Notes for Karl Ehrhardt (Charles Earhardt) Stollsteimer:

Ann Arbor - Four men were injured, three seriously, in a crash tonight Nov. 10, 1931 on the Pleasant Lake Road, nine miles southwest of Ann Arbor, when cars driven by Julius Fritz, Route 2, Saline, and Manuel Stollsteimer, of Pittsfield, collided. Fritz, 59 years old; Charles Stollsteimer, 58, a passenger in Fritz's car, and Fred Gutekunst, 55, a passenger in Manuel Stollsteimer's machine, were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, while Manuel Stollsteimer was hurried to a physician in Saline. It was said at the hospital that Gutekunst and Charles Stollsteimer are suffering from possible skull fractures and the latter has a fractured knee. Mr. Fritz sustained lacerations and chest injuries. Deputies said Manuel Stollsteimer, coming toward Ann Arbor, was on the right side of the road, but were unable to account for Fritz's being on the wrong side. Manuel and Charles Stollsteimer are unrelated.

Ann Arbor, Nov. 11, 1931 - Three men were in St Joseph's hospital here today, two with possible skull fractures, as a result of the crash last night between automobiles driven by Julius Fritz, Saline, and Manuel Stollsteimer, of Pittsfield. Ann Arbor Argus-Democrat Newspaper, November 10, 1899:

The death of John Frederick Stierle, father of Herman Stierle, a clerk with Mack & Company, occurred last evening at 11 o'clock. He had been ailing only a little over a week. The funeral services will be held at his late residence in Saline Township Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Stierle was one of the respected, prosperous farmers of Saline Township. His amiable, hospitable disposition made him the friend of everyone. Many will miss his kindly face, which was often seen in Ann Arbor and Saline. He was born Unteraichen, Ober Amt Stuttgart, Wurtemberg. With his parents, for brothers and sisters, he removed to Washtenaw County in 1848, settling in Saline Township. On August 28, 1862, he married Miss Maria Zahn, the ceremony being performed by the late Rev. Frederick Schmid, in Ann Arbor. His widow and four children of seven, with which their union was blessed, survive him. They are Mrs. Ida Burkhardt, Frederick, Herman and William Stierle. Charles Stierle, of Freedom, a brother, and Mrs. Regena Stollsteimer, of Lodi, a sister, also survives. The deceased and his wife resided 23 years on the farm on which he died.

Notes for Erhard Theodore (Aaron) Alber:

Past and Present of Washtenaw County, Michigan by Samuel W. Beakes, Chicago: The S.J. Clarke Publishing Co., 1906:

Erhard Theodore Alber, the senior partner of the firm of Alber & Horning, proprietors of the St. James Hotel, is a native son of Washtenaw County and in his business career has displayed the enterprise which has been the dominant factor in the up building of the great Middle West. He was born in Lodi Township on the 25th of August, 1866. His father, John George Alber, became a resident of this county when eighteen years of age and settled upon a farm in Lodi Township, where for many years he was identified with general agricultural pursuits. At the time of his arrival this was largely an unsettled district in which the work of improvement and progress had scarcely been begun and he entered from the government a claim of eighty acres, to which he has since added as his financial resources have increased until he is now the owner of a valuable farm of one hundred and thirty-six acres, which under his careful supervision and cultivation has become very productive. In religious faith a Lutheran, he is an active worker in the church, doing all in his power to promote its growth and extend its influence. In his political allegiance he is a democrat. He married Miss Marguerita Metzger, who died in 1899, leaving seven children, as follows: Charles Michael, a resident farmer of Saline, Michigan; John George, who also makes his home at Saline; John August, a contractor residing in Ann Arbor; Fred Erhard, who is living in Perry, Lodi Township; William Henry, who is engaged in general farming near Saline; and Emanuel Gottlob, who is engaged in painting at Saline.

Erhard T. Alber, the other member of the family, was reared upon the old homestead farm in the usual manner of lads of the period and when about six years of age he began his education in the district schools of his native township. He pursued his studies through the winter months and in the summer seasons worked upon the home farm until about twenty years of age, when thinking that he would find other occupation more congenial he left the parental roof and began learning the carpenter's trade. Subsequently he spent five years in the employ of the Ann Arbor Railroad Company, working in the line of his trade and on the expiration of that period he began contracting and building on his own account, in which he continued for five years. In 1891 he took up his abode in Ann Arbor and he is now engaged in the hotel business as a partner of Nathan Horning, under the firm style of Alber & Horning, proprietors of the St. James Hotel. They conduct a strictly modern hostelry of twenty-five rooms heated with steam and there is a barber shop and buffet in connection. Mr. Alber is popular with the patrons of the hotel and receives a liberal patronage from the traveling public. Everything possible is done for the comfort and convenience of the guests and the hotel is conducted along the most modern lines, so that it would be a credit to a city of much larger size than Ann Arbor.

In the year of his removal here Mr. Alber was married to Miss Emma K. Horning, who was born in Pittsfield Township. A Mason, he belongs to Fraternity lodge, No. 262, A. F. & A. M. and is in hearty sympathy with the principles of the craft. His political allegiance is given to the Republican Party and he is a member of the Zion Lutheran church. His entire life has been passed in the county of his nativity and his deep interest in its welfare is manifest in the public spirited support which he gives to various measures for the general good. He is recognized as a man of good business qualifications, of keen foresight and unfaltering enterprise and his success is the merited reward of his persistent labor.

Oct. 24, 1973 - Lysock View's newest residents are believed to be the first set of twins to have lived at the county operated home. They are 92-year-old sisters, Lura May McClarin and Mrs. Lella May Marquardt, formerly of the 2200 block of West Fourth Street Mrs. Marquardt is the widow of William Marquardt. The sisters have lived together for many years. An official at Lysock said the sisters are the "pets of the place" with other guests. They enjoy visiting other resident and took their favorite chairs to the home. The official also commented that the sisters lived for many years with another sister, Ida, who died at the age of 97. Currently, there is one way to easily tell the twins apart Miss McClarin's right arm is in a cast as a result of a fall last July. Both are former silk mill workers. They were born in Salladasburg on May 15, 1881, daughters of Robert and Ella Thomas McClarin. They have no close relatives.

The regiment remained in Memphis until in January, 1865, when it was ordered to New Orleans, where it was encamped for some time on the old battlefield eight miles below the city. It next took passage for Mobile and, shortly after its arrival there, joined General Canby's army. The regiment was now a part of the Third Brigade, Third Division of the Sixteenth Army Corps, and its brigade was under the command of its colonel, James L. Geddes, while the regiment was commanded by Lieut. Col. W. B. Bell. The maneuvers leading up to the beginning of the siege of Spanish Fort were participated in by the Eighth Iowa; and in the siege operations, lasting from March 27th until April 8, 1865, when the assault was made and the fort captured, the regiment bore a most conspicuous part and suffered heavy loss. Lieutenant Colonel Bell gives a graphic account of the terrific fighting during the assault, and the desperate resistance made by the enemy. After describing in detail the passage of his regiment through an almost impassable swamp, during which it was under a heavy fire from the enemy, he says:

As soon as the regiment gained the crest of the hill, where our skirmishers were, the fight commenced in full force, but of such a character that it is difficult to describe. The regiment moved by the right flank in rear of the enemy's rifle pits, and carried them for a distance of 500 yards, either killing, wounding, or capturing the entire force of the enemy occupying the same. One thing that was very much in our favor was, the enemy's works, from their extreme left for a considerable distance up, consisted of a series of small pits, without direct connection with each other. This enabled us to attack them in detail, and we had carried a considerably portion of their works before their main force was aware that we had turned their left. We here witnessed the spectacle of dying in the last ditch, as quite a number of the rebels refused to surrender, and were shot in their ditches, and on the other hand, quite a number of them who were taken prisoners ought, in justice to our men, to have been killed, as they would first fire at our men after being ordered to surrender, then throw up both hands and surrender. * * * Soon after this, Colonel Geddes came up and directed me to place my command outside the enemy's works, and—facing toward them, and using them for breastworks—to throw out a company as skirmishers to my right and front, which orders were promptly complied with. * * * Soon after this, Captain Kettenring, of my command, in charge of the skirmish line, reported the enemy advancing in heavy column. They advanced within thirty or forty yards of us, calling out, "We surrender," and then fired on us. When they got within twenty-five yards of us, I ordered my command to fire and fix bayonets, which was done with a will. The enemy broke and ran, but soon after rallied and returned, and when within fifty yards of us halted. I ordered two companies to give them a volley, which caused them to break, and we saw them no more. Soon after this Colonel Geddes returned, formed his brigade and marched it through the fort, and to the bay beyond, after which, by his directions, I moved my command to camp. I claim for my regiment the honor of making the attack, and of being the only regiment that engaged the enemy inside of his works, also of capturing three stands of colors, five pieces of artillery, and four hundred and fifty prisoners, seven of them commissioned officers. * * *

Where all do their duty it is a difficult and delicate matter to make any discrimination. The several companies of the regiment were commanded by the following officers: Company A, Captain Muhs; Company B, Captain Kettenring; Company E, Lieutenant Clark; Company F, Lieutenant Harper; Company G, Lieutenant Vineyard; Company H, Lieutenant Bell; Company I, Sergeant Taylor; Company K, Captain Weeks. I would respectfully present to the favorable notice of the Colonel commanding brigade, the following named officers: Capt. Henry Muhs, who was conspicuous for his coolness while in command of the skirmish line; Lieut. Henn[^] Vineyard, commanding Company G, in skirmish line, who was wounded in the arm early in the engagement, but continued in command of his company, until he received a wound which broke his leg, and will probably prove fatal; Captain Weeks, who was conspicuous for his bravery throughout the engagement; Captain Kettenring, who was severely wounded while bravely leading his company; Lieutenant Gardiner, who took command of his company after Captain Kettenring was wounded, and led it through the engagement with ability, and Sergeant Betz, Company G, who took command of his company after Lieutenant Vineyard was wounded, and handled it well. I am under obligations to Adjutant Marsden for valuable assistance rendered me in communicating instructions to the command. In addition to the names above mentioned, many enlisted men deserve honorable mention, but they are so numerous that it would make this report too voluminous.

Notes for Herman Zimmerly:

Akron, Ohio Obituary January 10, 1954

Services for Herman Zimmerly, 85, one of Akron's early meat dealers and founder of the Zimmerly Bros. meat market, will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the Billow Chapel. The Rev. Reuben J. Schorer will officiate. Burial will be in Mt. Peace Cemetery. Friends may call at the chapel after 4:30 today. Mr. Zimmerly, a native of Switzerland, who learned the meat business as a young man in Akron, died Saturday in Barberton Citizens Hospital after a short illness.

He came to Akron from the "land of clocks and cheese," as he used to say, in 1881 and soon went to work in a butcher shop on Sherman Street. The owner was a Swiss who made the first frankfurters sold in Akron. Working under this man Mr. Zimmerly learned the mechanics of the meat business. When he was offered a partnership, he refused, knowing he wanted to go into business with his brothers, John, Jacob and Gottlieb. Mr. Zimmerly, youngest of the brothers, used to explain: "I wanted to work with my brothers because my mother told us that if you put four match sticks together you can't break them as easily as you can break a single stick."

The year 1894 marked the opening of the Zimmerly meat market at Main and Center Streets. Herman, youngest of six brothers, actually started the business. He was the last of the brothers to die. Besides John, Jacob, Gottlieb and Herman, there were Fred and Sam. The brothers peddled frankfurters and sausages by horse and wagon at first. Herman and several of his brothers made sausages in the basement of a house at Main and Center streets.

Their business grew and they built a packing house on the outskirts of town in 1904 - the "outskirts" now being Kenmore District. John ran the office, Jacob managed the packing house, Gottlieb handled the retail side of the business and Herman bought the cattle. The brothers moved the store in 1920 out to the site of the packing house because of the rapid expansion of business in the present heart of the city. Six years ago the two remaining Zimmerly brothers, Herman and Gottlieb, sold the business that had been in existence 53 years.

Herman, who lived at 4332 Manchester Rd, Portage Lakes, was a member of the Swiss Society, Akron Liedertafel and Turner Club and was an honorary member of the Kiwanis Club. Mr. Zimmerly's wife, Emma died 10 year ago. He leaves three nieces, Ida Zimmerly and Mrs. T. B. Tomkinson of Akron and Mr. G. S. Work of Auburndale, Florida and a nephew, Dr. J. F. Planz of Akron.

Burial: Jul 1875, Zion Lutheran Cemetery Valley City, Medina Co, Ohio

Confirmation: 1858, Zion's Evangelical Lutheran Church Liverpool Twp, Medina Co, Ohio

Notes for Johann Carl (Charles Jetter) Yetter:

Charles Yetter enlisted for Civil War service as a private, August 21, 1862, at Medina, Ohio (Medina County), August 21, 1862, in Company K of the 103rd Ohio Volunteer Infantry Regiment, for a term of 3 years. Occupation: Shoemaker. He was mustered out May 18, 1865, at Camp Dennison Ohio by Order of the U.S. War Department. His brother, John H. Yetter, also served in Company K, of the 103rd Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

Charles was born in Liverpool Township, Medina County Ohio and died in what is now Brunswick Hills Township, Medina County Ohio. At the time of his death he lived with his wife and three children at what is now 1925 Marks Road in Brunswick Hills Township, Medina County Ohio. The original farmhouse was severely damaged by a fire in 2009 and by early 2011 it had been razed. The farm had originally consisted of 40 acres, on which were located the house which had been added on to, a large barn, and a smaller storage-type barn-like structure. The woman living on the property in about 1973 was named Carol Miller. The property was for sale then for $80,000.00. The property changed hands and in the 1990s was subdivided twice. The first parcel to the east now has a luxury home with a small private lake and a parcel to the north was developed into a cul-de-sac with access from Marks Road containing about 15 new homes. The property which contained the old farm house and barns was close to Marks Road and the house was even closer to the road. As of May 3, 2011, it is unknown what will become of this property.

Charles was married a first time and had two sons, John and George before his wife died. He then married Magdalena Groll. They actually had four children (William P. Yetter, Anna Yetter, and Minnie Yetter). One child died as an infant.

If is quite possible that the parents of Charles and John H. Yetter are buried in Lot 61. The cemetery records are very unclear if so. If they are neither has a grave stone.

Notes for Georgia Kathryn Kurfis:

Ottawa Lake - Georgia K. Wood, whose family Christmas tree farm was a stop for many looking for just the right holiday conifer, died Wednesday in Whispering Woods dementia-care facility in Grand Rapids, Mich. She was 90. She was in poor health recently, her daughter, Bonnie DeLange, said. Mrs. Wood and her husband, Edwin "Chet" Wood, settled on 20 acres in Monroe County's Whiteford Township in 1968. Her husband didn't want to farm, but he did like to hunt and wanted to provide cover for deer. "It was sandy and good for trees, and he planted Colorado blue spruce," Mrs. DeLange said. "They put in 10,000 trees, and they started selling them to landscapers when they were small, and when they got larger, people would come and cut their own. It was a cut-your-own tree farm."

Her husband had his own business cleaning the sewage plants of restaurants, apartments, mobile home parks, and factories not connected to municipal sewers. Mrs. Wood was a homemaker - and tree tender. "She mowed the trees and kept it looking nice, and she would be home and take the calls and let the landscapers in and collect the money and did the bookkeeping," Mrs. DeLange said. During prime Christmas-tree season - from the day after Thanksgiving through Christmas Eve, especially weekends - the Woods and their daughter were outside selling trees and offering a hand when customers needed to secure their trees to their vehicles for safe trips home. "I remember some of the cars, the trees were so big you had to tie it so they could see out," Mrs. DeLange said. Mrs. Wood had a candy cane for every child. "There were generations that came. I remember this one couple, they brought their little boy, and when he was older, he was bringing his son," Mrs. DeLange said. One family's tradition was to pick their tree every Christmas Eve morning. Some customers took their Christmas card photos at the farm, and the Woods were on many families' mailing lists. "We had a lady at the house after my dad passed, and she brought cookies in and she said, 'I used to buy trees from you. Your parents were wonderful,'" Mrs. DeLange said. "That was really neat. I don't even know who she was." The tree business closed about six years ago.

Mrs. Wood was an artist who painted portraits and landscapes in oils after taking a class from Sylvania artist June DeVries. A member of the Bedford Artists Club, Mrs. Wood accepted commissions and exhibited her work in several area shows. She was born April 14, 1924, to Anna and Frank Kurfis, the second youngest of 11. She grew up in Wood County near Stony Ridge and was a 1942 graduate of Perrysburg High School. Afterward, she operated an overhead crane at Erie Proving Grounds in Ottawa County.

She and her husband met on a blind date, and while he was in the Army in Europe during World War II, they exchanged letters. He returned in the summer of 1945, proposed, and the couple married Nov. 24, 1945. He died April 21, 2005. Surviving are her daughter, Bonnie DeLange and sister, Eva Gentry.

Visitation will be from 4 to 8 p.m. today in Reeb Funeral Home, Sylvania, where services are at 11 a.m. Monday. The family suggests tributes to the Alzheimer's Association, northwest Ohio chapter.

Notes for Johann August Alber:

Past and Present of Washtenaw County, Michigan by Samuel W. Beakes, Chicago: The S.J. Clarke Publishing Co., 1906:

John August Alber, who, as a member of the firm of Stadel & Alber, is conducting a large business as a contractor and builder in Ann Arbor, was born in Lodi Township, Washtenaw county, August 24, 1855, his parents being John George and Margarita (Metzger) Alber, both of whom were natives of Germany, born in Wurtemberg. The father was one of the oldest settlers in this county, having crossed the Atlantic to the United States and made his way westward to Michigan at an early period in the development of this part of the state. A farmer by occupation, he became the owner of eighty acres of land, and as his financial resources increased he added to, the property until he had one hundred and sixty acres. His death occurred in Town in 1893, when he was sixty-three years of age, while his wife passed away in 1898, at the age of sixty-seven years.

The member of their family were as follows: John August, of this review; Charles Michael, a resident farmer of Saline township; Erhardt Frederick, who follows farming in Perry county, Michigan; William Henry, a farmer of Lodi township; Gottlieb Emanuel, a painter of Lodi; John Christian, a farmer living in Saline, and Erhardt A., proprietor of the St. James Hotel at Ann Arbor. At the usual age John August Alber entered the district schools of Lodi Township, where he continued his studies until sixteen years old. When a young man of eighteen years he began learning the carpenter's and builder's trade, and previous to this he assisted his father in the work of the home farm, early becoming familiar with the duties of field and meadow. For two years he served as an apprentice to a contractor in Lodi. He built George Page's barn, forty by seventy feet, one of the largest in the county, and in 1888 he came to Ann Arbor, where he worked at his trade in the employ of others until the spring of 1895, when he entered into partnership with Samuel Stadel. He has since been engaged in house building in this city and in surrounding districts and has been accorded a number of important contracts, while on all sides are seen evidences of his handiwork and skill in the substantial homes of Ann Arbor. He is thoroughly conversant with the builder's art, both in principle and detail, is prompt and faithful in the execution of a contract, and his honorable methods have brought to him a liberal patronage.

On the 30th of April, 1880, Mr. Alber was united in marriage to Miss Jacobina Blumhardt, a daughter of John G. and Wilhelmina Blumhardt, natives of Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Alber now have three children: Wilhelmina, born April 9, 1884; Christian William, born April 6, 1888; and Gertrude Elsie, born September 26, 1893. The parents hold membership in Zion Lutheran church, and they occupy a magnificent new residence which Mr. Alber has recently completed at No. 552 Third Street.

Lt. Melvin Alber of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Office was found dead in bed at his home at 211 North Ann Arbor Street Tuesday afternoon December 7, 1948. He had been off duty for about ten days, following a minor surgical operation and neighbors who had been calling on him daily, discovered his body. He had joined the sheriff's department during the administration of the late Sheriff Jacob Andres and most of the time had served on the 12 to 8 "mid-night" shift as desk sergeant. He was born in Saline 52 years ago and attended the Saline High School. In 1917 he enlisted in the U. S. Army Signal Corps, a served overseas for about a year. He had never married.

Notes for Frank Hollingsworth Kettenring:

The Biographical record of Clinton County, Iowa. Chicago: S. J. Clarke Publishing Company, 1901. Page 191:

FRANK H. KETTENRING, the subject of this sketch, is a well-known contractor and builder of DeWitt, of whose skill many noted examples are seen throughout this section of the state. He was born here, January 14, 1870, and has spent most of his life in DeWitt. His father, Frederick P. Kettenring, was a native of Pennsylvania, born in 1836, and being left an orphan when quite small, he was early thrown upon his own resources. When a child he came west and was reared in Scott County, Iowa, where he learned the carpenters and joiner's trade, working at the same in Davenport for some time. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted as a private and was in the service until hostilities ceased, when he was honorably discharged as a brevet major. Returning to Davenport, he resumed work at his trade and continued to make his home in that city for a few years. While there he was united in marriage with Miss Eleanor H. Hender, who was born in Hull, England, and when about thirteen years of age came to America and settled in Scott County, Iowa, where she grew to womanhood. In 1867 Mr. Kettenring came to DeWitt, and as a contractor and builder was prominently identified with the business interests of this place throughout the remainder of his life. He built the present high school and a great many public buildings and residences, and was considered the leading contractor of this part of the county. He was also engaged in the lumber business and built and operated a planing mill, manufacturing all kinds of wood work. He carried on business quite successfully up to the time of his death, which occurred February 21, 1901. He encouraged various public enterprises, taking stock in the opera house and Electric Light Company, and was quite an extensive real estate owner. Politically he was an ardent Republican, and served one or more terms as a member of the town council, but never was an office-seeker or cared for political preferment. Fraternally he was a Master Mason, and was one of the active and prominent members of the Grand Army Post at DeWitt, in which he served as commander. He was also past grand in the Odd Fellows' Lodge, and past chancellor in the Knights of Pythias Lodge of DeWitt, in which he held membership, and was quite popular in social as well as business circles.

Frank H. Kettenring, whose name introduces this review, is the oldest in a family of four sons, the others being: Fred M. and Walter R., both civil engineers, who are now living in Minneapolis, Minnesota; and Louis, who is at home with his mother and is attending the public schools of DeWitt.

Frank H. Kettenring grew to manhood in DeWitt and received his education in her schools, graduating from the high school in 1888. He learned the carpenter's trade with his father, and later spent one year in Chicago studying architecture. Subsequently he was engaged in contracting and building at Beatrice, Nebraska, for two years, and later followed the, same occupation at Dixon, Illinois, for one year. In 1894 he returned to DeWitt and was engaged in business with his father throughout Clinton and adjoining counties. . During the busy season he now employs -from seven to fifteen skilled workmen and does an extensive business. He has taken some very large contracts, building a fifteen-thousand-dollar church in Mt. Vernon in 1900 and a large public building in Maquoketa, besides many fine residences in DeWitt and the surrounding country. Mr. Kettenring still operates the planing mill built by his father, and as a lumber dealer enjoys an excellent trade, carrying a large supply of lumber and building material. He is one of the most active and progressive young business men of DeWitt and is meeting with marked success.

At DeWitt Mr. Kettenring was married in 1893 to Miss Celia P. Graham, who was born in Salt Lake City, Utah, but was reared and educated in DeWitt. They have a very pleasant home, which was erected by Mr. Kettenring. Like his father, he is a staunch Republican in politics, and cast his first presidential ballot for Benjamin Harrison, but has never taken any active part in political affairs aside from voting, preferring to give his undivided attention to his extensive business interests. He is a member of the Odd Fellows lodge of DeWitt, in which he has filled all the chairs and is now past grand. Both he and his wife are active members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and occupy an enviable position socially.

Fred Kettenring House - Built about 1908
314 W. 11th Street; Vancouver, Washington
Listed on the Clark County Heritage Register in 2005

The Kettenring House is a three-story classic box residential structure with projecting porch, box windows and dormers. Original multi-paned windows, curved rafter ends and handsome porch contribute to the structure's early 20th century character. The building contains wide, open eaves with exposed curved rafter ends. One chimney is located on the west slope. A rectangular stair landing window bay on the west elevation is supported by heavy brackets. The structure is located on a corner lot within the central business district and the courthouse area. The area, which was an old upper class residential neighborhood, is now a commercial area today.

The structure is associated with Fred and Katherine Kettenring in 1908. Fred Kettenring arrived in Vancouver in July of 1901 from Duluth, Minnesota to take charge of the construction of the Great Northern Railroad. He worked on the railroad until 1904 when he then took a job as the City Engineer. In 1906 he started a sawmill on the east fork of the Lewis River and later built and operated the Battle Ground Lumber Company.

The Kettenrings had five children, John Kettenring, the youngest son, was in admiral in the US Navy and operated the Battle Ground Lumber Company until his death in 2000. The youngest daughter, Margie Kettenring, married George Propstra whose father had originated the Holland House. George and Margie Propstra were the founders of the Burgerville empire. George Propstra played an important role in the Camas community through his generous donations for the improvement of the city.

Notes for Verle Orin Kettenring:

Cameron, Missouri – Verle Oring Kettenring was born at Arickaree, Colorado, November 10, 1911, and departed this life at the Isolation Hospital, St. Joseph, Missouri, March 21, 1931. Verle lived at Arickaree until he was in his tenth year, then removed with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Kettenring, to Cameron, Missouri, where remained until his untimely death. He finished the grades in McKinley school at Cameron, and was at the time of his passing a member of the Junior Class in Cameron High School. He was also member of the Junior class Quartette. The deceased had taken the "Good Indian" work at the Y.M.C.A. and had received his badge. At the Older Boys' Conference, December 1930 he made a written pledge to live a Christ-like life. He kept this pledge until his death. All through his illness he had a loving faith in God.

Verle had a winning personality and made many friends wherever he went. He leaves to mourn at his early passing: his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Kettenring, Cameron, Four sisters: Mrs. D. M. Payne Arickaree, Colorado; Mrs. A. Hazel Clark, Bancroft, Idaho; Mrs. Esther Roden, and Mrs. Olive McCann, Cameron; and one brother Donald Paul of the home. With these loved ones and relatives many friends and school mates mingle their tears of sympathetic grief at the departure of this fine young man.

Short funeral services were conducted in the chapel at Isolation Hospital St. Joseph, Missouri at 1:30 p.m., March 23, the Rev. W. C. Ferguson officiating. It was fitting that at the last sad rites the Cameron High School Male Quartette should sing. The quartette composed of Ross Kelsey, Claude Dorsey, Wayne Simmons, and Gordon Nell sang beautifully: "Rock of Ages," and "Abide with Me." The body was brought back to Cameron and tenderly laid to rest in Graceland cemetery.

Notes for Irving Fink Laucks:

The I.F. Laucks Company in Seattle, Washington, pioneered the use of soybean glue for the plywood industry in America, starting in 1923. This was the first important use of soy protein or soy flour in an industrial product. More important, it was the first commercially successful example on a significant scale of the new concept of making industrial products from soybeans. As such, it was a harbinger of the larger chemurgy movement that began in late 1920s and 1930s. At the same time, it served as one of the earliest markets for American-grown soybeans.

The I.F. Laucks Company also did some of America's earliest research on isolated soy proteins. The Cone and Brown patent (No. 1,935,375) for producing isolates and paper coatings, purchased by The Glidden Company in 1934, started two more new industries, those making industrial isolates and edible isolates. The latter showed steady growth into the 1980s.

The Early Years (1908-1926). Irving Fink Laucks was born in Akron, Ohio, in 1882. His father was a blacksmith. At the Case School of Applied Science (today's Case Institute of Technology) in Cleveland he studied mining engineering and chemistry. After graduating in 1904, he traveled to the Pacific Northwest to look over the mining situation.

In 1908 Laucks and Myrl J. Faulkenberg founded a laboratory (named what?) in Seattle, where they assayed and tested ores and minerals. They worked with various gold mining firms in Alaska. During World War I, with the global shipping and supply system seriously disrupted, many goods that had formerly been shipped from Europe to the East Coast began to be shipped from East Asia to Seattle. Laucks' laboratory received a government contract to serve as a customs analytical laboratory, inspecting for quality and unwanted microorganisms and insects.

During this work, Laucks first became acquainted with soybeans. Large cartwheel-shaped soybean cakes were being imported for use as hog feed, mainly in the Midwest. Laucks became very interested in the characteristics of soybean cake and he had some of it analyzed to determine its composition. In 1918 Laucks and Faulkenberg dissolved their partnership, with Laucks retaining the analytical laboratory, which he renamed I.F. Laucks, Inc.? (Cour 1955a, 1955b).

Laucks must have also analyzed some imported soy oil, for in 1919 he wrote a book titled Commercial Oils, Vegetable and Animal, with Special Reference to Oriental Oils, which contained a 5-page section on soy oil. This was his earliest known publication related to soy. In 1920 he and H.P. Banks wrote an article titled "Pressed Soya Bean Oil" in an American cottonseed oil journal. In April 1920 his company began publication of a monthly newsletter titled Laucks' Note Book, which contained some articles on soy oil?

One day in late 1921 or 1922 a man named Bill Bailey visited Laucks in his laboratory to talk with him about the possibility of developing a better plywood glue. Bailey had been sent by Ed Westman of the Olympia Veneer Co., the first worker-owned manufacturer of Douglas fir plywood, which began operation in August 1921. Bailey brought with him a sample of the casein glue that was being used by Olympia Veneer at the time.

The US plywood industry was still quite young. The world's first fir plywood was made in 1905 in Oregon. However laminated glued woods have been traced back to the pharaohs and the Greeks. They existed in Czarist Russia before 1900. The first patent involving what would now be called plywood was issued on 26 December 1865 to John K. Mayo of New York City, but it is not known if he ever commercialized the product. America's first plywood industry started on the East Coast, manned by European immigrants. It was hardwood plywood and its fancier plywood was used mostly decoratively, as in furniture. America's softwood plywood industry developed in the Pacific Northwest using Douglas fir (also then called Oregon pine). The first panels were produced in Portland, Oregon, in 1905, by the Portland Manufacturing Company, located on the Willamette River. They were made for exhibition at the Lewis and Clark Exposition Fair, which opened in Portland in June, 1905. This plywood (originally called "glued veneer stock") that came in 2-by-3-foot panels was seen by more than 500,000 people at the Fair. It started to be sold commercially in 1905 and was used initially mostly to make doors, the bottoms of drawers, trunks, valises, and wall paneling. Although fir plywood was born in Oregon, it was the growing state of Washington that quickly took hold of the new industry. The first plywood plant in Washington started in 1910 and Washington held its dominance until 1954, when Oregon regained it. In the early 1920s the East Coast and West Coast plywood industries were of approximately size. The word "plywood" was first used in 19?? (Cour 1955b).

By the 1920s plywood was made as follows: Cut big Douglas fir trees, haul them to a plywood mill, select the best trees (called "peeler logs"), and cut those into selected lengths (what length?). Put one length in a huge rotary lathe, strip off the bark (before or after putting in the lathe?), then revolve the log on its axis against the long lathe knife, which peels off a long, continuous strip of thin veneer, quite like unrolling a roll of paper toweling in a kitchen. Dry the veneers in long dryers, then run them one by one between the rolls of a glue spreader (built like the wringer on an old fashioned washing machine), which spreads glue on both sides of each veneer. Alternately layer glued and unglued veneers, so that their grains run perpendicular to each other, to form assemblies. Cold press these until the glue sets, then trim their edges, and sand their surfaces (Cour 1955b).

Prior to World War I, most of the glues used to bind the veneers together into sheets of plywood on both the East and West Coasts were animal glues, based primarily on blood and hoofs??, although some starch-based glues were used. Animal glues were best known for their horrible smell. During World War I a new type of glue made from casein, the major protein in milk, started to be used. Casein glue, invented in Switzerland and first used widely in Europe, had been developed in the US in about 1910 at the Forest Products Laboratory in Madison, Wisconsin. Early US manufacturers of casein glue were the Monite Company and the Borden Company, both of whom started around the time of World War I, when plywood started to find industrial uses, as in airplane parts and buildings. Casein glue was more water resistant?? than its predecessors and it smelled much better. But it also had several disadvantages: (1) it was fairly expensive and subject to wide variations in price and availability; (2) although it was fairly water resistant??, it was certainly not waterproof; and (3) it was quite viscous and tacky, which made working with it somewhat slow and difficult. Since 1905 glue had been the Achilles heel of the young Pacific Northwest plywood industry, for it limited plywood largely to indoor applications.

During the early 1920s, however, many plywood manufacturers, eager to expand their sales, were boasting that casein glue was waterproof. Makers of automobile bodies, believing the plywood manufacturers, started to use plywood for floor boards, instrument boards, and finally for running boards. Cars builders soon competed with door makers as plywood's top market. But it was soon discovered that the running boards of some cars began to warp badly and even come apart (delaminate), especially in humid/rainy, warm areas. The faulty glueline caused many complaints. It was a disaster for everyone involved. Many cars had to be recalled and the running boards replaced. The plywood makers eventually lost a major market as well as confidence in their product slumped. It was because of such problems with casein glues that Olympia Veneer sent Bailey to talk with Laucks (Laucks 1944).

After some discussion, Laucks agreed to analyze Bailey's casein glue and also to institute studies to develop an improved glue. Laucks then recalled that the soy protein he had analyzed was similar in composition to that of protein. So he set to work trying to make a glue from imported soybean cake. At about this same time Laucks learned that a man named Otis Johnson was working in another laboratory on the development of a soybean glue. The two men worked on the problem independently. Johnson was issued US and British patents for a soybean glue in 1923, before Laucks even applied for his patents. His last of four patents was issued in 1928.

Laucks initial laboratory experiments with soybean glue looked promising. Then he drew up an agreement with Olympia Veneer allowing him to experiment at their plant. Laucks needed a real plant in which to work and Olympia would receive large amounts of free glue. Laucks pulverized the rectangular slabs of hydraulic-pressed soybean cake, then ground the low-fat soybean meal to a flour fine enough to pass through an 100-200-mesh screen. He mixed the flour with various chemicals, and then with water to form the glue.

By 1923 Laucks felt he had developed a satisfactory soybean glue. This was the first non-casein glue to be used on plywood and the first to be made from low-cost, protein-rich oilseed residues, which were left over after expressing the oil. In 1923 Laucks began to sell his soybean glue to Olympia Veneer; the first shipment weighed one ton. Olympia considered the quality sufficiently good to change over this entire factory in 1923 from casein to soybean glue.

Apparently? at about this time Laucks renamed his analytical laboratory Laucks Laboratories, Inc., keeping the name I.F. Laucks, Inc. for the company that developed and produced his plywood glues. The analytical work and the glue development work were housed in the same building.

Laucks' two key technical men involved in the research and development on soybean glue were Glen Davidson and Charles Cone. Davidson, who had majored in chemistry at the University of Nebraska, left school in 1918 after three years to work as an inspector and chemical analyst for the US Army. He joined I.F. Laucks Co. in the early 1920s. What year? Cone had graduated in 1920 from Fairmount College in Wichita, Kansas, with rudimentary training in chemistry. He began working with Laucks in 1923. Most of the early glue research, as Cone recalled in 1985, was "strictly empirical; very crude and unsophisticated." Davidson and Cone worked closely and happily together. Earl Brown, who arrived in the mid-1920s was also a technical man, with an engineering background. Other people who worked for Laucks were Harry P. Banks, vice president, Leo Eilertson, treasurer, and Hugh F. Rippey, who was in charge of Laucks Laboratories. Laucks had a strongly Germanic nature and ran a tight ship. As Cone recalled. "He was somewhat of a martinet, not a particularly friendly man, not the sort of man you joke with" (Cone 1985, personal communication).

The first of many patents on processing soybean cake to make a flour than using the flour to make a glue was applied for by Laucks and Davidson in October 1923 (No. 1,689,732). It was granted in October 1928. Sodium hydroxide and calcium hydroxide were added to the glue to serve as waterproofing agents. Two more glue patents were applied for in 1924 (Laucks and Davidson, No. 1,751,339 and Laucks and Cone, No. 1,757,805). Eilertson and co-workers applied for a fourth glue patent in 1926 (No. 1,903,172). In the early years, Laucks had the peculiar habit of listing numerous people (including himself) on patent applications, even though they/he may have had nothing to do with the research. None of these early soybean glue patents were issued until 1928 because of litigation on the process.

Prior to 1927, in addition to glue, the company also did research and applied for patents on carbon briquettes bound together by a soy adhesive (Rippey et al. 1929), soybean plastics?? (Laucks, Banks, et al. 1931), and soy protein paper sizing (Davidson, Rippey et al. 1927).

But a number of problems began to arise. The quality of Laucks' glue soon proved to be inconsistent. Its chemical composition could be quickly changed by oxygen, moisture, and chemical and bacterial action. He realized that he would have to develop a three-step system for standardizing the chemical composition and quality of his imported soybean cake. First, he worked with one of Manchuria's largest mills to produce soybean cake that had a specified composition within certain limits as it left their mill. Second, this meal was transported to the US by the fastest steamship, instead of the usual tramp steamers or schooners. And third, a method of chemical treatment was developed in Seattle which insured the uniformity and stability of the resultant glue (Davidson and Laucks 1932).

There were also other problems to be overcome. Soybean glue was not viscous, sticky, tacky, or syrupy like most other glues. On the contrary, it was rather soupy or mushy, with somewhat the same viscosity as water. It soon acquired the unwelcome nickname "bean soup" and became the scapegoat for any and all production problems. Most practical glue men would not believe that such a substance could ever stick plywood. This apparent handicap actually proved to be a big advantage, for it allowed automatic glue spreaders (developed by Laucks) to spread the glue on the plywood much more quickly and easily without foaming, which enabled plywood plants to speed up production. Another handicap was that no one had ever heard of a water-resistant glue derived from plants. The name "vegetable glue" connoted starch glues, which were well known to be not water resistant. One clear advantage of the soybean glue was that it smelled much better than the stinky animal glues.

In short, soybean glue's biggest advantages over casein glues were that it was much less expensive, there were no large fluctuations in its price and availability, it was at least? as water resistant, being non-tacky it was easier to work with, and it could be used to glue veneers with a higher moisture content (20-35%). Moreover, soybean glue seemed to be especially suited for gluing Douglas fir, the main wood used in the Pacific Northwest (Laucks and Davidson 1932).

The Golden Years (1926-1942). The beginning of the period of prosperity for I.F. Laucks, Inc, and soybean glues was described by Laucks and Davidson in a paper presented in 1931 at the Sixth Annual Wood-Industries Meeting (published in 1932):

The year 1926 proved to be the turning point in the life history of a soya-bean glue. Prior to this time there had been an insistent demand for plywood of greater water resistance on the part of automobile manufacturers, who were beginning to buy large amounts of plywood. Finally, the Pacific Coast plywood manufacturers announced through their association that they wished to arrange a series of competitive demonstrations of all water-resisting plywood glues. These demonstrations were made during April, 1926, with nearly all glue manufacturers participating. The results in these tests obtained with soya-bean glues were so outstanding that these glues were almost immediately adopted by all Pacific Coast plywood manufacturers and have been in continuous there.

Laucks later (1944) gave additional details on this key period. "When a number of running boards began coming apart all over the country, a committee was appointed by the plywood industry to arrange competitive tests to determine the best glue for the industry to use. . . By the latter part of 1927, about one year from the date of the competition, every [plywood] plant on the Pacific Coast [there were 12] was using soybean glue." Interestingly, Charles Cone, who was then a key technical man with Laucks, stated in 1985 that he was never aware of any such contest and he does not believe that one ever took place. Ask APA?

During the period 1926-34 extensive research on soybean glues and other related soy products was done by Laucks' researchers and at least 38 patents were applied for and issued. Only one new name, that of T.W. Dike, appeared on the patent applications (Hennefrund and Colvin 1938; Brother, Smith, and Circle 1940; Circle 1950). Several important discoveries for which patents were applied in the late 1920s included (1) the addition of caustic soda (sodium hydroxide) as such to the glue base after the soy flour had been mixed with water, (2) the addition of the flammable chemical carbon bisulfide to make the soybean glue (and casein glue) much more water resistant (3) the proper heating of the meal using both steam jacketing and steam injection, and (4) a method for using a glue made from soy flour and blood in the hotpress gluing process (Laucks, Cone and Dike 1932). I need specific references and dates for the other patents (1-3)? Cone was the key inventor in processes 1-3.?

Thus in the new, improved process, rectangular slabs of Manchurian soybean cake were ground to a flour. In a double-action, steam jacketed ribbon mixer, the flour was mixed with water and a little carefully regulated injected steam to get just the right amount of protein denaturation (which prevented the flour from lumping and improved the bond). Finally the chemicals (primarily caustic soda, lime?, silicate of soda, and carbon bisulfide) were mixed in. This was the formulation that made Laucks' soybean glue a mainstay for the cold pressed plywood industry for many years (Cone 1985, personal communication).

By 1927 Laucks' was calling his new soybean glue Laxein. Once it was being sold in bulk on the open market, he decided to straighten out the patent situation between his laboratory and Otis Johnson. He did this by purchasing Johnson's patents, when Johnson found that he could not make his soybean glue applicable to fir plywood.

At about this time George Osgood in Tacoma started making a soybean glue. Laucks sued Osgood for patent infringement. Balfour-Guthrie Co., which was also involved in the suit, later withdrew, making a settlement with Laucks. Did Laucks sue any other companies? Cone recalls that the two key points in the trial concerned the addition of caustic soda and carbon bisulfide to the glue; Laucks had applied for patents on both of these processes. The suit with Osgood was bitterly contested and dragged on for 2 years. The final verdict was in Laucks' favor. Only after this judgment was his first patent on soybean glue issued. Now Laucks had a virtual monopoly on the Pacific Coast plywood glue market. Not only was his product more water resistant?? than casein glues, it was also much cheaper. Soon he began to license other companies to make his product? Which ones? Starting when? Including any that he had sued? (Cour 1955b).

By the late 1920s Laucks was finding it very difficult to obtain enough soybean cake. It was only available as an import from East Asia or from North Carolina. So he decided to develop his own source in the Midwest. In 1927 he arranged with the Funk Brothers Seed Company, a soybean crusher in Bloomington, Illinois, to make him soy flour and ship it to his plant in Seattle (Cavanagh 1959). Glen Davidson moved to Bloomington to help Funk Bros. with production details (they used an expeller rather than a hydraulic press to produce the meal) and to take charge of sales of soybean glue in the Midwest. It was used mostly to make box-grade panels out of gum wood veneer. Back in Seattle, Charles Cone was appointed Chief Research Chemist. In 1932 Laucks and Davidson recalled:

In 1927 the manufacture of commercial veneer glue from American-grown soya beans was begun. Prior to this time, the production of domestic soya beans had been on too limited a scale to render such a venture advisable. However since 1927, the production of soya beans in the Middle Western states has been rapidly increasing. It is believed that the use of soya-bean meal as a glue base has been a notable factor in encouraging farmers to increase their soya-bean acreage.

Funk Bros. continued to ship the soy flour to Seattle for 2 years until 1929, when freight rates proved to be excessive. As a result, Laucks decided to establish his own glue plant in Illinois. He signed an agreement with Funk Bros. whereby he would establish his headquarters for producing soybean glue on the south half of the second floor of the main warehouse of the Funk Bros. seed company plant in Bloomington.

Funk Bros. continued for a few years to make the flour from their soybean meal and to deliver it to Laucks for processing into glue. Laucks later installed his own machinery to process the meal into flour. Laucks operated in Bloomington until 1934. At times he took as much as one-third of Funk Brothers' production of meal. This operation in Bloomington was one of the first in the Midwest to process domestic soybeans into flour for glue (Cavanagh 1959, based on interviews with Eugene D. Funk 1956).

We know of no figures on the amount of soybean glue that Laucks produced during the 1930s. Cone recalls that sales were several million dollars a year by 1932 and that profits were excellent.

The Great Depression, however, starting in 1929, hit the fir plywood industry hard. Plywood production, which had jumped from 175 million square feet in 1926 up to 358 million in 1929, plunged to only 200 million in 1932, the low point. Following numerous abortive attempts to organize a plywood industry trade association, the Douglas Fir Plywood Association was founded in May 1933. Its activities began to hit high gear in 1937-38, to the great benefit of the entire industry. By 1940 plywood production had climbed to 1,200 million feet (Cour 1955b).

One of the most important developments at I.F. Laucks, Inc. was largely unrelated to soybean glue. It involved the development of America's first commercial isolated soy proteins. This pioneering work, by Charles N. Cone and Earl D. Brown, was described in a patent titled "Protein Product and Process of Making," applied for in March 1930 and issued in April 1934. The process was designed to be used to make an isolated soy protein base for paper coatings or sizings to replace casein. Soybean cake or meal was immersed in a mild, hot alkali solution and agitated for 12 hours, then centrifuged to remove the insoluble residue. An acid was added to the clear liquid to precipitate the protein at pH 4.0. The curd was washed with water, filtered, pressed, disintegrated, and dried. The use of a mild alkali was found to be essential if the protein was to remain dispersible. Cone initially made the isolates on a laboratory scale then later produced enough to make a trial run at a paper-coating plant in Grand Rapids, Michigan. When the process was ready, Cone traveled to the Midwest to try to sell the patent. After the Chicago Milling Co. turned it down in 1932 (casein was very cheap at the time), Glidden bought it in 1943. This patent became the basis of Glidden's famous Alpha Protein, the world's first commercial isolated soy protein, which in turn was the basis of Central Soya's famous Promine.

In 1932 Laucks fired Cone over disputes concerning income due Cone on processes he had invented in patents assigned to I.F. Laucks, Inc. Cone was later told by a chemist at the Wilson Packing Co., a meat packer in Chicago, that he knew of various companies that had spent more than a million dollars in trying (unsuccessfully) to get around the Cone and Brown patent. Robert Boyer, head of Henry Ford's soybean research team, later noted that his group regularly studied the Cone and Brown patent because it tied up the whole patent structure in that area and started a new industry in America?? How did Ralston Purina finally get around it??

In October 1931 Laucks and Davidson presented the first summary of their work with soybean glues at the annual meeting of the wood industries in North Carolina. The excellent, detailed paper was published the next year. It noted that in plywood manufacture the tonnage of soybean glue (called generically "oil-seed-residue glue") equalled that of any other type of glue.

The present uses of soya-bean glues embrace the entire fir and pine plywood industry, together with a large share of the plywood box industry and the furniture plywood industry so far as glass backs, drawer bottoms, and similar panels are concerned, but not tops, drawer fronts, and other plywood where fancy veneers are used extensively. A considerable tonnage is also used in the lamination of insulating board to be used in refrigerators and for other purposes. . . There are 17 plants in the Pacific Northwest producing fir plywood. The smallest of these will produce about a hundred thousand square foot of plywood per day and the largest about three hundred thousand square feet.

Note that most of these were interior uses, since soybean glue was water resistant but not very water resistant, and definitely not waterproof. Note also that soybean glue was not used with fancy veneers since they were usually stained at it did not take stain well. A summary of the article was published by Horvath in 1933, together with several good photographs of glue-making at the Laucks plant in Seattle.

In 1934 Laucks shut down his operations with Funk Bros. in Bloomington, Illinois, and built a soy flour and soybean glue plant in Norfolk, Virginia, in order to be close to the source of North Carolina soybeans and to expand the company's glue operations to the East Coast of the United States. By this time other companies (which? where?) had begun making soybean glue (using a license from Laucks?) and there still weren't enough soybeans to go around (Cour 1955b; Cavanagh 1959).

The year 1934 marked the beginning of the end of the reign of soybean glue in the US plywood industry. In December of that year Dr. James Victor Nevin, a jolly, tireless, Irish immigrant researcher, who had joined Harbor Plywood Corporation in the fall of 1933 as chief of research, announced that he had developed America's first truly waterproof glue. Commercial production of Super Harbord, made with Nevin's cresylic resin (a type of phenolic resin) and the hotpress method, began in January 1935. The heat and pressure "cured" the new adhesive, producing an irreversible bond stronger than the wood itself. Nevin's glue, a synthetic material, provided one of the greatest advances in the history of the plywood industry, for now exterior plywood became a practical reality, opening up hundreds of new markets for plywood, including exterior and prefabricated housing, boat building, refrigeration, and railroad cars (Cour 1955b).

Hotpress gluing was developed in the late 1920s? when? by who? After 1934 it began to revolutionize the plywood business, in part because waterproof resin glues required use of the hotpress method to set them. Many plants changed from coldpress to the hotpress. Steam-heating the pressing plates shortened the pressing time. Soybean glues were found to be exceptionally well suited to the high-speed hotpress method. In later years (when??) Laucks eventually perfected a soybean glue suitable for a hotpress operation. He introduced it at the Wheeler-Osgood Co. in Tacoma (Cour 1955b, p. 85). However the rush to hotpress methods was slowed in the late 1940s by the higher cost of hot presses (2.5 times as expensive), the removal of some disadvantages of the coldpress method, and improvements in the quality of cold-pressed plywood. . . all of which helped soybean glues. Moreover, phenolic resin hotpress plywood glues were extended with soybean meal (Babcock and Smith 1947; Burnett 1951b). But by the 1970s practically no cold pressing was done in the USA? and production of softwood plywood was 50 to 100 times as great as that of hardwood plywood.

After the Nevin process was developed, Laucks did a lot of work developing urea resins. He made these in a plant which he purchased in Lockport, New York. When?

By 1934 most of the patents applied for by Laucks on research related to soy products had been granted. In 1938 he was granted his first and only foreign patent (British Patent 488,889) for improvements in soybean gluing, and in 1939 the company was issued two more US patents relating to soybean glues (2,150,175 and 2,178,178).

In later years, the company also developed a number of minor industrial uses for the soybean to try to stave off the losses from its sagging sales of soybean glue. They found that soybeans were a good emulsifying agent and developed formulas for emulsifying the petroleum products used in orchard sprays. They developed a number of uses for the soybean in paints, and in the adhesives used in washable wallpaper (Laucks 1944). Unrelated to soybeans, they also developed a synthetic vanilla flavoring (vanillin).

World War II proved to be a boon to the plywood industry. Production hit 1,782 million feet by 1942. Plywood was coming to be known as the jack of all trades of the building industry, and its virtues were starting to be appreciated: advantageous large panel size, reasonable price, split proof, puncture proof, strength and rigidity, ease of fabrication, lightness and workability, and durability with tremendous nail-holding power. For these reasons, plywood played a very active and important role during the war. New methods of evaluating strength and quality, developed by the US Forest Products Laboratory, became the basis of Federal and Naval Specifications for water-resistant plywood glues (Burnett 1951b, p. 1021). During World War II plywood made with soybean glue was found to come apart quite quickly when used in the South Pacific or other tropical climates. Extensive research was done to ascertain why soybean glue was not completely waterproof. At last the riddle was solved by Charles Cone. He discovered that after the plywood had been moistened (as by rain) and remained under certain conditions or moisture and warmth, certain fungi (especially molds) grew on the glueline and digested the protein in the glue, thus causing delamination. To counter this degradation by molds, preservatives began to be used in plywood glues (Kaufert 1944; Christensen 1945). Synthetic glues (such as phenol formaldehyde) replaced soybean glue in large part because they contained no protein. Later commercial standards practically eliminated protein-based glues.

The earliest production statistics seen for soybean glue date from the early 1940s. Van Arsdal (1940) reported that the largest single industrial use of soybean meal in the US was for making water-resistant plywood glue. About 16,000 tons (32 million lb) of meal a year were so used, and usage was expected to increase. Burnett (1951b) stated that in 1942, 60 million lb of soybean glue (dry basis) were used in plywood. This amount, together with a small amount of casein glue, represented 85% of the total plywood glue production. By 1945 the amount had fallen to 70%. In 1947 consumption of soybean glue was down to 25 million lb. An estimated two-thirds or more of the 1947 production of Douglas fir plywood was glued with soybean adhesive and hence intended for interior use, while one-third was glued with phenolic resins and intended for exterior use. In the plywood industry as a whole, soybean glues represented, on a dry basis, by far the largest tonnage of any type of adhesive.

Later Years (1942-82). In 1942 Laucks retired and moved to Orcas Island, in the San Juan Islands, in northwest Washington. But he kept up his interest in the plywood and soybean industries. In 1942 his company published a book titled Technique of Plywood by Charles B. Norris. In 1943 he wrote two articles summarizing his life's work with plywood and glues in Chemurgic Digest. In April 1944 these were condensed and published by Soybean Digest, which showed a nice picture of his plant in Portsmouth, Virginia. It also noted that the company had glue plants in Sweden, Vancouver, and Australia. In 1947 a government research report on soybean glues for plywood was published (Australia CSIR 1947).

In 1950 most of I.F. Laucks, Inc. was sold to the Monsanto Chemical Company, but the original laboratory in Seattle was purchased by two of its older employees. Monsanto was a major manufacturer of phenolic resins until the early 1980s. In 1985 Laucks Testing Laboratories, Inc., was still active in Seattle.

In 1953 Laucks moved to Healdsburg, Sonoma County, California. That year his book titled A Speculation in Reality, about science and physical research, was published by the Philosophical Library in New York. In April 1955 Robert Cour, while researching a book on the history of the US plywood industry, visited and interviewed him there. The 4-page transcript and Cour's resulting book have been key sources of information for this chapter. The book, titled The Plywood Age: A History of the Fir Plywood Industry's First Fifty Years, chronicles the changes that took place during Laucks' period of greatest activity and concludes with a summary of the industry in 1954-55. Some 3,903 million feet of fir plywood was produced by 100 mills using 116 hot presses and 81 cold presses. Sales of plywood glue were worth $21 million. The amount of this that was soybean glue was not given, though it was noted that 75% of all plywood was interior grade and only 25% exterior (Was much or most of the interior grades were still made with coldpress? Why? With soybean glue?) Nationwide, fir was by far the most widely used wood in making plywood. Oregon's 47 mills produced 47% of all fir plywood, while Washington's 36 mills produced 34% and California's 17 mills made 13%.

I.F. Laucks passed away in about 1982. A pioneer in both the soybean and the plywood industries, he was a hard worker who was willing to take risks. His successful development of soybean glue and the use of the soybean in industrial products set the stage for the chemurgic movement (see Chapter 66) and prompted many other pioneering companies to begin research on uses of soy proteins. Perhaps the main inheritor of Laucks' legacy was The Glidden Company.

Irving Fink Laucks was an American chemist. His the I. F. Laucks Company was the first to use the soybean glue for the plywood industry in America, starting in 1923. Laucks was born on July 3, 1882 in Akron, Ohio, United States; the son of Morris B. and Louisa M. (Fink) Laucks. Laucks graduated with second honors from his high school class in Akron in January 1900. He studied at the Case School (the Case Western Reserve University) from 1900 to 1905. There Irving studied mining engineering and chemistry.

Irving began his career in 1908, when he with a chemist Myrl J. Faulkenberg founded a laboratory in Seattle. They assayed and tested ores and minerals there. During this work, Laucks became very interested in the characteristics of soybean cake and he had some of it analyzed to determine its composition. In 1918, Lauks and Faulkenberg dissolved their partnership, with Laucks retaining the analytical laboratory, which he renamed I. F. Laucks, Inc. In April 1920 his company began publication of a monthly newsletter titled Laucks' Note Book. In late 1922, he met chemist Bill Bailey, who researched plywood glue. Irving agreed to analyze Bailey's casein glue and also to institute studies to develop an improved glue. So he set to work trying to make a glue from imported soybean cake. By 1923 Laucks felt he had developed a satisfactory soybean glue. In 1923, Irving began to sell his soybean glue to Olympia Veneer. At about this time Laucks renamed his analytical laboratory Laucks Laboratories, Inc., keeping the name I. F. Laucks, Inc. for the company that developed and produced his plywood glues. Laucks' two key technical men involved in the research and development on soybean glue were Glen Davidson and Charles Cone. Prior to 1927, in addition to glue, the company also did research and applied for patents on carbon briquettes bound together by a soy adhesive, soybean plastics, and soy protein paper sizing.

During the period 1926-1934 extensive research on soybean glues and other related soy products was done by Laucks' researchers and at least 38 patents were applied for and issued. By 1927 Laucks' was calling his new soybean glue Lauxein. By the late 1920s Laucks was finding it very difficult to obtain enough soybean cake. So he decided to develop his own source in the Midwest. In 1927, he arranged with the Funk Brothers Seed Company, a soybean crusher in Bloomington, Illinois, to make him soy flour and ship it to his plant in Seattle. That company continued for a few years to make the flour from their soybean meal and to deliver it to Laucks for processing into glue. Laucks later installed his own machinery to process the meal into flour. Laucks operated in Bloomington until 1934. At times he took as much as one third of Funk Brothers' production of meal.

In October 1931, Laucks and Glen Davidson presented the first summary of their work with soybean glues at the annual meeting of the wood industries in North Carolina. It noted that in plywood manufacture the tonnage of soybean glue (called generically "oil-seed-residue glue") equaled that of any other type of glue. In 1934, Laucks shut down his operations with Funk Brothers in Bloomington, Illinois, and built a soy flour and soybean glue plant in Norfolk, Virginia, in order to be close to the source of North Carolina soybeans and to expand the company's glue operations to the East Coast of the United States.

In later years, Laucks eventually perfected a soybean glue suitable for a hot press operation. He introduced it at the Wheeler-Osgood Company in Tacoma. In 1942, Laucks retired and moved to Orcas Island, in the San Juan Islands, in northwest Washington. But he kept up his interest in the plywood and soybean industries. The same year his company published a book titled "Technique of Plywood" by Charles B. Norris. In 1943, he wrote two articles summarizing his life's work with plywood and glues in "Chemurgic Digest". In 1950 most of I. F. Laucks, Inc. was sold to the Monsanto Chemical Company, but the original laboratory in Seattle was purchased by two of its older employees. Laucks Testing Laboratories, Inc. is still operating in Seattle, Washington.

In 1953, Irving Laucks moved to Healdsburg, Sonoma County, California. That year his book titled "A Speculation in Reality", about science and psychic research, was published by the Philosophical Library in New York.

Irving was the founder of I. F. Laucks, Inc. It was involved in the development of America's first commercial isolated soy proteins. In 1938 he was granted his first and only foreign patent for improvements in soybean gluing.

He discovered that after the plywood had been moistened (as by rain) and remained under certain conditions or moisture and warmth, certain fungi (especially molds) grew on the glue line and digested the protein in the glue, thus causing delamination.

Irving Laucks was born in 1882, in Akron, Ohio. In 1906, after leaving Cleveland's Case Institute of Technology with B.S. and M.S. degrees in chemistry, he traveled west to Seattle, where in 1908 he established an assay office and chemical laboratory. From this beginning research and business, he developed major patents in coal distillation, soybean adhesives for plywood, paints and primers, and various other processes and machinery used in the manufacture of plywood. He authored a book on commercial oils in 1919. In 1955, he was named a "father" of the plywood industry by the American Plywood Association for his developmental discoveries leading to the manufacture of cheap water-resistant plywood.

In 1942, he retired from an active manufacturing and laboratory business to devote himself to private chemical research having to do with the synthesis of proteins and the development of blood plasma substitutes. He published A Speculation In Reality in 1943.

The shock of the 1945 bombing of Hiroshima impelled Irving to turn all thought and effort toward endeavoring to alert people to the perils inherent in the development of nuclear weaponry. In the intervening years since that time, until a few months before his death in 1981, he worked tirelessly on behalf of world peace. As a scientist as well as a humanitarian - through widely disseminated pamphlets, speeches and letters to the editor - he unceasingly advocated world nuclear disarmament. His strong support of nonviolent peace movements led him in 1964 to Santa Barbara where he became a consultant on war and peace at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, and in 1969 he established the Laucks Foundation.

Irving and Eulah Laucks founded the Laucks Foundation in 1969 as a response to the cold war and the threat of nuclear war. After the devastation of Hiroshima Irving came to believe that the Soviet Union and the US must disarm their nuclear forces, and if there was no other way, the US must do so unilaterally. He believed that without limits to the arms race, the human race would surely cease to exist. In the later 20 years of his life he devoted all of his energy and assets to convincing people of the truth of these ideas. He founded LF as a means to help in these efforts.

After Irving's death in 1981, Eulah became president and interpreted LF's mission in a broader way. Beginning in 1979 Eulah began to edit what she called "The Reprint Mailing" of LF, bringing together articles that she felt were important and thought-provoking. She sent out the Reprint Mailing on an occasional basis, usually at least two or three a year, to a large and eclectic list of her friends and the many acquaintances she had made over the years. In the early 1980s LF sponsored lectures, classes, manuscripts in progress, dissemination of articles, workshops and conferences mostly focused on how to educate for world peace and disarmament. LF worked with The Hutchins Center at University of Santa Barbara (UCSB), the Peace and Justice Center of Southern California, the Rocky Mountain Institute, and the University of Santa Barbara to name a few.

Beginning in 1985 and continuing through 2000, LF sponsored a class at UCSB, taught by Walter Capps of the Religious Studies department, on the Vietnam War and its impact on American moral and religious values. The class was to become one of the most popular at UCSB during those years, the demand for the class continually exceeding the limit of 900 places. In the mid-1980s LF began funding the Land Institute in Salina Kansas in its work on perennial grains and the quest for solving the problem of agriculture. This support continued through 2010. From 1992 to 2000, LF also supported various other environmental organizations such as Native Seed Search of Tucson Arizona and the Community Environmental Council of Santa Barbara. In 1997 Eulah Laucks stepped down as President and Mary Laucks was elected as President, Brian Swanson as Vice President. Eulah Laucks continued as Chair of the Board until her death in 2008.

Beginning in 2000, LF began to focus on the problems of homelessness, social equity and human rights. The directors believed that with limited resources, LF should focus on organizations just starting out, where LF's limited funds could have the most impact. Among the organizations that LF funded were FareStart, a Seattle based organization that trains homeless people for jobs restaurants, First Place, a school and daycare for homeless families, and the Arab American Community Council, an organization formed to deflect the misplaced anger directed at the Arab American community after 9/11. In 2007 LF added scientific research for the public good as another purpose of incorporation and Brian Swanson moved his ice crystal growth research lab from the University of Washington to the Laucks Foundation.

From 2008 to the present LF has continued to offer seed money to small start-up organizations in the Northwest. Among the organizations it funded are SWOVA (Salt Spring Women Opposed to Violence and Abuse) of Salt Spring Island BC, Seattle Jazz Ed, Seattle Music Partners, Victoria Cool Aid REES program of Victoria BC, Green Plate Special of Seattle. In 2010 Dwight Gee was elected to the Board of Directors as Secretary and brings his invaluable experience of the non-profit world to our Board.

Notes for Eulah Croson:

Eulah Corson Laucks, "a long-time Santa Barbara, California resident, died peacefully June 3rd on Salt Spring Island, British Columbia, Canada with her daughter and son-in-law at her side. She will be remembered as a generous, charming, and graceful lady to the core by all those who had the opportunity to know her. Eulah was born in Gold Hill, Nevada and grew up in Bakersfield, California. She graduated from Bakersfield high school, and later worked at the Kern County Tuberculosis Sanitarium in Keene, California to save enough money to attend the University of Washington in Seattle, where she majored in journalism. She spent her senior year in Rome and witnessed the progression of Mussolini's Italy towards an alliance with Hitler and the beginning of WWII. When she returned to the US she took a job as a public relations writer at Laucks Laboratories in Seattle, Washington where she met and married Irving Laucks. After living on Orcas Island, Washington for ten years they moved to Healdsburg, California and had a daughter, Mary Laucks and raised a foster son, the late Lorenzo Gon. They traveled abroad for several years and then moved to Santa Barbara in 1964 to begin an association with the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, where Eulah served on the board of directors for many years. Eulah and Irving founded the Laucks Foundation (LF) in 1969 and focused its activities on raising awareness of the danger of the MAD relationship between the Soviet Union and the US. When Irving Laucks died in 1981, Eulah began to focus LF on ecological issues and social justice. At the age of 69 Eulah received a PhD from (UCSB) University California Santa Barbara with a thesis titled, The Meaning of Children in Contemporary America. For many years Eulah contributed her time and energy to the UCSB Scholarship committee, The Channel City Women's Forum, The Community Environmental Council, Santa Barbara City College, Fairview Gardens, The Walter Capps Center, The Land Institute, and to publishing the Laucks Foundation newsletter (Reprint Mailings 1979-1999). In 1996 she published a memoir, Saucer Eyes, about growing up in Nevada's hard rock mining country. Since 2000 she lived with her daughter and son-in-law, Brian Swanson."

Eulah Laucks 1909-2008 Activist and Philanthropist --- Thursday, June 26, 2008 --- By Michael Ableman:

I first met Eulah Laucks in Salina, Kansas, at a dinner organized by biologist and MacArthur fellow Wes Jackson. While we both had been living in the Santa Barbara area for many years, we had never met, and when introduced it was like two lost friends rediscovering each other. That friendship continued through my years developing and managing Fairview Gardens and beyond, as each of us moved away from the area, coincidentally to the same island in British Columbia.

Well past her seventies, into her eighties, and even into her early nineties, Eulah was a living testimony to the idea that age is only a number. It wasn't that her body did not register the years, it's just that she never carried herself as if she was "old." There was never any sense of resignation or decline, only an energy and bounce that lifted everyone she connected with. She came to see me often at the Saturday Santa Barbara Farmers Market. In the midst of the flurry of transactions, I would see this beautiful woman approaching our stand, the difference in our respective ages gone as she displayed a spark and inner beauty which always caught my eye and belied her years.

In 1996, after 15 years of developing and managing Fairview Gardens, I convinced the owner of the land to give me the chance to raise the funds to buy the farm and place it under what became one of the first agricultural conservation easements in the country, permanently protecting the farm and formalizing its role as an international model of small-scale urban sustainable agriculture. As a farmer, the only thing I had ever raised were fruits and vegetables, so raising the funds for the purchase seemed like an awesome task. The first person I called for help was my friend Eulah Laucks. She spared me the humiliation of even having to ask by immediately offering what became our first substantial donation, and she gave me the confidence to move our effort forward. Eulah also gave me some advice about nonprofits and nonprofit boards at that time that became eerily prophetic.

Eulah Laucks knew the nonprofit world well. She and her husband started the Laucks Foundation-which is still managed by her daughter and son-in-law-that not only provided funding to social and ecological efforts, but also published a newsletter that featured the ideas and writing of some of the greatest thinkers and visionaries of the time. She worked with a number of organizations both as a board member and as an advisor and supporter: UCSB, SBCC, the Land Institute, the Community Environmental Council, the Channel City Women's Forum, and the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. Eulah's lifetime commitment to peace, social justice, and the environment, through her publications and through her personal philanthropy, was unyielding. She did this work quietly, drawing attention only to the cause, never to herself.

Eulah came from humble beginnings, raised in mining country in Nevada, a story that she tells in her 1996 memoir, Saucer Eyes. She eventually met and married Irving Laucks, who developed a waterproof soybean glue that made the production of water-resistant plywood possible. She received a PhD from UCSB at the age of 69 with a dissertation titled "The Meaning of Children in Contemporary America," and later worked with Walter Capps to fund several courses, including one on the Vietnam war which became so popular it was replicated by a number of universities across the country.

I have been fortunate to have had a stellar group of mentors in my life, many of whom have now passed on. I have seen that in our worship of youth our society no longer honors the wisdom and experience of our elders, no longer seeks them out or allows the torch to be respectfully and honorably passed down. As a young man, I considered myself somewhat immortal; now I realize the only immortality is in the ideas, inspiration, and good work we share and leave behind. In that sense, Eulah Laucks lives on, in the individuals and projects she so humbly and gracefully helped along.

Notes for Arthur Leon Kebler:

As told by Roger Kebler:

Arthur Kebler's first love was his wife and family, but his pride and joy was his team of horses. He had a team of purebred Belgium mares, sorrel with silver mane and tail. The dictionary says sorrel is a reddish brown which sounds like a dark color. These were a light color which made them a sort of golden color and silver is what most people would call a light blonde. They were attractive animals with the spirit to match. In the spring after a long winters rest and they were first put in harness and led out of the bam they would prance on their toes, would run at the least provocation. A neighbor, who was a blacksmith fashioned special bits patterned after a Mexican mule bit, but not as harsh so that Arthur would be able to keep them under control. He always "gentle broke" his horse's but that's another story.

At the beginning of the draft before World War II, Clyde Glumm was drafted into the army and at that time it was to be for "a year and a day". Clyde had a tractor he had bought a couple of years earlier and he came to see Arthur and wanted to trade his almost new tractor for this team of horses. Arthur made the trade. I thought this great I didn't much like horses and a tractor was a lot easier to manage than those horses. I now wonder if he didn't make the trade hoping I might be more interested in farming. He hated machines. Both his sons left the farm, Richard went into the trucking business and I went into the Navy. When Clyde was killed overseas, in Europe I think, Dad bought his horses back from the Glumm family

From his World War I draft registration card he is described as medium height and weight with brown eyes and brown hair, a farmer, with a wife and 3 children.

Notes for Mahlon (Driesbaugh) Dreisbach:
July 1, 1952 - Newspaper Article - Mahlon Dreisbach is retiring after more than 50 years with the Babcock Y Wilcox Company:

To follow Dreisbach's career is to trace the development of industrial progress since 1900. His first job in Barberton was in the front shop where he chipped and fitted boiler doors. He remained there until 1907 when he helped to install boilers on the battleship, USS Georgia, in Bath, ME. For the next several years he traveled about the Midwest installing boilers. Later in the Barberton works, Dreisbach set up the draw benches for shells during World War I. He helped to reconvert the drum and forge shops to boiler production at the close of the war. For the last several years he has been a foreman in the forge shop.

Dreisbach and his wife live at 2395 East Ave, a home they built in 1908. They have a son, Herman, living in Akron. Although Dreisbach's principal hobby might be considered his flower gardens, fishing occupies a close second place with him and his wife. Every summer for years they have traveled to Guelph, Ontario, Canada.

Handwritten on the back of this photo: On March 17, 1951 Mahlon Dreisbach, Assistant Foreman in the Forge Shop will celebrate 50 years of continuous service with B&W. Mr. Dreisbach, who started work before B&W purchased the Stirling Consolidated Boiler Co Barberton Works remembers when only two persons drove their cars to work and the Barberton shops had only two to three ton cranes in the whole shop. He has been attached to the Barberton operation for his entire period of service with the company. He worked for a short time in the Front Shop, than was sent to Machines Shop to learn the trade. One of his first interesting assignments took him to Bath, Maine where he was sent to help with the overhauling of the battleship Georgia. Later, he was on the road 4 years erecting Stirling boilers. During WWI, Mr. D was moved from Machine Shop to the Barberton Works Powerhouse. Later during the war, he made the first and last of the 9.2 shells manufactured by the company.

Notes for Henry George Reitz:

A History of Cuyahoga County and the City of Cleveland; By: William R. Coates. Publishers: The American Historical Society Chicago and New York, 1924:

HON. HENRY GEORGE REITZ, well known citizen and civil engineer of Cleveland, was born on the family homestead farm in Rockport Township, Cuyahoga County, on the 14th of January, 1883, the place of his birth being now within the city limits of Cleveland, in the district known as West Park. His grandparents on the paternal side were Peter G. and Barbara (Lehr) Reitz, who came from Germany to the United States on a sailing vessel in 1842, and who landed in the Port of New York City, whence they came to Cuyahoga County. The grandfather purchased land in Rockport Township, developed a productive farm and continued farming during the remainder of his life, both he and his wife having died on the old homestead.

On the farm above mentioned the birth of John G. Reitz, father of Henry G., occurred in the year 1855, and there he was reared to manhood, his educational advantages having been those of the schools of the locality and period. He continued his activities as a farmer in his native township until about the year 1912, when he retired from active farming. He served two terms as township trustee and two terms as a member of the village council of West Park. He and his wife were members of the Protestant Evangelical Church in their community, and he served forty years as its treasurer. He died in June, 1922. He married Mary S. Barthelman, who was born on Puritas Road, Rockport Township, in 1858, and she survives her husband. Of the children, Henry G., of this review, is the eldest; Frederick William owns and operates a greenhouse at North Olmsted, this county; Anna K. remains with her widowed mother; and the youngest of the number is John C., who is now associated with his eldest brother, Henry G., as a member of the Henry G. Reitz Engineering Company.

John C. Reitz was graduated from the Case School of Applied Sciences, as a member of the class of 1913, with the degree of Civil Engineer. He served with the United States military forces on the Mexican border, and in the World war he was for ten months in service with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, he having received commission as captain. He was for some time engineer for the City of West Park.

Henry G. Reitz was born in the same house as was his father and was reared on the old home farm. He was a member of the first class to be graduated in the West Park High School, in 1901. In 1906 he received from Case School of Applied Sciences the degree of Bachelor of Science, and in 1913 that institution conferred upon him also the degree of Civil Engineer. The first engineering service given by Mr.

Reitz was with the engineering department of the City of Cleveland, with which he continued his connection twelve years. In 1917 he became village engineer of West Park, and in 1919 he was elected mayor of that village, which obtained a city charter in 1921, and, of which he became the first mayor under the charter. He was the incumbent of this office at the time when West Park became a part of the City of Cleveland, and thus he has the distinction of having been the first and the last mayor of the little City of West Park.

Mr. Reitz was one of the organizers and is secretary and treasurer of the Riverside Greenhouse Company; he was one of the organizers and is a director of the Cleveland Motor Car Sales Company; he is treasurer of the Thrift Savings & Loan Company, in the organization of which he assisted; and was one of the organizers of the United Greenhouse Company, and treasurer of the company.

Mr. Reitz is a member of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, the Cleveland Chamber of Industry, the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Association of Engineers, the Cleveland Engineering Society, the Cleveland Yacht Club, the Lakewood Country Club, the Western Reserve Club, the League of Republican Clubs, and the Protestant Emmanuel Evangelical Church. He is a member of North Star Lodge No. 638, Free and Accepted Masons; West Park Chapter No. 214, Royal Arch Masons (of which he was high priest in 1920); Forest City Council No. 111, Royal and Select Masters; Forest City Commandery No. 40, Knights Templar; Lake Erie Consistory, Scottish Rite (thirty second degree); Al Koran Temple, Mystic Shrine; Al Sirat Grotto; the Tall Cedars of Lebanon, and the Order of Rameses.

On June 7, 1911, Mr. Reitz married Miss Clara Herthneck, daughter of John and Christina (Baumgardner) Herthneck, of Brooklyn Township, Cuyahoga County, and to them two daughters have been born, Edna Jayne and Jeanne Clare.

Notes for Ralph Friedrich Herthneck:

Ralph F. Herthneck, one of the best known and most highly esteemed farmers of Liverpool Township, was suddenly called by death on Tuesday morning November 4, 1921. He had been in Cleveland all day Monday and had spent Monday evening at Brunswick, returning home in apparently his usual good health. He was, however, attacked with heart trouble toward morning and lived but a short time. He was three days over 31 years of age, and leaves a wife and three children, the youngest of whom is but two weeks old.

Funeral services were held Friday morning at the home and interment made in Hardscrabble Cemetery. Mr. Herthneck was township clerk and a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket without any opposition on the Republican.

Tuesday morning Nov. 1, 1921 about 6 o'clock, Ralph Herthneck, prominent citizen and farmer of Liverpool Township, died suddenly at his home two and one-half miles west of Brunswick center, from heart disease. Mr. Herthneck was apparently in good health up to the moment of his death. The previous day he took a load of potatoes to Cleveland, and transacted business at Brunswick the same night, there being no indication of illness or indisposition at that time.

The deceased was 31 years old and is survived by a widow and three children, one only two weeks old; father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Herthneck, also of Liverpool Township, a sister, Mrs. George Thompson of Atlanta, Georgia, and a brother residing in Cleveland. Mr. Herthneck was township clerk and local registrar of vital statistics at the time of his death.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock from the home, and interment made in Hardscrabble cemetery.

Notes for Gottlieb Heinrich Wild:

Past and Present of Washtenaw County, Michigan by Samuel W. Beakes, Chicago: The S.J. Clarke Publishing Co., 1906:

Gottlieb H. Wild, who is connected with the business interests of Ann Arbor as a tailor, was born in Leinfelden County, Stuttgart, Germany, in 1865, and represents one of the old families of that country, the ancestral history, as far as is known, being interwoven with the records of Germany. His father, John George Wild, was born in Germany, and came to America in 1892, since which time he has resided in Ann Arbor, and is now employed in his son's tailoring establishment. He married Miss Wilhelmina Reick, also a native of the fatherland; and her death occurred in Ann Arbor, when she was fifty-four years of age. In their family were seven children, four sons and three daughters, namely: David and Gottlieb H., who are partners in the tailoring business here; Michael G., who is in the employ of his brothers; William, who is living in this city; Caroline; Fredericka; and Wilhelmina.

While in his native country Gottlieb H. Wild learned the tailor's trade with his father, serving a regular four years' apprenticeship after leaving school. He came to America when but seventeen years of age, and made his way to Ann Arbor, having relatives in this city, who had come to the new world in 1835. Here Mr. Wild entered the employment of James Stafford, and later went to Toledo, Ohio, where he followed his trade as a journeyman until 1887. In that year he embarked in business on his own account in Toledo, but after a year returned to Ann Arbor, and, believing that a profitable field of labor was open in the tailoring trade, he established his present business in January, 1888, locating on East Washington street, between Main street and Fourth avenue. There he remained until 1904, when he removed to 311 South State street, where he is now located, occupying a new building, which he erected for that purpose. His business venture here has been attended with success, and he now has an excellent patronage drawn from the best class of citizens here. This is owing to his excellent work, his trade continually increasing, for the service he renders his customers is entirely satisfactory. In 1890 he admitted his brother David to a partnership, the latter having previously learned the business, and they are now associated under the firm style of G. H. Wild & Company.

Mr. Wild of this review was married in Ann Arbor in 1891 to Miss Martha Wurster, whose birth occurred in Dexter, Michigan, her father being Michael Wurster of that town. They have three children, all of whom were born in Ann Arbor, Erwin C., George A. and Helen H. In his political views Mr. Wild is a republican, and belongs to the Masonic fraternity and the Elks lodge. He possesses many of the sterling characteristics of the German race, including the substantial qualities of an honorable manhood, which contribute to the happiness as well as the success of life.

Notes for Dr. Nancy Jean Kurfess:

May 1, 2024, Cleveland — Dr. Nancy Kurfess Johnson is truly a medical pioneer. She grew up south of Toledo, in a small town called Luckey. A farm girl for whom hard work was second nature. "We ate our food out of the ground, and manure was the only chemical. I worked seven days a week, we milked cows twice a day, seven days a week for 50 years," Dr. Nancy said. Her family had modest means and no money for higher education, so Nancy worked hard to earn a full scholarship to Mather College for Women in Cleveland. She remembers the strict rules. "We had to be in at 7 o'clock at night," she recalls.

She graduated from college in 1948, but her dream of attending the Case Western Medical School, was just that -- a dream. "We were told, 'you'll just take up a space, you'll just get married and have children,'" she said. Instead, Nancy attended graduate school and became a researcher. She started taking med school classes on the side, until the day the dean of the medical school stopped her after class. "He said, 'one of the sophomore guys wants to become a history teacher, would you like his spot?' And I thought, 'now I'll have to pay $300 but I'd better grab it,' so I did," she says smiling. During medical school and beyond, she began to see some of the firsts in Cleveland medicine, including open heart surgery, the development of the Kay Cross oxygenator, the beginning of dialysis and more. "I saw all the tragedies of polio. I delivered a baby in an iron lung, all the stuff I did at Metro, I was in there of all months, August. Polio 24 hours, we were doing lumbar punctures around the clock," she said. It was delivering the baby in the iron lung that made her decide her career would be in obstetrics and gynecology. She remembers the first ultrasound machines, when pap smears became routine, but she also knew she needed to know more.

She graduated from Case Western Medical School in 1954 and received her M.D. In 1955, she completed her internship year at St. Luke's Hospital. Some of her patients there lived in Solon — then a farming community without a physician. With no office buildings in the city, she looked at a house under construction on the main road. She and her husband worked on converting the garage into a three-room office, while the family lived in the basement. In late October 1955, her converted garage opened. In her book, The Doctor Wears Pearls, she says: "In 1955, no male physician would even consider adding a female to his group. A paid position was not an option anywhere, Solon welcomed me." Over the years she delivered babies, she worried that some of the more complex cases were beyond the scope of her education. "I was better than the head of my department at delivering babies, but I didn't know some of the things that the medical students knew," she said.

So, in her forties she became the first woman in 22 years to return to the Medical School at Case to study gynecological surgery. Times were finally changing. "In about 1976 suddenly the class became full of women, and they walked out of the chauvinistic lectures," she recalls. Dr. Johnson became the first woman board certified Ob-Gyn to set up private practice in 1977 and did her part to transform healthcare for women as much as she could. One example was explaining to her mail counterparts that breast exams are part of women's health. "You had to change the culture from the inside," she says.

She was in family practice for 18 years, and after becoming board-certified, she spent the next 25 years in a career in Women's Health. After 50 years in the field, Dr. Nancy retired in August 2001. Dr. Nancy Kurfess Johnson, the farm girl from Luckey, never bet on chance, because her hard work blazed the trail for all women in medicine who followed. She will be honored with the Academy of Medicine of Cleveland and Northern Ohio Legacy Award this weekend.

Marriage Notes for Nancy Kurfess and Henry Kowalchick:

St. John's Lutheran Church, Stony Ridge, was the scene Saturday evening June 14, 1950 at 7:30 o'clock of the marriage of Miss Nancy Jean Kurfess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kurfess, of near Luckey, and Henry Kowalchick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kowalchick, of Pennsylvania.

The Rev. Herbert Veler, Stony Ridge, and the Rev. Dale Recker, Cleveland Heights, officiated at the double ring candlelight ceremony. The altar was decorated with bouquets of white flowers and palms.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown which she had made herself, fashioned with a white Chantilly lace bodice and tunic over a full hooped white satin skirt ending in a long train. She wore matching gauntlets of lace and carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, and pink daisies entwined with lace from her grandmother's wedding gown. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a circle of lace and satin.

Mrs. Lloyd Hahn, of near Perrysburg, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a pink taffeta gown with a full hooped skirt. Miss Mary Jane Greiner, cousin of the bride, and Misses Patricia Penton, of Cleveland, and Arlene Bartlow, of Canton, former classmates, served as bridesmaids. They wore aqua taffeta gowns designed like that of the matron of honor. All of the bride's attendants wore matching mitts and floral headpieces. All carried baskets of mixed flowers. Robert Ainsworth, of Cleveland, was best man for Mr. Kowalchick. Ushers were Keith Crewson, Alfred Holb and Carl Kroeger, all of Cleveland, former classmates, and Charles Kurfess, brother of the bride.

Miss Kathleen Kurfess, cousin of the bride, sang "At Dawning," "I Love You Truly," and "Yours is My Heart Alone" before the ceremony and "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go," during the ceremony. Robert Rudduck, violinist, accompanied Miss Kurfess in "I Love You Truly," and played "Traumerei" as a solo. Mrs. Glenn Ackenberger was organist.

Mrs. Ackenberger and Mr. Rudduck provided music for the reception which was held in the parish hall immediately following the wedding. Mrs. Glenn Henry and Miss Virginia Ruth Henry, cousins of the bride, served at a beautifully decorated table. The couple are now spending two weeks in Florida after which they will make their home in Cleveland. Miss Kurfess is a graduate of Western Reserve University and is now a graduate student at the Medical School at the University. She is a 1945 graduate of Troy-Luckey High School. Mr. Kowalchick is also a graduate of Western Reserve and is now studying at the Law School there. He served four years with the United States Army.

Notes for Joseph Powell DeLano:

August 10, 1948 - For months now I have lived next door to Sergeant Joseph Powell Delano who is a member of the Alabama National Guard, or should I just say the National Guard of the United States? Long ago I dubbed Sergeant Delano "Commodore" because he is always working on a boat in the front yard, a boat that has withstood the Summer heat (I hope). Right here I can say that the Alabama National Guard is a credit to the state. It is headed by a veteran, a real soldier, and it ranks so high in the list of National Guards that I hate to mention it. Sergeant Delano is one of the reasons why the Alabama Guard is so efficient. I might add that General James Saliba is another reason.

Marriage Notes for Elizabeth Nicola and Irving Danforth:

April seems to be rivaling the month of Roses for its number of society brides. The first prominent wedding of the week was on Tuesday evening April 12, 1921 at 8 o'clock at Calvary Presbyterian church, when Miss Elizabeth Mary Nicola, daughter of Mrs. William Wright Nicola was united in marriage to Mr. Irving W. Danforth, son of Mrs. J. Howard Danforth. Miss Nicola was a charming bride in her wedding gown of lustrous white satin. It was made with square cut bodice and very short sleeves and a court train hung from the waist. Her tulle veil was fastened low to her coiffure with clusters of orange blossoms and with a coronet of Duchesse lace across the front. The wedding gown was embroidered in pearls beads and the bride wore Mr. Danforth's gift, a diamond and platinum bar pin. Roses and valley lilies in a shower bouquet were her flowers. The church altar was banked in palms intermingled with Easter lilies while cathedral candles shed a soft light over the wedding party as Rev. Adelbert P. Higley of Calvary church read the nuptial service.

The bride entered with her uncle, Mr. Charles Andrew Nicola, who gave her in marriage. Preceding her down the aisle were the flower girl and page, her cousins, little Miss Constance Stanley and Master George Albert Stanley, Jr. The former wore rose organdie and carried a golden basket of sweet peas. Master Albert was attired in a white, Eton suit.

The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret and Miss Marion Dietz, appeared in petal frocks of chiffon, one in a shade of deep rose and the other in lavender orchid. These had bodices of silver lace and trimming of silver and chiffon flowers. Both carried bouquets of pink and lavender sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Mr. Leland Uhl attended Mr. Danforth as best man and the ushers were Messrs. Frank Hornickel, Henry Fuller, Barney Gilmore, Mourtou Case, Herman Bolen and Atlee Shafer.

At the reception for the immediate families at Mrs. Nicola's home, which followed the service, Mrs. Nicola, Mrs. Danforth, Mrs. C.A. Nicola and Mrs. George A. Stanley received with the bridal couple. Mrs. Nicola was gowned in gray chiffon, Mrs. Danforth wore black lace with a corsage bouquet of violets, Mrs. C.A. Nicola wore black net and sequins and Mrs. Stanley hydrangea blue with sash of henna. Decorations in the Nicola home were in pink and lavender with sweet peas predominating in the decorations. Seated with the wedding party at the bride's table were Misses Ada Leffingwell of New York, Caroline Brewer, Florence Brunner, Gertrude Taylor, Mrs. Henry Fuller and Messrs. F.F. George and Oliver Nicola and Felix Dayton, all of Pittsburg.

On return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Danforth will be at home at 2577 Overlook Road, Cleveland Heights. The bride attended Laurel school and later the Holton-Arms school in Washington. Another guest from out of town was Mrs. Leonard Bissell of Buffalo.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Herter, 6405 W. Ellsworth Rd., will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on April 26, 1970 with an Open House at the Farm Bureau Building, Saline-Ann Arbor Rd., from 2 to 5 p.m. All friends are cordially welcomed. Earlier, on their actual anniversary date, April 22, the couple will be guests of honor at a dinner being planned by their two children. Robert and Selma Mast, the Herter's son-in-law and daughter, will host the gathering at their home on Mast Rd., Dexter. Also serving as hosts will be the Herters' son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Herter, of Pleasant Lake Rd. Guests will be members of the family, including the couple's seven grandchildren . . . and also including some of the witnesses and attendants at the wedding 50 years ago. Mrs. Clarence Trinkle, Chelsea, sister of the bride and her maid of honor, will be present. The Rev. Frederick Lueckhoff, since deceased, presided at the couple's marriage April 22, 1920, at the home of the bride, Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Luckhardt, on Textile Rd.

The Herter's were born and raised and have spent their lives to this point as Lodi Township residents. Reuben farmed very actively until his partial retirement about a decade ago. He still does daily chores and enjoys, caring for sheep, chickens, lawn and garden . . . much of it in cooperation with his son who now farms the original Herter land on Pleasant Lake Rd., as well as the Ellsworth Rd. acreage. Mrs. Herter gets much enjoyment from her hobbies of quilting and raising house plants. The Herter's are both working members of Bethel United Church of Christ. He has served on the church board in the past... and has also sat on the Lodi Township Board. They are members of the Free-Lo Farm Bureau group, and Mrs. Herter also enjoys the activities of the Lodi Study Club. He is 75 and the bride is 72.

Marriage Notes for Edward Alber and Lydia Klein:

The 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Alber, 101E. McKay St., Milan, will be observed, Saturday evening, Dec. 28 1957, with a reception from 6 to 9 o'clock in the basement of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church for the immediate family and near neighbors. Members of that church, they were married on that date in 1907 at the parsonage by the late Rev. Carl Lederer.

The bride's sister, Emma, later Mrs. Emma Smith, recently deceased, was maid of honor, and the best man, was the groom's brother, Herman Alber, Saline, who will be present at the golden anniversary. Also attending the reception will be Mrs. Alber's sister, Mrs. Minnie Bock, Ann Arbor, and Miss Lucille Myers, Detroit, who lived in the Alber home and, attended school in Saline. Besides his brother, Herman, present will be Mr. Alber's sisters, Mrs. William Kuebler, Bridgewater, and Mrs. Helen Finkbeiner, Ann Arbor, and their nieces, and nephews. Mrs. Alber is the daughter of late John Adam Klein, who owned and operated the historic Schuyler Mill for many years. She was born in the large house across the street from the mill on the present W. Michigan. Ave. Mr. Alber's parents were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Michael Albert, Who lived near Bridgewater on the present Austin Rd.

Mr. Alber had learned the miller's trade at the York Mill when S. M. Bixby owned and operated it, and after their marriage; the couple went to Eureka, Kansas, where he worked in a mill. Ten for a short time they lived in Encio, New Mexico, and Davenport, Iowa. They returned to Saline in 1911 when brothers Edward and, Herman purchased the York Mill, south of town. After a, few years Herman sold his interest to Jacob Theurer, and in 1930 Ed, as he was familiarly called became sole owner and proprietor until 1944, when he sold the mill and retired. Mr. Alber could not remain inactive, so has been custodian at the Citizens Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Alber lived in the big house, near the mill and closer to the road, with their only child, Louise Clarine, who was a traffic fatality in 1932 at the age of 12, when playing with schoolmates on N. Ann Arbor St. Mr. Alber was expert miller and products bearing the York Mills label were widely known and sold.

That section was known for its beautiful scenery. The Alber property was well kept, the mill race overhung with trees and the pond in winter was the favorite skating place. For many years the road was narrow, home drawn buggies and wagons could barely pass each other, and the hill on the south was much steeper. The pond side of the road was lined with huge willow trees, between which a view of the pond could be seen as one drove past. This was changed when the road became county maintained and was widened. The mill, which was a large three story building, was a landmark for many years and was razed only a few years ago. The property is known as the . . .

1637. Melvina Bessie⁸ Alber (Charles Edward⁷, Regina Margaretha⁶, Christina Margaretha⁵ Heimerdinger, Johannes⁴, Anna Barbara³ Auch, Agnes² Kurfess, Jakob¹ Curfess) was born 09 Nov 1908 in Saline, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, and died 05 Aug 2006 in Ventura, Ventura Co, California. She married James Gordon Anthony 21 Jun 1930 in Saline, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, son of George Anthony and Georgiana Schaible. He was born 15 Nov 1906 in Manchester, Washtenaw Co, Michigan.

Notes for Melvina Bessie Alber:

Melvina Anthony passed away Aug. 5, 2006, after a brief illness. Mel was born in Saline, Michigan, on Nov. 9, 1908, to Charles and Lydia Alber, the youngest of five children. She graduated from Saline High School in 1926 and then attended Eastern Michigan Normal College (now Eastern Michigan University). After completing two years of study, which was a requirement at that time, she began her career in the public schools in the Saline area. Her early years in teaching included being the teacher in several of the one-room country schools, teaching first through eighth grades in the one room. She later taught in the Saline public schools and earned a master's degree as a reading specialist as her final career field. She retired from teaching in 1971.

After their retirement, she and her husband, Gordon, moved to Tucson, Arizona, that same year. She had married Gordon Anthony on June 21, 1930. They were together until his death in 1980, about six months after celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary. She resided in her Tucson home until October 2003, when she moved to the TowneHouse in Ventura. Her favorite pastime was playing bridge. As most anyone who knew her could tell you, she was an avid bridge player. She was ready to play at the slightest hint of a bridge game and was known to organize impromptu games wherever she happened to be. True to being a teacher, she also liked teaching beginners how to play bridge.

She and Gordon had one child, Susan, who lives in Ventura with her husband, Victor. She is also survived by three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 19, in the Vista Room at the Ventura TowneHouse, 4900 Telegraph Road, Ventura. Arrangements are under the direction of the Ted Mayr Funeral Home and Crematory, 3150 Loma Vista Road, Ventura.

Notes for Charles Field Harper:

By Darrell Beck - Ramona Home Journal

Some of my earliest recollections were of my maternal grandparents, Charles and Janneva Harper, when they lived at "the ranch" in the hills east of Ramona. This was always the first place I wanted to be and they were always the first people I wanted to be near. There was something special about the ranch that drew me there, just as there was something special about my grandparents. Perhaps it was the lonely road winding its way through the sage and chaparral, or the welcome shade of the white oaks surrounding the board-and-batten house, or the fragrance of oak wood smoke that drifted about — the anticipation of staying with my grandparents for several days.

I liked the big shaggy dog and granddad's mules, playing in the rock piles, swinging in the tree swing, looking at old photos through the stereoscope, playing with the fox pelt, hiking into the canyon to explore the spring, hunting cottontails, and playing cowboys and Indians with my cousins and kin. It was the profound sense of freedom and adventure that was the magnet that drew me there, and it was my grandmother's enthusiastic interest in those curious rocks she found in the hills around the ranch that captured the avid attention of this 5-year-old boy who joined her to search for gems and minerals.

But all too soon times were changing. My grandfather, being of advancing age, could no longer care for those hundreds of acres of land, nor could he keep up the miles of dirt road that washed out with each heavy rain. So the ranch was sold and my special place would be no more.

My grandparents moved back into town, but this didn't dampen my grandmother's enthusiasm for rocks. In the following years, my grandmother, mother, I and others made countless trips searching out gems and minerals in the backcountry and deserts.

Time has erased my recollection of exactly how many days were spent exploring the brushy hillsides and canyons in the outback seeking great new treasure. Nor is there a tally of the numerous trips to Mesa Grande to screen the tailings for rare gems overlooked by the miners. But there will always be the vivid memory calling up the good times that we shared during each of those adventures. Once we accompanied Julian prospector John Collins who broke a trail into Lost Valley where we discovered a deposit of fine tourmaline pencils eroding from a surface pocket. Led by gemologist Bob Dye to a washed-out road from Truckhaven on old Route 99, we followed a foot trail for many miles across the Borrego Badlands, searching out the unusual optical calcite deposits that John Hilton had mined for the government at Calcite Camp during World War II.

We spent a week camped out in the high desert of Tehachapi while looking for Horse Canyon agate near Cache Peak with Herb Walters and another prospector. There we found beautiful moss, plume and banded agate that was excavated from underground seams. We also explored an ancient Indian cave that contained prehistoric rock drawings, and found many Indian camps, trails and artifacts.

On another occasion, hard rock miner Herb Hill from Mesa Grande guided the Beck, Alford and Harper families across the maze of false trails created by General George Patton's vehicles on the desert pavement as we searched for curious geodes that were clustered like turtle eggs in the volcanic ash of the Black Hills. Those geodes when cut open were often hollow inside — a magnificent marvel of nature. Some were false geodes and only filled with mud, while some were solid agate called thunder eggs. But many contained an inner-world of beautiful crystals of calcite, amethyst, velvet cinnabar and unusual crystallized minerals.

One special adventure came about after my grandmother had read a story in Desert Magazine about a new geode find somewhere north of the Chocolate Mountains and got the urge to go and see what she could find there. Because she didn't drive and could not go out alone, she enlisted her friend Martha King to accompany her, using Martha's car. They wanted me to go along to drive the car as I had just turned 16 and had a driver's license.

Early one morning we loaded Martha's old Plymouth coupe with camping gear, mining equipment and enough provisions and water for a week and struck out for that remote desert location. At that time, the desert was still very desolate country where services and roads were uncertain. But any anxiety from those elderly lady rock hounds was not noticeable and they seemed to be overcome by the sheer joy of adventure and the anticipation of a marvelous discovery of desert treasure.

I recall crossing the desert to a place called Niland where a large military camp had just been abandoned. From there we bounced over a sandy trail at the foot of a steep canyon in the central Chocolate Mountain range, which is now a restricted live gunnery area for the military. We found Beal Well and beyond by stopping on several occasions to repair the road, eventually arriving at what we believed to be our destination where we set up camp. While we never did find the special geodes, we did spend several days exploring the region for other gem materials, and I know my grandmother brought home a trunk-load of rocks.

On other occasions we roamed dim trails through a giant saguaro forest in quest of the perfect quartz crystals and unusual limonite cubes in the Arizona hills where we were joined by kit fox and kangaroo rats (but not at the same time) for dinner at camp. It was here and there that we camped together in the remote and primitive locations, exercising our free will to explore this vast land long before those public lands were closed to such types of activity, and before they were turned into modern, regulated campgrounds occupied by a winter invasion of snowbirds from the north.

My grandmother, then in her mid-60s, could still hike like a trouter. She welcomed the outback's desolation, loneliness and unknown with a rare passion. To her, the dark of night always brought the dawn, and those fierce wild animals were just a friendly shadow in one's imagination. She was not troubled by inconvenience or discomfort. She would throw her bedroll on the ground, eat out of a tin can and never complain. She could walk for miles with sweat pouring as she shouldered a huge bag of her precious rocks.

Each time the world of mineralogy made a new discovery, she would create a new adventure, rummaging through every rock in her rock garden to find an overlooked treasure. She made jewelry, bartered and sold rocks, corresponded with rock collectors all over the world and sorted stones for pennies, all in an effort to supplement my grandfather's meager Spanish American War veteran's pension.

Born Janneva Ella Sutton in 1889, daughter of merchant Moses E. Sutton in Nilesville, Iowa, she was married in 1907 in Nebraska to Charles Field Harper, son of John Harper of Medapolis, Iowa. Their children were Virginia "Jean" (Hodgson), Elizabeth "Bessie" (Beck), Warren Harper, Edna (Alford) and Janneva "Nemie" (Matthew).

My grandmother was a teacher and a friend. She was an exemplary companion. But most of all, she was a pioneer lady of highest morals. She was this and more, right up to the night death visited and took her away.

Charles City - Mrs. Flossie Springer and son, David, went to Iowa City Tuesday where James W. Springer, 25, another son of Mrs. Springer's was in a University hospital following an automobile accident early Tuesday morning May 16, 1950 on highway 6, about 9 miles east of Iowa City. Springer was found unconscious at 3:20 a. m. after a 1950 Buick sedan he had been driving left the highway, overturning several times and had been virtually demolished. Springer's wife told friends here that Mr. Springer was returning from West Liberty where he had taken a friend when the accident occurred. His condition was reported satisfactory Tuesday afternoon. Springer was a senior pre-medical student at the State University of Iowa.

The Stabler Companies Inc. is a privately-owned collection of subsidiaries primarily involved in transportation-related products and services and real estate development. The anchor of the company is Eastern Industries, Inc., which builds and repairs roads and provides quarry aggregates used in the making of concrete. Eastern also owns Work Area Protection Corporation, a Chicago-area maker and distributor of cones, drums, barricade lights, vests, "stop/slow" paddles, message boards, and other safety products. In a similar vein, Protection Services Inc. offers traffic control products and services, including signs, barriers, cones, and electronic message boards. Precision Solar Controls, based in Garland, Texas, manufactures solar-powered highway message systems and traffic lights. Stabler's ASTI Transportation Systems subsidiary is involved in a wide variety of high-technology transportation products, including traffic congestion detectors, over-height vehicle detectors, flooded roadway detectors, speed limit systems, roadside cameras to help monitor and improve traffic flow, and alarm systems to alert construction workers when a vehicle has violated a safety zone. Stabler Land Company is a real estate development subsidiary, whose primary interest is the Stabler Center, a planned corporate and residential community located in Pennsylvania's Lehigh Valley, strategically located near New York City, Philadelphia, and Washington, D.C. Finally, Stabler Companies also owns the Center Valley Club, a tournament-caliber golf course that is part of the Stabler Center. The company also operates DBS Trans Inc., which provides helicopter service for the affiliated companies, and SCI Products Inc., holder of patents on several of the Stabler's products and operator of a sales force for Work Area Protection and Precision Solar Controls.

The man behind the Stabler name was Donald Billman Stabler, born in Williamsport, Pennsylvania, in 1908. He learned the value of hard work from his father, George William Stabler, who had been raised on a Pennsylvania farm, cobbled together an education by attending a Williamsport business school, and then became a circulation director of Grit, a weekly newspaper popular with rural America. The younger Stabler was able to attend Lehigh University, a well-regarded engineering school, and earn a bachelor's degree in civil engineering in 1930. He then took a job with a Pittsburgh contractor, Dravo Corporation, but due to the Great Depression that was precipitated by the stock market crash of 1929, he was laid off after just six months. His father then managed to pay for Stabler to return to Lehigh and earn a master's degree in 1932. He now found work with a Harrisburg contractor. Although the pay was meager, just $15 a week, the work was challenging. "It was the best training I've ever had in my life," he told the Allentown Morning Call in a 1989 interview. In 1940 Stabler was ready to strike out on his own, and with $1,300 in savings he laid the foundation for the Stabler Companies by starting Stabler Construction Company in Harrisburg. He already had a contract in hand, having made a successful $40,000 bid on a road work contract in Huntingdon County. He also operated a sole proprietorship, Donald D. Stabler Contractor. The early years were a struggle, however, and to make ends meet he also served as superintendent of public works at Fort Indiantown Gap, a facility that would soon be humming with activity as the United States entered World War II. Stabler attempted to enlist in the military but was rejected because of poor eyesight.

Following the war and a brief recession, the U.S. economy roared to life and the federal and state governments made a vast commitment to a highway building program, deemed an important component of national defense given the potential need to move troops and materials from coast to coast. As a result, Stabler received a bounty of road building contracts. The year 1955 was a watershed for Stabler's business and his family. He merged Donald B. Stabler Contractor and Stabler Construction Company to form Stabler Companies, and in that same year began to diversify. He added to Stabler Companies by forming Protection Services to produce construction safety products and acquired State Aggregate, a sand and gravel company that operated quarries in northeastern Pennsylvania. But it was also in 1955 that his daughter, Beverly Anne, turned 16 and received a driver's license. On a family trip late in the year, Stabler and his second wife, Dorothy Louis Stabler, were driving in one car while his daughter followed in a second car. She was struck by a drunk driver, was severely injured, and was for many years confined to The Woods School, a institution in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, devoted to the developmentally retarded and people with the kind of head injuries Beverly received. The incident sparked the philanthropy that would become a hallmark of Stabler's life. He and his wife launched the Donald B. and Dorothy L. Stabler Foundation to support central Pennsylvania colleges and hospitals. He also became a generous supporter of Lehigh University, not only contributing money for building programs and establishing scholarships but also by devoting his time. He served as a member of the board of trustees for more than 30 years, and during his two-year term as head of the school's alumni association, he traveled almost 20,000 miles to visit 30 alumni clubs, the most any president ever completed.

Despite his personal tragedy and increasing volunteer work, Stabler continued to grow his business empire. The next addition of note came in 1965 when he launched DBS Transit Company. It initially supplied trucks to Stabler's construction and materials companies, but later it would provide helicopter service to the subsidiaries. The most significant acquisition in the history of the Stabler Companies occurred in 1976 when Eastern Industries, Inc., was purchased, along with subsidiaries Elco Paving and Elco Hausman Construction, which provided blacktop, sewer grading, and concrete construction services in the Lehigh Valley. The business started out in 1941 as Eastern Lime Corporation and provided limestone to cement companies as well as agricultural limestone and crushed stone for ready-mix concrete and highway construction. Eastern added its first quarry in 1957 and a year later became involved in the blacktopping business when it acquired Harlem Blacktop, Inc. The company entered the block and masonry industry in 1961, and in 1965 the collection of business began operating under the Eastern Industries name. Over the next decade it added further materials, equipment rental, and construction assets until in March 1976 Stabler's Protection Services bought 98 percent of its stock. The year was also noteworthy because Stabler, now in his late 60s, underwent successful open heart surgery.

The mission of Stabler Companies Inc. (SCI) is to focus its most valuable asset, the employees, toward the common goal of long-term growth and prosperity for the employees' families and for SCI and its wholly-owned subsidiaries. Despite his age, Stabler looked to new challenges in the 1980s, moving beyond the construction field he knew so well to real estate development. In 1983 he formed Stabler Development Company to own and lease his real estate interests, primarily the quarries that supplied aggregate for construction purposes. A year later he launched Stabler Land Company to develop 1,700 acres of Lehigh Valley property. About 1,600 of those acres were acquired in 1984 from Gulf & Western Natural Resources Group, the land part of New Jersey Zinc Company and available after the mining operations were shut down in 1983. Knowing that Interstate 78, which would provide a direct link to the New York metropolitan area, was likely to be built, Stabler believed that the Lehigh Valley was set to enjoy the benefits of its proximity to major Eastern Seaboard cities and envisioned building a major technology research center, similar to Princeton's prestigious Forrestal Center, home to such major research facilities as the Plasma Physics Laboratory. "I have always like the Valley," Stabler told the Morning Call in 1995, adding, "When this opportunity came along, it was sort of the fruition of an inward dream I really didn't realize was there. It just sort of developed as my thinking went along." What would one day became the Stabler Center became his "baby," as he once describe it, and the preoccupation for the rest of his life.

Going from vision to realization, however, required a great deal of patience and resolve. First Stabler had to secure permission to build by winning over area residents concerned how such a massive development would affect the rural character of the community. An example of Stabler's commitment to the project and salesmanship occurred in January 1985 when he faced some 200 hostile residents at an area high school. With his only aid a chalkboard, he made his pitch. "Stabler turned his 5-foot 5-inch frame to the blackboard and began scribbling in big letters," according to the Morning Call. "The development's assessment, he said, would be at least $168 million. The township supervisors and school district officials at the meeting perked up. That meant at least $10 million in real estate taxes." He further wrote, "Add 50 percent to your township budget. Triple your school district budget." Furthermore, he argued that development was coming to the area whether he did it or not, whether the residents liked it not. He offered them quality development from someone with a concern for the local environment. "We don't want any trash development. We want something to be proud of. We're not big city slickers. We're just like you guys." According to the newspaper account, "The crowd grew silent. Stabler put on his raincoat and, followed by his architect, slowly marched out of the auditorium, leaving behind the message on the blackboard.... Several months later, Stabler's plans for an office park were approved."

The township approvals he needed were all in place by 1987, but Stabler soon faced another major obstacle: a real estate crash that caused a slump in the corporate real estate market. However, because his business was diversified, he was able to wait out conditions. In the meantime, Stabler did not neglect his core businesses. In 1986 Eastern acquired Work Area Protection Corporation, the largest maker of traffic cones in the United States, followed in 1990 with the addition of Precision Solar Controls Inc., a major supplier of solar-power message systems, LED traffic lights, and monitoring systems.

Stabler's vision for the development of the Lehigh Valley began to take shape in the 1990s, but progress proved elusive. Stabler had always predicted that the project would take 20 to 25 years to be completed, and was aware he would not be alive to see his dream fulfilled. What he did witness were essentially minor achievements. The Center Valley Club and its upscale 18-hole public golf course opened in June 1992, and later in the decade it would host a pair of PGA Nike golf tournaments. In the meantime plans for a three-story office building fell through and only a handful of companies located facilities in the massive site. In 1994 an ALDI Foods distribution center opened on a 66-acre lot, followed by offices of a law firm and AD computers, a payroll processing company. In 1995 SPJ Properties of Parsippany, New Jersey, was hired to lure research and technology-oriented companies and other major businesses, but nothing materialized from these efforts.

On December 30, 1997, a week after he turned 89 years old, Donald Stabler died at his Bal Harbour, Florida, winter home. Eight years younger, his widow inherited most of his fortune, although a great deal of that was already earmarked for the charities the couple had supported for so many years. She would live until February 2005 when she passed away in Florida at the age of 90. Before he died, Stabler groomed his successor, Cyril C. Dunmire, Jr., who was president of Protection Services and then in 1995 became president and chief operating officer of Stabler Companies. Upon Stabler's death, he became chairman of the board. The Stabler Companies carried on without its founder, the individual subsidiaries continuing to pursue their own agendas, while complimentary businesses were added. In 1999 ASTI Transportation Systems, a developer of intelligent transportation systems based in New Castle, Delaware, was brought into the fold. Stabler Companies then formed SCI Products to hold a number of patents and provide a sales force to represent the products of Work Area Protection and Precision Solar Controls.

Although movement had been slow, Donald Stabler's pet development project began to finally take shape following his death, albeit it required some deviation from his original plan for Stabler Center. In 2000 Liberty Properties Trust broke ground on a $10 million, 70,000-square-foot office building that when it was opened was immediately occupied. In March 2001 plans were announced to build a 225-room hotel at the entrance of Center Valley Golf Course, but difficult economic condition forced that project to be put on hold. A similar situation occurred with Optimum Corporation, a Florida Internet company, which in July 2001 agreed to build a $3 million, 25,000 square-foot research and development. Several months later, due to a severe slump in the telecommunications industry, the project was shelved. A minor accomplishment in 2002 was the opening of the Allentown Business School at Stabler Center. Also, about 100 homes were built in a residential district that could accommodate ten times that number.

Part of the reason for slow progress at Stabler Center was a desire to stick as close as possible to Donald Stabler's vision. Officials at Stabler Land Development had been extremely selective about tenants over the years, because the company was privately owned and did not have debt to service. This factor, along with difficulties in gaining subdivision permits, prevented Stabler Center from taking advantage of the Internet-boom of the late 1990s, which in many ways turned out to be a blessing in disguise. To help spur development, local officials, desperate for tax revenues, made changes to township zoning ordinances, which would allow for the development of smaller office buildings at Stabler Center, as well as a taller conference center, restaurants, and boutiques. The zoning changes had the desired effect and within two years Stabler Center, in the words of the Morning Call, emerged as "one of the region's hottest development sites." Olympus America agreed to move its headquarters there from Long Island; plans for a 427,000-square-foot upscale mall were announced; D&B Corporation was also looking to build a 167,000-square-foot building to replace its Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, offices; and in December 2005 Sierra Management Company broke ground on the first of a three-building, campus-style complex, with one of the unit devoted to medical tenants. Sierra owned land in the Stabler Center on which it planned to build the long-proposed executive conference center, Saucon Creek Resort. Plans were also in the works for a 372-home "active adult" community. While many of these projects were not what Donald Stabler had in mind when he bought the old New Jersey Zinc property a generation earlier, there was still plenty of land available should a major technology research tenant materialize.

Notes for Dorothy Louise Witwer:

Dorothy Louise Stabler and her late husband Donald B. Stabler '30 were dedicated and generous benefactors of Lehigh University. Together they provided for the Stabler Athletic and Convocation Center, the Donald B. and Dorothy L. Stabler Scholarship Fund, the Stabler Teaching Award, and the Dorothy L. Stabler Tower on Lehigh's Mountaintop Campus. The Stablers believed education is a key to both your future and that of the generations to follow. The complexities that face us today, tomorrow, and henceforth require solutions that can only be solved from a foundation of knowledge.

Born on Dec. 9, 1914, in Dayton, Ohio, Dorothy was the daughter of Ralph and Grace Witwer. She married Donald B. Stabler in 1952 and upon his death in 1997, accepted the position of Vice President and Director of Stabler Companies Inc. and its subsidiaries. She was also a trustee of the Donald B. and Dorothy L. Stabler Foundation and served on the board of trustees of Messiah College, Harrisburg Area Community College Foundation, and Woods Services in Langhorne, Pennsylvania.

Donald Stabler '30 passed away in 1997. He was former president of the Lehigh Alumni Association and served as a corporate member on the university's Board of Trustees and was past chairman of the Development Committee. Dorothy is survived by her daughter, Beverly Anne Stabler of Rockwood,

Notes for George Propstra:

Burgerville (Vancouver)

Second-generation Vancouver restaurateur George Propstra, the son of a Dutch immigrant, opened the first Burgerville USA on March 10, 1961. By 2008, the Vancouver-based fast-food chain had grown to 39 stores, from Albany, Oregon, to Centralia, Washington, and east to The Dalles, Oregon, with visions of moving into the Seattle market by 2011. In a commercial sense, the opening of the first Burgerville, on Vancouver's McLoughlin Heights underscored the line in President John F. Kennedy's inauguration speech seven weeks earlier that "the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans." The new eatery, with a simple, easy-on-the-wallet menu and little waiting time, was immediately popular with teenagers and signaled that Baby Boomers would be a substantial customer base for the fast-food industry.

That original Burgerville, where customers ordered from an outside window and all food was "to go," offered no-frills burgers for 19 cents and its "Colossal Burger" for 39 cents. It was replaced on an adjacent lot in 1975 with a larger store offering inside seating and a drive-up window. Today, the oldest, continuously operated store in the chain is the second Burgerville, which opened in 1962 across the street from Vancouver's present-day City Hall. It is today (2008) the only Burgerville without inside seating. Just three blocks from Interstate 5, its clientele ranges from attorneys and city workers to freeway travelers, kids on bikes, and panhandlers who have scored donations from motorists waiting for a green light at the bottom of the I-5 off-ramp.

Taking on the Giants

Burgerville has survived and thrived against national giants such as Burger King and McDonald's by going upscale, with Northwest ingredients such as Tillamook cheese, only Northwest natural beef (no hormones, no antibiotics), and halibut fish and chips. Seasonal specialties include Walla Walla Sweet onion rings, strawberry shortcake, and raspberry and blackberry sundaes and shakes made with real ice cream.

As the Burgerville chain expanded, with many outlets in Portland and its suburbs, George Propstra became something of a burger cult figure for his dry-humor television ads. In one, the gravel-voiced Propstra, who was in his late 60s, went to a truck stop at Biggs Junction, Oregon, "to poke fun at competitors' frozen beef patties ostensibly trucked into the Northwest. He banged a frozen patty against the back of a semitrailer and said something like, 'If it's not Burgerville, you don't know where that meat has been'" (The Columbian editorial).

Propstra retired in 1992 and died in 2004. He was succeeded by his son-in-law, Tom Mears. More than 95 percent of the stock is in Mears-family hands.

Jack Graves, who has been with the company for nearly 30 years and carries the title, "chief cultural officer," says one of the major pivot points in Burgerville's growth came in the early 1990s. Competition for the fast-food dollar was on the rise, with Jack In the Box, Carl's Jr. and taco places joining the fray along with Burger King, Wendy's, and McDonald's. In addition to this expanding array of restaurant choices, customers were the beneficiaries of hamburger price wars among the national chains. In some Burgerville stores, Graves says, year-over-year customer counts not only couldn't keep pace with earlier increases but actually slipped in raw numbers (Gregg Herrington interview with Graves).

"We couldn't compete on price with the national chains and their economies of scale," Graves says. So, "We looked at a shift in how we do business. We realized we had to play to our strength and play up the local and seasonal ingredients. Our menu shifted almost overnight, with a focus on bigger burgers, Tillamook cheese, and Northwest berries in our shakes" (Herrington interview with Graves).

Retro-Remodel

With Tom Mears' ascension to the presidency in 1992, Burgerville's transition included not only an upgrading of the menu and ingredients but also a shift in interior design to a "retro look." Reminiscent of the 1950s, the stores included jukeboxes with songs going back to the early rock 'n' roll era. The retrofitting cost the company $8 million by 2000 when all remodels were completed. Together, says Graves, the changes "turned the company around" (Herrington interview with Graves).

Although the company has not expanded its geographic footprint in years, that could change soon. "The Seattle area is a natural," Graves says. "We definitely have our sights on Seattle," with a goal of four or five outlets there by 2011 (Herrington interview with Graves).

Sustainability and Employee Benefits

In recent years, Burgerville has emphasized sustainable practices. It buys wind-power credits equal to all of the energy it uses in its stores, sells its waste grease for conversion to bio-diesel fuel, and sells its much of its food waste for composting. In 2002, Burgerville began purchasing all of its beef through a single provider, Oregon-based Country Natural Beef, which is certified by Food Alliance, a nonprofit organization that "closely monitors its various suppliers to ensure no hormones or antibiotics are used and that it tracks the beef through the entire process."

Burgerville's mission statement is, "Serve with love." That spirit was captured by Arlo Kilpatrick, who retired from the company in 1996 after 34 years and was "as responsible for Burgerville's success as I am," George Propstra said at the time. Kilpatrick said then, "This business is almost more about people and involvement in the community than it is about making a buck" (Oppegaard, The Columbian).

Graves says the national average turnover rate for hourly workers in the fast-food industry is 150 percent per year and Burgerville's was 128 percent as recently as 2005. That's when the company offered hourly employees who work at least 20 hours a week and had at least six months on the job a medical-insurance package for $15 a month, with no deductible. In 2006, that annual turnover rate fell to 54 percent. "The value is clearly there," Graves says. "We have happier workers and they give better service," including hotter food and cleaner restaurants. "The plan paid for itself," he says. "Our guest counts have improved" (Herrington interview with Graves).

The Holland

Burgerville's parent company is The Holland Inc., a name that honors the native country of George Propstra's father, Jacob. He founded the Holland Creamery in Vancouver in 1922 on Main Street, three blocks north of the Columbia River. In 1927, he moved his growing business in milk, butter, eggs, and ice cream 15 blocks north to larger quarters. Holland ice cream, in distinctive cartons with images of windmills, was distributed through local grocery stores well into the 1950s. But back in the early 1930s Jacob Propstra had begun selling sandwiches at the creamery and in 1935, his son George left college to take over -- and expand -- that side of the business.

The creamery eventually closed, but The Holland restaurant became a Vancouver institution -- a reliable, clean, well-staffed, moderately priced full-service restaurant. It attracted a cross-section of loyal patrons for more than six decades: contractors, business and civic leaders at breakfast; downtown office workers and retirees at noon, and families and couples at dinner. There was a nighttime crowd, too. After sports events, concerts or drama productions at either of the two close-in high schools, (Hudson's Bay and the old Fort Vancouver) and after movies at downtown theaters there was a "rush" at the Holland for pie and ice cream.

But Vancouver demographics changed and the county's economic center shifted to the suburbs. The Holland cut back its evening hours, then began closing at mid-afternoon and finally, in July 2001, closed for good. George Propstra, retired by then, had begun devoting his energy and money to the community as a whole. He gave generously to all manner of civic and educational projects. A plaza in Esther Short Park in downtown Vancouver, the oldest public square in Washington State, is named for George Propstra.

George Propstra House - Built about 1923

220 W. 36th Street; Vancouver, Washington

Listed on Clark County Heritage Register in 2009

The Propstra House, located on the corner of Columbia and West 36th Street in the Lincoln neighborhood is a classic example of domestic architecture during the 1920s. The Tudor Eclectic style was very popular during this time period and the house's French Eclectic influenced roof line gives it a unique appearance. The front façade with multiple sets of ribbon windows, an asymmetrical front gable and low elliptical arch over the recessed entry combine to create a unique look.

The original owner of the house, Jacob "Jack" Propstra began a successful creamery and restaurant business in Vancouver in 1922. The creamery business evolved into the Holland Restaurant, which in turn spawned the Burgerville USA restaurants. The first Burgerville Restaurant was located in the Heights neighborhood on Mill Plain and was quickly followed by locations at 14th and C Streets and 78th Street in Hazel Dell.

George Propstra, son of Jack Propstra and Burgerville USA founder, was a noted philanthropist. He made significant donations to facilities such as Propstra Square in Esther Short Park, Propstra Aquatic Center and Hudson's Bay High School baseball stadium. Other organizations that received support include the "I have a Dream" program and the Clark County Skills Center. In 1991 George Propstra was granted the Community Foundation's First Citizen Award.

George Propstra, who made a small fortune as the founder of the Burgerville chain and spent the final 15 years of his life giving millions back to the community, died early Sunday. He was 90. Propstra died at Southwest Washington Medical Center shortly before 1 a.m. He was admitted to the hospital Friday with pneumonia. Carolyn Propstra said her husband had battled an assortment of medical problems for years. "His heart, which was a really big heart, just wouldn't carry him another foot forward," she said.

For decades, Propstra was Clark County's most recognizable restaurateur as operator of The Holland in downtown Vancouver and the Burgerville chain. Propstra, with his distinctive gravelly voice, emerged as Vancouver's leading philanthropist since retiring from business in 1992. "Without the community, we would be zilch, without the dollars they have spent with me or I've coaxed them to spend," Propstra said in a 2001 interview at his home overlooking the Columbia River.

George and Carolyn Propstra donated more than $13 million to community causes, both big and small, through the Community Foundation for Southwest Washington. After Woodland was hammered by floodwaters in February 1996, the Propstras immediately stepped forward with a $12,000 contribution for flood relief. His largest contributions were $5 million for the Jim Parsley Center, $3.2 million for the community square and bell tower in Esther Short Park, $2.2 million for the Propstra Aquatics Center at McLoughlin Middle School and $1.1 million for Propstra Stadium at Hudson's Bay High School. "He came to the conclusion he couldn't take it with him," said Ed Firstenburg, founder of First Independent Bank. "I think he phrased it a little more delicately, that he wanted to do something while he was still alive."

Propstra's family operated The Holland since before the Great Depression. After decades selling Holland pies and Colossal burgers, Propstra wanted to put his money to work in the community. "It's fun to make money, but it's nice to use it," he said in 2001. "To just put it in and hoard it away, that's not what it's all about." Paul Christensen, a Vancouver businessman who founded the Hough Foundation to boost the neighborhood where he attended elementary school in the 1940s, said Propstra set an example. "It was because of him that I was motivated to turn myself to the needs of the community," said Christensen, who has spearheaded million-dollar charitable projects. "Tremendous, tremendous guy. I loved that man. Totally unselfish. You don't get citizens better than George for any community. I get a lump in my throat saying that." When Propstra committed himself to a project there was no hesitation or second-guessing. His $3.2 million contribution to a community square in Esther Short Park helped transform the former transient haven into the heart of a revitalized downtown. "First-class guy," said Ed Lynch, a Vancouver businessman who worked with Propstra on Esther Short Park. "And when he did something, he did it right."

Propstra remained a modest man. When he learned of plans to rename downtown's Sixth Street "Propstra Boulevard" in his honor, he called Mayor Royce Pollard and quashed the plan. Propstra worried about the costs of companies having to print up new business cards and stationery and government having to install new street signs. "It really wasn't my cup of tea," he explained later. "My name ain't Martin Luther King."

Propstra dealt with tragedy in his personal life. Kenny, one of three children Propstra had with his first wife, Margaret, died of cancer at age 20. Margaret, whom Propstra married in 1938, died in 1990.

Propstra, a Chicago native, came to Clark County as a small child. His father, a Dutch immigrant, opened several creameries. Propstra, one of three boys in the family, took over his father's butter and ice cream business in 1940. During the five decades in which he built a restaurant empire, Propstra opened and operated 32 Burgerville and three Holland restaurants in Southwest Washington and Oregon. He had a reputation as a no-nonsense businessman with an eye for details who worked long hours and emphasized customer service. He could be a demanding boss, but he also would bend over backward to help his workers.

"He was a great guy," said Minnie Proctor, who met Propstra as a 15-year-old waitress at The Holland in 1945. "Got right in there and worked with the rest." "He was the first guy there in the morning and the last guy out in the evening," Lynch said. "He really tended to business." Carolyn Propstra, who ran The Holland's business office for 25 years and married Propstra in 1992, said her husband's reputation as a hard-nosed businessman wasn't deserved. "In business, people used to say he was kind of a bear," she said. "I always would say those were the people who weren't doing their jobs." Propstra seemed to have an innate sense of what his customers wanted. Christensen said he once asked Propstra why he didn't serve more healthful foods, such as fish and vegetables, at his restaurants. "He said, 'Paul, you will never separate the American eater from his fat,'" Christensen said.

At age 50, Propstra took up flying, both planes and later helicopters. Freeman Keller, a close friend of Propstra for than a half-century, said he and Propstra frequently would fly somewhere for lunch or to inspect a Burgerville under construction. "He furnished the plane and the gas, and I bought the lunch," Keller said. "With his income and mine, that was the way it should be, always 50-50."

Propstra and Keller were both members of "The Liars Club," a group of longtime Vancouver businessmen who meet at Chronis' Restaurant & Lounge to swap stories and enjoy each other's company. During the past year, Propstra purchased Vancouver Food Center, at 12th and Main streets, with the intention of building a bakery there. Firstenburg said Propstra's friends gave him a hard time about his plans. "He finally said, 'Well, I just have to have something to do. I just can't sit around and do nothing,'" Firstenburg said. Carolyn Propstra concurred.

"Even when he couldn't walk, he always had to be going," she said. "It was amazing. I would always say if his legs could go as fast as his mind was going, we probably would all be in trouble." In recent years, Propstra battled a series of strokes and other medical problems that robbed his body of some of its vigor, but his mind remained sharp and his sense of humor robust. On warm summer days, he could be seen using a scooter to maneuver through Esther Short Park. Propstra gave millions to build the park's Salmon Run Bell Tower and fountain.

Nancy Hales, executive director of the Community Foundation for Southwest Washington, said Propstra celebrated his 90th birthday in the park last June and frequently went to the Vancouver Farmers Market or other events in or near the park. "And sure enough, if the flowers weren't blooming to his satisfaction, I would hear about it on Monday," she said. Propstra always was direct and focused during their numerous conversations about his charitable work, but he was never harsh, Hales said. "And he would always end by, 'OK, what do you need to make this happen?'" she said. "He never stopped looking for things to do, he never stopped giving to the community," she said. "Just two weeks ago, he was complaining there was too much white powder on the bell tower and I better get right on that. And I'm going to." Hales' voice cracked with emotion as she talked about the man who had been one of her organization's biggest contributors, as well as a personal friend.

"I love him so much," she said. "My dad's name is George, too. I remember when he and my dad first met. He said, 'I want you to know that I'm Nancy's West Coast dad.'"

Cameron, Missouri - Memorial services for Lt. Leigh Roden will be held in the Christian Church next Sunday afternoon, December 9, 1945 at 2:30 o'clock. Lt. Roden, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roden, of this city, had been stationed in Manila as an army nurse with the 316th General Hospital Unit at the time of her death, September 30, 1945.

Funeral services were held in Manila on October 1 and Lt. Roden was given a full military service. But it is "fitting that a memorial service be held in the community and church where she had spent the most of her life. The services will be in charge of the Rev. T. Earl Starke, pastor of the church. Several very fine musical numbers are being planned. A quartet composed of J. Charles Groom, Dorothea Peterson, Mrs. Florence Wrex and T. Earl Starke, will sing "An Evening Prayer", one of the songs used so much by the Conference Club of the Cameron Church when Lt. Roden was a member. Miss Peterson and Mrs. Wrex, members of the old Conference Club quartet, will also sing as a duet, the number, "Living For Jesus" which was Lt. Roden's favorite song and which was also a favorite of the conference group. Miss Delia Mae Baker, another members of the old Conference will sing, "Crossing The Bar."

During the service the pastor will also dedicate the gold star on the service flag and the memorial gift. The gift, a beautiful illuminated cross, is presented by members of the 316th General Hospital Unit in Manila and by the family. Following it the dedication of the cross a male quartet composed of J. Charles Groom, Dean Coon, Wm. Short and T. Earl Starke, will render the number, "In The Cross Of Christ I Glory." Elmer Ellis Post No. 33, American Legion, will in behalf of the United States government present to the family the flag that was used on the casket at the funeral services in Manila. Bobbie Lee Bell will blow taps. Rev. Andrew McAllen, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, will lead in prayer. Miss Doris Witt will preside at the organ.

Marriage Notes for Paul Kettenring and Lillian Willys:

The Kettenrings were married Aug. 26, 1940, at Tort Benton and the wife on Dec. 28, 1943, requested a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty. Sept. 28, 1944, Holt granted Mrs. Kettenring a divorce and custody of the children for 10 months each year. Kettenring recently petitioned for modification of the decree, asserting his former wife turned the children over to him in June. 1945, and then left the state, going to Kansas City, Missouri, to live. Since that time, it was alleged, she has not returned to the state to visit the children or to assume responsibility of their care and custody. Kettenring added that he has remarried and it would be for the children's best interests if he has permanent custody.

Great Falls - Declaring that her husband on Nov. 29, 1943 struck her on the chest with the butt end of a gun, Lillian W. Kettenring Tuesday filed suit in district court for a divorce from P. Donald Kettenring. Mr. and Mrs. Kettenring were married Aug. 26, 1940, at Fort Benton, and they have two small children. The wife alleges cruelty. Nov. 29, she says, in addition to being struck with the gun, her husband struck her on the head with his fist, knocking her down and cracking her ribs against a cedar chest.

Great Falls, April 15, 1947 - Complete custody of a daughter about 6 and a son about 5 was awarded P. Donald Kettenring, defendant to a divorce action filed by Lillian M. Kettenring in 1943. The divorce decree was modified by District Judge C F. Holt.

Notes for Anna Virginia Corr:

Mrs. P. Donald (Anna) Kettenring, 62, 717 Skyline Drive, a native of Great Falls and a resident nearly all her life, was dead on arrival at a local hospital Monday night April 25, 1977. She was stricken at her home after several years of poor health. The funeral will be Friday at St. Luke the Evangelist Church. Burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery will follow. Mrs. Kettenring was born Anna Corr, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Corr. Except for a few years in St. Louis Park, Minnesota, she had spent all her life here. She had worked 10 years for Buttrey's Bakery when ill health forced her retirement in 1969.

Survivors are the widower; sons, Robert Kettenring, Billings, and Richard Dallas, Santa Rosa, California; daughter, Mrs. Gordon (Donna) Lingle, Billings; sisters, Emily Michich, California; Katherine Antonich, Aberdeen, South Dakota, and Marie Kirksey, Scottsdale, Arizona; brothers, William Corr, Great Falls, and Albert Corr, Anaconda, and six grandchildren.

Dr. Harlan S. Heim was a dedicated physician and served the Humboldt, Nebraska community for over 40 years. He was an ordained minister of the United Methodist Church, and substituted for absent or vacationing pastors. He performed many marriages, conducted funerals and baptisms. His speaking ability made him a frequent choice for banquets, conferences, and commencement exercises.

He married Golda Mountain in 1927 and she was his companion for life. Golda was a housewife, mother of their three children, and during the years that they owned and operated the Humboldt Hospitals, she bought the food and hired the help for the two hospitals and was her husband's secretary and chauffeur. She often remarked that, "her occupation was to keep Doc going." And this she did!

Dr. Heim attended the Dawson Public Schools, Westmar College in LeMars, Iowa, and while there was influenced by Dr. Neibel, then secretary of the Evangelical Association, to become a medical missionary in China. A close friend, Walter Ulmer, also from Dawson, served for many years in China and encouraged Dr. Heim to follow the same path.

Receiving his B.A. from Westmar in 1920, Dr. Heim attended Cornell Medical School in New York City, which at that time was one of the few medical schools in the United States offering courses in Oriental medicine. Finishing medical school in 1924 and with two years of internship in 1926, Dr. Heim was interviewed by the Rev. J.J. DeWall, head of a new mission of the Evangelical Association at Red Bird, Kentucky. Conditions in China being unsettled, Dr. Heim went to Red Bird until the way should open up to China. It never did.

The couple spent 6 ½ years in the Cumberland Mountains. While at Red Bird Mission, Dr. Heim established a 16-bed hospital, the first to serve the Cumberland Mountain area of southeast Kentucky. Golda was quoted as saying, "On our wedding trip we rode mule back along the creeks the only roads available on the last lap of our journey in route to our home at the mission. I had never ridden a mule!" While there were many great changes at Red Bird Mission through the years, Mrs. Heim often spoke of her vivid memories of life there when she taught in the mission school. Classes were held off and on according to the weather and the condition of the creek beds. The mission dormitory housed about 100 students.

Returning to Humboldt in August of 1933, Dr. Heim started his medical practice. In addition to serving the Humboldt Community, Dr. Heim served on the board of trustees of Westmar College from 1943 to 1971, was president of the board of trustees from 1960 to 1968, and later was named the life trustee of the college.

Two daughters were born while they were in Kentucky, Betty Jean was the first baby born in the new hospital, which the Heim's were instrumental in building. She spent most of her life as a medical technician at the Espanola Hospital in Espanola, New Mexico. She passed away in 1982 and is buried in the Heim Cemetery at Dawson, beside her parents. Donna Marie was born January 3, 1930 and married Lloyd Epley, a lawyer of Coralville, Iowa, where they still make their home. A son, Robert Harlan was born January 6, 1942 and passed away August 10, 1991. He held several degrees and taught in several schools, the last being the University of Iowa at Iowa City, Iowa.

Dr. Heim was instrumental in founding a hospital in Humboldt in 1939 and he and his associate, Dr. A.P. Stappenbeck, opened the Holman Maternity Hospital in 1949. Dr. Heim was active in founding the Humboldt Community Memorial Hospital, the Colonial Acres Nursing Home and the Humboldt Clinic. He also managed a small home for older people known as the "cottage."

Dr. Heim was born on September 17, 1897, a son of Henry W. and Regina Heim, on a farm north of Dawson. Dr. Heim grew up in the Dawson Bethel Church where he held his membership all of his life. Golda passed away in 1971 while on a trip to Red Bird Mission, and Dr. Heim passed away in 1974. Both are buried in the Heim Cemetery at Dawson, Nebraska.

Humboldt, March 12, 1974 - Funeral services for Dr. Harlan S. Heim, 76, longtime physician and civic leader here, were to be held Tuesday at the United Methodist Church in Humboldt. He died Saturday, March 9, 1974. A native of Dawson, Dr. Heim came to Humboldt in 1933 after serving as a full-service missionary in Appalachia for 7-1/2 years. An ordained minister in the old Evangelical Church, Dr. Heim for many years filled area pulpits on a substitute basis, averaging about a sermon a month. He served as director of the United Methodist Church choir here for 40 years. Dr. Heim was a World War I veteran and was active in American Legion work. He was also a leader in Rotary and Masonic circles. In May of 1973 Dr. Heim was honored by his community in two days of special tribute.

Surviving are his son, Robert of Iowa City, Iowa; daughters, Betty Jean Heim of Espanola, New Mexico, and Mrs. Lloyd (Donna) Epley of Coralville, Iowa; brother, John of Fremont; sisters, Martha Klima of Kansas City, Missouri, and Mrs. James. DeWeese of Humboldt; and three grandchildren.

Notes for Charles David Springman:

Charles D. "Charlie" Springman, 92 of Williamsport passed away November 30, 2023, at home with family by his side. Born on August 5, 1931, he was a son of the late Rev. Harold L. and Laura E. (Newcomer) Springman. Charlie graduated from Williamsport High School in 1949 and went on to serve his country in the United States Air Force during the Korean War. He returned home to earn a Bachelor's degree in Economics from Lycoming College, and a Master's in retail from the University of Pittsburgh. Throughout his professional life, Charlie was a respected figure in retail management. He retired in 1995 as the Senior Vice President of Operations for Lord & Taylor Department Stores in New York City, where he oversaw more than 60 stores across the United States. His astute business acumen and equitable management style earned him the admiration of his colleagues and employees alike. His work was not just a job but an extension of his character, where he practiced kindness and fairness daily.

Charlie's impact extended far beyond his professional endeavors; he was deeply involved in his community, serving on numerous boards and commissions. His contributions to the Lycoming County Planning Commission, Lycoming County Board of View, and Loyalsock Township Zoning Board showcased his commitment to local development and his desire to see his community thrive. His love for his alma mater was evident through his service on the Lycoming College Board of Trustees, and he also lent his expertise to the Ross Club, Central Oak Heights, a place near and dear to his heart, Williamsport Rotary Club, Blooming Grove Historical Society, Eureka Lodge 335 F.&A.M., and the Scottish Rite Valley of Williamsport, where he was honored as a 33rd degree Mason. Charlie's commitment to his community was unwavering. As a member Emeritus of the Salvation Army Williamsport Board of Directors and Advisory member of the American Rescue Workers, he played an instrumental role in establishing thrift store shops and locations, ensuring those less fortunate had access to essential goods and services. He was the recipient of numerous community honors and service awards, a reflection of his generous spirit and dedication to the well-being of others.

An active member of Pine Street United Methodist Church, Charlie's faith was the cornerstone of his existence. In addition to the various roles he served at Pine Street, he also served in many different capacities for the United Methodist Conference. Charlie lived his beliefs through every action and interaction, from the way he conducted himself in business to his volunteer work. Charlie's interests were as diverse as his contributions to the community. He enjoyed golfing, boating, and spending time with friends at the Laurel Lodge Hunting Club. He had an innate ability to make everyone he met feel valued and important. His warm smile and kind words were a soothing presence that will be missed by many.

Charlie leaves behind his wife of 70 years, Shirley A. (Solomon) Springman, the love of his life and steadfast companion. Charlie's love for Shirley was the kind of love that inspired all who were fortunate enough to witness it. He is also survived by two sisters, Virginia Springman and Eleanor Mutchler, both of Cogan Station and three nieces whom he cherished, Sharon Taylor (Paul), Barbara Willier (Bruce), and Jane Zarker (Doug), as well as six great-nieces and nephews.

A funeral service to honor the life of Charlie will be held 10:30 a.m. Thursday, December 7 at Pine Street Church, 441 Pine St. Williamsport. Burial will follow in Twin Hills Memorial Park, Muncy. A viewing will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 6 at Sanders Mortuary, 821 Diamond Street. Always a Yankees fan, John had a life-long love of baseball. In 1942, he volunteered for the Armed Forces and was assigned to an aerial gunnery unit at Tyndall Field, Florida where he was preparing to train other gunners. Unfortunately, Roy suffered a heart attack in 1943 and John was honorably discharged to return to the family farm.

Helen Louise⁸ Roeschlein (Jacob Frederick⁷, Christiane Margaretha⁶ Stierle, Eva Barbara⁵ Stolle, Christina Barbara⁴ Renz, Christina Barbara³ Curfess, Johann Jakob² Kurfess, Jakob¹ Curfess) was born 23 Feb 1929 in Brazil, Clay Co, Indiana, and died 03 Dec 2020. She married Dr. Max Norman Hoffman 09 Jun 1948 in Indiana. He was born 01 Nov 1925 in Center Point, Clay Co, Indiana, and died 21 Apr 2020 in Huntsville, Madison Co, Alabama.

Notes for Dr. Max Norman Hoffman:

Max Norman Hoffman, MD, died Tuesday, April 21 at his retirement home in Huntsville, Alabama. He died of congestive heart failure with complications from pneumonia. He was 94. Max was born November 1, 1925 in Clay County, Indiana, to Leonard and Dixie Hoffman. He was the youngest of three sons. They grew up on the family farm 2 miles south of Cory, Indiana. Max graduated from Cory High School as valedictorian in 1943. When Max turned 18, his older brothers were serving in World War II. As the youngest son, he had an automatic farm deferment. In today's terms, he was an "essential worker" at home. But out of a sense of duty, and against his father's wishes, Max enlisted in the Navy. He served the last 2 years of the war in the South Pacific on the USS Skagit (AKA-105). He piloted a 50-foot Higgins landing craft, an accomplishment of which he was proud his entire life. The Skagit was the first US ship to enter Tokyo Bay after the Japanese surrender and was the fifth ship down from the USS Missouri when the formal surrender document was signed by the US and Japan on September 2, 1945.

When his military service ended in 1946, Max returned to Clay County. One day at a church ice cream social he met Helen Roeschlein. He asked Helen if he could take her home, and her father said yes. Max and Helen were married on June 10, 1948. Using the GI Bill, and with Helen working to support them, he graduated from Indiana Central College (now University of Indianapolis) in 1950 and Indiana University School of Medicine in 1954. He and Helen moved to Springfield, Ohio, where Max completed his internship at City Hospital. One year later in June 1955 Max moved his small family to Covington, Indiana, and began his life's work as a small-town doctor. His first office was above the Ben Franklin 5 & 10 cent store. In 1959 he built a small cement block and brick office at 416 Union Street next to the granary and down the street from the town jail. Doc Hoffman was a general practitioner. He did everything: delivered babies, performed surgeries, and made house calls - sometimes with the help of the town's snowplow - and saw thousands of patients in the little brick office on Union Street. Among his many professional affiliations, he was active in the Fountain-Warren County Medical Society and Board of Public Health, the Indiana State Medical Association and the American Medical Association. He was Chief of Staff at both Lakeview and St. Elizabeth Hospitals in nearby Danville, Illinois. Max was an avid traveler, fisherman, mushroom hunter, and gardener. He loved spending time with his family, playing golf with his friends, Covington High School sports, the Chicago White Sox, and any good outdoor project.

Max loved Covington and his contributions are too numerous to list. He was particularly committed to creating opportunities for Covington kids. He helped create the Citizens' Scholarship Foundation, the Trojan Athletic Complex and the Western Indiana Community Foundation. He and Helen established the Hoffman-Aesculapian Scholarship and Hoffman-Trojan Scholarship for graduates of Covington High School. Max served on the Fountain Trust Company Board of Directors for over 50 years. He and Helen were lifelong members of Bethel Lutheran Church in Danville. In 1985 Indiana Governor Evan Bayh named Max a Sagamore of the Wabash, an award reserved for Indiana residents who have rendered distinguished service to the state. Max retired from general practice in 1993 after 38 years. He and Helen stayed in Covington until 2013 when they left their home of 58 years and moved to Huntsville, Alabama, to live near their daughter and her family. Two years later when he turned 90, a Facebook post marking the occasion resulted in over 100 cards and 164 Facebook messages from former patients and friends. By then he had been retired for 22 years.

He was preceded in death by his parents and his brothers. Max is survived by his wife of 71 years and 316 days, Helen; his daughter Gail Hoffman Perna (Sam) and son Mark Hoffman; grandchildren Spencer Williams (Jennifer), Laura Williams Jossey and Hannah Hoffman; three great-grandchildren, Ella Jossey, Stark and Minette Lee Williams; sister-in-law Dorothy Hoffman, and 7 nieces.

Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, final arrangements were delayed for months. The funeral was held on July 11, 2020, at St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Huntsville. Max will rest in peace in the church columbarium until it is safe for his family to take him home to Indiana. He will ultimately be laid to rest in Covington's Mount Hope Cemetery.

Seattle Times Oct 26, 2003:

John Thompson Laucks - Departed this world for a greater adventure Thursday, October 2, 2003 in Aspen, Colorado. Born in Seattle on February 10, 1922 to Helen Viola and Irving F. Laucks. John lived an amazing and adventure filled life which was fueled by his zest for living and a fearless spirit. He graduated from Lakeside School in 1939, and attended the University of Washington as a chemistry student. He left his studies to enlist in the U.S. Army Transportation Corps during WWII, and became a respected commanding officer of ocean going tugboats in the Philippines, his military career culminating in command of the liberty ship, SS Paul Buck. Upon his return to civilian life, he worked for his father at Lauck's Testing Laboratories. John subsequently established a separate entity in Redmond, Laucks Labs, which focused on a new technology involving moisture detection in lumber. A savvy businessman, he brought his product to the European market, securing worldwide demand for the Laucks Sentry system. John spent the latter half of his life in early retirement and travelled extensively. He was a passionate pilot and yachtsman who explored the world in several different aircraft and vessels. Two favorite ships were Serenade and Nomada del Mar, the latter serving as home to John and his son Mark on voyages to Canada, the west coast of the U.S., Mexico, Central America, and the Carribean. Following a port-of-call in Costa Rica, John settled in for an extended stay, and later met his beautiful wife of the last 20 years, Ana Lorena Gomez. They established homes in San Jose and Puntarenas, and enjoyed summers in the Roaring Fork Valley in Colorado.

John also had a deep compassion for animals, and over the years owned several beloved horses, dogs, cats, and a childhood pet crow, Blackie. He loved the outdoors and spent his last Sunday trout fishing. John was a voracious reader and lively story teller, fascinating family and friends with tales of his adventurous life. A creative cook, he was able to make a gourmet meal from whatever was on hand, at sea or on land. John had an artistic bent and enjoyed oil painting, singing and playing piano. In addition, he was a talented architect, designing several of the homes in which he lived. John is survived by his wife Lorena of Costa Rica, stepmother, Eulah Laucks of Bellevue, sisters Helen Cool of Colorado, Mary Laucks and spouse Brian of Bellevue, daughters Randi Dalglish and spouse Rob of New York, Kim Kensok and spouse Steve of Spokane, son Mark Laucks and partner Paula of Seattle, stepsons Charles Holm and spouse Jeri of Victoria, British Columbia, Canada, Jeroen Dikkenman of Costa Rica, stepdaughter Manon Dikkenman of Miami, grandchildren Adam, Lucas, Hayley, Saila, Gabriel and Nora, and three beloved great grandchildren. June 13, 1954 - After a honeymoon in Virginia, James I. Lau and his bride, the former Vivien Mae Exler, returned to the Tire Town to reside at 503 Dayton Street. Their marriage ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. George C. Wagner in St. John Lutheran Church. For her wedding, the bride selected a floor-length gown of white lace fashioned with full train. Tiny seed pearls and sequins adorned the scooped neckline of her fitted bodice. The jewel pattern was again repeated on her Dutch cap of lace, which held a fingertip veil. An orchid surrounded by white carnations made up the bridal bouquet.

Miss Gloria Exler of Chicago served as her cousin's maid of honor. Her yellow gown of net over taffeta was matched by a carnation bouquet. Wearing dresses of orchid and pale green tulle were bridesmaids, Mrs. Norman J. Muth of Rantoul, Illinois, and Miss Jackie Frampton. Dan A. Notes for Carl Lee Exler:

Jan. 15, 1975, Springfield Twp. – A car-pole accident Tuesday night caused a power outage and the dismantling of part of the roof of a Massillon Road home. Summit County Sheriff's deputies said a car driven by Ervin Fausknight, 8675 State Street NE, Louisville, hit the pole at about 10 p.m. Sas the pole fell, wires connected to it pulled a 3-ny-2-foot section from the eave at the home of Carl L. Exler, 2661 Massillon Road.

Exler described the damage as minor, but grouched, "We're still without power. Our furnace isn't even working." Ohio Edison crews were working at the Exler home. Other homes that lost power after the pole fell had service restored within an hour. Fausknight was cited for failure to keep an assured clear distance.

He married Nancy Jane Bertelson 25 Dec 1947 in Hennepin Co, Minnesota. She was born 15 Jan 1925 in Polk Co, Minnesota, and died 13 Jun 2009.

Notes for Robert Thomas Brodt:

Three masked bandits forced their way into a northeast Phoenix residence at gunpoint last night, August 13, 1972, tied up seven persons and took an undetermined amount of jewelry and more than $300 in cash before fleeing in on foot, Phoenix police said. The victims were members of the Robert T. Brodt family of 5435 E. Aradia Lane. Brodt is the owner of Payless Discount Nursery Co. Early today detectives and uniformed patrol officers were still searching the neighborhood for the intruders. A member of the family gave The Arizona Republic the following account of the robbery: Shortly after 10 p.m., Vincent R. Brodt 58, brother of Robert Brodt, left the home by a side door to return to his home at 6801 E. Camelback. As he left the house the three masked robbers, who had been hiding just outside the door confronted him with drawn guns and forced him back into his brother's residence. The bandit then tied up Vincent Brodt Robert and five other family members.

Six of the family members had just returned to Phoenix from a South Pacific vacation, and Vincent Brodt had picked them up at Sky Harbor International Airport at about 7:30 p.m. last night. As the bandits forced Vincent Brodt into the home Thomas Brodt, 22, son of Robert Brodt heard the conversation through an open window and fled out the back of his home to the house of a neighbor R.B. Cravens 5439 E. Arcadia Lane and telephoned police. Partly because police officers could not immediately find the secluded neighborhood where the Brodt's lived, the bandits had a full half-hour in which to ransack the premises for what a bandit said were "bags of money" from Brodt's business. Detectives at the scene would not say exactly how much money the bandits took. No one was injured, although the robbers made seven Brodt family members lie on the family-room floor where they were tied securely with their hands and feet behind their bodies.

2028. Russell Fred⁸ Howe (Clara Louise⁷ Kebler, Louisa Catherine (Carrie or Eliza)⁶ Richards, Simon Friedrich (Richards)⁵ Reichardt, Anna Katharina⁴ Renz, Christina Barbara³ Curfess, Johann Jakob² Kurfess, Jakob¹ Curfess) was born 13 Nov 1910 in Eagle Twp, Clinton Co, Michigan, and died 09 Dec 1976 in Lansing, Ingham Co, Michigan. He married Belva Hazel Robinson 24 Dec 1941 in St. Johns, Clinton Co, Michigan, daughter of Fred Robinson and E. ?. She was born 13 Oct 1915 in Clinton Co, Michigan, and died 23 May 2002 in Eagle Twp, Clinton Co, Michigan.

Notes for Russell Fred Howe:

In this period in history when easy mobility has scattered families over the entire country, there are some residents who have lived their whole lives within a short distance of where they were born, and near the homesteads of their ancestors.

When Russell Howe died in December of 1976, he had lived his entire life in Eagle Township. He was well-known throughout the area as the owner and operator of the Howe Turkey Farm. Russell had started raising a few turkeys while he was still at home with his parents, Lon and Clara Kebler Howe. After his marriage in 1941 to Belva Robinson, they continued raising turkeys. They also did general farming on their farm on State Road. Eventually, the turkey project grew to the point where they had their own dressing plant and freezer. They sold turkeys to stores and to retail customers for many miles around. At one time they marketed about twenty thousand turkeys.

Russell served for many years on the Board of Directors of the Michigan Turkey Growers Association and at one time was president of the organization. The Howes entered turkeys at the annual Turkey Festival, which was held in various localities throughout Michigan. They carried off many trophies during the 1940's and 1950's for the excellence of their product.

Many people were involved in the turkey production on the Howe Farm. In the early days Russell's father, Lon and his brother, Byron and Marvin, shared tools and labor on all four of the Howe farms. Byron and his wife, Leonore Simon Howe, owned and operated a farm on Howe Road. Byron also worked as a carpenter. Marvin and his wife, Mary Lapham Howe, had a dairy farm on Niles Road.

As the turkey business grew, it was necessary to enlist the help of many others. Vernon (Vern) and Mildred Robinson Bendt, a brother-in-law and sister of Belva, worked closely with the Howes during all of this time. Neal Kebler, Russell's cousin, worked with them for a time. Neighbors from all of the surrounding community came at holiday time to help dress turkeys.

The five Howe daughters grew up in the business; and as they became old enough to enter their own turkeys into competition they, too, won prizes, trophies, and scholarships with their turkey projects.

Russell was also known for his community involvement. He served as Eagle Township Supervisor and also held other township offices. He was active in Farm Bureau and was a 4-H leadurkey Farm. He was director of the rural Kebler School before it was annexed to the Grand Ledge District.

Two of the Howe daughters still live on the former Howe Turkey Farm. Lois and her husband, Roger Burghdoff, and their daughter Dana have purchased a large part of the parcel on the north side of State Road. They have built a home there and commute to Lansing, where Roger works at Oldsmobile and Lois is a nursing supervisor at Health Central.

Irene and her husband, Paul Herrera, and their daughter Lindsay live in the farm house and commute to Lansing where Irene works for the State Department of Education and Paul works for Hatzel and Buehler Electric. The Herrera's have purchased the farm on the south side of State Road except for a small lot where Belva lives side-by-side with Vern and Mildred Bendt. Vern commutes to his work at the Brown Corporation in Ionia.

The other Howe girls live farther away. Alice and her husband, Carl Kratochwill, and their children Erik and Hillarie live in Mason. Marguerite and her husband, Bert Levy, and their children Aaron and Shayna are in Louisville, Kentucky. Beverly and her husband, Kevin Anderson, and their daughter Lacey Marie live in Middlebury, Indiana.

Russell's father, Lon Howe, was one of the four children of Fred and Dana Howe. The others were Alta, who was married to Nathan Kebler, the brother of Lon's wife Clara; Bert, who was married to Ethlyn McCrumb; and Myrtie, who married Will Kebler, the uncle of Nathan and Clara. Bert is still alive and active. Ita's sons Robert and Howard and their children.

The descendants of Fred and Dana Howe who are still living in Eagle Township, in addition to Russell's children and grandchildren and his brothers, Byron and Marvin, are Alta's sons Robert and Howard and their children Belva Robinson Howe.

Marriage Notes for Howard Kebler and Donna Howe:

A holiday touch was given to the marriage of Miss Donna Jane Howe and Howard Kebler Saturday evening December 18, 1954 by the red and green in the attendants' ensembles and the white poinsettias on the altar. Their vows were spoken by candlelight in Immanuel Lutheran church. Grand Ledge, and a reception followed in the American Legion Hall at Portland. Christmas red was used in the carnations carried by the maid of honor, Miss Cecelia Ruess of South Bend, Indiana, and by the bridesmaid, Miss Donna Jean Adams of Lansing. It contrasted with their ballerina dresses of green satin and ruffled nylon net fashioned with bolero jacket.

The bride's bouquet of green-tinted white pompom and red roses carried out the same color scheme. Her gown was of Ivory satin shimmering through dainty lace, and her veil was gathered in a pillbox and trimmed with seed pearls. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed G. Howe of R.1, Grand Ledge. Her husband is the son of Mrs. Nathan Kebler and the late Mr. Kebler of Eagle.

Lynn Volle of Eagle was best man. Ushers were Robert and Neal Kebler, brother of the bridegroom, and Ronald Hazen of Eagle. Deborah Howe and Gary Kebler, niece and nephew of the couple were flower girl and ring bearer. The newlyweds are now on a three-week honeymoon to California.
