I think it was an Air Force contract? I was about to say Army contract, but I think it was Air Force. And, Hawes had an NSF. And, I think Harvey Edwards also had an NSF contract. But, these were not capable of supporting, you know, twenty or thirty graduate students. Our group was probably, at its maximum, I think there might have been six graduate students. Well, let's see, Hawes had three and — well, maybe seven. Maybe seven between Hawes and Edwards. Paul Parker, well I guess, yeah, if I include the theory side, maybe eight in the molecular group. But, the cyclotron would have twenty or thirty graduates.

Lassman: So, it was much bigger?

Keck: Yes. So my guess is that half of the students in our graduate class — you know it's interesting too, the graduate class almost seems to me to be larger than I recall the undergraduate class. And, hadn't thought of it until this day, but there were clearly, there must have been sixty or seventy graduate students. Our undergraduate class, I don't think, was that large. So, we were attracting people. They were all doing the cyclotron, in a brand new facility, and on the ground floor, and that sort of thing. Because clearly there were a goodly number of students who were in that area.

Lassman: When you were coming in, what were the big questions in spectroscopy and optics at this time, and what's the state of the field in relation to nuclear physics, solid-state?

Keck: Oh boy. The big questions?

Lassman: And, you can take that further into your graduate year too.

Keck: Well, D.H. Rank at Penn State had just published his calibration spectrum. He had done super careful measurements on hydrogen cyanide, and — what was the other material — carbon monoxide, as reference spectra to be used in the measurements in standardization of other spectral measurements. And so, that was quite an advancement in the whole field of spectroscopy. Lasers weren't on the scene. People were envisioning that there might be some way of using them in spectral measurements, but people hadn't yet come up with that technique. Helium-neon was the only laser that was out and about.

Lassman: That was just a few years before?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: In the late '50s?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: That this...?

Keck: Yes, I mean this is '63, and [in] '60-'61 Townes, and Schawlow had the optical maser and Ted Maiman had demonstrated the first optical laser using a ruby rod. I remember, Bob Terhune from Ford Motor Research came up to MSU. He was beginning to do some experiments with lasers. Emmett Leith, I think he was at Ford, too, was starting to make holograms. Now, this must have been a mid-graduate career, '64 or '65, to that time frame where people were beginning to find some unique uses of a laser. So, that was a new wave that was coming along.

Lassman: Were there a lot of growth prospects for the field?

Keck: Well, in the solid-state field, understanding semiconductor materials and things like that was clearly the rage. When you asked the question, the spectroscopy field was so old that, I don't know it just, incremental progress all the way along and I don't remember it as a — I guess, I guess the forefront — Gilbert Amat, in France — I can't tell you what school — had written some theory for polyatomic molecules that — I remember attending the, there was a big symposium at Ohio State University, a molecular spectroscopy symposium, which I understand is still going on today. And, Amat was one of the big names that came to that, and always gave learned theoretical papers and so on. Rank was, as I said, was a big name. [092 O'Riley] Rao at Ohio State was doing leading work. And, mostly involved polyatomic molecules and getting high resolution spectra being able to explain more and more of the structure of molecules up to the seventh decimal place. And the laser hadn't made its way in. It wasn't for a good many years after that that the laser got in. There was a little bit of work going on in microwave spectroscopy.

So, you'd have a small camp that was doing that. Most of the rest of us were doing infrared. Hawes wanted, he suggested a couple of thesis area. One was to continue some of the Zeeman and magnetic rotation work that had been started by the graduate student just ahead of me, who was still there when I came, and was just finishing up, Joe Aubel. So, I could have done that, or another suggestion made was to look at the excited state of molecules, which would have entailed, somehow getting them up into an excited state either photonically or, I guess, primarily photonically was what he was envisioning, and look at excited state spectra that hadn't yet been looked at. And, Paul Parker, who was really working with Harvey Edwards, was sort of the way that the group was divided, Hawes was still interested in diatomic molecules, and looking at the magnetic properties of them. Edwards was picking the polyatomic molecules, a lot of the methyl groups, methyl chloride, and methane, methyl halides, and things along that line. Parker was doing theoretical work, trying to advance those sorts of theories and get the next element in the series expansion of some of those systems. Yeah. So, I guess I can't tell you the raging topic of the day.

Lassman: That gives me a pretty good lay of the land.

Keck: And the cyclotron is just in trying to get up and running. Well, yeah, I mean, fundamental particles that were just out and about. You know, the mesons hadn't been around very long. Pion mesons, so nuclear physics was clearly where, but out of the new parts of physics were going on.

Lassman: So, where does your research track go? What do you start working on, and how does that evolve over the course of your graduate career?

Keck: Well, as in many departments, the older graduate students mentored the younger ones. Joe Aubel was a Lansing native who was a dyed-in-the-wool physicist, had joined Hawes' group. Joe was my mentor when I was a graduate student. You began learning the intricacies of this spectrometer that was home-built at Michigan State. It was basically an old boiler — four feet in diameter, and probably eight feet long, quarter-inch steel walls. I had no idea what it had been used for, but I presumed Hawes, and maybe Edwards — I can't even tell you that history, it predates me by a long stretch — had taken a boiler and with a cutting torch cut it two, and put a hinge on the one side — and then had built a gasket that you could put all the way around, so it would evacuate this huge cylinder. And then, they had an optics platform in the middle of it, our optics were twelve-inch diameter gratings and paraboloids, to build an infrared spectrometer. And, we, so I, well I enjoyed the experimental, having grown up with all the, you know, doing all the stuff I had been doing with my dad, and wiring, and this, that, and the other thing. And, Joe was very much an experimentalist. So, he and I just worked and I learned all the intricacies of the spectrometer, and how to run it. We had just gotten a new detector.

A fellow at, I think Syracuse, was making them in his lab. It was lead sulfide. But, he had made a lead selenide or telluride. And now I don't remember which. You'll have to look back in my thesis. It was coolable, cryogenically coolable, with very little background noise. We learned how to operate that. Joe Aubel had — I guess they had a magnet built. There was a homemade magnet there, but they had bought a new one with some of the NSF funds. We had a 600-gauss magnet, long hole in the middle of it, and also it had a fairly long pathway with a nice uniform field. We'd put our vapor materials in this container inside the magnet, and we ran our optics beam through, through this multiple traverse cell, they called it. So, basically [I] learned the ins and outs of the spectrometer. And then, Harvey Edwards had wanted to increase the resolution of the instrument, so we improved some of the optics while I was there. They had bought a new paraboloid with [a] better figure, twelve-inch diameter. And, in terms of funding in the university, you're living on shoestrings. We really were. Funding was not large. And so, you made do with the things you could get. And, if it was a specialized piece, you sprung for that. And we got a new paraboloid.

So, I helped realign the spectrometer. And then Harvey wanted to increase the resolution of the instrument. And the reason that the slits that we had on the input and output of the spectrometer weren't as good as they could have been, as sharp and as nice as you would want, and the edge resolution on the slits were, dictated now what resolution you could get in your spectrometer. So, I undertook that, I don't know where I got the notion, but that razor blades would form a better slit for the spectrometer. So I went out and bought razor blades from Gillette, and everybody I could find, and brought them back and microscopically examined them, and so on. And it turned out Wilkinson Sword had a Weck blade, used in barbers shavers at the time, you know, haircuts. And those turned out to be the smoothest blades that I could find. I wound up mounting those on the slits that we had in the spectrometer. I had to figure out how to get them parallel, and we realigned the spectrometer. And, low and behold, it improved the solution of the spectrometer by about a factor of two.

So, that was part and parcel of getting my thesis, because I needed that resolution. We were running these Zeeman and magnetic rotation spectra, so we were looking at the fine structure of some of these spectral lines, and I needed the resolution. And, with those razor blades why we could resolve the lines. And so eventually my thesis about the near-infrared spectra of nitric oxide, with this lead telluride detector we could move out to longer wave lengths than we had ever been able to, at Michigan State. And nobody had yet put the magnetic and Zeeman spectra of nitric oxide in the fundamental band stretching, stretching vibration. And so, I went out to five microns and got the spectrometer working and took those spectra and then — well, at that time we had a theory as to what was going on, why the magnetic rotation spectra — I'm not sure that it's pertinent...

Lassman:I'd like to hear it.

Keck:To your history, or what have you, but basically that magnetic rotation spectra comes about when you shine polarized light on molecules in the presence of a magnetic field, and you get a rotation of the plane of polarization ala the Faraday effect. If you put it between crossed polarizers, why you basically analyze the polarized signal that you get coming through. You won't get enough detail in what I just said to be able to put in anything in the history books. But, at any rate, we sort of knew the theory behind it, but nobody had written down equations that would predict the magnetic rotation spectrum of a molecule. So, my thesis eventually revolved around writing out the theory of, solving Hamiltonian equations for the spectrum that I was observing. Then computers were just now starting to come in. When I first joined the group, they were fitting the spectra — that is doing least-square fits on our Friedman electronic calculator. It was all a mechanical, electro-mechanical calculator. And we were doing complicated, least squares reductions on this hand calculator for these polyatomic and complicated spectrum. Well, as I, well computers were just starting to come in. Michigan State hired one of the leading computer people at the time and they brought in, bought for the university the latest control data computer. It was the fastest computer, so everybody said. It had the biggest memory, 30,000-bit memory. Can you believe that?

Lassman:Yeah.

Keck:So, I learned computer programming, Fortran programming, and programmed the computer to predict the spectra response of these magnetic rotation spectrum and then overlapped them with my experimental results, and indeed showed that I could predict exactly what I was observing experimentally. So, that basically became my thesis at the end of the day. What else is there to say about that?

Lassman:On the one hand this kind of fits into the tradition that you're coming in with, right. Building things.

Keck:Yes. Improving them. Being creative. Coming up with a new way of making something rather than buying something.

Lassman:Because you couldn't buy it in this case?

Keck:Couldn't buy it in the stores.

Lassman:So, the money that was coming in from grants, like NSF...?

Keck:Basically paid our salaries. At Michigan State, you had to do a year of teaching assistantship that the department paid for and then you could go and do a research assistantship. So, my first year as a graduate student, in fact I assisted Hawes in the optics course. You never learn a subject as well as when you teach it. And so, by getting in there and teaching the optics course why I was a lot more skilled in the, well in working with the spectrometer then, and understanding what I had to do in the optics, and so on, to record the spectrum and things like that. I missed one — in between my — you asked about summer work. I mislead you. I guess it must have been the summer between my senior year and first year in graduate school that Hawes had a contract to look at, well to fund a student for some summer work. There were a couple of projects that he had suggested to me — Fourier transform spectroscopy was just coming into vogue. A French, oh gosh, Pierre Conti, I want to say. I'm not sure that's right. Whoever came up with Fourier transform spectroscopy had a master's thesis on it. And, I remember reading that, and we finally decided that that was too big a project to conduct in the summer time. And so I took this project — in that list of papers, there was one on multiple Edser-Butler bands. And we basically innovated a multiple-slit to look at the output spectrum of Fabry-Perot interferometer. And, well you would use a slit source and shine that on a Fabry-Perot Etalon and it'll...

Lassman:I'm sorry. Shine it on a what?

Keck:Fabry-Perot etalon, basically two parallel plates but aluminized. This is a form of interferometer. Normally you would shine a parallel beam on it and the interferometer, because the light, you know you make multiple bounces and they have to, they'll interfere with one another unless they're exactly a wavelength apart, a path length, depends upon the spacing of the two plates. And then your output, you see a banded spectrum. If you put a wedge in the plate you get nice parallel spectra lines, assuming you shined a monochromatic light source on it. And the spacing between the spectra lines has a very definitive relationship to the wavelength of light that's coming in. The idea we came up with was instead of having a single slit on the spectrometer that illuminates this Fabry-Perot Etalon, we'd put in a multiple slit. Two, three, four, five slits, and now each one of those created their own set of fringes, and the output of the Fabry-Perot interferometer. And, if you chose the wavelength appropriately you could space those out so that this was fringe from slit one, here is the next fringe from slit one. You could make the fringe from slit two, three, four, five, fit just exactly between fringe one and the next fringe one. And then two, and take over again.

So, they'd have this beautiful set of, we called them channel spectra. And the notion behind it was in calibrating the infrared spectrometer, what you do is you use the spectrometer to illuminate one of these Fabry-Perot Etalons, and you get this nice regular set of fringes that you can record along with your spectral of whatever material you're taking. And these now, you know, exactly what the difference in wavelength is from fringe, to fringe, to fringe, to, you know, six, seven decimal places, you know, if you had them all calibrated. And so, these became the markers by which you could calibrate your spectrum. And, the notion was, if we had multiple slits why we could have a vernier on the scale if you will. Well, we never pulled it off, but that first paper that I wrote, and we published in — I've forgotten where we published it. Maybe the Journal of Physics, I think.

Lassman:Let's see. I think I have ...

Keck:Or was it, maybe it was the American Association of Physics Teachers.

Lassman:Oh, this is 1964?

Keck:Yeah. Probably.

Lassman:Inter — Interferometric Observation of Flat Surfaces and Multiple Edser-Butler Bands.

Keck:Yes.

Lassman:I think it's that first paper.

Keck:That's the one.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:Who's the publisher?

Lassman:American Journal of Physics.

Keck:Yes. So, that was my first publication. And that was just a lot of fun. Working with optics in a dark room with a spectrometer. I mean, I was happy as a clam.

Lassman:Was this spectrometer, was there just one there that you were all working on? Or, were there multiple instruments?

Keck:Well, that one was just a little student spectrometer in the optics lab. We didn't need anything special for that. But, the goal was to take that and bring it over to this great big infrared spectrometer that we had built, had much much higher resolution.

Lassman:I want to ask one other question about the computation? You mentioned that you shifted from the manual calculator to the computer. So, did you, did you also then improve the computing capacity over time to the point where you could do more predictive — maybe I'm not phrasing this right — more complicated scenarios with the spectral analysis?

Keck:Yes. Very, very much so. I mean, prior to that, all you could do was mark the centerline of a spectral line. And then, you'd try and take that spectral line and apply it to whoever's solution, [Hamiltonian] solution for the energy levels of that molecule was in vogue at the time, and hope that you could fit the spectrum and identify each spectra line was due to this vibration, or this one, or whatever. You're trying to relate it to the physics of a molecule, what was going on. With the computer you could actually predict the line shape and begin to say why it had a given width, and why it tailed off in a particular way because of [perturbations] with some other vibration mode or rotation mode of a molecule. You were able to go much further and add additional terms in the theoretical solution of where the energy level should be. And carry it out to the next, next orders in the series expansion of things. And, a lot of mine was, in fact, putting in the spectra response of the line shapes. You know happily someone had written down an equation for shapes of spectral lines somewhere between a [pure Gaussian] shape and an Lorentzian shape with long tails. And, it turned out that I juggled the term so that I could begin to match my spectrum, and then that related back to some property of the molecule. I've forgotten now, at this point, exactly what that was. But, yeah, you were able to do just so much more with the computer than we had ever been able to do before, more in terms in the expansion, as well as looking at details of the spectrum.

Lassman:Okay. Two questions. The first one is — well, actually, let me start with this one. So, you're doing research, are you also doing more, is there more coursework or is it primarily just doing... research?

Keck:The regimen was that your first three years were largely coursework, graduate courses. But, mixed in with that, the first year you had to teach a course, so you got your teaching requirement out of the way.

And then, the second and third years you were being paid as a research student, research assistantship. As I said, I was learning the spectrometer, from Joe Aubel, and helping him gather the data for his dissertation. But, all the time you're taking coursework. At the end of the coursework, where we had a weeklong set of exams, you wrote exams for five days all morning. Exams were all morning, for five days running, starting with I guess mechanics and then E & M, and I guess there was one on solid-state. There was probably one on quantum nuclear, and I've forgotten now how they titled the courses. And, I remember, well Ruth and I were married by then. I had originally said I wasn't going to get married until after I got my degree. We got married midway through, and the week that I was taking exams her mother was visiting us. We lived in the main housing apartment at the college, so we were in the bedroom and her mother was out on the couch. And, her mother is a wonderful person. She was a wonderful person. But, having a mother-in-law there while you're writing exams is, it conjures up all sorts of nasty thoughts. But, I mean, we wrote the exams in the morning and then studied for the next one until midnight, and went home and got some sleep, came back, wrote the exams the next day.

Lassman: Pretty brutal schedule.

Keck: Yes, well that was set to weed people out, and it tended to. I think we got, I guess you got three chances at those, and if you missed after the third chance, you were basically relegated to the master's degree and graduated. No, that's not right. There was another exam, a qualifying exam before you got to the PhD track. The freshman and sophomore years of graduate school, you began taking graduate course but there was a qualifying exam that you, and that was on all aspects of physics. That's when I, that's when Halliday and Resnick came into the fore for me. Basically, I learned a great deal of physics studying for those sophomore physics exams. And it's basically on theory, but they covered the full spectrum of physics. A whole bunch of us just got together, and got Halliday and Resnick, worked problems in Halliday and Resnick, and that was just a much superior book to Sears and Zemansky that I had studied three years earlier. And, you had to pass that qualifying exam. If you got an "A" on it, you could go on for a PhD. If you got a "B" or less, well if you got a "B" on it, you could study for a masters. And if you didn't get — if you got lower than a "B" you got to take it, I guess you got to take it three times. And if at the end of the time you still hadn't gotten a "B" or an "A," you were essentially washed out. And then the preliminary exams you still had some finite number of times that you could take them, but you were already, you had already gotten a masters degree by that time. Assuming you passed the qualifying exam with an "A." So, that was the sort of regimen. Professor Hause, Duane was so nice. As soon as he began hearing the word on how I'd done on the exam, why he called me up that evening and told me how I'd done.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: So, I knew right away. I don't know, by Wednesday they had corrected the Monday exam, and Tuesday, and so on. And, you know, I knew I was doing well on those. And, it turned out I guess I'd got, it was either the highest, or the next highest score of twenty or thirty of us that took the exam. I felt really good about that. I was number two. There was a fellow, Fred Gillman, one of these child prodigies. He had graduated from high school, age fifteen or so, or something like that, and came into quantum mechanics, or came into Michigan State, the physics department, went through in two years with a four-point and that sort of thing, and then was continuing on to graduate school. At one point rumor had it that he had stepped into teach one of the quantum, graduate quantum mechanics courses, one day. He was taking the course, right? The professor — he wasn't in my section. But, he had scored higher than I did, I guess.

Lassman: When you were, when you were doing this, your graduate research and the molecule that you worked on?

Keck: Nitric oxide.

Lassman: Nitric oxide, that's it. Was there any...?

Keck: Think automobile pollution. That's the thing that Corning's catalytic converter cleans up.

Lassman: That's right. I knew that. But, when you were working on this, are you thinking at all, and not just you specifically but also within the group, is there any connection to industrial application?

Keck: Interesting. Well, my question is, when did I start thinking industrially? And, the reason I say that's interesting was that I remember as I was beginning to do interviews — but I don't remember now who made comments, or where I got the notion, but there was a certain stigma attached to a physicist leaving academe. I don't know if it was Haynes, or Harvey Edwards, or, but [in] my mind, I think from virtually day one, [I] was on the notion that I was going to go into industrial physics in some capacity or some job. And,

I guess it was just from the experience with my dad's company, as a starter. And then we'd have, well the colloquia speakers. I mentioned Emmett Leith, and Bob Terhune from Ford Motor Company. I mentioned earlier the colloquia happened primarily, I mentioned, as an undergraduate. Graduate students were much more scholarly encouraged to attend colloquia than undergraduates. I probably began to see those that were coming from academe were doing evermore esoteric sorts of theoretical discussions, and learning more and more about less and less, and that sort of notion than, some of the industrial folk that came in and would tell us about the latest thing in holography, or that sort of thing. Well, more experimental, more interesting to me anyway.

Lassman: Well, you mentioned two Ford researchers. So...

Keck: Well, they just gave colloquia.

Lassman: On topics specifically...

Keck: That they were doing. It was their work at Ford Motor. It had to do with light. It had to do with lasers. And so, it was of interest to our group. I don't remember whether they came in specifically to our group, or whether they did general colloquia, now that I think about it.

Lassman: So that could be one possible connection that stuck in your mind about industrial work? How did you like teaching?

Keck: I enjoyed it. I didn't have a lecturer section, or anything like that. It was a laboratory section. You learned more about your subject. As I said, you never learn it so well as when you teach it.

Lassman: What's making you think about an industrial career versus an academic career?

Keck: I guess it was just this notion that I wanted to see something that someone would use coming out of the work, as opposed to something that would merely reside on a library shelf someplace. I probably never espoused that until today. You did remind me of some notables that had visited our group though. Gerhard Herzberg, a famous molecular atomic physicist.

Lassman: That name sounds familiar.

Keck: A physicist. He's written, there's a two-volume set, one on diatomic and one on polyatomic molecules. He did his work in Canada. And, Boris Stoicheff was another name in spectroscopy circles. He visited. I think Gilbert Amat visited once. And D.H. Rank from Penn State visited. And those would have been specific to our group.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: For the broader colloquia, I don't remember the notable names there. And so many of them were probably in the high-energy field, and that was just not where my brain was.

Lassman: Did you also collaborate with other science departments in the molecular spectroscopy field? I think, for example, in the chemistry department there might be some areas where there could be collaboration.

Keck: There certainly could have been. But, in those days, collaboration was not in anyone's thinking.

Lassman: How so?

Keck: Well, at Michigan State it just wasn't. You know, you were hired because you were an expert in your field, and experts are expert unto themselves. They don't need anybody else. And so, there was a lot of "siloism," if you will, and interestingly I now sit on the Dean of the College of Natural Sciences Advisory Board at Michigan State, and have been, for probably ten years, and we counsel then, that exactly as you're pointing out, they really needed to collaborate with other departments. The funding organizations over the years have demanded that you can't be a "silo" any longer. You've got to be collaborative with other groups, either at your university or even better yet at other universities. But as I was coming through school that was, I won't say it didn't occur but I don't remember any of the physics faculty that had any collaborations outside of the physics department.

Lassman: You mentioned earlier when you were moving toward the end of your graduate career, that you were thinking about working in industry. That was something that the faculty didn't wholly endorse? Can you talk a little bit about what that experience was like, and what you made of their comments about leaving the academy for an industrial career?

Keck: Well, I obviously didn't take much of it to heart. And, I guess I'd already made up my mind that I thought I knew what industrial research would be like, and, as I say, I wanted to see some tangible fruits of my labors being used by someone. But, the stigma at that time, well I don't know if it was propagated by Haines as chair of the department, was that physicists taught other physicists. And they did learn basic research and so on. More so than trying to apply their physics training to do something, something else with it. But, I didn't interview for any academic positions when I graduated.

Lassman:How about your colleagues, other graduate students who were finishing up with you or who were in your class? Did they pursue academic careers, industrial careers, a mixture?

Keck:It was a mixture. One of Hawes' students, Glenn Mann, was teaching down at Texas Tech, I think. Joe Aubel, my mentor, went down to the University of South Florida. [He] got an academic position there. At least two of Harvey's graduate students, Lou Schneider and Dick Peterson, graduated essentially with me, both went into universities. The other half of us went into some industrial positions, or government laboratory. One of Hause's students, Mel Olman and Ron Hill, went to Sandia National Laboratory. Kent Moncur, he went industrial initially. And, I did too. And, Pete Wilson — where'd Pete go? I don't remember. So, it was a mix, assuming the two associates at Sandia, [it] was more an industrial laboratory than an academic laboratory. I'd put it in that category. It may well have been in those days. It wasn't the national laboratory when they went. Sandia was subsequent to their going there, it was taken over as a national lab.

Lassman:A couple of more questions on the graduate. When you're getting your PhD at this time, this is also during the Cold War? Was there any impact on your research specifically, or within your group, or even within the physics department, of Cold War priorities along the lines of classification of research results or the imposition of security restrictions, things like that, given the growth in government contracts for research?

Keck:I don't think there was any military defense-oriented work going on at Michigan State, that I remember. Well, the Air Force was funding some of Harvey's work, and there was other government agency funding in some of the other departments; not all of it coming from NSF, is what I mean. But where it fit in to some defense program, I never knew. The Air Force saw fit to fund Harvey's work in polyatomic molecules. But, we had no capability. And, as far as I know there was no direct connection with anything in the classified arena. Now, having said that I can tell you that one of the agencies that interviewed on campus was the CIA. And, in fact, I went and talked to a CIA recruiter and eventually had a job offer with the CIA.

Lassman:This is when you're finishing up?

Keck:Yes.

Lassman:Okay.

Lassman:Before we get to the CIA offer, and career choices, during this period the Vietnam War is going on. Draft status. Was that an issue?

Keck:Yes. Very much. As long as I was a student I had a student deferment. When I left then, and came to Corning, I was married already and, but I believe Corning had to send some sort of request for continued deferment, after my employment with Corning. I'm pretty sure Bob Maurer, a couple of years running had asked for a continual deferment. And then the war was — when did it finish, '70?

Lassman:The formal withdrawal was '75, I think, when the last U.S. troops left.

Keck:Okay. But, the draft, or the need for them was sooner than that?

Lassman:Yes. That was earlier.

Keck:So, it was three years that Maurer had to submit. At the time, I was probably on the hawk side of things. If my nation was believing, or leaders of the nation were believing that this was a war that we should be fighting we should be in there and so on, but I guess my feeling was that I could contribute more to the effort by being a scientist and doing good technological work that might feed into the military activity. But that was certainly my rationale for wanting and maintaining the student deferment, and so on, as opposed to going into the draft. I don't recall whether my draft — they had draft numbers, and mine was, I'm pretty sure, well down the list. I don't remember whether that was before I got married, but I remember having a 2-S draft card. Well, I didn't worry a lot about it. I didn't pay a whole lot of attention to it. As I say, I figured I could do a better job for the country by learning physics and doing a good job of that. And yes, I had a deferment, and continued.

Lassman:I have just another general question here. Lessons learned in graduate school? Is there anything that stands out?

Keck:Lessons learned in graduate school? Well, I used to have a bunch of sayings on my wall. I don't know where they came from. I found a bunch of old placards, and I had been asking if I remember any of them. They're probably around here someplace, because I'm a prodigious saver of stuff. But, I had little phrases that I tacked up. Here are examples of some that have come later in my life, some of which are somewhat original with me or paraphrasing of things.

Lassman:I like this one. "Leadership is the art of wondering complex simple."

Keck:I have no idea whether any of those will stick with anybody but...

Lassman:Well, I wanted to throw that out to see if there were any things that particularly shaped your ideas and views about, not just physics but about industry, about applications and connecting your research to new technologies, or further down the road about these questions of leadership and management, and things like that?

Keck:I'll tell you, Tom, nothing leaps out at me, other than that I began to pick up little phrases like that, and they were on these cards. And, I had my office adorned with them. And I'll be darned if I didn't, could conjure up saying it right now. But they were pithy truisms that you see out and around. But, the other thought that ran through my mind, of course the Vietnam Era, the folk singers were out and about, and we had a resident folk artist in the physics department, Goodtime Charlie Taylor, who worked with Jerry Cowen. He must have come my sophomore year as a graduate student. And, Charlie was a guitarist par excellent, and of the new wave of behavior. Well he wore blue jeans and a sport coat. The first of the crowd to do that. Always had his tan sport coat, corduroy sport coat, and blue jeans on. And on weekend nights, he would perform at the Fat Black Pussycat. So, all of the folk songs and the protest songs associated with that era were part and parcel of Ruth's and my growing up, and we've enjoyed some, you know, sing along with Peter, Paul, and Mary, and the [Kingston] Trio, and John Denver, and all those ever since.

Lassman:That raises another question about the culture of Michigan State during this time period. Was there an anti-war culture there, or a counterculture at Michigan State during this time?

Keck:By no means as strong as Berkeley, or Penn State, or anything like that. Probably the strongest was, hootenannies that we would have in some of the buildings, and on the weekend, we'd get all the folk singers and they would be singing protest songs, and things like that. I was more or less of the mindset, growing up in rural America, that our leaders knew best, and if they said, you know, we should be at war, well we should be at war. So, those weren't protest parts that probably stuck with me. Bob Dylan's "Blowing in the Wind" song was probably closer to something that would have stuck with me as a philosophy or lessons learned, or questions that we should continually ask ourselves. "How many times must the cannon balls fly?" And so on. So, those were probably the things that shaped much of what we've done later on in life, as much as anything.

Lassman:All right, now moving on then, to the beginning of your career choices. So, you got your PhD in '67? Would this have been in the spring of '67?

Keck:No. December of '67. I didn't go to my graduation. I wish I had now. I've forgotten why. I guess I was probably interviewing. But, as I was graduating the semiconductor bubble hadn't yet burst. So, industry was thriving. Monies, I guess, from the war effort or whatever, were going into all the high-tech companies. There were jobs all over the place, very plentiful.

Lassman:You mentioned the CIA. Tell me that story.

Keck:Well, I interviewed. My first interview was at IBM.

Lassman:Why don't you take me through the chronology of interviews?

Keck:Let me take you through the sequence of all that. My first-ever plane ride, first-ever trip out of East Lansing, Michigan, other than vacation trips with my parents, was hopping on a plane at Metropolitan airport in Detroit and going to Yorktown Heights, to an IBM lab.

Lassman:Did they come to campus to talk to you first, or how did you get that?

Keck:I think so. Some did it that way. Others, perhaps another one of the group had interviewed with someone, and so we shared addresses and so on. I don't remember, honestly. But, IBM invited me for three interviews. One at Yorktown Heights, one at East Fishkill, a development laboratory there, and one out at Almaden.

Lassman:In California?

Keck:In California.

Lassman:That's the disk drive lab?

Keck:Doing storage.

Lassman:So, my visit to Watson Lab, I remember the two people I interviewed with, EuvialBeraket and Janus Wiljanski. Beraket was a typical arrogant physicist?

Keck:Definitely the arrogant physicist, and I didn't get the job offer from Watson Lab.

Lassman:You did?

Keck:I did not. And Janus Wiljanski was one of the foremost lens design specialists. I assume data storage and optical techniques for what that group was focusing on. Got an offer from the development laboratory at Poughkeepsie.

Lassman: That would have been in the semiconductor field?

Keck: Well, one of the projects they wanted me to do was to figure out some ways of using lasers to repair circuits, semiconductor, or chip circuits that had been not working, so that they could—if a lot of semiconductor chips had an error in them, or a defect, to fuse wires or fuse connections in semiconductor circuitry, was what the Watson Lab thing was about. New uses of lasers and operating on chips, and things like that.

Lassman: That's interesting, actually. Were the, was the production of semiconductors still, from the financial standpoint, I guess, was the cost high enough that it was very important to make repairs in the chips rather than just...?

Keck: I can only guess.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: But, I'm assuming so. Some guy by the name of William Pliskin was the name of the other fellow, and I think he was up, it must have been at the development laboratory. He was a little bit more down-to-earth. And somewhere on that visit I learned about radio frequency sputtering, that was just being applied at the time. If you put a material around a cathode, and then pass an alternating current through it, in the presence of a plasma, then you can actually pop off atoms, molecules, from the parent material for traveling at some velocity, and if there's a substrate, coolants, or cooler substrate, they'll condense on that substrate, then you'll begin to lay down a layer, or film, of a particular material. So, it was a new technique for thin film deposition that was beginning to, I assume beginning to make its way into technological circles, a fairly new technology.

Lassman: And this a person you spoke to at Yorktown, or at East Fishkill?

Keck: Well, I don't remember.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: I remember on the IBM visit I learned about radio frequency sputtering. That's important because later that was the basis of the invention at Corning for fibers. How history pieces together. Well, so at any rate, I got an offer from Almaden. I got an offer from the Fishkill Lab, Watson Lab didn't, I wasn't good enough for them.

Lassman: What was your impression then of IBM overall?

Keck: Well, of course, this is your first trip, on any interview trip, so I was just blown away by what I was seeing. Clearly impressed, beyond belief. So, I interviewed first with IBM, then Goodyear Aerospace. One of my own graduate people had gone down there. He came back to Michigan State recruiting, and invited me down, and so I went down to Goodyear Aerospace.

Lassman: This was Goodyear Tire and Rubber?

Keck: Bingo.

Lassman: In Akron?

Keck: They had an aerospace lab, largely funded by Air Force funds, out on a lake outside of Akron, and they were learning to put on, or make synthetic rubber or some polymer coating on materials that would be impervious to electromagnetic radiation reflections. Anti-radar sorts of materials. They wanted somebody that had enjoyed or knew something about electromagnetic theory. One of the graduate courses that I most enjoyed was a graduate course in electricity magnetism, a Fred Leitner talk. And, I remember — I'll have to give you, or get you a copy of — what the hell's the name of it? The story of the optical fiber — because in there I recalled the day that Fred Leitner had began taking us through the wave equations of electromagnetic wave equations and showed the square root of new epsilon was equal to the speed of light. And, that was like a theological revelation to me. When he put that on the board, it just seemed like God's universe came to closure in that one lecture. That made such an impression on me. I always liked electromagnetics, and in particular, waves, and if it involved photons, you know, at that end of the spectrum, optics, why so much the better. So, Goodyear, it was perfectly natural to go down and interview. So, I interviewed there and got a job offer from them.

Lassman: And, this was a military-funded lab? Was that separate from their primary R & D facility?

Keck: I think so. It was probably in the same division, but I honestly couldn't tell you today whether it was — those are questions that wouldn't even have occurred to me at that time.

Lassman: All right.

Keck: What's the organization structure?

Lassman: Yeah. That's right. But that's a different kind of setting than the IBM setting?

Keck: Oh absolutely.

Lassman: That's interesting.

Keck: The other companies that I interviewed with, well I had interviews with TRW, and it was in the L.A. area, and I called up and just cancelled the thing. After I'd been to San Francisco and interviewed with IBM, as I said, and then I went up to Los Alamos — not Los Alamos, Lawrence Radiation Lab, and interviewed with them.

Lassman: In Berkeley?

Keck: Outside of Berkeley. It's in Livermore.

Lassman: Lawrence Livermore National Lab?

Keck: Yes. Out in the valley. They wanted me to work in a sensors group, and again involving electromagnetics, and how could they do remote sensing of bombs, and telemeter the information back. I interviewed then with Martin Marietta in Denver, and I don't remember anything about that interview. I don't know what the project was. The other one was the CIA.

Lassman: What was that? Tell me about that one?

Keck: I did it purely as a lark. My colleague, my friend in graduate school, Mel Olman, who went to Sandia, had heard the CIA was coming around and doing interviews. And, he went over and interviewed, and came back and told me about it. I was curious as to whether I could get in. This probably shouldn't be down in print, should it?

Lassman: Well, I can stop it if you'd like. I'd be happy to do that.

Keck: We may excise it from the file. But at any rate, I went down. Everything was very clandestine, as you might expect. I interviewed with a guy on campus, and he must have written up something favorable about me, because a few days later I got a plain brown wrapper in the mail with instructions to come down to Ann Arbor, Michigan and talk with one of the field operatives.

Lassman: What was the position they were...?

Keck: I hadn't a clue yet.

Lassman:

The first session that this guy on campus was talking to you about was like an information session?

Keck: Just a general CIA interview. Yes.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: The CIA is interviewing. "We have a host of positions. I can't tell you anything about them. But, would you like to come down?" "All right." So, I drove down to Ann Arbor one morning around summertime. All they gave me was an address. It was a nondescript building outside of Ann Arbor. I walked in the door, and there was nobody around, and a big long office, with a desk in the back. And, nothing. Absolutely nothing in that building. You know, it was, all this — could have held a square dance in it. And, the door opened — you know, I called out, and a door opened and a guy came out from the adjoining room. And, I looked in there and there was host of electronics, and I assume radio and telemetry equipment, and things like that to keep him connected with the central office. And, apparently that interview went fine because the next thing I knew I got a plain brown wrapper inviting me to come down to Washington. So, I went down to Washington, then, and interviewed with one of the groups. And there began to learn a little bit more about it. They needed people to analyze the technological capabilities of the Asian nations. So, they were beginning to worry about the fact that Asia was building up its technological capability, and wanted people to analyze the scientific literature. So, it would have been just an analysis job of, you know, somebody will hand you translated text and you're supposed to figure out what the real capability would have been given they wrote that learned paper, and this, that, and the other thing.

That interview must have gone well, because the next thing I knew there was this long DoD, something or other form to fill in to check my security clearance to go for a security clearance. But interestingly, that interview, I'm pretty sure it was that first trip to Washington, the guy pulled out a top secret document and was walking me through it, and showing me what sorts of things they were doing. He showed a photograph of a runway, I think, in Cuba. This is circa the Cuban missile crisis. And, it was comparison photos that they were digitizing and computer comparing I guess. And showed the second one, the computer had highlighted an extension that had been added to the runway. But, they had graphics capability for pointing out, accentuating differences from, you know, one picture to another. I don't know if it was his boss or a colleague walked into the office and said, "What are you doing showing this guy top secret?" "Well, I assumed if he was interviewing with us, he was cleared." Well, I hadn't been cleared yet.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:So, at any rate, the fourth trip down they, I had already filled in the classification form and I had, we later found FBI agents talking with Ruth's folks up in the Upper Peninsula. And, I assume my folks, but I don't know that. My neighbors. And, the fourth contact was again down in Washington, at Langley Headquarters, and off George Washington Parkway, and there they put me through a lie detector test, and informed me that an employee of the CIA would go through one of these a year. Well, I passed it okay, but quite frankly a polygraph test is an unnerving experience, or at least I found it so. I said, "I don't want this."

Lassman:And that was it?

Keck:That was the last I had for the CIA. They sent me a job offer and I politely said, "Maybe I'll help my country in some other capacity."

Lassman:Interesting.

Keck:But, it would have been interesting work, and they, I asked them, at one point, whether a person could publish scientific articles, and so on. "No," they honestly said, "No. You know, there's the open world and then there's the black world. And, we publish in the black world, and yes, you'll become known in that world in the same way that other people are in the open world. And if you want to have that as a career, why we can offer it to you."

Lassman:Okay. I see.

Keck:But it, I'm sure it would have been fascinating, fascinating work. It sounded like it was much more reading. And, obviously analysis. But, it didn't sound like it was, you know, experimental work, and things that I had grown up with and enjoyed.

Lassman:That was very different?

Keck:Yes. Now, I had done those interview trips. And I was about ready to flip a coin and make a decision.

Lassman:Did any of them stand out as particularly attractive?

Keck:Well, I liked Lawrence Livermore. Or I just liked that arena and it sounded like an interesting project, with sensors. With Goodyear-Aerospace I wasn't that enthralled. The IBM thing sounded interesting. The IBM, both IBM, Almaden and Poughkeepsie, would have been very interesting. Today I would recognize those as more developmental labs as opposed to the basic research at Watson. But, that was fine. I could see concrete uses for whatever you'd be doing there.

Lassman:Can I ask you a quick question about the Watson Lab?

Keck:Sure.

Lassman:You mentioned the one physicist you interviewed with.

Keck:You mean Beraket?

Lassman:Beraket. You said he was —

Keck:Struck me as being arrogant.

Lassman:Arrogant in a sense of IBM physics research, or arrogant just as a —

Keck:Both.

Lassman:In this time period in the late '60s, Watson is still a relatively new lab.

Keck:Oh yeah. Creme de la creme.

Lassman:Yes. You were just talking about your interview with Beraket and whatever it was that made you think that he was impressed with himself and IBM research at this time.

Keck:Well, just the attitude he had toward me.

Lassman:I don't know what it was. Was his attitude a reflection of what IBM research was at this time, or what it was supposed to be, or was it just of him personally as a physicist, in terms of how impressed he was with himself?

Keck:Oh my golly. Well,...

Lassman:Maybe that's too detailed.

Keck:Well, it's too long ago for me to remember details. I met Janus Wiljanski years later up at The University of Rochester's Institute of Optics, and I had already achieved some notoriety, and often wondered if he remembered that I did interview with him. I never did ask him. And Beraket, I don't know whatever happened to him. I had asked a couple of people I know at IBM about him, and obviously, he is long since retired. I don't, I couldn't tell you any longer today when in the interview process I formed the impression of him or why that I did. But he was very definitely, seemed to be looking down his nose at what I had described in my seminar for them, and things like that.

Lassman:I see.

Keck:And then just, he just wasn't particularly interested in having me there. It struck me.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:Now, the one part that I didn't cover — when I was still back at Michigan State, I mentioned several industrial scientists had visited us. I neglected to tell you that Corning had an industrial scientist that visited the physics group at Michigan State, had been doing it apparently for a good long time, his name was Gale Smith, Dr. Gale Smith. I later found out that he and my dad studied together at the University of Michigan. And, Gale was one of the senior people at Corning.

Lassman:What was his field?

Keck:Well, he ran the equivalent of Corning's NIST, National Institute of Standards and Technology. Our measurements and analysis group, at the time that I joined Corning, I think he had done work — Corning had entered the electronics field, making tin-oxide capacitors and resistors. I think Gale had done work, or led a group in that field, and eventually with Corning, we had a business in precision resistors and capacitors for many years. But, by the time Gale was visiting, that I saw him at Michigan State he was already in a management, director, senior director position at the Corning lab. But, he visited pretty regularly. And, I probably, second year I was in graduate school I remember Gale coming around, and even do one-on-one visits with all of Duane Hawes' students. So, he and Duane, somehow, had a connection. But, I don't know that he visited all that many other groups within the physics department. But, he didn't go to the placement bureau and wait for students to come to him. He came into the laboratory, and he would usually bring something from Corning, some aspect, something that industrial research was working on.

Lassman:So, this was a personal connection he had?

Keck:Yes. I think so. But, you know, I never asked Gale, and I never asked Duane about that. I don't remember. I don't know. Well, on one of the visits Gale brought a short piece of fiber optic. The bundle type of fiber that was around starting in the '50s, and that Corning, in fact, made. And it was clearly the first time I had seen a fiber optic and was enthralled by what he was telling us and so on. Gale came for a number of years and then hadn't come for quite a while. And, I'm about ready to make a decision among the companies that I just described for you. And, low and behold another Corning employee, Bill Lister, who had been a graduate from Michigan State out of Hiedemann's ultrasonics group, and had gone to Corning, and he was now taking Gale's place as a recruiter, and came back.

Lassman:Was he there, he was there before you were?

Keck:He was there before I was, but we overlapped.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:And then Bill graduated, and a year, year and a half later he came back to Corning and said, "Well, by all means, you have to come down to Corning and visit."

Lassman:Can I ask just one quick question? You mentioned when...

Keck:Smith?

Lassman:Smith. Gale Smith came and showed you the fiber optic cable, had you done any investigating prior to that or known anything about the fiber optic? That was your first introduction?

Keck:That was the first introduction for the fiber optics.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:So, Bill invited me to Corning. This was December of '67. And, in fact, it turned out my grandfather, Ruth will give you the date, but my grandfather died, and my interview was the day after he died. And, then I got back in time for his funeral. I was to interview with three groups, I think. There was a group at Corning, physical research, and Bob Maurer ran fundamental physics research. Sammy Halliby had something in semiconductor, and Andy Herzog had [the] materials group, of some sort, as I recall.

Lassman:Did Smith and Lister talk?

Keck:Apparently.

Lassman:And then you were invited out for the interview?

Keck:Well, I forget whether Bill invited me on the spot, or whether he went home and then somebody called me and invited me out. I don't remember that. But anyway, I visited Corning in December of '67, and then Bob, and Sammy, and then Andy Herzog each told me a little bit about their group. Now, Bob Maurer was looking for someone to come and work in the fiber optics arena. And, he described the notion that telecommunications using optics, its time maybe had come, and that they needed a transmission medium and he needed someone to run the fiber optic project at Corning. He had had a couple of people working part-time on it, and I guess I found this out later, but at any rate, long story short, they offered me a job in Bob's group. And, it sounded like electromagnetics propagation, optics, and I liked the arena, although it was nothing like today. Corning invited Ruth out the very first visit. No other company had invited her along, on any of the interview trips. And, Corning had enough experience with the fact that it's fairly remote, they knew they had to bring her in and impress not only the candidate but also the candidate's family. And so, from the get-go she came in and they toured her all around, and we kind of liked the area. And, she was from a small town, and Ewen, Minnesota wasn't that big. And, I really liked the sort of work that was being described by Maurer. So, I took the job at Corning, and basically wrote letters back to all the rest of the companies and said, "Sorry."

Lassman:What were your impressions of Corning as a research organization, in comparison to a place like IBM Watson, or Almaden or even Lawrence Livermore, Goodyear?

Keck:I recall having made that much of a, noted that much difference between them. I mean, clearly Watson Lab, the equipment, the capabilities, the sophistication of the things they were working on seemed more than I saw in any of the other labs. Then at Los Alamos, they didn't show me a whole heck of a lot. It was more talk "and here's what you'd be working on." Martin Marietta was, I guess I did see an optics lab there. And Almaden there was an optics lab. Goodyear, we were out in a barracks on the shore of some lake, where that work was going out. But, I think Corning's overall laboratory and the people I talked to, and their description of the importance of research to them, it was on a par with what I was seeing at Watson. Clearly there was some differences in physical layout and the size of the laboratory. You know, Watson was huge. And, all of the IBM facilities are huge, compared to what I saw at Corning. But, a beautiful setting up on the hill, overlooking the valley. Finger Lakes region.

Lassman:Sullivan Park was already there at that time?

Keck:Yes. It had been built in '63.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:That's when we moved from the valley up to the hill, when the laboratory was built. I probably met Gale Smith on that visit as well, because I talked to him on previous visits. I can't believe that I wouldn't have had a contact with Gale. One of the follow-up things that impressed me very much about Corning, they were, after my grandfather's funeral we were, a day or two, well, it was probably the next weekend, having Sunday dinner, and the phone rang and it was the director of — well, Bob's boss, director of physical research here at Corning, Chuck Wakeman, basically saying, "Gee, sorry I missed you. Bob spoke highly of you. We would like to have you come and join us," and so on. And nobody else had done that. And that, that did carry a lot of weight. So, Corning did things right.

Lassman:Okay. I see.

Keck:And, they offered the highest salary, which today might surprise me a little bit. But, it was, at the time.

Lassman:Okay. I wonder if there's some of that family, you know, influence there with the recruitment?

Keck:Extra care?

Lassman:Yeah. Extra care for incoming recruits?

Keck:It could well have been. It could well be. Because, well they had someone, well Gene Abercrombie was the person who later met many times over a time at Corning, and she toured Ruth all around, and showed her the where to shop, and where the housing developments were, and so on.

Lassman:When you came in, so then there's Maurer's group, which is the one you joined. And number two there was Herzog's group, and...?

Keck:Sammy Halliby was the person. And he, it turned out, was a Michigan State, had — well, gosh. Now, I'm not sure. I was going to say he was a Michigan State graduate some years earlier. Because one of the things that they did, almost immediately, was pressed the new PhDs into recruiting the next generation of students, and I went back to Michigan State with Sammy, interviewing on campus for students. I remember that so vividly. Sammy had a friend who lived just over the river from my folks in one of the nice subdivisions in East Lansing. And, Ruth and I had the car and we were going to stop off at my folks and say "Hi," while we were in East Lansing. So, we dropped Sammy off at his friend's, and he said pick us up at such and such a time, and we got a flight down at Detroit Metro Airport, which is an hour and fifteen minutes away. And, so, Ruth and I appeared at his friend's house at the appointed hour and got in there. And, "Oh, come in and have a drink." And, Sammy is three sheets to the wind. He had the good sense to ask if I'd drive to the airport. But, he wound up leaving with about forty-five minutes to catch our flight down at Metro, and we got to get rid of the rental car. We made it. I have no clue how fast

I was driving. Sammy was in the back seat just zonked. He kept talking to his friend. You know, he kept saying, "Isn't it time?"

Lassman:Have to get to the airport.

Keck:Oh my goodness. Life's little stories.

Lassman:When you met each of these individuals, Halliby, and Herzog, and Maurer...

Keck:It was at colloquia, well a seminar that we went down to give.

Lassman:Did you also meet, at this point, the senior research executives like Bill Armistead, and that group?

Keck:No.

Lassman:Was that actually after you got there?

Keck:Well, as I say Chuck Wakeman, Bob's boss, wasn't there. So, I interviewed with Wakeman's three top managers. There was one other one in the group, I think, but I don't remember now who it was. Bill Armistead, you didn't see the director of research. Or they didn't bring us into that level. Although, Wakeman reported to Armistead. So, you know, it wasn't that large an organization. There weren't that many layers in the organization.

Lassman:Were there other PhD physicists who came in with you at this time?

Keck:Felix Kapron had been there three months, maybe, before I came. Mike Teeter had come up from Texas. I guess Mike had been there a year and a half, maybe. Who else am I trying to think of? This other person. Well, the short answer is, yes. Corning apparently was in a hiring mode. The color television business was booming at the time. And, so, they would bring in a goodly number of people.

Lassman:And these were PhD physicists?

Keck:Yes. By and large.

Lassman:That were coming in?

Keck:By in large.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:Corning, the Houghton family, held technology in high esteem. They truly had the creme de le creme and they worked hard at it. Shoot, who the dickens else was there? Oh, J. H. P. Watson was the other manager in Wakeman's directorate. Oh, well, Pete Schulz, of course, my co-inventor. Pete had joined about six months before I came. And, at the time — Corning lab was organized according to disciplines. So, they had Chuck Wakeman's physical research. It was probably sixty, seventy scientists strong. And, they had John McDowell's chemical research, which was probably about the same size. And, Don Stookey, (inventor of pyroceram materials, and photochromic glasses, National Medal of Technology winner) whose name you may know, had a small group and they just gave Don whatever he wanted. So, he was the director and leading a small group, fundamental chemical research, I think, or something like that. And then Gale Smith had a metrology group that had all the measurement equipment that would perform the chemical analysis or physical properties measurements that you needed made, and so on. But, that was basically the organization. However, there was a math statistics group that had a big IBM mainframe computer that they utilized. And so, they ran the computer department, if you will. But, they had a few scientist PhDs that they hired as mathematicians that would help solve problems for others of us that needed it.

Lassman:I see. Was that all under the umbrella of a central research lab basically?

Keck:Yes.

Lassman:The machine development laboratory, that was a separate organization or was that connected at all to the central lab?

Keck:I'll be honest, I don't remember. Because there had been a number of strong personalities through the history of the organization. At some point, Armistead folded everything under his dominion. You had the machine stuff and the central lab was under Armistead. Whether that was the case when I joined, or whether Dave Liebson and Bill Armistead were on par reporting positions to the Houghton, Chairman Houghton, I don't remember.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:Clearly at some point Armistead became powerful enough and pulled it all under his leadership. It may have been when Dave Liebson retired, that they folded it in together. I remember hearing a story, subsequent to coming to Corning, — the laboratory had been down in the valley. And, when they made the first move up to the hill, the first building that went up there was — have you driven up to the hill?

Lassman:I have been up there.

Keck: You remember the building with the big funny thing on top?

Lassman: Yes.

Keck: It's called a Robertson ventilator. Any glass factory in the world you will see that type of cube on the building. And, it's basically just designed to get the heat out from all the glass furnaces. So, a gentleman by the name of Tom Howitt was asked by Chairman Houghton, this is before Amo Houghton, or current House of Representatives, Houghton, and before Jamie, clearly. It was their dad. And Howitt was asked to build a process research center up on the hill. And the senior Houghton had already decided he was going to build his laboratory up there, but he wanted Liebson, or not Liebson, Howitt to start the process research center so central to good glassmaking. And Howitt said, "Well. Fine. How do I get the money?" And he said, "Oh, just tell me what you need." So, Howitt went away and got some engineers working on it, and put an estimate together and said it'll cost $4 million to build this process center." Houghton said, "Fine. We'll do it." Didn't have to sign any papers or anything like that. No bureaucracy. The bean counters were totally out of the equation. Houghton said, "You got $4 million. No problem. Go build it." Howitt said he did. Put the thing, the process research center, I think it started before the '63 move to Sullivan Park. That was probably in '61, you know, 1960, '61, somewhere in that time frame. But, you know, whether another industrialist can say, "I've got the money. Just do it."

Lassman: Very little bureaucracy.

Keck: No bureaucracy.

Lassman: And was that also a similar process as well for your research program, the way Armistead ran the lab?

Keck: I don't ever recall worrying about budgets or anything like that. We were assigned a project and you worked on the project diligently. And, nobody ever said anything to us about money. I guess the first I remember hearing about money was when young Amo Houghton, now in the Congress, well just is relinquishing his congressional seat, was Chairman, and he was setting the goals for the corporation. And, I don't know if it was the first or second year I was at Corning. Bob called us all into the office. Corning's sales were $200 million — no $100 million, and the strategy and the goal for the corporation was that within three years we would be at $200 million, which is a pretty spectacular goal. Doubling in three years is a good growth rate. That was probably the first discussion I ever heard on money, at Corning. And, we did it. The company, color television was still just booming. It was until '75, that they had the infamous guns of August.

Lassman: That was in August. But also at this time too, Corning had a semiconductor business. You mentioned Charles Wakeman. Didn't he leave at some point, around this time, to go run Signetics?

Keck: Signetics. Yes. They had bought Signetics, from whom I don't know. Corning already had the resistor and capacitor plant. And, MacAvoy, Tom MacAvoy had come out of the laboratory and was president. This was '68-'69, somewhere very early in my tenure, that they bought Signetics. I'm pretty sure they bought Signetics after I joined. But, somewhere between then and 1970 they signed the cross-license with Bell Labs. They put fiber optic technology in the cross-licensing equation to allow us to get the needed transistor patents for Signetics. And, in return, fiber optics was on the table from our side going their way. Anything we came up with in fiber optics would, they would have a immediate cross-license for. Yeah. And, I don't know. I don't know whether Wakeman went on and ran Signetics.

Lassman: I think he went and ran the laboratory down in North Carolina.

Keck: Yes. He went down and ran the Raleigh lab, when Gerhard Megla left, and then later went over to France and ran the French laboratory. I don't think he ever went to Signetics.

Lassman: I just wanted to get a sense of what the business sectors were at that time period.

Keck: Television was the big one. They always had the consumer, well always until a few years back. It was the science products that made the, all the glassware, scientific glassware. And then the electronics division. I think there were those four entities. There might have been — I've forgotten now. It must have been some years later, but they created the international division. But, clearly, a lot of those businesses were international later.

Lassman: The scope of research is really pretty broad the way you described it, physics, chemistry, metrology? Did you get a sense, during this time period, what research was like at other glass companies? Was Corning's situation, research set up similar? Was it very different?

Keck: Yes. The truthful answer is I was still pretty naïve and could only go by what other people said. It became clear that Schott was one of our major competitors, and eventually we found out that Schott was organized virtually identically with the way Corning was.

Lassman:I'm sorry. Who?

Keck:The two organizations.

Lassman:This other organization?

Keck:Schott in Germany. Schott Glass.

Lassman:All right.

Keck:It was almost as though if one organization changed why the other would mimic it, and vice versa. In terms of developments and so on. There weren't a whole lot of other glass companies in the U.S.

Lassman:The only other one that came to mind, I was thinking of, was Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Keck:We formed the joint venture with Pittsburgh Plate to form Pittsburgh-Corning to make glass architectural blocks. Then Owens-Corning to form fiberglass. They did containers, and we came up with a process for fiber, blowing fibers and put the two together to form Owens-Corning. So, there were joint ventures that sprang out of those interactions. But, we always used to say, the glass industry would have had three major components: the flat glass, which was largely [Libby Owens Ford], the container business, which was Owens Illinois, and then the specialty glass, which was Corning. We were the leaders in specialty glass. And, we didn't make flat. We didn't make [bottles]. And, if we ventured into something that looked like it crossed into those areas, well then we would use joint ventures.

Lassman:What did you see, coming in as a PhD physicist, academically trained, doing very advanced scientific research, coming into a company like Corning that has a very strong craft tradition, glass and glass making, what was your impression as a PhD physicist of coming into an organization like that? Was there a tension between the traditional craft-making, tacit knowledge, that had such a long history at Corning, versus your type of experience and expertise coming in? Was there a tension there or was there an easy collaboration? Was there a collaboration?

Keck:Well, if there was a tension, I didn't recognize it. The work that was going on around me, by colleagues, Nick Borrelli and the group was doing high power laser, glass laser work, so we had, well we had actually two organizations worrying about the possibility of glass lasers. They were on the cutting edge of finding new lasing materials. A gentleman upstairs — I mentioned, radio frequency sputtering at IBM — was in fact doing radio frequency sputtering to try and deposit films from either the resistor and capacitor business. Mike Teeter was working on the plasma discharges, looking at the possibility of some alternate display technique that might supply a cathode ray tubes for television. We were worrying about, was there a threat to our banner business out there? So, there was certainly lots and lots of high technology. Those are examples that came to my mind. Well, Jim, James H.P. Watson was doing work in superconductivity trying to make superconducting glass wires. And he had a, had the only way I can describe him is, have you seen the movie that involves Ichabod Crane? — Sleepy Hollow? — That is Walt Disney's adaptation of the Washington Irving, "Legend of Sleepy Hollow"?

Lassman:I haven't seen that.

Keck:Well, if you saw this caricature, his long face, pointy nose, and buckteeth, this was Dr. Norm Hindley. He was a theorist. A dear gentleman, but just not blessed with, with features that endeared him to many people. Brilliant theorist. He was working out the theory of superconductivity for Vycor nanoscale porous Vycor wires, glass wires. So, very advanced technologic work going on, but right down the hall you'd have a glass grinding shop. So, when you needed to make your laser rod, and polish the ends of the glass, you know, you went down to the crafts people and they'd polish the ends for you. So, it was a learning experience to be able to go down and get the crafts people to make the things you needed, and tell them why, and so on. And, frankly, I had described how in high school I made friends with the rural — the have-nots, and the haves, and so on, and I didn't have a bunch of problem in getting along in Corning, and getting things done that I needed done. There were oftentimes, well, in some of the early work, I needed a hole drilled in the center of a glass cylinder, a starting preform for some of the fibers. And so you go down, — the foremen of the craft shop were always a bit gruff and kind of wanted to put the young scientists in their place, and so on, and so on, but I had grown up knowing how to deal with that sort of behavior. And, gradually then, just through working with them in a nice fashion, got over it and befriended them. There was one fellow in the machine shop. I remember he built gorgeous gunstocks, just works of art. And, so, you'd go down and talk with him about his gunstock, and get him to telling you about the thing. So, if you showed an interest in their things then why they bent over backwards to elevate your project to a higher level. And so, you know, it's the normal interactions of other human beings that got your work done, and so on. Clearly there were people around that didn't know how to do that, and therefore didn't advance their projects as well as, well I was able to. Apparently. Well, clearly craftspeople existed. And you'd go down into the crafts end of things. It's a dirty environment. And, you know, but salt of the earth people and they would do every bit as good a job. And what they were good at as you tried to do in the high technology end of things. It was just a question of getting to know them and figuring out how to interact.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:But, I had no problems. I must confess that some of the union rules got me in trouble a couple of times. We weren't supposed to do any wiring. You had to hire, or call an electrician if you needed to do that. And, there were a couple of times when I had grievances filed against me where I was taking the initiative of doing some wiring in the lab that I wasn't — it was simple enough. I was going to do it and not wait for somebody to show up two days later and do the thing. And, so, after the first one or two of those I learned to shut the door.

Lassman:And be much more careful.

Keck:Be much more careful about who knew what I was doing, and turn off the light if you could. And things like that. Well, by in large, but it's like everything in life. You learn the rules of whatever game you're playing. And once you learn the rules, then you can play the game much better.

Lassman:Okay. Well, this next one is, why don't we call it for now?

Keck:Okay.

Notes for Stephen Arnold (Steve) Wineteer:

Stephen Arnold Wineteer, Sr. LtCol USAF (Ret.) May 13, 1941 - Jan 28, 2018 of St. Peters, Missouri, died Sunday after a brief bout with advanced melanoma. He was 76. He is survived by his wife, Gerry; daughter, Stephanie, of Tampa, Florida; son Michael, of Northglenn, Colorado; son, Steve (Pam), of Lakewood, Colorado, stepdaughter, Teresa (Jeff), of St. Peters, Missouri, stepson, Paul (Dana), of Apex, North Carolina; plus, seven grand-children. Steve was born a fireman's boy, the only child to parents, Bill and Alma Wineteer, in San Diego, California, when the population of all of San Diego County was less than 300,000.

After graduating from Lincoln High School there, he went on to get a degree in Microbiology from San Diego State before joining the Air Force in 1962. He began his Air Force career in communications and spent eight years in that field stationed first at Burns Flat, Oklahoma, then in Pearl City, HI where he was sent in 1966 only seven years after "five-oh" came into the union. Before going to Vietnam, he was awarded the Expert Marksmanship medal which he explained like this: "The guy shooting next to me was a MSgt and was a Security Policeman. The maximum score you could obtain was 70. My target was scored and was 72. He got a 50. This meant that he hit my target at least twice and missed his at least 20 times. I told him that if we came under attack I was not counting on him to defend me." Steve was in Vietnam during the Tet Offensive as well as two other battle campaigns. He was later awarded the U.S. Navy Unit Commendation medal for support of Scope Control which was the recovery of Apollo space capsules as they landed in the ocean. His unit provided all communications from the aircraft carrier to the outside world.

In 1970 still in the Air Force, Steve took an opportunity to move into the computer field at the dawn of the information age. His work environment in the early 1970s had keypunch machines, punched cards, removable disk drives the size of washing machines and computers that literally filled vast rooms - all of which would now be dwarfed by the storage, speed and processing power of your cell phone. He began in COBOL applications and moved into mainframe Systems Programming back when that meant building many system functionalities from scratch. One of his prouder achievements was his multi-year contribution to the 552nd AWAC Wing at Tinker AFB in Oklahoma. He and his family were at the ribbon-cutting of the first E3 in 1977. Steve retired from the Air Force in 1983 and as the date approached, his phone seemed like it would never stop ringing with people calling to offer him jobs literally all over the world. In 1983, there were not many people with 13 years of computer experience, let alone folks that experienced with a work ethic like his. He decided on First National Bank of Omaha so he could stay close to his children who were still in school. He worked there for about a decade much of which was time filled with long hours and weekends on the job. He told a story of once marching around his floor of the bank with his Systems cohorts banging on things to make noise while they all hooted and hollered. They were about to enter the first weekend that none of them had to be in the office in nearly two full years.

After FNBO, he went to work at First Data Resources in Omaha where he spent many more years. In the mid-1980s, he also began teaching night computer courses at Iowa Western Community College which he did for a decade. His son, Steve cannot count the number of folks he's met who've said to him "You're Steve Wineteer's son? He taught me Assembler Language." or another mainframe class. "It was at IWCC that I really got a grasp of how well Pop knew his trade. I attended school there myself and was struggling with a COBOL dump one afternoon. He happened into the lab and I told him what I was doing and tried to show him my source code. He flipped through the pages of my printout to the dump itself and read the hexadecimal as if it were English. 'There's your problem right there.' and then took me to the exact instruction I had coded wrong." (In case you're not a techie, that's impressive and extremely rare.)

Steve's son, Michael and a high school friend, Paul were talking in the spring of 1987 and Paul said his mom had just told him everyone she had dated recently had turned out to be less than ideal. Michael said "My dad is having the same problem." They set Steve and Gerry up for a blind date and they eventually married in August, 1989. In their years together they traveled the world and reveled in the company of their blended family any time they could. Steve was a believer in all people's potential and carried no prejudice. When he went to Officer Training in Mississippi in 1962, he took his clothes to a laundromat one day and it had a sign out front that read "Whites Only." Concerned, he wondered to himself "Where am I going to wash my colored clothes?" A fellow officer says "I arrived at Offutt AFB at a time when the work was new and exciting but the climate for Blacks in the military was challenging, at best. Even worse were the prospects for Black officers, there just were not many of us in 1974 so I had no role models. But there was Steve! Out of nowhere, I got a new job, a new boss and a mentor -- Steve. He showed me the ropes, explained the promotion system to me and protected me while I gained my 'sea legs'. And, for no apparent reason than he was a caring and honest guy. I grew to trust and depend on him and we became lifelong friends. Every interaction with me was selfless and endearing. Even later as I progressed in my career, I would receive a call out of the blue from Steve stating that he was in my corner. He was the BEST human being I have ever met!" Steve had close friends; both women and men, of races and sexual preferences different from his own. To him, these things were non-issues. Steve loved to laugh and enjoyed - and often made - a sarcastic wisecrack and loved to tell or listen to funny stories. In the 1970s, he would often catch one of his kids unaware and tickle them until they were out of breath from laughing and he watched the Fat Albert Show with his young children every Saturday. After the disgrace at the end of Bill Cosby's career, his son was talking to him about a bit that Cosby had done and Steve wistfully thought back and said "We had fun, didn't we?" "Yeah, Pop. We did."

Funeral Services will be Friday February 2, 10am, at Joy Community Church, 810 Westwood Industrial Park Dr St Charles, Missouri 63304. Memorial donations may be made to American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, and Alzheimer's Association.

Notes for Sharon Ann Rapp:

Sharon Ann (Rapp) Flesch, 66, of Winona died in peace Dec. 25, 2009, at home with her family at her side after more than five years of courageously battling cancer. Sharon was born July 19, 1943, to Victor and Ruth (Fischer) Rapp in Rockville, Missouri. She was baptized, confirmed, and married to William Flesch at Zion Lutheran Church in Rockville.

She had a gift in relating to children, using play and interactive activities as venues for learning experiences. Students from Winona Senior High's Community Service Learning class, many of whom were former preschool students, came back to volunteer with her in the classroom. With practicum students and student teachers from Winona State University and Saint Mary's University in the preschool classroom, Sharon served not only children but mentored college students in their career choice.

Sharon was also on faculty with the Lutheran Bible Institute of Minneapolis, conducting seminars, "Kids in the Book," with elementary-age children in churches in the Midwest, California and Montana. As a Christian, Sharon's priority in a legacy to both her children and grandchildren was passing a living faith on to them. She valued the relationships of life, especially family relationships. Marriage Notes for Leonor Roehm and Esther Hieber:

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hieber of Freedom, Saturday, January 29, 1938, at 3:30 o'clock. Their daughter, Miss Esther, was united in marriage to Leonor Roehm, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Roehm, of Saline. As the bridal party entered the room, Miss Beulah Roehm played Lohengrin's wedding march. The attendants were Miss Melinde Roehm, sister of the groom, and Walter Hieber, brother of the bride. Rev. W. Bauman, pastor of Bethel Church, read the double ring service. The bride wore a white satin gown and carried a bouquet of white carnations held with a bow of white tulle. The bridesmaid wore rose satin and carried pink carnations. The house was effectively decorated with pink and white as the color scheme.

After the ceremony a bountiful wedding dinner was served to the 45 guests. A beautifully decorated wedding cake centered the table. The couple will soon move into their new home on Case Road. The wedding marked the 35th wedding anniversary of the groom's parents and a nice tablecloth was presented them in honor of the event.

Miss Lucille Schmid is displaying her usual pluck and courage. She exercises daily with her crutches. We are glad to see you about again, Lucille, and congratulate you for your grit. We are cheered by your smile.

Mr. and Mrs. Leoner Roehm, of Case Road, Clinton, will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary at an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday Jan. 20, 1963, at Saline township hall. The couple, who were married January 29, 1938, at Bethel E. & R. Church, have lived at 11825 Case Rd. all their married life. Mrs. Roehm is the former Esther Hieber. Both are members of St. James United Church of Christ. The couple have five daughters, Mrs. Rex Kanitz of Milan, Mrs. Errol Dorr of Chelsea, Mrs. Paul Steeb of Ann Arbor, Marlene and Karen at home; four sons, Orman, Earl, Eugene and Karl at home; and one granddaughter.

John Charles¹¹ Feldkamp (Edna Luella¹⁰ Schill, Anna Barbara⁹ Schaible, Johannes⁸, Johann Martin⁷, Matthaeus⁶, Johann Martin⁵, Anna⁴ Blaich, Martin³, Sebastian², Hans¹) was born 04 Dec 1931 in Saline, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, and died 05 Mar 2008 in Saline, Washtenaw Co, Michigan. He married Lynne Foster. She was born 15 Aug 1938.

Notes for John Charles Feldkamp:

May 1985 - Already planning to rebuild their fire-damaged farmhouse, the John Feldkamp's are grateful today that there's anything left to restore. A blaze that began Monday morning, in the large barn a short distance upwind from the Feldkamp farmhouse, came close to destroying the family homestead that dates back more than a century.

The fire was jetting through the barn roof when discovered by Glenn Mann, spraying a nearby field. John Feldkamp and his wife had already left for work—he in Manchester and she in Ann Arbor. Their daughter Tammy was alone in the house. Mann raced to the house, gave her the alarm, and the Saline Area Fire Department was called.

The crew responded quickly, but the entire barn was ablaze when they arrived. The Saline volunteers—plus crews from Pittsfield, Milan, Clinton, Manchester and Dexter, 38 units of equipment altogether—put most of their effort into saving the Feldkamp home. The flames, whipped by a breeze that aimed straight for the house, destroyed several outbuildings around the barn, and the flying sparks and intense heat finally set the upper level of the house afire. But a nearby building that reportedly contained ammunition and explosives was saved. If it had gone, the house would have gone too, and possibly some of the firemen who braved the heat and smoke and danger to keep both buildings well-soaked with water.

The roof of the house was mostly destroyed, and the interior was water-damaged. But the structure was saved, and the Feldkamp's quickly decided to restore it. Friends reported Tuesday that the rebuilding will begin as soon as possible. Loss estimates vary from $50,000 to twice as much. Firemen agreed that the blaze was their worst in a long time. Heat from the barn fire set truck and tractor tires ablaze halfway across the yard. Welding chemicals and propane tanks exploded sporadically. Saline's Engine No. 5 Was threatened for a time when heat and flying sparks ignited a protective tarp and some hose, and also set the engine's carburetor ablaze. But alert crewmen quickly doused the flare-ups. An ambulance stood by during much of Thursday. But Craig Hoeft of Saline was apparently the only one who needed; it. He was treated at Saline Hospital for smoke inhalation, and released. Also on hand was the SAFD canteen, ready with sandwiches, coffee, soft drinks. The volunteer crews fought the fire for seven hot, exhausting hours, and the food and drink helped. Also helpful were the Allie Finkbeiner's, whose gravel pit nearby on Michigan Avenue supplied the water needed to keep the tankers in business. A longer run, to a city hydrant, would possibly have whipped the firemen's efforts. To keep the tankers moving, David Finkbeiner directed traffic, clearing the path onto the highway from their drive.

The firemen were still on hand when the Feldkamp's and friends began the immense cleanup job. Tammy—who plans to marry in August—arid Karl, who is slated to graduate from Saline High in early June—are part of the cleanup team, and the near-disaster at their home won't change their big dates. John Feldkamp's collection of old guns is reportedly saved. The family is staying temporarily with neighbors and friends—the Dennis Perkins, Daniel Hoeft's, and the Cornelius family—and there's a possibility that they'll use a camper for their home during the rebuilding. Help from friends and neighbors, from the Red Cross and the Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints, was offered even before the heat of the fire died down. And by sundown Monday, friends and neighbors had completely cleaned the interior of the house. "We're so very grateful," Mrs. Feldkamp said.

John C. Feldkamp of Saline, Michigan, age 76, died Wednesday March 5, 2008 at his home with his family by his side. He was born Dec. 4, 1931 in Saline, the son of the late Karl and Edna (Schill) Feldkamp. John was a member of the United States Army serving during the Korean War, and was employed by Johnson Controls in Manchester, Michigan until his retirement. John had a passion for old relics and weaponry.

Survivors include his daughter Tamara (Sherwood) Baker, three sons, Karl (Kelly) Feldkamp, Gary (Jody) Feldkamp, and John Feldkamp. Other survivors include seven grandchildren and several nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by one brother Wesley Feldkamp, two sisters Louella Hack, and Esther Lindemann.

Notes for Gertrude Ann Duwald:

Gertrud A. Klager, better known as Gerti, was born in Lollar, Germany on May 8, 1929. She came to the United States with her husband PFC. William James and they settled in Saline, Michigan. William James preceded her in death December 1960. Gerti then moved to Bridgewater, Michigan with her second husband Lloyd S. Klager, who also preceded her in death February 1969. Gerti was one of 5 sisters, late Margarta of Maryland, late Hedwig of Minnesota, Irene of Germany and Irmgard of Australia. Gerti is also survived by her three children, Mary (late Vic) Izzo, Ronald (Kathy) James and Trudy (Russell) San Nicolas; 6 grandchildren and 9 great-grandchildren.

Gerti was a longtime member of St. John's Lutheran Church in Bridgewater, Michigan. She enjoyed being a Sunday School Teacher for over 25 years, singing in the choir and being a member of the Mary-Martha Circle Women's Bible Study Group. Living right across from the church, Gerti was also the "unofficial watchdog" for the church, always knowing about church happenings. Gerti loved spending time with her grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She loved traveling especially to Florida and California. Gerti loved to knit; probably some of you have received a knitted scarf from her. Gerti loved her Hallmark Movies and loved decorating for Christmas. She had been known to keep up her decorations until February! Many people know Gerti from working at Comerica Bank or after she retired, working at Tim Horton's where she greeted her regulars with a smile and a cup of coffee.

Her family wishes to extend their deepest gratitude and appreciation to the Saline Evangelical Home and Arbor Hospice for their dedicated care and compassion in caring for Gerti. In lieu of flowers, if you wish to make a memorial contribution to St. John's Lutheran Church or EHM Senior Solutions, 440 W. Russell St., Saline, Michigan 48176. Please include in memory of Gertrud Klager on your donation. Funeral Services will be held on Monday, December 7, 2020 at 11:30 A.M. at St. John's Lutheran Church in Bridgewater, Michigan with a viewing starting at 11:00 A.M. Notes for Steven Lee Diuble:

Sept. 9, 1994 - Trigger is at the top of his game. No Australian terrier has won more in the United States this year than he has. Champion The Farm's Trigger Happy, a 3-year-old owned by handler Steve Diuble of Saline and breeder Sheila Dunn of Grass Lake, beat 14 champions in breed at the Westminster Kennel Club Show at Madison Square Garden in February. Trigger, who stands 11 inches tall and weighs 18 pounds, is competing Saturday in the Saginaw Valley Kennel Club All-Breed Dog Show & Obedience Trial and Sunday in the Livonia Kennel Club All-Breed Dog Show & Obedience Trial. Diuble can't say enough about the blue and tan terrier: "Trigger's an ambassador for the breed. He's got a wonderful temperament. He's very loving and affectionate, outgoing and sensible. He's a fun show dog, He's very animated in the ring, but not hyperactive." Trigger's also being worked in obedience by Dunn, and Diuble said he will compete for a Companion Dog obedience title next year.

Diuble and Dunn also own Trigger's dad, Champion The Farm's Free Style, the nation's top Australian terrier in 1989-90. Freebie, 9, has sired 25 champions. "This is a big dog in a small package," Diuble said of the breed. "They're very adaptable. They can live in an apartment or on a farm. They require minimum grooming and are a very sturdy, healthy breed on the whole. They live 12 to 16 years." The standard was established in 1896 in Australia, where it is a working breed. "They controlled rodents and killed snakes there," said Diuble, who is publicity chairman of the Ann Arbor Kennel Club and the accounting manager for First of America Bank. Australian terriers were recognized by the American Kennel Club in 1960 and are judged in the Terrier Group. American Kennel Club statistics show only 36 dogs and 17 litters were registered in 1994.

Before his retirement in 1999, Gerald was Director of Land Management for 20 years at Michigan State University in East Lansing, Michigan. He and his wife Jean celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on December 31, 2005.

Jerry is survived by his wife Jean and their five children Ronald Haarer of Bloomfield, Michigan, Terry (Christopher) Saxton of Plymouth, Michigan, Jeff (Michelle) Haarer of Lansing, MI, Pam (Kevin) Collins of Windermere, Florida and Karen (Robert) Ziolkowski of Naples, Florida, twelve grand-children. C. Gerald (Jerry) Haarer Laurence Bonita Springs, Florida (formerly of East Lansing, Michigan), age 71, passed away peacefully Friday, February 17, 2006 at Naples Community Hospital. He and his wife Jean celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on December 31, 2005. In 1952, Jerry moved to the Lansing area to attend Michigan State University. In association with William Brittain, Jerry formed Mahogany Farms in 1969 that later developed into Premier Cattle Corporation, a nationally recognized organization. Additionally, Jerry and Jean established Manor Hill Farms, where an Angus cattle breeding program and Arabian horses were managed, shown, and cared for by their children. In 1979 Jerry became the first Land Management Director at Michigan State University. Jerry's vision and passion was to establish a state-of-the-art facility where livestock exhibitors could showcase agriculture to the general public. He inspired others to share in his vision that led to the construction of the Pavilion for Agriculture and Livestock Education. Retiring in 2000, Jerry Haarer has left an extraordinary legacy of service to his family and all those involved in the livestock and horse industry. In 2004, the Agriculture Department at MSU established a Livestock Industry Scholarship in his name to continue to recognize Jerry's and to thank him for all he had done.

Jerry is survived by his wife, Jean and their five children, Ronald Haarer of Bloomfield, Michigan, Terry (Christopher) Saxton of Plymouth, Michigan, Jeff (Michelle) Haarer of Lansing, Michigan, Pam (Kevin) Collins of Windermere, Florida and Karen (Robert) Ziolkowski of Naples, Florida, twelve grandchildren and sister-in-law, Paula Haarer.

A Funeral Mass will be celebrated on Monday, February 20th in Bonita Springs, Florida. A Memorial Service will be held in East Lansing on Saturday, February 25th at 10:30 a.m. at St. John's Catholic Student Parish. A reception to follow in the parish hall. Lansing, Feb. 20, 2006- A humble farmer and diligent worker, C. Gerald Haarer helped establish an agricultural empire at Michigan State University. As the first director of the MSU Land Management Department, Haarer oversaw the construction of the MSU Pavilion and enhanced the university's off-campus properties and facilities. Haarer, 71, died of congestive heart failure Friday at a hospital in Naples, Florida. He was surrounded by his wife, Jean, and their children and grandchildren. "His whole life and vision has been in agriculture and farms," said Haarer's daughter, Pam Collins of Windermere, Florida. "I've never met a harder working, humbler man who never wanted credit for anything."

Achieving a lifelong dream, Haarer saw the construction of the Pavilion for Agriculture and Livestock Education before he retired in 2000. The massive pavilion at Farm Lane and Mount Hope Road, built for $14.5 million, is now a staple of Spartan life, hosting hundreds of rodeos, shows, auctions and tournaments each year. As land management director, Haarer was in charge of research facilities at 44 sites with more than 20,000 acres in 28 counties. He came to Lansing to study at MSU, where he was a member of the livestock judging team, after graduating from Saline High School in 1952.

In 1957, he started a small meat processing plant with his father and brother. He later formed Mahogany Farms, which developed into Premier Cattle Corp., and then Manor Hill Farms, featuring an Angus cattle breeding program and Arabian horses. He became the first land management director at MSU in 1979. "Jerry's great impact was that he saw each of the MSU locations as a reflection of the university," said Roger Wilkinson, the former MSU vice president of finance, who worked with Haarer for 12 years. "He had a major responsibility and was a wonderful man to work with."

Notes for Frederick J. Schmid:

Ann Arbor, July 21, 2000 - When B. J. Zahn was growing up, he worried a little bit every time his father left to begin his shift as an Ann Arbor firefighter. Now, it's his dad's turn to fret. That's because B.J. Zahn is following in his father's footsteps, just as his father did and his grandfather before that. It's a family affair that spans 84 years. Besides being a fourth-generation Ann Arbor firefighter, B.J. Zahn is also the fourth Benjamin John Zahn to wear an Ann Arbor firefighter's badge. Although having four generations at the same department is unusual, the tradition of father and son firefighters is common across the country, said Michelle Snider, executive assistant with the Michigan Professional Firefighters Union.

"I think that as boys and some girls grow up, Daddy is a hero in their eyes and they want to be like Daddy," Snider said. "It's very common in this profession." Ben Zahn Sr. was the first Ann Arbor firefighter in the family. He was hired in 1916 and served as the chief from 1935 until his retirement in 1955. Then came Ben Jr., who was hired in 1953 and retired in 1981 as deputy fire marshall. B. John Zahn was the third generation when he began working with his father in 1971. He retired in December as an assistant chief. B.J. Zahn picked up the tradition when he was hired in March. "We're a close-knit family and we've all been proud of what our fathers did," John Zahn said. "I tried to stay out of it, for B.J. and just let him make his own decision, and of course I'm proud of the decision he made."

Ten current Ann Arbor firefighters are the sons of retired Ann Arbor firefighters. And many more Ann Arbor firefighters have sons on other departments or are the sons of firefighters in different cities. B.J. Zahn said Ann Arbor was the only place he applied because he wanted to keep the tradition alive. "There's nowhere else I want to be," said the 23-year-old Zahn. "This is something I've always wanted to try. I wasn't sure I wanted to make it my career until I got in, and now it's my life. There's nothing else I'd want to do." But firefighting sons admit that it can be a little intimidating at first to follow in their father's footsteps. John Zahn remembers that well, which was one reason he decided to retire as his son was coming on board. John Zahn worked under his father for a decade. "I spent the first 10 years trying not to embarrass my dad. After he left, I was able to be my own person a little more," said Zahn, 50. "It's a little difficult to be compared to your forefathers."

Battalion Chief Tom Schmid was hired on as "Chief Fred Schmid's son" in 1977. He couldn't shake that label for years, even after his father retired in 1985. Upon the elder Schmid's retirement, Tom became "Retired Chief Fred Schmid's son." "We had a little back and forth thing going. I kept telling him, 'One day, I won't be retired Chief Fred Schmid's son. I'll just be me,'" said Tom Schmid, 43. Tom and Fred Schmid both remember that day. Several younger firefighters visited Stadium Hardware one afternoon, where Fred Schmid was working part-time. He was introduced to the group as "Battalion Chief Tom Schmid's dad." He immediately called his son. "I told him right away and he said, 'Well, it's about time,'" Fred Schmid said. Schmid was surprised when his son ended up in the same department. Tom told his dad he wanted to be a firefighter but didn't say where he had applied. When Ann Arbor had openings, the personnel department sent Fred Schmid a hiring list and Tom Schmid's name was at the top. "I called the administrator right away and said, 'What do I do here? That's my son's name,' " Fred Schmid said. Tom Schmid's 16-year-old son, Adam, recently decided he wants to follow in his father's footsteps too. He's part of the fire department's Explorers program. "I wasn't too surprised because he's been around it since he was born," Tom Schmid said.

Notes for Raymond LeRoy Marx:

Raymond LeRoy Marx of Lansing, Michigan, age 92, passed away Wednesday, November 19, 2014. He was born in Manchester, Michigan November 4, 1922 to LeRoy and Emma (Silsby) Marx. At that time, Manchester was a very rural town and Ray grew up loving to hunt, fish and play baseball. He started college at Michigan State, but his education was interrupted by World War II. He honorably served in the US Army as an officer and spent two years in the European theater. After the war, he returned to MSU where he met his future bride, Jean Jursik. This began their 66-year love affair. They moved to Detroit where he started a truck equipment business with his father-in-law, eventually taking it over and running it for over 30 years. Along the way, he was president of the National Truck Equipment Association, and also learned to downhill ski with the family. After he retired, Ray and Jean split their time between their beautiful home on Walloon Lake near Petoskey where they were golfing members of the Bay View Country Club, and their condo in Tucson, where he played more golf and hiked in the nearby mountains. They traveled all over the world including several trips to Europe; a safari in Tanzania; 2 trips through the Panama Canal; and, a trip to Tierra del Fuego at the tip of South America.

Notes for Jean Jursik:

Jean Jursik Marx, of Boyne City was born in Havana, Cuba in 1926 where her father owned a Ford tractor dealership. Shortly after Ford withdrew from Cuba, the family moved to the little town of Islip, on Long Island near New York City. While her Dad worked for his father-in-law, Jean grew up along the shore, roaming the beaches and learning to swim, and to catch fish and crabs from the dock. When she was nine, her family moved to Detroit where her dad started a new career. Jean went to Redford High and worked at the big downtown Hudson's store. She became a big Tigers fan and often took the bus by herself (in a very different pre-war Detroit) to games where she watched from the bleachers. She attended MSU where she majored in Home Economics and Dietetics, and met the love of her life, Ray Marx. They married in 1948 and were together for 66 years, best friends and sweeties until Ray's death in 2014.

Jean was a homemaker and raised three children at their home in Franklin, Michigan. She was very accomplished at fabric crafts including sewing, quilting, embroidery, crewel, and her favorite, rug hooking. She joined a group of "hookers" and went to hooker conventions, and created beautiful rugs that still grace the homes of her children. She and Ray took up sailing and downhill skiing from their cottage on Walloon Lake, and enjoyed many skiing vacations and backpacking trips in the Rockies. One of her favorite things to do when they lived in Franklin was to host dinner parties at their home. She would invite 3 or 4 couples, friends from church, the neighborhood, or any of their other activities to come over on a Saturday night, and everyone would dress up, coats and ties and cocktail dresses, drinks were served and Jean would create a great four course meal for a beautiful evening. The kids would get TV dinners in the family room. After retirement, she and Ray split their time between their condo and country club in Tucson and their beautiful home on Walloon Lake near Petoskey. They played golf and enjoyed entertaining family whenever they could visit. They travelled all over the world, a safari in Africa, cruises through the Panama Canal and Cape Horn, to Australia and all over Europe. Over the years, children, grandchildren, and eventually great-grandchildren came to Walloon and Jean loved it.

She is survived by three children, Richard and Linda Marx of Troy, Gary and Linda Marx of East Lansing, and Nancy and Tom Giles of East Lansing, seven grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday, April 7, 2015, 11:00 a.m. at Gorsline Runciman Funeral Homes, 1730 East Grand River Avenue, East Lansing. The family will receive friends at the funeral home one hour prior to the service. Interment will be at Oak Grove Cemetery, Manchester, Michigan. Those desiring may make contributions in memory of Jean to Little Traverse Conservancy, 3264 Powell Road, Harbor Springs, Michigan 49740.

Anderes-Pfeifley Funeral Home 303 S. Broadway, Riley, Kansas was founded in 1935 as the Holmes Funeral Home. Harold Holmes opened the original funeral home at 316 S. Broadway, across the street from our current location until the Holmes family built their home at 303 S. Broadway in Riley. Harold lived in & operated the funeral home until 1957, when Ed & Mildred Pfeifley purchased the business.

Ed & Millie raised their three sons in the same building where they operated the business. In the 1970's, an addition to the chapel was completed to add more seating. We can comfortably seat 200 people.

In 1980, their son, Phil Pfeifley purchased the business from his parents. Another addition was done in the early 1990's to add a formal entry and restroom. At that time, the funeral home became Holmes-Pfeifley Funeral Home.

Jarred & Jenny Anderes purchased the funeral home in 2013 and it became Anderes-Pfeifley Funeral Home. We are proud to keep the tradition of a true family owned & operated funeral home. We understand that each family is unique and we strive to accommodate those personal needs and traditions.

Born and raised in Fort Wayne, Sue graduated from Central Catholic High school in 1954. She went on to get her degree in Medical Coding. Sue married her high school sweetheart John (Jack) Slane April 7, 1955. Sue was hired by St. Joseph Hospital in 1954, and her career spanned 62 years with the majority of it working at the hospital. Notes for Sharon Lynn Schible:

With a welcoming heart and warm spirit, Sharon Lynn Dunn was a loving woman whose generous ways inspired all who knew her. Born in a time of peace and prosperity and having lived her youth in a time of rapid change, Sharon possessed a natural gift for connecting with others and affording many a sense of belonging and deep comfort. Sharon centered her hopes and dreams around her family and with an undaunting spirit made her dreams reality. The year 1946 was marked by much celebration and hope. With the victorious end of World War II, families tuned into the celebratory tunes of Bing Crosby, Perry Como, and the Andrews Sisters, while children delighted in the debut of the slinky. While the nation indulged in a renewed sense of peace and newfound hope, even greater promise for the future was celebrated by William and Gertrude (Miller) Schible of Fort Wayne, Indiana, as they welcomed their youngest daughter Sharon into their family on May 20th.

Like many in her generation, Sharon grew up in a time of vibrant growth as consumerism took off in previously unimaginable ways. For the first time in history, seven out of ten families in the US owned an automobile, the new home market exploded, and the baby boom continued to proliferate. Elvis Presley and Chuck Berry dominated the airways celebrating peace and prosperity. For her first nine years of life, Sharon grew up as the youngest child in the Schible family, chasing and enjoying the good company of her older sisters, Sue and Sandra. When her brother Tom was born, Sharon became a big sister herself. Most of her summers were spent enjoying freedom and fun at the lake.

As a teen, Sharon possessed a slightly mischievous side. Not only did she take an unauthorized trip to Chicago or her dad's Lincoln out on the ice covered lake, she also painted her car with just paint and a paint brush. Sharon attended Bishop Luers High School and was a proud graduate of the class of 1964. Sharon's spiritedness gradually mellowed as she grew into adulthood and soon after graduation, at the age of 19, she married. At 21 Sharon earnestly embraced the joys of motherhood when her first child, Amy, was born. Three more children, Angela, Todd, and Amanda soon followed, and Sharon's heart easily grew more and more focused on her role as a mother. Having grown up in the Catholic Church, Sharon chose to raise her children in the traditions of her youth. With her firm faith and a tremendous sense of honor and responsibility, Sharon poured her energy into creating a loving home for her children. She supported each of them in all of their endeavors and provided a calm sense of center for their family. She especially enjoyed the times spent at the rental home from Memorial Day to Labor Day on Clear Lake.

In addition to being a wonderful mother, Sharon had worked various jobs. For a time she worked at the Fort Wayne YWCA and later retired from her full time position with Headwaters Counseling in 2016 after providing 18 years of loving service to the organization. Without a doubt, family was what afforded Sharon her greatest joy and sense of accomplishment. With an open and accepting heart, Sharon welcomed her friends wholly, unhesitatingly embracing them as family. Sharon understood fully that the relationships she nourished were lifes true treasure. She nurtured life-long friendships with her sisters, enjoying their good company through all of her years, especially their many adventures at Walmart. Sharons grandchildren were her hearts delight, and she was their number one fan. She proudly cheered them on at all of their important events while providing a steadfast faith in each one of them. In Sharons eyes, her grandchildren always knew their worth.

A talented seamstress, Sharon carefully crafted many beautiful gowns and outfits. She also gifted her grandchildren and great-grandchildren with a customary baby blanket that not only kept them warm but enveloped them with her love. Sharons creative talents also included an enthusiastic craftiness and many lovely paintings. Tending her flower garden and cleaning proved powerful stress relievers for Sharon. With each weed pulled, rehabilitated plant, dust bunny snared, and organized drawer Sharon found a calm center, renewed hope, and restored faith. Not only could she sit back and enjoy the deep, satisfying exhaustion of a job well done, Sharon also savored the peace and quiet that came with a sense of order.

Sharon treasured each moment she spent with those she loved. She particularly relished sharing the cottage she and Phil bought on Round Lake. With a spark of Sharons imagination, the loving couple took on the challenges of remodeling the cottage, and transformed into the spectacular sanctuary it is today. With Philips unwavering support, Sharon created many wonderful memories surrounded by friends and family, enjoying the splendors of the lake and the treasure of time together celebrating lifes blessings. Holidays were truly infused with Sharons laughter and kind care, especially Christmas which was her very favorite. Sharon mastered living in the moment and living it fully. In so doing, she gifted many with a powerful legacy of love and an inspiring example of how to live a meaningful life. Though the world is surely duller without Sharons bright light, her vibrant legacy will continue to brilliantly shine in the hearts and lives of those she leaves behind.

Sharon L. Dunn, 71, of Columbia City, passed away peacefully at her home on Round Lake on Tuesday, June 13, 2017. Carrying her legacy forward include her husband like person of 30 years, Phil Papa Grump Schortgen; children, Amy (Rich) Rouse, Angela (Shawn) Demarest, Todd Dunn and Amanda (Joe) Clayton; sister, Sue Slane; brother, Tom (Karen) Schible; brother-in-law, Ron Amundson; 12 grandchildren; four great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents, William and Gertrude Schible; granddaughter, Carrington Drake; sister, Sandra Amundson; and nephew, Mark Fox.

A double-ring ceremony performed at seven o'clock Saturday evening, March 14, 1959, by the Rev. Armin Bizer at the St. James Evangelical and Reformed Church united in marriage Joanne E. Hand and Melvin C. Roehm. The bride, given by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orie A. Hand of Manchester. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Roehm of Saline are the groom's parents. A floor-length gown of embroidered nylon tulle styled with long sleeves and a scoop neck line was chosen by the bride. The skirt, worn over a hoop, featured embroidered scallops at the hemline. A seed pearl and sequin crown held her illusion veil, and she carried pink tea roses and white carnations arranged in a fan shape. As maid of honor, the bride's identical twin sister, Janet Hand, wore a ballerina length gown of nylon tulle in rose pink, with white lace at the-scoop neckline. She carried pink and white carnations. Similar gowns in mint were worn by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Lavern Eversole, sister of the bride, and Janice and Shirley Roehm, sisters of the groom. All carried white carnations. Richard Roehm, of Manchester, a cousin of the groom, served as best man. Guests were seated by Ermine Finkbeiner and Larry Roehm, also cousins of the groom, and Richard Neithammer.

For the reception immediately following, at the church, the bride's mother wore a gown of dusty rose lace with matching accessories. Mrs. Roehm selected gray lace over rose with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of carnations centered with pink roses. Assisting at the reception, attended by about 200, were and Mrs. Harold Strale and Miss Nancy Dunny of Manchester, and Miss Sylvia Dawson of Lexington, Michigan. After a short trip to Florida, the couple will reside with the groom's parents until their new farm home on Matthews Road, west of Clinton, is completed. He married Nancy Jean Haynes 22 Jul 1978 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, daughter of Roland Haynes. She was born 09 Feb 1952.

Notes for Kenneth George Feldkamp:

Kenneth Feldkamp of Clinton, Michigan age 64, died Tuesday, December 26, 2017, at his home. Kenneth was born in Ann Arbor, Michigan on September 10, 1953 to the late Milton and Margaret (Finkbeiner) Feldkamp. Ken married Nancy Haynes on July 22, 1978 in Ann Arbor, Michigan. In addition to his wife, Ken is survived by his daughter, Amy (Bryan) Marr of Britton, Michigan; son, John Feldkamp of Ypsilanti, Michigan; and grandchildren, Aiden and Allison Marr. He is also survived by siblings Diane (Earl) Horning, Albert Feldkamp, and Janet (Jase) Wholehan, as well as many nieces, nephews, great-nieces, and great-nephews.

Ken was preceded in death by his parents. Ken was a lifelong farmer on the family farm in Saline with his brother, Albert. Throughout their farming careers, the "Feldkamp Brothers" enjoyed raising pigs and crops, as well as going to auctions and farm shows. Throughout his childhood, Ken was a member of the Saline 4-H Farmers, Saline High School Future Farmers of America Chapter, and Saline Steer Club.

While in these groups, he participated in showing animals and on judging teams, even traveling to and competing in several State and National 4-H and FFA Conventions. This love of showing animals carried into the rest of his life, as he was proud to help his children, niece, nephew, great-nieces, and great-nephews prepare their own animals, especially their pigs, for 4-H and other local fairs. Ken graduated from Saline High School in 1972, and following his graduation, began a career at Saline Area Schools as a custodian. It was there that he met his future wife, Nancy. "Mr. Kenny" truly enjoyed working with the staff in his various buildings over the years, but his favorite part was spending time with and helping the children who attended his schools. He retired from Saline Area Schools in 2010, after 38 years of service to the district. His family was incredibly important to Ken. The greatest joys of Ken's life were raising his children, Amy and John, and in recent years, being Grandpa to Aiden and Allison and spending time with them whenever he could. Ken was also a lifetime member of St. James United Church of Christ in Saline.

A funeral service will be held on Saturday, December 30, 2017 at 11:00 A.M. at St. James United Church of Christ, 11005 W. Michigan Ave., Saline, with Pastor John Deuble officiating. Visitation will be held at St. James United Church of Christ on Friday, December 29 from 2:00 P.M. until 8:00 P.M. and Saturday, December 30, 2017 from 10:00 A.M. until the time of the service at 11:00 A.M. Burial will take place at the St. James United Church of Christ Cemetery following the service. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to St. James United Church of Christ and envelopes will be available at the church.

6385. Nathan Allan¹¹ Alber (Nathanael Oscar¹⁰, Michael Philip⁹, Eva Katharina⁸ Seeger, Matthaus (Mathew)⁷, Elisabetha⁶ Roller, Christina⁵ Schaible, Anna⁴ Blaich, Martin³, Sebastian², Hans¹) was born 19 Mar 1930 in Freedom Twp, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, and died 21 Jan 2007 in Freedom Twp,

Washtenaw Co, Michigan. He married Ann Iona Way 23 Aug 1952 in Manchester, Washtenaw Co, Michigan. She was born 31 Mar 1930 in Pittsford, Hillsdale Co, Michigan.

Notes for Nathan Allan Alber:

Nathan A. (Al) and Ann Alber, Manchester: The Alber family settled in Freedom Twp. in June of 1855. Being of German heritage they were farmers who grew grains, forage and raised livestock. They also managed an orchard and cider mill. Horses powered the mill. In 1881 John M. Alber, my great grandfather purchased 75 acres from Jason Gillet. This was sold to my grandfather Michael P. Alber in December of 1887. He then installed a (modern) cider mill powered by a steam engine in 1890. This was replaced by a gasoline engine in 1911 and electricity in 1927. The 75 acres was then passed down in turn, to Nathan O. in 1938 to Nathan A. in 1973 (was certified a centennial farm in 1987) and to Michael A. Alber in 1992. Michael A. in 1998 chose to pursue other interests and sold the property. Ann and I still live on the farm by Silver Lake that was purchased by my grandfather in 1901, (certified a centennial farm in 2001). We have enjoyed our life together her. We have seen many changes over the years, perhaps the most significant of which was the transition from horses to the tractors of today. The advent of hybrid seeds and the use of chemicals for weed and insect control also made life on the farm easier and more profitable. I regret the seeming necessity of government farm subsidies and believe that they are destroying the values that were so prized by previous generations.

Alber, Nathan A. (Al), Born March 19, 1930 in Freedom Twp, Washtenaw County, MI passed away January 21, 2007. The son of Nathan O. and Emma K. (Schlicht) Alber. Al married Anna I. Way on August 23, 1952 and she survives, also survived by two children, Pamela S. Hughes and Michael A. Alber, as well as six grandchildren: Daniel, Andrea, Michelle, Emily, Alisha and Philip.

He was a life-long member of the Emanuel United Church of Christ, life member of the NRA. He lived and worked until retirement in 1992 on the family farm in Freedom Twp. Al also owned and operated Alber Orchard and Cider Mill, first with his parents, then with his wife and children. Al served on the board of directors of Union Savings Bank and Freedom Twp, board of review. After retiring Mr. Alber also was a part-time hourly employee of Pioneer HI-BRED Inc.

Cremation has taken place. A memorial service will be held on May 12, 2007. Private interment Oak Grove Cemetery, Manchester. Memorial donations may be made to "Dutchmen fire-fighters". Arrangements entrusted to Borek Jennings Funeral Home, Jenter Chapel.

Notes for Patricia L. Gillette:

Patricia (Gillette, Dowling) Gutekunst April 9, 2016 was the departure date for my last Great Adventure. Preceding me were my parents Leonard and Bertie Gillette, half-brother Herbert (Jean) Gillette, husband Albert Dowling and, way too early, my son Gregory Dowling. Staying behind, my faithful, understanding and loving husband John Gutekunst, my one-of-a-kind son Martin Dowling and the daughter I admire and cherish Barbara (Todd) Dowling Glickstein and a loving stepdaughter, Julee (Mark) Fuller.

If you knew me one time or another then you might know of my successes and failures. If you didn't know me then my life wouldn't be of interest to you. It has been a great life. A mixture of highs and lows, laughter and tears but I lived it the best I could. I just wish that everyone would learn to SMILE. Smiling is easy. You smile at someone and they smile back. The world's problems would be solved easier and faster if everyone just tried smiling at each other. Pat's family would like to thank the outstanding staff at both the Chelsea and Ann Arbor locations of St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital for their outstanding care and compassion. Donations can be made to the Jackson County Animal Shelter or the Cascade Humane Society. A private family service will be held at a later date. Wetherby Funeral Home 402 Wildwood Ave.

Still in serious condition at University Hospital is John G. Bihlmeyer, 27, of 7926 Schneider Rd., who was rushed to the hospital in the Superior Ambulance Co. helicopter, Thursday Feb. 6, 1969, after ahead on auto crash. His wife, Sandra, also 27, was also injured in the mishap, and is reported in good condition at the hospital. The driver of the second car, Gary G. Paxton, 22, of Manchester, was released from the hospital on Friday. Exact cause of the accident was not known. Sheriff's deputies said Paxton's car, east bound on Austin Rd. near Parker Rd., apparently veered across the center line and struck the Bihlmeyer car head-on. Because of the severity of Bihlmeyer's injuries, deputies feared that ambulance transfer to the hospital might take too long; they called for the helicopter which is stationed in Wayne County. It arrived at the accident scene within a few minutes. Mrs. Bihlmeyer and Paxton were transported by ambulance.

Kurt Hochrein To Lead Innovation Collaboration At Dexter Research

Kurt Hochrein, the robotics executive who worked with 20th Century Fox to place Kawasaki Robots in the Steven Spielberg movie Minority Report, has been named Director of Customer Development for Dexter Research Center, Inc. Dexter Research is an industry leader in the innovative design and the volume manufacture of high quality, high output bismuth-antimony thin film and silicon-based radiation sensing thermopile detectors. "More important than helping to advance Tom Cruise's career, Kurt brings his knowledge of electronic, mechanical and software innovation collaboration to one of the most exciting technology enablers in the American economy," said Robert Toth, Jr, president of Dexter Research.

Previously Mr. Hochrein, an industry sales leader in robotics who developed accounts at Toyota, Honda, Nissan and Ford, also launched successful customer collaboration centers across the US and in Canada and Mexico. Mr. Hochrein holds a degree in economics from the University of Michigan and also has energy industry experience.

"I am delighted once again to be leading such an important innovation center," Mr. Hochrein said. "Dexter Research is already making our troops and pilots safer in oversea combat. We play a key role at exhaust emission testing centers, in greenhouse gardening and airplanes, in kitchen appliances and steel factories, ear thermometers and mine safety, weather forecasting and earth measurement. And we're making important contributions to the Mars missions. "But equally important, I believe that you will soon see Dexter Research detectors providing important foundations to industrial and residential control of greenhouse gases. We are also positioned to make important technology transfers to home fire safety, intruder security, and foreign-sourced energy reduction. No wonder our sales are up thirty-four percent in Q1 of this year," Mr. Hochrein said.

Children of Janet Heininger and Robert Mittendorf are:

- + 8489 i. Laura Kathryn¹² Mittendorf, born 01 Jan 1984.
- 8490 ii. Erin Mittendorf, born 13 Aug 1986. She married Shannon Joseph Brines 2013; born 01 Mar 1975.

Notes for Shannon Joseph Brines:

Shannon Brines began authentically growing vegetables and fruits as a child growing up in Dexter and established Brines Farm on that family land in 2004 due to his passion for slow food and sustainable, year-round agriculture. He began selling year-round at farmers markets shortly thereafter and offered the area's first fresh produce Winter CSA share program a few years later. Shannon was selected as a member of the US delegation to participate in Terra Madre 2008 in Turin, Italy: a world slow food meeting focused on increasing small-scale, traditional, and sustainable food production. Shannon is an Applied Geographer and Lecturer at the University of Michigan School of Natural Resources & Environment interested in land use, agriculture, food systems, public health, and sustainable design. He consults on a variety of research projects in academia, most notably: multiple projects with the Center for Social Epidemiology and Population Health which include neighborhood analyses of food access; and, a new USDA-funded project led by the university which will analyze Food Access In Michigan and includes multiple community NGO partners and educational institutions across the state as collaborators.

Shannon is active in our local food community organizations: currently serving on the Slow Food Huron Valley board (vice-chair), HomeGrown Festival steering committee, Local Food Summit steering committee (co-chair), Greenbelt Advisory Commission (vice-chair), and on the student-initiated University of Michigan Sustainable Food Program (UMSFP) Advisory Board. Shannon has also served in the past on the Ann Arbor Public Market Advisory Commission and the Tilian Farm Development Center steering committee. In 2012 Brines Farm expanded its operation in northern Webster Township by purchasing a neighboring historical 80-acre farm. Brines Farm offers a variety of internship opportunities as well as periodic open houses and volunteer days for the public. Additional folks lending their labor of love to the Brines Farm vision currently include Erin Mittendorf (Shannon's spouse as of a 2013 wedding on the farm!), Bill & Marlene Brines (Shannon's parents), Andy Balabuch (Shannon's cousin), Paul Vugteveen, Pete Widin, Shannon's siblings, and many of Shannon & Erin's friends including (but not limited to) Jason Frenzel, Drew DeOrio, Peter Stephens, and Tina Roselle. To all our treasured help, volunteers, and patrons, spanning the past, present, and future, we thank you for your support! We would not be here without you!

Shannon Brines grew up in SE Michigan on a small diversified farm that included woody perennial crops. He officially established Brines Farm in 2004 and began selling year-round at farmers markets and offered one of Michigan's first fresh produce winter CSA share programs. Shannon was selected as a member of the US delegation to participate in Terra Madre 2008 in Turin, Italy, a world slow food meeting focused on increasing small-scale, traditional and sustainable food production. Shannon is an applied geographer at the University of Michigan interested in land use, agriculture, food systems, public health and sustainable design. Shannon currently serves as the chair of Slow Food Huron Valley Board, vice-chair of the Washtenaw county Food Policy Council, a member of the University of Michigan Sustainable Food Program Advisory Board and is newly elected to the Board of Directors of the Washtenaw County Conservation District.

Shannon and his wife, Erin Mittendorf, live on (and steward!) over 80 acres of farmland in northern Washtenaw County where they have been undertaking restoration agriculture techniques since 2012. With ever expanding interests in biodiversity, agroecology, and perennials, Brines Farm has planted tens of thousands of trees and perennial plants. Brines Farm LLC is a State of Michigan licensed and inspected tree and shrub nursery grower and is USDA Certified Organic.

Shannon Brines is a local farmer, staff member at the University of Michigan School of Natural Resources & Environment, and member of the Ann Arbor greenbelt advisory commission (GAC). Kansas City, Missouri Police have released the name of the man who died on Wednesday when he fell from a 17th floor balcony at the Westin Crown Center. According to police, the man is 20-year-old John Connor Schaible from Kansas City's Brookside neighborhood. Police say his friends awoke and discovered he was missing. He was among a group of people staying at the hotel, which including friends and family.

Investigators say there aren't any signs of foul play, and are investigating the likelihood that drugs or alcohol were a factor. A visitor to the hotel says he looked out and saw Schaible's body and then ran in and told his wife. "I ran in and told her there was a body out there and she kind of gasped and came out and looked down. It was horrible. Just have to pray for the family," said Terry Topolski, a visitor from Omaha.

John Connor Schaible, 20, answered God's call July 4, 2012. Visitation will be held from 5-7:30 p.m., followed by reflections and the rosary, Sun., July 8, at St. Peter's Church, 815 East Meyer Boulevard, Kansas City, Missouri. Doyle; aunts and uncles John and Janet Schaible, Mark Doyle and Anne Quinly, Lorcan and Jayne Doyle, Deirdre and Michael O'Bryan; cousins, Joe and Michael O'Bryan, extended family and a host of friends, all of whom mourn his passing.

Connor had an insatiable thirst for knowledge and was our "walking encyclopedia" of worldly facts and figures. He was particularly passionate about urban planning and city development; he was an avid advocate for Kansas City and the many ways he believed it could be improved. "Impossible" was never in his vocabulary, and as far as he was concerned nothing was ever unattainable. His enthusiasm and optimistic approach to life was contagious to all who came to know him. Notes for Alta Louise Hornberger:

Alta Louise (Hornberger) Weimer, age 92, of East Leroy, passed away Sunday, August 19, 2012 at Bickford Assisted Living in Battle Creek, Michigan. She was born January 17, 1920 in Marshall to Herman and Mary (Platz) Hornberger and was one of six children. Alta grew up on a farm in Tekonsha, Michigan, where she also attended school. She was employed by the Chicken Cannery in Tekonsha in her teen years. Alta married Lewis C. Weimer March 1, 1939 in the parsonage of Zion Lutheran Church in Marshall, Michigan. They began their married life in the Tekonsha area renting the "Kelly Farm." In 1944 they purchased a farm on Wheatfield Road now known as 11-Mile Road. Together, they developed their small farm into a successful 372 acre dairy farm. Alta, also raised chickens and delivered eggs to several local markets and individuals. Besides the farm, Alta was a Vanda Beauty Counselor representative for 50+ years, eventually becoming a Regional Manager. Her success with the company earned her and Lewis a trip to Hawaii. She was very active with Harper Creek Community Schools PTA and Band Boosters, a census taker, a longtime volunteer for the Leila Auxiliary, the neighborhood food pantry, and the Sewing Guild at St. Paul Lutheran Church.

From 1981-1989, she and her daughter, Alma, owned and operated the House of Cards Hallmark store in downtown Battle Creek. Besides community activities, Alta was most of all, a wonderful, caring mother, grandmother, great-grandmother, and friend. After selling the farm in 1975 they moved to Gull Lake. Alta and Lewis always celebrated holidays with large gatherings at the farm on 11-Mile Road and their home on Gull Lake during the 70's and 80's. They moved back to Battle Creek in 1989. Together, they loved to travel in their motor home, fish, bowl, and golf. Another of Alta's passions was gardening. She not only grew large vegetable and flower gardens, but was also known as the MUM lady for the beautiful display of mums lining her driveway on B Drive N. Every year during the holidays she had a 14-16 foot Christmas tree in her front window that stopped traffic and the trolley and busses going to Binder Park Zoo. Her diligent work from dawn to dusk put her garden in East Leroy in the Battle Creek Garden Tour in 2005. Alta's family was first and foremost. She was a seamstress, quilter, canner, gardener, baker, businesswoman, and a person who taught others through her example of generosity, friendship, and love. Alta was a "lucky" person in family poker games, at the casino, and the lottery. In 2003, she won the Cash Five lottery and proceeded to give it away to charities, church, and family. Alta was a 40 plus year member of St. Paul Lutheran Church in Battle Creek and currently was a member of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Battle Creek.

Alta was predeceased by her parents; her husband of 50 years, Lewis Weimer; sisters, Edna Bird Hafer, Loretta Schnitzler, MaryAnn Hamilton, Phyllis Stanley; and brother, Paul Hornberger. She is survived by three daughters, Norma Sly, Irma (Thomas) Dunton of Battle Creek, Alma Weimer of East Leroy; son, Kenneth (Debra) Weimer of Ceresco; son-in-law David Sly; seven grandchildren, Debra Novar, Kelly (Mikeal) Gutsue, Stefanie (Joseph) Kinney all of Battle Creek, Douglas (Darline) Sly of Groveland, Florida, Marc Dunton of Kalamazoo, Adam (Maryn) Weimer of Lewis Center, Ohio, and Jillian Weimer of Ceresco. Weimer, a fanner, will oppose Jon A. Sleeper for the GOP nomination in the Aug. 8 primary in the new 9th which is Emmett Township. Russell Malcolm (Rusty)¹¹ Drumm, Jr. (Russell Malcolm¹⁰, Clarence Franklin⁹, Louise Elizabeth⁸ Blaich, Johann Michael⁷, Johann Georg⁶, Johannes⁵, Erhard⁴, Sebastian³, Sebastian², Hans¹) was born 08 Feb 1947 in Syracuse, Onondaga Co, New York, and died 16 Jan 2016 in New York. He married (1) ?. He married (2) Kyle Paseka 2008.

Notes for Russell Malcolm (Rusty) Drumm, Jr.:

Russell Drumm was born in Syracuse, New York on a snowy Feb. 8, 1947. He grew up in Levittown, Long Island, source of his rather black humor. After graduating from Colgate University, he earned a masters degree in filmmaking at Columbia University. After working on documentary films including the Academy Award-winning "Harlan County U.S.A.," he fled the city to work as a deckhand on a commercial fishing boat out of Montauk, N.Y. A subsequent stab at running seafood-processing business ended when the supply of Jonah crabs was curtailed. Drumm landed on his feet at The East Hampton Star newspaper where he has worked for the past 25 years reporting on sport and commercial fishing, the environment, and local history. He has been a contributor to Smithsonian, Surfer's Journal, Graphis, and National Fisherman Magazines. He has previously published two books, "In the Slick of the Cricket" a first-person account of sailing with Frank Mundus, the shark-fishing captain who was the inspiration for Quint in Peter Benchley's "Jaws," and "The Barque of Saviors," the history of the sail-training ship Eagle's passage from the Nazi Navy to the U.S. Coast Guard. Drumm spent part of his youth in Hawaii, where much of his most-recent book, "A Rogue's Yarn" takes place. He lives in Montauk with his wife Kyle, four surfboards, a sailboat, and Cha Cha the cat. His daughter Melissa, a graduate of the University of Hawaii, lives nearby.

June 27, 2016 -Remembering Rusty Drumm - Local Writer, Legendary Surfer, and Co-Founder of The Montauk Surf Museum. Montauk will not be the same without Russell "Rusty" Drumm, legendary surfer, fisherman, writer, and co-founder of The Oceans Institute of the Montauk Lighthouse Museum, aka The Montauk Surf Museum, that just opened last summer. Born in Syracuse, NY on February 8, 1947, raised in Levittown, Long Island, Rusty passed away on January 16, 2016 at the age of 68. He spent over 40 of those years in his favorite place on earth, Montauk, where he had resided since 1974. Here he expressed himself through surfing, fishing, writing, and in "The End," dedicating his life's passion to the co-founding of The Montauk Surf Museum, a legacy that he will leave for generations to come.

Despite his many extraordinary accomplishments, including a Master's Degree in film from Columbia University, Rusty was a "humble" man, soft-spoken, mild-mannered, and kind to everyone he encountered. He had so many friends from all walks of life who loved and respected him. He took on causes that had meaning not just to him, but also to the Montauk community at large. As a writer for The East Hampton Star for 33 years, he wrote about fishermen's rights, the environment, surfing, nature, and whatever topic intrigued him. He also was the author of three books. But it was the ocean that inspired him, that first drew him out to Montauk. His fascination with the ocean lasted throughout his life as a surfer, fisherman, and explorer of nature. He was eager to spread his lifelong knowledge about ocean currents, sea-level rise, and the formation of waves in his vision that became a reality last summer, The Montauk Surf Museum, located in the former Fog Signal House constructed in 1896 at The Montauk Point Lighthouse.

Rusty Drumm's purpose for the museum was to focus on geography, oceanography, and meteorology to introduce people to the physics, nature, and history of surfing and how it got to the east coast and Montauk from its Polynesian origins. Several installations and displays would illustrate the many aspects of surfing, from the origins of waves to the evolution of surfboard design and wetsuit technology, to coastal phenomena such as erosion and sea-level rise. As Rusty acknowledged, "The concept of the museum is to use the popularity of surfing as a way to help visitors to the museum understand the science behind surfing."

Rusty first took up the sport of surfing in Hawaii in the mid-1960s, where his father worked for a few summers as a hospital administrator. Back on Long Island, Rusty was among a group of surfers from Levittown (including surfing buddy Tony Villar) who surfed the Gilgo Beach area, notably the surf spots Hemlocks and Democrat Point, before coming out to Montauk.

Rusty drew inspiration and happiness from his loving wife, Kyle Paseka, his daughter Melissa, and his precious granddaughter Quinn, born June 2, 2015. Rusty introduced Melissa to surfing at an early age in Montauk. She then surfed at some of the best surfing spots around the world, including Hawaii. She later studied at The University of Hawaii, before returning back to the East End to raise a family. Rusty and Kyle met in 2004 and were married in 2008, the third marriage for both. They were like two peas in a pod. Both were writers, adventurers, nature lovers, and ocean worshippers. They traveled the world together, going on surfing safaris, skiing adventures, and sailing voyages. They would tell stories to each other while anchored at night on their sailboat, "Leilani," after a good day of fishing and surfing, with only the glistening stars above and the waves breaking below. They were a duo, simpatico, in harmony with nature, the sea, and each other. As Kyle memorialized him in The East Hampton Star, "There will never be another like him, ever. He did it right. He knew how to live. He gets an A+ for his time here on earth. What a stellar example for everyone."

Rusty has left his impression on all of us who knew him. He was a legend, a kind soul, a thinker, a nature lover, and a man whose passion about the ocean and the environment will have a long-lasting effect on Montauk and all those who visit it. Montauk will always love and remember you Rusty!

Notes for Michael Lewis Ketter:

Michael L. Ketter, 48, of Pittsburgh, died Sunday, May 17, 2009. Beloved husband of Gina (Pitta) Ketter. Son of the late Robert Ketter and Lorelei Ketter. Brother of Kay Nottis, Sue White and Mary Ketter-Franklin. Daddy of Merlin, Zoron and Putt-Putt. Michael was a much-loved program director and on-air radio personality with WBCQ international short-wave radio station. In the 1990s, he was operations manager and on-air broadcaster for WYEP-FM. Michael was a professional photographer as well as composer of electronic music. No visitation. Private services to be held in Western New York. Arrangements by Stathers Funeral and Cremation Services Inc., 7400 Irvine St., Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15218. Family suggests memorial contributions to Forbes Hospice, 115 S. Neville St., Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15213.

May 24, 2009 - By age 16, Michael Ketter already had compiled an impressive photography portfolio while working as official interview photographer for public radio station WBFO-FM in Buffalo, New York. Over the next three decades, the multitasking man would also become a radio personality and engineer, musician, composer, and owner of an art gallery called Eyes in Wilkinsburg. "He was a true Renaissance man," said Allan Weiner, owner of WBCQ, an international shortwave radio station in Maine at which Mr. Ketter was a broadcaster and program director. "He dabbled in all the arts and was a master in all."

Mr. Ketter died last Sunday of an anoxic brain injury. He was 48. Mr. Ketter could boast of having created at least eight shows on WBCQ, centering on everything from music to the politics of the day. "He was so bright and so talented and such a sweet man," said Mr. Ketter's wife, Regina. Mr. Ketter was born and raised in Buffalo. After graduating from high school, he moved to New York City, where he worked at Olden Camera Co. and immersed himself in the fast-paced world of fashion photography.

In 1979, Mr. Ketter moved to Pittsburgh to attend The Art Institute and played in several punk rock bands in the early 1980s. A mutual friend and a mutual interest in music brought him together with his wife, then a music student at Duquesne University. "It was a kind of love-at-first-sight thing," said Ms. Ketter. "A little light bulb went off in my head and I just knew it."

They married in 1983. In 1987, when radio station WYEP-FM received a grant to come back to the airwaves, Mr. Ketter worked to help the station begin anew. He worked as a studio engineer, designing the studio, selecting and purchasing necessary equipment and training staff. Mr. Ketter served as operations manager through the 1990s. "Michael could pretty much figure out any issue that came up technically," said Rosemary Welsch, Afternoon Mix host and producer at WYEP. "He was really into the mechanics of things but he was also a very spiritual person ... very calm, very centered, very focused." After leaving WY.....

Notes for John Howard Kraft:

John Howard Kraft, 69, of Traverse City, passed away peacefully Monday, Oct. 4, 2010, with his loving family by his side. John was born Nov. 22, 1940, to Howard Allen and Lorna B. (Andrews) Kraft in Pontiac. He married Sandy McFatridge on Oct. 23, 1964, in Detroit. John went to school in Redford Township, where he excelled in athletics. He then went on to Central Michigan University and earned a degree in Teaching with a minor in Biology. After college he returned to his home town to teach Biology at Redford Township High School. John changed careers and moved the family to California, where he went into the sales division for Market Forge as a regional sales manager. The family decided to be closer to their roots and moved to Traverse City. Silcraft Corporation was born in 1980 as a result of his prior experience in the medical equipment industry. He identified an important need in the long-term and assisted living industries. For the next 17 years he oversaw and managed Silcraft and sold to Invacare Corporation in 1997. After retiring from Silcraft he and Sandy traveled extensively. Realizing retirement was not for him he bought Bay Breeze Yacht Charters in 2000 with his son Jay. They then started Bay Breeze Yacht Sales in 2002 after taking on the Nordic Tug trawler product line. After selling Bay Breeze Yacht Charters in 2008 they focused on Bay Breeze Yacht Sales exclusively, where he remained an active partner until his death. John was a sportsman, loved sailing the Caribbean and delivering Nordic Tugs throughout the Great Lakes. Family and friends were a huge part of John's life, and he will be greatly missed by all. His latest and greatest joy was his only grandchild, three-year-old Keara. She lovingly referred to John as Papa.

Surviving John are his wife, Sandy; mother, Lorna; children, John Joseph "Jay" Kraft, Korenne Allyn Kraft and Adam Ardon (Marianne) Kraft; and granddaughter, Keara. John was preceded in death by his grandparents, Ora and Edna Andrews, and Carrie and Joseph Kraft; father, Howard; and brother, Joe.

Visitation for John will take place on Thursday, Oct. 7, from 5 to 8 p.m., at the Reynolds-Jonkhoff Funeral Home. Funeral services will take place on Friday, Oct. 8, at 11 a.m., with a visitation held one-hour prior, also at the funeral home. Memorial contributions may be directed to the Watershed Center, Grand Traverse Bay.

Notes for Sandra Maie (Sandy) McFatridge:

Sandra Maie Kraft, 74, of Traverse City, passed away unexpectedly in her sleep Friday, Oct. 21, 2016 at her Traverse City home. Sandy was born on Monday, Sept. 14, 1942 to the late Harry and Esther (Smith) McFatridge in Big Rapids. She attended schools in that area, graduating from L'Anse Creuse High School. Sandy was one to push the envelope, perhaps attributable to her dad being a Detroit police officer. She became a model in her younger years, which she enjoyed. She met and married John H. Kraft, and they became the parents of three children. John passed away Oct. 4, 2010.

Over the years Sandy had been a real estate agent, owned and operated Sandy's Flower Shop on South Airport Road and yet, her greatest joy in life was being a homemaker, caring for her husband and children. In recent years Sandy became very involved in Alcoholics Anonymous and was a sponsor to many women in the area. She was known for giving everyone a fair shot and felt honored to give the opportunity to be of help and encouragement to the women she sponsored, having several of them stay in her home over the years so that she could be a constant role model. She enjoyed antiques, really enjoyed refinishing furniture and enjoyed spending time either working in her beautiful gardens with her daughter or doing a lap around the bay and delivering a Nordic Tug with her son, Jay.

Sandy is survived by her children, Adam (Mari), of Ft. Wayne, Indiana, Korenne Kraft and Jay Kraft, both of Traverse City; her grandchildren, Keara Kaitlin and Kyleigh; her sister, Janet Slanec, of Dade City, Florida; and many wonderful, treasured and beloved friends. In addition to her parents and husband, Sandy was preceded in death by a brother, Fred.

A time to celebrate Sandy's life will take place in the coming weeks at her home in Traverse City with an announcement preceding the date. Memorial contributions to honor Sandy's memory may be directed to her favorite organizations, the Father Fred Foundation or AA. Please share your memories as well as thoughts with Sandy's family by visiting her tribute page at www.reynolds-jonkhoff.com. The family is being cared for by Reynolds-Jonkhoff Funeral Home and Cremation Services.

6998. Brian Kenneth¹² Frost (Judy Ann¹¹ Keck, Frank Gordon¹⁰, Charles Frederick⁹, Johann Georg⁸, Matthias (Matthaeus)⁷, Johann Georg⁶, Anna Maria⁵ Schaible, Anna⁴ Blaich, Martin³, Sebastian², Hans¹) was born 17 Sep 1967 in Lansing, Ingham Co, Michigan, and died 12 Jan 2020 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan. He married Gretchen Ann Ostrander. She was born 1968.

Notes for Brian Kenneth Frost:

With profound sadness we announce the passing of Brian Kenneth Frost, who battled with some health issues this past year. He left us sleeping peacefully at U of M Hospital in Ann Arbor, Michigan on the afternoon of Jan. 12, 2020. During that week previous he was still being Brian with his jokes & laughter until the "peace" settled in him. Born in Lansing, Michigan on September 17, 1967 to the late Kenneth Arthur Frost & Judy Ann (Keck) Frost. They moved up north shortly thereafter where they made their family home in Petoskey, Michigan. As a child/teenager Brian loved fishing, making forts in the woods, riding his ATV and picking on his sisters, Leanne and Krista, but the most fun for him was the coon & bear hunting with his late Uncle Doug Hickman, his uncle Fred Keck & many others. His hunting dogs were his treasure... especially "Sypher" whom he adored.

He became a huge Nascar fan & would enjoy hosting parties for friends & family, sharing food, laughs, cards & "good cheer". He also attended many Nascar races himself in Michigan, North Carolina & Florida. The casino was one of his other fun pastimes, where you could find him enjoying his slot machines and was known by most everyone there. After graduating from Petoskey High School, Petoskey, Michigan in 1986 he attended Mid-Michigan College completing his HRA trades program. Brian worked for Petoskey Propane & also for his dad at Frost HVAC until starting his own business, Brian Frost Landscaping, over 25 years ago. He achieved fulfillment through his business nature, his gift of gab & true business man nature. Which made him proud. His laugh, his smile, his ability to talk for hours, his straightforwardness, his way of always having to have the last word, his hardness, his softness & even his love for chips with his sandwiches & vanilla ice cream with peanut butter describes Brian in every way.

Brian is survived by his wife Gretchen Frost (Ostrander) of Traverse City, Michigan his daughter Taylor (Frost) Amicone (Nick); Eaton Rapids, Michigan and his son Peyton Frost: Holt, Michigan. His only grandchild Stella Frost; Eaton Rapids, Michigan, mother Judy Frost, Petoskey, Michigan, sister Leanne Frost (Nouriddin Kriwar); Petoskey, Michigan, sister Krista Frost; Cape Girardeau, Missouri. Also his niece Sydney Frost & nephew Isaac Attias. Many Aunts, Uncles & Cousins from both Michigan and New Hampshire, his mother & father-in-law Lewis & Connie Ostrander & Wendy (Dan) Kepitis, former wife and mother of Brian's children.

Brian was preceded in death by his father Kenneth Arthur Frost, grandfather William Frost, grandmother Luella Frost (Hood), aunt Betty Frost, grandfather Frank Keck, grandmother Phyllis Keck (Bolinger) and his uncle Doug Hickman.

Saturday, January 25th, there will be a gathering of friends & family to remember Brian. It is being held at the Wolverine Free Methodist Church in Wolverine, Michigan. Family time will start at 11 a.m. with general visitation at 12 p.m. Service will begin at 1 p.m. to be followed by a luncheon. Officiated by Pastor Steve Evoy. Taylor, Peyton, Leanne, Krista & his mother request you bring an item that reminds you of Brian. It will all be boxed and laid to rest next to his father.

John Keck served with Co. B, 102 Pennsylvania Infantry. He re-enlisted March 18, 1864, and was wounded May 5, 1864. During his first enlistment, in 1963, he was reduced in rank from corporal to private at his own request! Keck, a mill hand as a civilian, was hospitalized for many months after being wounded. Children of Terry Stollsteimer and Lynne Simowski are:

- + 9138 i. Eric Daniel¹³ Stollsteimer, born 05 Jan 1976 in Southfield, Oakland Co, Michigan.
- 9139 ii. Jason Elliott Stollsteimer, born 22 Apr 1978 in Southfield, Oakland Co, Michigan. He married Andrea Corrin Wehenkel 16 Aug 2003 in Detroit, Wayne Co, Michigan; born 12 Aug 1978.

Notes for Jason Elliott Stollsteimer:

1978 – Imagine the anxiety and jubilation of a new grandchild - then multiply it by three. No, it's not a set of triplets, but three grandchildren have expanded the family of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Stollsteimer of Dearborn in the last month, each to a different son or daughter.

An eight pound eleven-ounce baby boy, Jason Elliott, was born to Terry and Lynne M. (Simowski) Stollsteimer of Plymouth. Jason arrived April 22 at 5:28 a.m. in Providence Hospital, and measured 20-1/2 inches.

The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Simowski of Dearborn Heights, and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McNeil, also of Dearborn Heights, are proud great-grandparents. Jason will be a new brother to Eric, age two-and-a-half years.

Lynn G. and Helene (Stollsteimer) DeFrance of Haslett, Michigan had their first child in the person of Jeffrey Lynn, born at 2:26 p.m. May 10 in Sparrow Hospital in Lansing. Jeffrey weighed in at eight pounds, nine ounces, and was 21 inches from top to bottom. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George DeFrance of Battle Creek.

The third Stollsteimer descendant is Jennifer, born to Michael A. and Janis (Stollsteimer) Germani of Detroit. Jennifer made her debut on May 13 at 1:56 a.m. in the Bi-County Hospital in Warren. She weighed six pounds, five ounces, measured 19-1/2 inches and is the Germani's first child. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Andre Fournier of Compiegne, France.

Jason Stollsteimer (born Jason Elliott Stollsteimer on April 22, 1978 in Southfield, Michigan) is an American musician who was the vocalist and guitarist for the indie rock band The Von Bondies, which disbanded in 2011. Stollsteimer also was the main songwriter and producer of the Von Bondies. He released three studio albums with The Von Bondies and currently is working on his first full length album with The Hounds Below.

Musical career

Lack of Communication - His debut album, Lack of Communication, was released in 2001 on Sympathy for the Record Industry. Jason toured the states with the first incarnation of The Von Bondies featuring longtime friend Carrie Smith on the bass, Don Blum on drums and Marcie Bolen (Silverghost, Slumber Party) on Guitar. Over ten U.S. tours were done in order to help promote the record. The group shared the stage with The Cramps, on their 8th US tour. Jason and The Von Bondies also played several shows in the U.K. and Europe and a live performance on the Later... with Jools Holland in London.

Raw & Rare - In 2003 the Von Bondies released a live record that consisted mostly of recording from live BBC recordings from the John Peel.

Pawn Shoppe Heart - In 2004, Stollsteimer released his second studio album, Pawn Shoppe Heart, and toured extensively in the US, UK, and Europe

"C'mon C'mon" was the first single and reached the UK Top 25 for the first time (peaking at #21), and also generated some huge buzz for Stollsteimer.

One other single was released from the album. "Tell me what you see" which reached number 43 in the UK charts. Almost every track from the album has appeared in numerous commercials, Movies and TV shows. One song in particular (c'mon c'mon) was used more than all the others combined. From uses in local radio commercials/adverts to the main theme song of the hit F/X television show Rescue Me. While touring this record Stollsteimer played the Reading and Leeds Festivals, Glastonbury Festival and Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festival

Love, Hate and Then There's You - Jason Stollsteimer's last release with the Von Bondies, "Love, Hate and Then There's You," has gone through a long process of discovery and change before coming to its current polished form.

In early 2006, a handful of demos were posted on the Von Bondies Myspace page. Later the band posted more songs on the MySpace page including "Shut Your Mouth," "Pale Bride," and "Only to Haunt You." Don Blum played drums on these recordings with all other instruments played by Jason. Love, Hate and Then There's You was the first time Stollsteimer ever collaborated songwriting with anyone. The songs "This is our perfect crime" and "Accidents will Happen" were co-written with Butch Walker who also produced some songs on the album. The songs "blame game" and "Earthquake" were co-written with longtime drummer Don Blum. The album was eventually released in 2009 on Majordomo Records.

The Von Bondies is an American alternative rock band. Its current members are Jason Stollsteimer on vocals and lead guitar, Christy Hunt on rhythm guitar and Leann Banks on bass guitar.

The original line-up formed at the 1997 Cramps/Guitar Wolf show by Stollsteimer and Marcie Bolen. They went through a variety of member changes and band names, including The Baby Killers, before settling on 'The Von Bondies' in 2000. Don Blum joined the band around 1999 after attending numerous Baby Killers shows, while Leann Banks was picked via an audition. The Von Bondies got their break by playing a New Year's Eve show in Detroit, MI in 2000. In attendance at the show was Long Gone John, owner of the Sympathy for the Record Industry label. This led to Sympathy releasing the band's debut album "Lack of Communication" in 2001.

In 2003, the band released the live "Raw and Rare" through Dim Mak Records, which was followed by their 2004 breakthrough release, "Pawn Shoppe Heart", on Sire Records. Met with glowing reviews, "Pawn Shoppe" was produced by Jerry Harrison of Talking Heads and co-produced by singer Jason Stollsteimer.

The album reached a peak of #36 in the UK and #8 on Billboard's Top Heatseekers chart and stayed in the chart for eight weeks. The big single from this release was "C'mon C'mon," which reached #25 on the Billboard Singles chart and garnered national radio play for the band.

A shortened version of "C'mon C'mon" is the theme song to the TV series "Rescue Me" and is performed live by the band in Michael Winterbottom's film "9 Songs". MLB Network also uses a brief clip of the song as the opening of their new show "30 Clubs in 30 Days".

In 2008, the band signed with indie label Majordomo Records, joining label mates The Airborne Toxic Event and Earlimart. Their label debut, "Love, Hate and Then There's You", was released in February 2009 featuring the single "Pale Bride."

Known as a touring act, The Von Bondies have headlined tours of the United Kingdom/Europe, Australia, and the United States, taking along supporting bands like The Kills, Kasabian, Franz Ferdinand, Modey Lemon, SSM, The Subways, The Stills, Hot Panda and The Donnas. They have also appeared on "Late Show with David Letterman", "Last Call with Carson Daly" and "CD:UK".

The Von Bondies song "C'mon C'mon" was announced to appear as a downloadable track for the music video game series "Rock Band" on March 31, 2009.

The Hounds Below - Stollsteimer is also the leader of The Hounds Below. The group's debut album is set to be recorded in early 2012.

Early life - Stollsteimer was born in Southfield, Michigan. His mother was a nurse, and his father an architect. He grew up in the Detroit suburbs of Plymouth, Michigan with his one brother, Eric. As a child, he went to school at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park. He later lived in Ann Arbor/Ypsilanti, where in 1997 he became friends with his new schoolmate at College, Marcie Bolen, who would become his band's first guitarist. A year later, while studying at Washtenaw Community College, Stollsteimer met Don Blum who would eventually become his drummer in the band The Von Bondies.

Jason Stollsteimer readies new band Ponyshow (Band made of former Von Bondies will make a Blowout debut)
By Brett Callwood

It's been a year and a half years since we put Jason Stollsteimer on the cover of MT, alongside his Hounds Below bandmates and the headline "The Von Bondies were a hit. Can Jason Stollsteimer do it again with the Hounds Below?" As the singer and guitarist prepares for his set at Blowout 17 with another band, Ponyshow (he prefers the name to be written in all-caps), the answer to that question from October '12 has to be "No."

Not that the Hounds Below (or the Von Bondies, for that matter) has necessarily broken up; Stollsteimer insists that both projects are there to be reanimated whenever he and perhaps the other members involved are feeling it. He simply became tired of a persistently shifting Hounds Below lineup, a change in sound or two, and an album that, while brilliant, he feels went to waste because the band didn't tour enough after its release.

For many musicians, the changing sound of a band is part of its evolution, part of the creative process. Not for Stollsteimer. "The first time you hear [Ponyshow], that will define us for the rest of your life," he says. "That's the way it should be. The change of sounds is where every band goes wrong. If we want to change sounds a few years from now, we'll just do a new band."

So Ponyshow is a new band, fair enough. It's interesting though, because the trio is completed by two more former Von Bondies — drummer Don Blum and later-era bassist Leann Banks. It seems entirely natural that, when forced to admit that the Hounds Below wasn't going to be making any great strides anytime soon, Stollsteimer would turn to two people that he refers to as "great friends." A Von Bondies reunion was never in the cards though, and, with Banks still a member of Amy Gore's Valentines and After Dark Amusement Park, and with Blum having removed himself from music altogether for a couple of years, this is a band that has to be content with baby steps for the time being.

We meet with Stollsteimer and Banks at the WAB in Ferndale on a quiet Wednesday afternoon. Stollsteimer is, unusually for him, sporting facial hair due to his imminent appearance in a music video for New York band the Cold Blood Club. The two of them live in Ferndale (Banks works next door at the Emory), so this is home base for them.

"Doing this band, I feel for the first time like I'm going back to the reason I started listening to music, not even just writing music," Stollsteimer says. "I grew up with the Pixies and Pavement, and I always wanted to be in a band like that. When Leann joined the Von Bondies, she was a replacement and I've always wanted to do a band with her from scratch. From Day One, it's these three people. The band will break up the first time somebody leaves. I don't want to break up, but I'm just saying. I played with Don for eight years. I missed Don and, besides music, this is a good excuse for me to see two of my best friends. Whatever comes of it comes of it."

The fascinating thing about Stollsteimer is that he will insist Ponyshow is a "band," it's an equal three-way split. But the man is so talkative, it's so in his nature to lead, that Banks struggles to get a word in. That's no slight on either of them; it's just the way things naturally lie. Back when we interviewed the Hounds Below in '12, Stollsteimer insisted that he wanted it to be a real band and not just his band, but that was never going to be the case, given the ages and personalities of those involved (the other members of that band were significantly younger than the singer). With Ponyshow, he's at least grouped himself with two people that he trusts completely, of a similar age, who have the confidence to push their thoughts forward when they need to. Stollsteimer is a big personality and he needs that. Craves it, even.

The references to Pavement and the Pixies are valid. Ponyshow has a sound that is rooted in the '90s — simple bass lines and guitar work providing the framework for dual male-female vocals and Blum's melodic drumming. "I've played with a few drummers and they were all amazing, but with Don it's the weirdest thing," says Stollsteimer. "It's different. Every kick drum hit is on. It's amazing. Leann has the ability to play very difficult bass lines without breaking a sweat, but with this band, it's not what we do. It's like the Motown thing, where they used great jazz musicians who found it easy to play the Motown songs."

Banks was in her early 20s when she joined the Von Bondies, and, in retrospect, that band was starting to wind down. Now 30, she's a lot more experienced and confident. "The only band I'd ever played with before I joined the Von Bondies was Ghost City (with Electric Six's Chris Tait)," says Banks. "It only lasted a year or so — our last show was actually our CD release party. Then I joined the Von Bondies, and I was such a newbie. It took me a minute to find my thing that was me. I'm 30 and I'm still only just coming into what I feel is me. I didn't listen to the Von Bondies before I joined. It was heavy and dark, and I was very into pop — Sloan and the Beatles. But sometimes it's fun to play a couple of notes and really just put it out there and have fun with the whole thing."

It'll be interesting to see how Ponyshow evolves, and you'll get a chance at a first glimpse when the band plays Blowout. Don't expect any Von Bondies tunes, but do expect something interesting from three musicians who are very in tune with each other.

"I always looked at the Blowout as a way to discover bands that you've heard about, and see them live," Stollsteimer says. "Leann's first show with Amy Gore was at Blowout. So if you wanted to see what Leann or Amy or Jackson [Smith] was doing next, you had to go to that show. Now, this will be Ponyshow's first show in Michigan."

As a banker, he always gave his best to his customers. He grew up in New Hudson and South Lyon, Michigan, where he built elementary school friendshipsthat lasted throughout his life. He graduated from Ferris State University and was a member of Delta Sigma Phi. Jack loved the great Michigan outdoors, golfing, tending to his pond, bird feeding, working in the yard, the Blue Jackets and the companionship of his pets.

Notes for Gary Alvin Weidmayer:

Farming a family tradition Weidmayers worry about future of small farms

By Alana West, Special Writer - PUBLISHED: August 2, 2007

Gary Weidmayer of Bridgewater Township is a farmer, born and bred, and almost always has been. He plants corn, winter wheat and soybeans, raises cattle, and sells hay to stable owners for their horses on a farm that his father bought in 1940. But his family ties to the Manchester area go back further than that. His relatives have lived there since at least 1840, when they helped establish and build Bethel United Church of Christ.

"My great-great-grandfather worked on that," said Weidmayer, who said the ancestors of his wife, Karen, also worked on the project. "They were the Kueblers. It was the Kueblers and Weidmayers who built the church," said Karen Weidmayer, who is a secretary at Manchester High School. Both Gary and Karen have attended Bethel church all of their lives.

The family owns 380 acres and rents 750 acres more. Their large, white farmhouse sits on a slight hill amid numerous outbuildings and barns, with two silos tucked behind. He only has two exceptions to his life's work in the farming industry – a three-month stint at a factory and three weeks in the National Guard during the 1967 riots. "I know where I was 40 years ago," he said last week. "I was down there two weeks setting up communications with the 156 signal corps. There was mass confusion. ... After that, everybody needed riot control training."

Something he finds satisfying about farming is taking a tour of his fields on his tractor, especially with his loyal companion, Sparky, the couple's Border Collie, at his side. "That dog will ride the combine, a tractor, the pickup. When the pickup goes down the road, it had better have the dog in it. She will sit and wait for him, or go look for him at the neighbor's," Karen Weidmayer said. Baling hay was on the agenda last Monday, and Gary Weidmayer was a bit discouraged at lunchtime about the decreased amount of hay because of a lack of rainfall. "The last six weeks have been really dry. We don't have irrigation. "We don't have enough acres (of hay), so we can't justify digging a well," Weidmayer said, adding that irrigation would not solve the problem, since that would make the ground too wet in some circumstances to grow hay. "We were hoping for rain, but we get just enough," said Karen Weidmayer. Her husband agreed, remembering the drought of 1988, which ended in mid-July with downpours the rest of the growing year.

Their corn is growing and looks green in the field; however, if there is no rain, the ears may not develop. "The soybeans look good, but if they don't get rain when they're podding up, the pods don't grow," Karen Weidmayer said. She expected the roots of the corn would grow deeper to find water. "Corn is probably our biggest crop here," she said. "It's expensive to grow because of the cost of the fertilizer." The Weidmayers sell the corn to Global Ethanol, a new company in Riga that converts corn to diesel fuel. Weidmayer bought stock in the company because he believes in the future of it as a fuel source, and to help boost the price and demand for corn. Weidmayer said the company uses 50,000 bushels of corn a day, and was getting more efficient at making the product. It sells the by-products as livestock feed, so there is little waste, he said.

Weidmayer is concerned about the future of farming. He foresees a continual decline in the small farm because of the cost of equipment, and the money invested in livestock and crops. "What I look at is, there will be more big farms, not as many small farms," he said. "You plant corn in April or May, and you don't get your money until October or November, and maybe you don't sell it all at once. All of that money is invested. You need to borrow when you need it, and pay it back when you can."

Weidmayer tries to buy and sell cattle every month. He gets double what he pays for them, but he feeds and cares for them for a year before he sells them. It is a big investment, so it helps to have some money coming in every month. Weidmayer served for 14 years on the Farm Credit Board, a board that lends money to farmers, so he knows the bind farmers get into with credit. He knows they need a good banker who knows what they need. During his term on the board, he saw a number of farm foreclosures.

Weidmayer said he used to run a dairy farm, but he and his son, Greg, who had been helping him on the farm, needed to expand and update to make it feasible. They decided to discontinue the dairy side of the business, so Greg got a full-time job with Manchester Village. He helps his father after work, maintaining the farming equipment. The Weidmayer's said they both hope that someday, their son will take over the farm.

The Weidmayer's enjoy the close bond of both of their children living nearby. Their daughter, Amy, and her family live diagonally across the field, from them, with Gary's mother, Irma, on the same road. Greg and his wife, Melanie, are a few houses down. Melanie owns the Manchester Bakery, and Amy was recently elected to the Bridgewater Township Board.

Chemical nanosensors and microsensors are valuable tools for investigating complex biological systems. These tiny sensors, which have active sensing elements between 100 nm and 10 μ m wide (about 1/1000th to 1/10th the diameter of a hair), can measure very small changes in concentration in real time with very high spatial resolution. Such advantages can be exploited in two ways. First, a chemical image can be created by systematically measuring the concentrations of chemical species as a function of sensor location. A technique that we extensively employ, Scanning Electrochemical Microscopy (SECM), is based upon this principle. Second, transient and localized changes in the concentration of a chemical species can be monitored in real time using a stationary sensor. This principle serves as the basis of several techniques (such as amperometry and fast-scan voltammetry) for real-time monitoring dynamic biological systems. 5 μ m microsensor Our research is aimed at combining these two powerful approaches into a single instrument, the Biological Scanning Electrochemical Microscope (BioSECM), particularly for investigating neurotransmitter release from cultured neurons during growth and neurodegeneration. One significant advantage of the BioSECM over other methods for investigating these systems is that topographical and chemical imaging can take place simultaneously. This means that structure-function relationships of neurons (or model neurons) can be studied. Schematic Diagram of the BioSECM Imaging Process Because of the interdisciplinary nature of this research, students from both biology and chemistry (or biochemistry) are needed. Those with an interest or aptitude in instrumentation (e.g. electronics, computer hardware, and computer programming), cell culture, or nanotechnology will find this research particularly rewarding. In order to realize the potential of the BioSECM, substantial improvements in the instrumentation and the sensor must be achieved. These improvements, along with brief descriptions of the biological applications of the instrument, are summarized below. Instrument Improvement In order to use the SECM for high-resolution chemical and topographical imaging of biological samples, we must develop our own hardware, software, and techniques. We have recently developed a method for imaging cultured model neurons directly in the growth media, a critical step toward our long-term goal of measuring release during neuronal development. However, this goal can only be achieved if the BioSECM is adapted to function under incubation conditions (i.e. 37°C, 5% CO₂ atmosphere), and so we are presently developing an incubation chamber suitable for this purpose. BioSECM image (left) of a cultured model neuron recorded with a 5 μ m microsensor Sensor Development The sensor is the heart of the SECM. It provides the specificity necessary for chemical imaging, and its size determines the spatial resolution of the technique. For this reason, a primary thrust of our research is the development of new chemically selective nanosensors and microsensors. Presently, we are working to modify carbon nano-ring sensors so that they are capable of imaging neurotransmitter release and imaging cell morphology with high resolution. We are also developing multifunctional sensors that will be capable of imaging multiple species simultaneously. Applications Neurodevelopment and synaptogenesis. One distinct advantage of the BioSECM is its capability for imaging both cell morphology and neurotransmitter release. We wish to investigate how neurotransmitter release, both its time course and spatial distribution, changes during neuronal growth and the formation of synapses with other cells, a process known as synaptogenesis. By studying these processes, we can learn fundamental mechanisms involved in neuronal development. Neurodegeneration. The types of microsensors and nanosensors used for the BioSECM are also capable of producing short-lived chemical species that are known exert oxidative stress on cells. These reactive oxygen species (predominately superoxide, O_2^- , hydroxyl radical, OH, and hydrogen peroxide, H_2O_2) are suspected of playing a role in neurodegenerative diseases such as Alzheimer's Disease and Parkinson's Syndrome. We plan to use the BioSECM to apply a local dose of the reactive oxygen species and then image changes in morphology and neurotransmitter release. In this way the role of reactive oxygen species in neurodegeneration can be investigated, and potential therapies evaluated. Scanning Electrochemical Microscopy Imaging of Model Neurons

Cellular damage due to oxidation has been observed in neurodegenerative diseases such as Parkinson's disease and Alzheimer's disease. Scanning Electrochemical Microscopy (SECM) is a technique well suited to study the effects of oxidative damage on cells such as neurons. The electrochemical analysis of model neurons using SECM can provide a unique view of cellular activity and can be used to observe effects on neuronal signaling. It is possible to detect the release of neurotransmitters such as dopamine, norepinephrine, and serotonin from individual cells using these electrochemical techniques (Cannon et al., Borland et al., Travis et al., Adams et al.). The ultramicroelectrode of the SECM can also focally generate the molecules that cause cellular oxidative damage and then the electrode can be used to measure neurotransmitter release from those neurons. We are using SECM in collaboration with the J.E.Baur lab at Illinois State University as a method to investigate the chemical signaling processes that occur between model nerve cells, looking particularly at the effects of oxidative stress and its relationship to neurodegenerative diseases.

- 9210 i. Brett Adam¹³ Barron, born 06 May 1979; died 11 Aug 2018.

Notes for Brett Adam Barron:

Manistee, Michigan - Brett Adam Barron passed away unexpectedly on August 11, 2018 while ascending some of the most rugged and remote ridges of Montana's Crazy Mountains. Brett was a highly intelligent and skilled outdoorsman, volunteering to survey backcountry wildlife populations in unmarked alpine terrain at the time of his death. Brett was a career service member of the US Naval Special Warfare Community, a mentor, athlete, and conservationist with an unmatched spirit. Brett was born on May 6, 1979 to his beloved mother Barbara Ann Barron (deceased) of Ann Arbor, Michigan. After losing his mother at the young age of eight, Brett was raised by his Grandmother Virginia Burr (deceased). He was able to excel despite the loss of his mother, ultimately pursuing finance studies before deciding to enlist with the US Navy at age 19. Brett's passion and competence lead him through multiple deployments with the US Naval Special Warfare Community where he received individual recognition for his diligence and commitment over his 13 years of service. During his time in the service, Brett lived in Virginia Beach and Chicago. Brett competed in numerous triathlons, marathons and ultramarathons including the Boston Marathon, Iron Man Louisville, Iron Man Wisconsin, and Iron Man St. Louis. He acquired chronic physiological complications during his time serving our country and chose to "embrace the suck", as he said, while he relearned to walk, run and swim. After moving to Nashville, he told almost no one of his accomplishments or condition. Instead, he worked to maintain his physical dexterity by bow hunting, hiking, and leading back country land navigation courses.

In recent years Brett returned to Ann Arbor, where he was a volunteer coach for the University of Michigan boxing team. He also volunteered at the Ark music venue and frequently visited his wooded property in Stockbridge, Michigan with close friends and family. He ultimately settled in Manistee Michigan, living in a home surrounded by both Lake Michigan and the National Forest. Brett demonstrated extreme selflessness and humility throughout his life. His fervor for challenge and teamwork served as a lamp to the feet of those he deeply loved, as well as strangers. He was adored by many and will be woefully missed. A service of remembrance will be held for Brett September 14, 2018 at 1:00 p.m. at Zion Lutheran Church in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Visitation will be held from 11:00:00 the day of service. A military service will follow at Bethlehem Cemetery.

Brett is survived by his girlfriend Hannah Huddleston of Huntsville Alabama, Uncle William (Cathy) Burr of Columbus, Indiana, cousins Sarah Burr of Dallas, Texas, Matthew (Emily) Burr of Chelsea, Michigan, Eric (Sarah) Burr of New Bern, North Carolina, godmother Donna Maul of Palm Springs, California, sponsor Norman Weiner of Ann Arbor, Michigan, as well as multiple extended cousins in the Ted (Ruth) Aprill family of Ann Arbor.

Memorial contributions can be made to The Navy SEAL Foundation, Starr Commonwealth (Albion, Michigan), The Rocky Mountain Goat Alliance, or the Park County Sheriff's Office Search and Rescue Team of Park County, Montana.

Notes for Christine Marie Woods:

Born and raised north of Boston, Christine Marie Woods assumed she was in for a normal Saturday night out in the City with her friends in the Spring of 2015. Fresh off of a long twelve-hour shift at the hospital, she nearly cancelled at the last minute. Having only recently moved to the City, Bobby Aprill was still adjusting to life away from his home state of Michigan. After spending the previous two years in Tennessee, he naturally jumped at the opportunity to attend "country night" at a Boston Bar with some of his newly made friends. As both Christine and Bobby stood with their friends enjoying the live band, little did they know they were standing less than 10 feet from each other. The exact details are debatable, but something drew the two together and they eventually found themselves deep in conversation about their favorite music, excitement for the upcoming warm weather, and (Christine's) love of running. Nearly a month later the two went on their first date. In a small candlelit speakeasy in Somerville, the two spent hours talking about life, their dreams, families, and everything in-between. Both felt during that very first date this was something special....and you know the rest!

Khris Ann Korowin Nedam:

Experience

- Aug 2015 – Present
- Principal at Warren Consolidated Schools
- Mar 1998 – Present U.S. Director at Kids 4 Afghan Kids
- 1994 – Present Teacher at Northville Public Schools

Education

- Doctor of Education (Ed.D.) candidate Educational Leadership and Policy at Wayne State University
- 1997 – 1999 MAT Education at Marygrove College
- 1983 – 1987 BA French, Elem. & Sec. Ed at University of Michigan
- 1985 – 1986 French spoken and written French at University of Toulouse

Since her graduation from Marygrove College six years ago, Khris Nedam, third grade teacher, has done much more than just teach school-she has helped build one. Armed with a teaching degree and a mastery of French, she taught school in France, Turkey, Afghanistan, and the U. S. But that was just the beginning. In 1998 while she was teaching at Meads Mill Middle School, a contact from Afghanistan shared with her class the condition of the economy, education and family life in Afghanistan. Moved by the account, Nedam and her sixth-grade students founded Kids4AfghanKids, a non-profit organization whose goal is to re-establish educational facilities for boys and girls in Afghanistan.

In three years, they had raised enough money to build a six-room schoolhouse in Afghanistan. Approximately 450 students filled the school when it was built. By 2004 over 1,200 students regularly crowd into the tiny building in shifts. "That rural village now has so much hope for the future of their children," says Nedam. What started as a Northville Public School project became an enterprise with partner schools all across America, as well as schools in Belgium and France. In addition to the school, a medical clinic, bakery/kitchen, guest house, orphanage, and the only deep-water well in the valley have been built. More than 250 babies have been born at the clinic. "Her compassion for the need, purpose and value of this effort is clear, honest and forthright," says Northville Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski. "Her commitment to help people, albeit thousands of miles away, is admirable and worthy of recognition."

Several organizations have assisted the building process such as UNICEF and church organizations. The Northville Rotary and Northville Schools worked together to raise $20,000 in four months. Under the guidance of Nedam, Kids4AfghanKids has received national acclaim and media coverage, including Newsweek and ABC's "20/20 Downtown." More importantly, in 2002 the Center for International Disaster Information (CIDI, Arlington, Virginia) put Kids4AfghanKids on the top of their list as one of the most reliable humanitarian organizations. In 2002 Nedam was honored with the Governor's Service Award, and in 2003 she received the Michigan Association of School Board's "Best of the Best" award. Watching her students here make friends with children half a world away is important to Nedam. And watching them make a dreams come true is even better. "My students have learned an important lesson through a real-life connection," she says. "They've learned that with persistence and hard work, they can make their dreams come true and make a difference in the world."

According to Steven Anderson, principal at Amerman Elementary School, Nedam finds time for everyone and listens with her heart. "Kids4AfghanKids, teaching and being a single parent fill Nedam's days with 'to-do' lists. Despite this, she still manages to find time to draw students and adults out of their daily struggles and focus them on larger issues," he said. Nedam strives to help her students find their own special gifts and to think outside the box. "People are more important than things," says Nedam. "Bills, cleaning, and 'stuff' won't go away. Enjoy the people in your life, laugh, and be a good friend. "Kids today need to understand that differences are okay," she said. "We should support each other in our differences and be willing to reach out and help each other."

Children of Khris Korowin and Rajab Nedam are:

- 9276 i. Sediqa¹³ Nedam, born 05 Dec 1994.
- 9277 ii. Sarah Diann Nedam, born Aft. 1995.

Kathy Ann¹² Korowin (Diane Lee¹¹ Walker, Dorothy Veronica¹⁰ Wiedmayer, Christina Barbara⁹ Hartmann, Adam Friedrich (Frederick)⁸, Johann Jacob⁷, Johann Jacob⁶, Anna Maria⁵ Blaich, Martin⁴, Martin³, Sebastian², Hans¹) was born 28 May 1967. She married Shadd Allen Whitehead. He was born 02 Apr 1965.

Notes for Shadd Allen Whitehead:

Shadd Whitehead has been around firefighters his entire life. A fifth-generation Livonian, he grew up in a farmhouse near Plymouth and Merriman roads where Taco Bell currently stands. There, he lived across the street from Cal Roberts, Livonia's first fire chief, who housed Livonia's first fire truck when it became a department in the 1940s. "They put it in the gas station, and that was Cal Roberts's gas station," he said. "He became the first chief, and housed the fire truck in his own gas station." He worked his way up and became Livonia's fire chief in 2005. But starting Jan. 5, he'll officially be a retired firefighter, opting to spend more time with family and doing mission work in the region and across the globe.

"I've been here close to 28 years," he said. "My one daughter graduates this May in nursing, and so I think that, kind of coupled with where we're at as a family, the Lord was opening some doors and I think there were some things he was making evident to us as a family and we figured that the department is on some really, really solid ground." "I felt it was a good time."

From early exposure into adulthood, Whitehead, a Detroit Catholic Central High School alumnus, has stayed around firefighters, eventually becoming one himself and following in his father's, grandfather's and great-grandfather's footsteps. "It goes back a long ways. There's always been a sense of service in our family," Whitehead said. "For me, there was always a lot of pride and nobility in being able to serve in the community. "I knew, as a small kid, this was what I wanted to do."

After serving in the Air Force, Whitehead returned home and became a firefighter in Commerce Township. He was hired as a Livonia firefighter on his birthday in 1990. When talking about his memories as a firefighter, Whitehead is quick to showcase the other people he's worked with, including fellow firefighters and other leadership in the city ranks. Despite some rough economic times, Whitehead said he's appreciative of the ways the city helped support the firefighters protecting Livonia. "I'm just so impressed with the stability of the city, it's ability to continue to give exceptional services and continually find ways to improve the services yet be conservative fiscally."

He remembers some specific examples he said he'll never forget, including pulling a pair of people out of basement fire early in his career, as well as the horrible wind storms earlier this year that resulted in a record-number of calls that came in without any mutual aid available. With several electrical fires blazing, Whitehead said he'll never forget the effort the city's firefighters put into keeping people safe when winds reached their highest points that night. "That was probably unprecedented, certainly in our city," he said. "To me, that showed the true colors of the Livonia Fire Department and its members."

Livonia Mayor Dennis Wright said Whitehead's love and level of dedication he has to the city is unmatched and will be hard to replace. "He's quite a guy. His compassion is just great," Wright said. "The guy is just a good guy to know. He's very dedicated to the people in this city." Wright said it's his plan to locate a permanent replacement for Whitehead by mid-February. Until then, Deputy Chief Mike Kelly will serve as interim chief after Whitehead's departure.

In retirement, Whitehead said he and his family hopes to do some mission work around the area but also overseas. In doing so, he said he'll not forget all the work his fellow firefighters have done with him throughout the years. "It's not only a joy, it's an honor to lead a group like this who are the best in the business," he said. "It's a privilege."

Notes for Dr. Kaitlyn Elizabeth Hefferan:

Kaitlyn Hefferan, Orthopaedic Surgery Lead, Physician Assistant and Fellowship Director, The Detroit Medical Center

Most recent education: Master of Science, King's College

Certifications: Certified Physician Assistant, PA in Orthopaedics

Kaitlyn Hefferan is the rock star of physician assistants.

Leading a staff of 20, Hefferan not only makes house calls but she also was lead in educating Sports Medicine staff and streamlining the process when the DMC implemented electronic medical records. She even developed custom templates for physicians in Orthopaedics, saving each surgeon an estimated 16 hours a week. Moreover, one of her initiatives is saving DMC $230,000 a year per PA. Hefferan developed and implemented a 12-month post-graduate physician assistant fellowship program at the DMC. It's one of only four such programs in the nation. Within two months, the program was nationally accredited, and she recruited her first trainees two months after that. A member of several industry and community organizations, Hefferan often lets aspiring medical professionals shadow her in the office or operating room and has encouraged high school and college students in the process.

"Whether supporting our physicians or leading the charge to enhance the physician assistant experience, Kate is a force to be reckoned with. She seems to have no 'off' button. And though she repeatedly achieves success, she is never satisfied nor complacent. Instinctively, Kate is an optimal leader and an achiever, by choice," said Chris Cowan, physician assistant in the department of Orthopaedics & Sports Medicine, DMC.

Notes for Erin Elizabeth Fralick:

2014 - History teacher Erin Luckhardt says she may have aspired to a career as a school communicator, but new technologies that make it quick and fun to promote schools on social media didn't exist "back when" she was launching her career. Erin is only 30. It's amazing how quickly Facebook, Twitter, YouTube, Instagram, and blogging platforms have revolutionized how school communities – and everybody else – connect. "Social media is empowering," Luckhardt said. "Traditional media cover the budget angle of schools, but a positive story about student learning or engagement is a 10-second blip on the radar. Social media allows us to tell our own story in a way that can be quickly shared among people with the same interest." Erin, who is a technology mentor at Boyne City Public Schools in Northern Michigan, creates many "Tech Tip Tuesday" tutorials on applications of interest to school communicators.

Teaching with technology was not a major focus of her teacher preparation program at Alma College, but then again she graduated back in 2006. "I graduated thinking that, I could make PowerPoints, so I was golden," Erin said. "At first we were mostly dazzled by the wow factor." It was during her first job teaching social studies at Williamston High School that Erin began embracing technology as a way to make her classes more current, engaging and interactive. In fact, she checked out the media center's LCD projector – a modern-day overhead projector capable of displaying computer data – for classroom use almost every day. By her second year at Williamston, the school board purchased an LCD projector for her room.

Erin's new husband Jon, an engineer, was laid off by a Lansing company. Her mother, Pat Fralick, director of family and community health services for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, seized an opportunity to lure the couple to Petoskey by finding a position for Jon. Erin was delighted to return to her hometown. (If you've been to Petoskey, you understand.) But there were no full-time teaching jobs to be found. So, she started blogging.

Erin's "Lucky in Love" blog was a smattering of her interests at the time. She and Jon had bought a foreclosure, renovated it, cooked fine meals and – before long – were decorating a nursery. Jon's family and friends in Jackson and Ann Arbor eagerly awaited new posts, especially after baby Liza arrived. Soon Erin started using Facebook, Instagram and Twitter to help her blog find its audience. "It was just for fun, but I was learning a new way to communicate and teach," Erin said. When neighboring Boyne City Public Schools, on the verge of launching a one-to-one iPad initiative, posted a position to coach teachers on how to integrate the use of technology into instruction, Erin was ready. She created a blog to showcase the district's technology strides. She opened a district Twitter account. She helped teachers adapt to teaching with iPads. She loved the position so much that she decided to pursue a master's in education technology degree through Grand Valley State University. "It was a great job but it was not a teaching contract," Erin said. "When a job teaching eighth grade social studies opened in the district, I applied."

American history from the Revolution to Reconstruction may be part of Erin's DNA. Her father, Mark Fralick, taught eighth-grade social studies at Petoskey Middle School for 30 years. Erin's older brother Gavin Fralick now teaches eighth-grade social studies at Petoskey Middle School – in the same room where their father taught. Mark Fralick recently became principal at Boyne City Elementary School. "Maybe Gavin and I couldn't help following in Dad's footsteps," Erin said. "We weren't raised in a family that flew to Florida for spring break. We had to drive so we could stop at every battlefield on the way so

Dad could tell us the story.”

Now Erin is telling those same stories – but often in different ways. She’s currently on family leave after the birth of her second daughter, Leela, but when she returns to the classroom next month she will resume tweeting a daily “what we did in class” message to parents of her students. “Last spring I tweeted photos of an exercise in which I run an imaginary Mason-Dixon Line down the middle of my room to divide the class,” Erin said. “Students argue points from their side of the line.” Parents who sign up for her classroom Twitter feed appreciate these glimpses. It’s detail some eighth grader wouldn’t share at home unless asked about it.

He married (1) Naomi Marie Stanton 14 Jul 1961 in Marion Co, Oregon. She was born 1942 in Salem, Marion Co, Oregon. He married (2) Jane A. Nicholas Aft. 1980. She was born Aft. 1941.

Notes for Douglas Martin Hilton:

Doug M. Hilton October 20, 1941 - May 30, 2009 Portland - Memorial service: 1 p.m. Sat., June 6, 2009 at Foothills Church, 975 Fern Ridge Rd., Stayton. Arrangements by North Santiam Funeral Service.

Martin Douglas Hilton October 20, 1941 - May 30, 2009 Portland - Doug Hilton grew up in West Stayton, where he helped his parents, Clyde and Alice Hilton, run the family farm. He graduated from Cascade High School in 1959 and attended Linfield College in McMinnville. He lived in Albany, Sweet Home, Corvallis and Portland. During that time, Doug and his former wife, Marie Anderson (nee Stanton), had two children, Mike and Kay. In 1980, Doug moved to Phoenix, Arizona, where he met his wife, Jane, to whom he was married for 21 years. Doug, Jane, her two sons, Jeff and Ryan, and Jane's mother moved to Portland in 1988. Doug's 40-year professional career included positions in banking, insurance, other areas of financial management, and various entrepreneurial endeavors. Doug's life was enriched through his passion for mechanical building and restoration projects. From the depths of his various home garages in Portland and Phoenix, Doug built airplanes (Thorpe T-18, BD-7, and E-Racer) and restored both cars and boats (1961 Chevy Corvair Spyder, a 1964 Thompson Lapstrake wooden boat, and a 1941 Chris Craft Runabout). With help from his sons or friends from the neighborhood, Doug would happily work and chat - with beer in hand - on his projects. He was a wonderful friend and neighbor, always ready to just sit and talk when anyone needed an ear.

Doug was a devoted family man - a loving and committed father so proud of all his children: his daughter Kay, music coordinator, and son-in-law Jeremy, stage manager of the Oregon Shakespeare Festival in Ashland; and his son, Mike, a former Air Force lieutenant colonel and fighter pilot who, with his partner Cheryl, currently consults for the Department of Defense. As a doting stepfather to Jeff and Ryan, Doug saw Jeff through college at the University of Oregon, even though he was forever a Beaver fan. He loved and enjoyed the company of Jeff and his partner, Alicia, very much. He faithfully transported Ryan back and forth to work for years, and encouraged him in all his endeavors. Most of all, Doug loved his Janie a whole lot. Doug knew well the art of marriage and family.

Doug is survived by his parents, his wife, his three sons, and his daughter; brother, Dan and his wife Bert of Sisters; grandchildren, Selena Hilton-Aragon of Harrisonburg, Virginia. and Camille Hilton-Aragon of Christiansburg, Virginia; his beloved companion and canine squirrel sentry, Henry; and too-numerous to count friends in Phoenix, Portland and many other places. We will miss our Dougman very much! Special thanks to Rose Marie Tyson, nurse practitioner, and the staff of the Signature Hospice House for their good and faithful care. And always remember, dear Doug, "Measure twice, cut once".

A memorial service will be at 1 p.m. Saturday, June 6, 2009 at Foothills Church in Stayton. Contributions may be made to Oregon Humane Society. Serving the family North Santiam Funeral Service, Stayton. It is foolish and wrong to mourn the men who died. Rather we should thank God that such men lived. - George S. Patton, Jr.

Heather Feldkamp, 44, discovered her Lyme disease infection too late. The Saline resident was a very active soccer player when, in January 2013, her right leg started going numb. "I thought it was sciatica," a pinched nerve condition, she said. "I went to the chiropractor a couple of times. Eventually, my left leg started going numb as well. I was starting to limp. I couldn't play soccer anymore."

Heather Feldkamp was active and athletic before being diagnosed with both breast cancer and Lyme disease. Feldkamp's cancer is in remission, but the Lyme disease has left her permanently disabled. Feldkamp said her primary care physician was baffled and sent her to a neurologist, who conducted an MRI. Then came a spinal tap, and the coincidental discovery that she had cancer. She beat breast cancer within that year, but the tingling and impinged motion continued. Her primary care doctor and oncologist thought the symptoms were somehow related to her cancer, but Feldkamp was skeptical.

She went to a holistic doctor in Ann Arbor, versed in Lyme disease, at her own expense. "She tests me and says, 'You don't have cancer in your nerves; you're full of Lyme,'" Feldkamp recalled. Sharing that news with her other doctors brought pushback, she said. "They told me, 'We don't have Lyme (here),' " she said. A blood test was shipped to a lab in California. Weeks later, Feldkamp received a call from the Washtenaw County Health Department. "Where have you been? Where have you been traveling?" she said they asked. Her test had come back positive for Lyme disease. "I hadn't traveled," she said. "I live on a dairy farm. We've got a lot of trees, a lot of cattle, deer." Feldkamp doesn't recall a tick bite, or the signature bull's-eye rash that often develops after one. "I could have had it for a year. Maybe it laid dormant," she said. "I was told I could have gotten bit on my head, where you never see the bite, because it's covered by your hair."

Feldkamp said she never got her primary care doctor, neurologist, or oncologist to take Lyme disease seriously. "And once I started being vocal about it on Facebook, I started hearing from all these other people suffering from Lyme disease who've had a similar experience with their doctors," she said. According to the Infectious Diseases Society of America, taking certain types of antibiotics for up to three weeks is the best course of treatment when Lyme disease is discovered early. Longer courses of antibiotics, possibly administered repeatedly over several months, are called for when the disease is caught later. More problematic, however, is when tests show the disease is gone, but debilitating symptoms remain, known as post-Lyme disease syndrome.

"There is no well-accepted definition of post-Lyme disease syndrome," a 2006 study published by the Infectious Diseases Society of America stated. "This has contributed to confusion and controversy and to a lack of firm data on its incidence, prevalence and (manner of development)." There's even debate in the medical community about what causes post-Lyme disease syndrome, Foster said. "Some people say it's still the spirochetes" — the spiral shaped, Lyme disease-causing bacterium — "that are still there, gone into cyst form," he said. "Others say the spirochetes are no longer there, but the initial infection is still causing an auto-immune response, and the body is attacking itself." The lack of answers, and outright skepticism sufferers can face from medical professional, have led to passionate responses, Foster said. "They're hurting, they want to get to the bottom of these infections," he said.

Feldkamp remains in remission for cancer, but now needs the assistance of a cane, more than four years later. "I walk with a limp, my leg's still numb," she said. "But I'm still alive. It is what it is. I've got to keep moving on."

Barry George¹² Grossman (Roland Schaible¹¹, Mathilda Maria¹⁰ Schaible, Rosina Catherine⁹ Bruestle, Anna Barbara⁸ Schaible, Johann Martin⁷, Matthaeus⁶, Johann Martin⁵, Anna⁴ Blaich, Martin³, Sebastian², Hans¹) was born 1938. He married Ellen Marie Haeussler 05 Sep 1959 in Bridgewater Twp, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, daughter of Ralph Haeussler and Florence Bohms. She was born 12 Sep 1938 in Freedom Twp, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, and died 08 Feb 2024 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan.

Notes for Ellen Marie Haeussler:

Ann Arbor, Michigan - Ellen Marie (Haeussler) Grossman had a full and wonderful life filled with her passions: music, travel and most importantly, family. She passed away at home with family at her side on February 28, 2024, from congestive heart failure. Ellen was born to Ralph and Florence (Bohms) Haeussler at the family farm in Freedom Township (Manchester) on September 2, 1938. She attended the Silver Lake one-room schoolhouse from kindergarten through 8th grade. She was often kept home from school to work the farm including driving the tractor to disc and cultivate the family fields or follow the combine with a truck to be filled with wheat, oats, or corn. Her daily job was to bottle-feed animals before walking the mile to school. Her family had a large garden from which she learned how to can and freeze. She continued this tradition with her own gardens for many years. Some cherished family moments were making ice cream as a Sunday treat.

Ellen and Barry Grossman met while attending Manchester High School (1952-1956) and started officially dating after their Senior Trip to New York City. They loved to listen to and dance to many of the touring big bands at the Wampler's Lake Pavilion. Three years after starting to date, Ellen and Barry married at St. John's Lutheran Church in Bridgewater, Michigan on September 5, 1959. Their love of music and dance permeated their lives together. Ellen sang in church (St. John's Lutheran Church and Webster United Church of Christ) and held the longest membership in the Women's Chamber Chorus in Ann Arbor. She was able to combine her singing with travel on several European trips with church choirs. She loved singing in cathedrals in Ireland, England, and Spain.

As a couple they were dedicated square dancers since 1962 and combined their love of travel, music, and dance by traveling throughout Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. They danced internationally in Canada, England, Germany, and Italy, as well as cruising and dancing on a Caribbean Cruise ship. The mode of travel expanded when Barry earned his private pilot license in 1966 while a member of the Ann Arbor Fliers Flying Club. Ellen and Barry flew to many places in Michigan and once flew as far as Key West, Florida.

Education was also a cornerstone of Ellen's life. After attending Manchester HS and graduating as Valedictorian, she went on to graduate (also in 1956) from the Comptometer School in Jackson, Michigan and attended Eastern Michigan University all while working summer clerical jobs with Sunstrand Corp. in Ann Arbor and Sealtest Foods in Ypsilanti. She graduated from EMU with B.A in Education with a major in math and minors in Spanish and physics in 1960 and a master's in Education in 1962. After graduation she taught middle school math at Marshall Junior High School in Westland, Michigan for one year and then George C. Marshall Junior High School in South Redford, Michigan for 7 years. Ellen's stint with teaching ended with the arrival of the couple's first child. Her love of learning spanned her lifetime- she was rarely without a book or something to read. Autobiographies were a favorite. As their family grew, they continued their traveling by visiting and/or camping in 48 out of the 50 United States (North Dakota and Hawaii were missed) and southern Canada. As with dancing, the couple traveled internationally and added Australia (with the family), New Zealand, Israel, Egypt, and many other countries in Europe to their list of places they had visited. Cancun, Mexico became a favorite destination to wait out winter-made better by traveling with friends from Plymouth, Michigan.

Ellen's faith was an integral part of who she was, and her faith was intricately intertwined with her passion for music. She was baptized and confirmed into membership at St. John's Lutheran Church in Bridgewater and went on to sing in the choir there. In 1981 the couple brought their family to Webster

United Church of Christ where she and Barry remain(ed) active members. She continued to sing at Webster as long as she could. She loved openly and lived fully. She made sure that Barry, her children, and her grandchildren knew that she loved them. Her motto in her later years was "live life to its fullest, because you don't know about tomorrow."

Ellen was preceded in death by her parents, Ralph and Florence Haeussler; her three brothers, Harold, William, and Gerald. Ellen is survived by her beloved husband, Barry; daughter, Susan (John) Baughn; and son, B. Brian (Karla) Grossman; grandchildren, Erin and John Baughn, Kathryn and Elysabeth Grossman, and many cousins, nieces, nephews, and exchange grandchildren.

The family wishes to thank Arbor Hospice for their loving care. A Memorial Service and interment will take place at Webster United Church of Christ on March 23, 2024, at 11:00-12:00 with a luncheon to follow.

ROSS PEROT ADDRESSING PORT HURON NORTHERN HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION JUNE 7, 1995 - Ladies and gentlemen, it is my distinct privilege and pleasure to introduce the gentleman that has had the greatest impact on the American political agenda during the 1990's, Mr. Ross Perot.

Mr. Perot: Thank you very much. Congratulations to all you graduates. It's a privilege to be with you on this special day. I am here tonight because I was invited by the parents of Nicole Helwig to honor her memory at your graduation. I know that they would want me to also include Michael Tandren and Paul Stoliger. As you celebrate this great night, remember your three friends. In Nicole's father's words, "She is in heaven. Heaven is a little richer and we are a little poorer." All three are looking down on this graduation ceremony tonight from heaven. All three, I promise you, are smiling. Please keep them in your thoughts on this special night. . . .

Nicole, God bless you. If Nicole were here tonight, she would urge you to live the words I'm about to read. They sum up everything I've said tonight. Live your life this way. A bell is no bell -- now keep in mind, we've got a bell -- 'til you ring it. All the songs in the world are no songs, 'til you sing it. More importantly than anything else, love in your heart isn't put there to stay. Love isn't love 'til you give it away. May God bless you all on this special day.

Notes for Ronald Ernest Mann:

The Manchester Enterprise - Thursday, May 14, 2009 - By Daniel Lai, Staff Writer

After 14 years serving as special assessment coordinator for the Washtenaw County Water Resources Commission, local resident Ron Mann is stepping down. "I have a lot of things I would like to do and this affords me the ability to take some time for myself," he said. Mann, who was also recently elected to another four-year term as supervisor for Manchester Township, said his retirement from the county will allow him more time to spend in the township.

"I have worked two jobs for the last 20 years and the supervisor position has been a lot more demanding recently," he said. "I wouldn't say I will have more time, but by working one job, I can spend less nights and Saturday mornings in the township office." Mann said over the years he has come to enjoy his responsibilities as a special assessment coordinator. "I enjoy working with the county and local units of government," he said. "I also enjoy working with people."

Mann said his interest in politics and a knack for crunching numbers led him to apply for the position over a decade ago. "With my assessment training in the township, this job fit right in," he said. "I've always been a numbers person and with my background, this jump seemed a logical step for me." However, he said he didn't expect to remain with the county as long as he has.

"I didn't figure I would be here for 14 years," he said. "The average person goes through seven different careers in their life; maybe I have a few more left." As an assessment coordinator, Mann is responsible for determining how to allocate the cost of sewer repairs to the county's 500 drain districts. "Anytime we do work on a drain -- from dredging to clearing out trees -- the costs are appropriated to the district that the sewer is located in. It's my responsibility to come up with a fair and equitable system that can work with the township governments," he said.

Each year the Water Resources Commission handles $1.5 to $2 million in sewer work which is spread over 60 to 85,000 parcels of land and 100 districts. "I have enjoyed working at the county and I will miss the people, but I will be around," Mann said. One accomplishment Mann is proud of is the number of interns that have gone on to find jobs across the country. "I've had 54 interns that have worked with me and almost everyone of them said they were able to get a job because of their experience in Washtenaw County," he said. "Real world experience gave them the insight they needed to succeed."

Mann's last official day will be May 21. A special retirement party will be held at noon at the Washtenaw Western Service Center, 705 N. Zeeb Road; Ann Arbor. With more free time, Mann said he looks forward to spending time with his six grandkids and traveling with his wife. He also plans to continue volunteering at the Manchester Chicken Broil and Manchester Fair. "I will definitely be hanging around the community," he said. Editor Daniel Lai can be reached at 428-8173 or dlai@heritage.com.

More About Wilbur Whitworth and Susan Feldkamp:
Marriage: 1982

Children of Susan Feldkamp and Wilbur Whitworth are:

9913 i. Sarah Jean¹³ Whitworth, born 19 Apr 1988 in Travis Co, Texas.

Notes for Sarah Jean Whitworth:

April 11, 2011 - Every time local writer Susan Feldkamp looked into her daughter Sarah Whitworth's eyes, she saw a perfect child. Whitworth was part of the school dance team, got straight A's, had a lot of friends and a good relationship with her parents. Feldkamp never anticipated the day when other people would stare at Sarah, not because she was a dancer but because she was starving, her muscles wasted away by severe malnutrition.

At 15 years old, Hays High School student Whitworth was diagnosed with anorexia nervosa and obsessive-compulsive disorder. Feldkamp said when Whitworth lost weight rapidly after a jaw reconstruction surgery in 2003, her family started to suspect she had an eating disorder. Whitworth could not eat much for a few weeks after the surgery and lost about five pounds in recovery, which was normal — the problem was that she kept losing. "There's a pattern with starting to avoid food," Feldkamp said. "You hear things like 'I don't have time to eat, I'll eat later,' or 'I'm going to go to Katie's house; she'll have food over there.'"

Whitworth remembers having her first abnormal thoughts about food one year before her surgery when she was in eighth grade and on the school dance team. Although she was never a big girl, being in a leotard around her peers made her feel extremely self-conscious. Intent on losing two pounds, Whitworth gave up chocolate for Lent, which started her self-imposed food restrictions. She said the time was particularly hard because her parents trusted her and didn't take action right away. "People would go up to them and say, 'Why are you not doing anything? You're sitting here watching your daughter starve herself,'" Whitworth said. "At the end of the day, it wasn't something they could control, and they couldn't have done a better job than what they did."

Despite the food restrictions, Feldkamp and her husband didn't take Whitworth's behaviors seriously until that summer when, in addition to her restrictions, Whitworth began to run for extensive periods every day in 100-degree weather. Feldkamp tried everything she could to get Whitworth to come inside, including following her in the car and talking to her on the phone while she ran, but nothing worked. Her mother soon learned Whitworth's route and began to leave cups of ice water along her trail so she would not get dehydrated. "I was terrified that I was going to wake up one morning, go into her room and find she was dead," Feldkamp said. "I hated the disease, and I loved her, and I wanted the daughter back that I knew and loved."

At home, Feldkamp said the family was always cautious and constantly worried about Whitworth. Whitworth would eat only one Popsicle after her runs, and the rest of her diet consisted of beef jerky, peanuts, salads, grapes and apples. After visits to a dietician and a therapist produced no improvement, Feldkamp and her husband, Gene Whitworth, took a resistant Sarah Whitworth to see local eating disorders specialist Edward Tyson in 2004. After an electrocardiograph exam, Tyson found that Whitworth's heart was damaged and had shrunk, a sign of severe malnutrition. People with small hearts have abnormal heart rhythms and are at risk for sudden death if the heart stops working.

Feldkamp and Gene Whitworth immediately began to work with Tyson to try to get Sarah Whitworth to accept her disorder and begin eating again to build up her heart muscles. "They were very scared at that point," Tyson said, who has spoken publicly with the family about eating disorders many times. "Their daughter was restricting tremendously and exercising voluminously, [but] they weren't just worried about her losing weight. They were worried about her dying." In the middle of Whitworth's treatment, the family's insurance company told Feldkamp they would no longer cover visits to Tyson because he was out of their Health Maintenance Organization network, a nationwide employer insurance system that sets up and provides a variety of doctors at a reduced price. The company also said it would not cover treatment because in Texas, eating disorders are not listed as a serious mental illness such as depression or OCD. The insurance company instead said it would cover costs for treating Whitworth's OCD, as long as she saw a psychiatrist within the company's network. After failed treatment with the psychiatrist, the family switched back to Tyson and paid for treatment out of pocket. Fueled by her uncontrolled running and restrictions, Whitworth's condition worsened, and in 2004, Whitworth passed out because of low blood sugar levels while driving her father's pick-up truck. She crashed the vehicle with her 11-year-old sister inside.

Gene Whitworth and Feldkamp took out $32,000 from their retirement fund and sent Sarah Whitworth to the Center for Hope, a specialized treatment center in Nevada not covered by their health insurance. Although the car accident convinced Whitworth she needed to get help, she fought the family at their hotel room in Nevada and forced her parents to physically remove her. "Once I got to the center, I told myself, 'Sarah, you're here and your parents are spending $900 a day to have you be here,'" Whitworth said. "Don't waste their money if you're not going to do it." Whitworth said she remembers her mother calling countless politicians, such as former Rep. Patrick Rose, D-Dripping Springs, and insurance companies to try and get coverage for her treatment. She said she felt inspired to recover when she saw her parents' determination.

Whitworth was at the center for 10 weeks and rejoined her family in November 2004. She has since recovered, graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and found a job in Florida. The family fought a long battle to get reimbursed by the insurance company and in the end, got back 15 percent of the $70,000 dollars they spent on Whitworth's treatment. After the reimbursement, Feldkamp went on to the Texas Legislature to fight for insurance coverage for eating disorders. She became an active member of the Austin Foundation for Eating Disorders, talking publicly about her struggles as a parent in hopes of inspiring parents to recognize the symptoms and get help early. "There are so many parents out there who are going down this road, and it's a very lonely road," Feldkamp said. "I want people to know that there is help available and that they should pursue it and not give up, even if the first doctor they go to doesn't know about eating disorders."

She married Dr. Lindley Morris Zerbe. He was born 06 May 1978.

Notes for Dr. Lindley Morris Zerbe:

Dr. Lindley Zerbe was born and raised on the Monterey Peninsula. After graduating Summa cum Laude from Carmel High School, he attended Stanford University where he received both his bachelors and masters of science degrees. After Stanford, with an adventurous spirit, Dr. Zerbe moved to Singapore to take a position as an associate scientist at the National University of Singapore (NUS). Through a stroke of luck and fate, the first day he began work he was presented with the opportunity to apply and compete for a position on the NUS Everest Team. The leadership of the university wanted to do something extraordinary to celebrate its 100th anniversary. They had decided that sending a team of students, staff and alumni from the university to attempt Everest would represent their commitment to teamwork, excellence and determination in the face of adversity. Dr. Zerbe spent nights and weekends training, competing for, and winning, a spot on the final team. Early in the process he was named team leader and, through hard work, determination and dedication, on May 31st, 2005, summited Mt. Everest with several of his teammates.

Dr. Zerbe's pathway to dentistry began with providing healthcare to people in great need while on mountaineering expeditions in Nepal, Tibet and Pakistan. While on the Everest team, he volunteered to be the team's medic and so was mentored by the team's physician in Singapore in high altitude and wilderness medicine. One thing that he noticed was particularly lacking in these poorer areas was dental care. This and an experience he had in Pakistan where he and a teammate recemented a fellow climber's crown that had fallen out and took her out of pain, left a strong impression and set him on the road to dentistry. Shortly after Everest, Dr. Zerbe attended the UCLA School of Dentistry and, through hard work and a commitment to excellence, graduated top of his class, achieving the distinction of Magna Cum Laude. Dr. Zerbe was also inducted into the OKU honors dental society and received awards for excellence in oral and maxillofacial radiology, public health dentistry, and oral and maxillofacial surgery.

Dr. Zerbe has served as a board member for the Monterey Bay Dental Society for the last 5 years in charge of community relations and was recently voted in as President for 2019. In addition to serving the dental society, Dr. Zerbe is committed to expanding, honing and refining his dental skills and to that end, regularly attends continuing education courses covering various dental topics, from orthodontics to implantology. He is also a member of two local dental study groups, Dental Pearls and Spear Dental Education. He has recently become a member of the Spear Faculty Club and frequently takes trips to the Spear Dental Education Headquarters in Scottsdale, AZ to learn the latest dental techniques.

Dr. Zerbe and his wife, Laura, reside on the Monterey Peninsula, and recently welcomed a new addition to the family, Joseph, on August 8th, 2018 and is already getting along well with his big brother, John, who just turned five.
