He married Katharina Stoz 13 Oct 1842 in Washtenaw Co, Michigan, daughter of Gottlieb Stoz and Agnes Wilmer. She was born 27 Jan 1807 in Endingen, Zollernalb, Wurtemberg, and died 03 Jun 1890 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan.

Notes for Friedrich Schneider:

Frederick Schneider Hangs Himself to an Apple Tree. An old citizen of Ann Arbor, Frederick Schneider, a resident of Miller Avenue went home as usual about 5 P.M. Monday for supper. Bringing in kindling with which to hasten the fire to prepare the evening meal, he took a position behind the stove where he sat until preparations were completed. The remaining members of the family assumed their accustomed places around the family board and solicited the head of the household to assume his. Without reply he quietly slipped out the back door. Mrs. Schneider felt alarmed at the protracted absence of her husband, and, after partaking of supper went out in search of him. She called and called and elicited no response. Moving about in the yard she espied in the silent gazes of the moon, a human form standing beneath the limb of an apple tree. Approaching it she was stricken with horror at the sight of her husband who was hanging by the neck, dead. This was at seven o'clock in the evening. Neighbors were promptly summoned and the deceased removed within his late residence.

Mr. Schneider had been a hard drinker for thirty-seven years, spending nearly all his earnings as laborer for intoxicants. It was while he was under such influence, if indeed he had been for years out of it, that he took his life. Twenty years ago, after informing Mrs. S. of his intention, he started for the woods, with a piece of clothes line to perform the terrible deed he consummated on Monday. But his wife sent a neighbor after, who overtook him, and together they returned, he then laughing at the idea. On Christmas night he was found intoxicated lying on the sidewalk, a kind friend saving him from freezing to death by removing him to his residence. An inquest held on Monday evening by Coroner Terry returned a verdict of suicide while laboring under temporary insanity, super induced by drink. The deceased will be 59 years of age on the 18th of this month, and leaves a widow and three children to mourn his untimely departure.

Frederick Schneider, a German, aged fifty-nine years, who lived in the third ward, committed suicide on Monday Feb. 3, 1879 evening by hanging himself to an apple tree in his yard. Coroner W. G. Terry impaneled a jury, when Schneider's wife testified that he came home about five o'clock, and soon went out doors. Shortly after, not being able to find him, she supposed he had gone down town, but about seven o'clock discovered him hanging to a tree, dead. The body was cut down by Chauncey Orcutt and Wm. Copeland, the latter of whom testified that he must have made a slipping noose, attached it around his neck and then jumped off a wood pile. His daughter testified that he appeared delirious, and that it was caused by intemperate habits, he having been a drinking man for thirty years, and that he had before threatened self-destruction. His son, Mike Schneider, said that he appeared intoxicated when he saw him in the afternoon, and complained that the boys called him nick-names. He also told THE COURIER reporter that his father had attempted suicide about two years since, but they discovered him in time to frustrate his designs. He further said that he thought he was so pestered by the boys as to cause him to suicide.
