Don was also proud to be involved with the Saline Community Fair, serving on the fair board since 1973. He was extremely proud to help establish tractor pulling at the Saline Fair. Most recently, you would see Don in the livestock barn or near the show arena watching all of his grandchildren showing their animals. Don had a quick wit and some interesting little sayings that he shared with his children and grandchildren. He had a way to make you smile and add humor to situations unless it involved playing euchre. Don loved to play cards and it was never a true gathering unless some games were played. And don't forget the homemade wine. Don loved to make and especially share wine. For family and friends who were lucky enough to participate, the annual wine making was an event to be remembered. However, his greatest treasure and accomplishments were his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

A celebration of Don's life will take place at a future date. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions in his name can be made to St. John's Lutheran Church, PO Box 13, Bridgewater, Michigan 48115.

At an impressive candle light service Miss Nancy A. Wenk and David V. Zick were united in marriage at 7:30 Saturday evening, Sept. 28, 1957, at the Salem Evangelical Lutheran Church. The Rev. A. G. Wenk performed the double ring ceremony before the altar on which were bouquets of white flowers. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar E. Wenk, 835G Waters Rd., and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Zick, 10870 Burmeister Rd., The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of rose-point lace and nylon tulle over slipper satin, made with a fitted bodice and Sabrina neck line and long sleeves pointed at the wrists. The full skirt was floor length. The fingertip veil fell from a lace cap trimmed with pearls and sequins, and her cascade bouquet was white mums with stephanotis and ivy.

The matron of honor was her cousin, Mrs. George Brassow, Jr., Saline, who wore a ballerina length gown of emerald green lace over taffeta, with a velvet cumberbund. She wore a matching head band and her flowers were white, yellow and bronze mums with ivy. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Norman Lambarth, Saline, and Mrs. Albert Ahrens, Clinton, the latter a cousin of the bride. Their gowns and flowers were like those of the matron of honor. The best man was a friend, Frederick Stollsteimer, Saline, and the ushers were Tracy Zick, cousin of the groom, and Richard Wenk, the bride's brother. The flower girl was Kathie Gensley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gensley, who wore a pink nylon dress and carried a basket of pink and white flowers. Barry Heimerdinger, Clinton, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer. Mrs. Norwin Lesser, Dexter, the bride's cousin, sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Twenty Third Psalm", the organist being Mrs. Frey.

After a reception held at the Parish Hall, the couple left for a trip in northern Michigan. For traveling, the bride wore a two piece blue dress with black accessories. They will reside at 206 South Ann Arbor St., Saline. Mrs. Zick graduated from the Ann Arbor High School and is employed in the office of the Bell Telephone Co., Ann Arbor. Notes for Donna Marie Rutkowski:

Donna Marie Fehrle (formerly Rutkowski) of Dexter, Michigan, passed away from liver disease Tuesday March 31, 2020 at her home. Born June 19, 1965. She was 54. Donna graduated from Dexter High School and in 1999 earned a B.A. from Eastern Michigan University in geology, communication and marketing. Her career was incredibly varied. Donna's fondness for the outdoors inspired her to work as a ski instructor, lifeguard, and wildlife photographer. Her farm roots led her to jobs with a dairy farm and cattle breeding operation. Her outgoing personality made her very successful as a door-to-door encyclopedia saleswoman, earning her trips to Brazil, Hawaii, and other destinations. But it was her abounding love of children that led to her most rewarding pursuits: She was a nanny, daycare provider, St. Paul Lutheran School food service manager, and mother to a beautiful daughter. Among Donna's hobbies were cooking, quilting, gardening, photography, and travel – she was proud to have visited 45 of the 50 states. An FFA member and longtime 4-H club leader, she spent her life caring for animals, including show horses, ponies, chickens, pigs, cattle, cats and dogs. In 2002, Donna married Tim Fehrle – whom she called, to the end, "the best thing that ever happened to me" – in three separate ceremonies to accommodate their many friends and family members. The couple was active with Ann Arbor's German Park Recreation Club, St. Joseph Catholic Parish of Dexter, and St. Paul Lutheran Church & School of Ann Arbor.

Donna was preceded in death by her father, who passed away just months after her birth; her best friend, Angie Radke, in 2010; and her beloved nephew Kord, in 2018. She is survived by her 94-year-old mother, Theresa Rutkowski; husband, Tim; daughter, Truly; two sisters, Danette Rutkowski of North Carolina and Patti Herrmann of Colorado; a brother, Christopher Rutkowski of Utah; and many in-laws, nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.

A Catholic memorial service will be held at a later date at St. Joseph in Dexter, where Donna was baptized, confirmed, and married. In lieu of flowers, donations to her daughter's college fund would be appreciated.

Bright as summer sunshine were the yellow and white flowers which banked the altar of the First Methodist Church for the late Saturday afternoon wedding June 16, 1962 of Miss Dorothy Ruth Niethammer to Lowell Richard Smith. The Rev. Lawrence J. Linnemann officiated at the ceremony which united the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Woodward A. Niethammer and the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Dolton Smith.

Immediately preceding the ceremony, and while Dr. Niethammer escorted his daughter along the ribbon-and-iris-marked aisle, Dr. E. Byard Fritts, organist, accompanied Dr. Bruce Rodgers, soloist, who sang the wedding songs. The pretty bride wore a gown of traditional satin which she designed and made herself. The imparted ivory-colored delustrated satin was diagonally intertucked to release full unpressed pleats which formed the elegant sweeping skirt and chapel length train. The princess-styled bodice had long sleeves and was appliqued in pearl embroidered peau d'ange lace. A satin cap held a mantilla of peau d'ange lace and a blush veil of bridal illusion to her hair. She carried a handkerchief which the bridegroom's mother carried at her own wedding in 1903. Her bridal bouquet was fashioned of white stephanotis and roses.

They wore gowns of maize colored silk organza over taffeta fashioned with cap sleeves, semi-Sabrina necklines and full skirts accented at the waistline with silk roses. Ivory-colored accessories and bouquets of yellow roses backed with yellow satin leaves completed their attire. Catherine M. Hamilton, niece of the bride, in a bouffant frock of white organdy over a yellow floral print, was the flower girl. She carried a bouquet of tiny yellow tea roses. Kevin L. Hilton, nephew of the bride, was the ring bearer for the double-ring ceremony. Stephen P. Smith was his brother's best man, and Woodard A. Niethammer Jr., brother of the bride. Robert I. MacGregor of Seattle, Richard F. Armstrong of Salem, Oregon, Alan D. McLeod, David L. Scott and Theodore E. Reynolds Jr., of Corvallis, Oregon, were ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Niethammer chose a gown of Wedgewood blue silk with which she wore white accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Smith wore a gown of imported chiffon in tones of brown accented with a brown satin belt, cocoa brown accessories and a green orchid corsage.

Notes for Karl Kurt Klipfel:

Karl Kurt Klipfel was born March 3, 1933, in Toledo, Ohio. This first-generation American lost his father when he was a child, and his mother raised Karl and his big brother into the highly achieving and wonderful men they were. Karl achieved a Bachelor of Engineering degree from the University of Michigan in 1955. He was Phi Delta Theta President and busboy at the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority across the street, where they called him "Cute Karl".

Karl married Shirley Ginebaugh on June 25, 1960 not long after they met on a blind date. He loved his bride of 52 years "as much as the ocean and as high as the sky." The loss of his son in 1997 had a profound effect on the whole family, but Karl steadfastly maintained his relationship with Bill's boys David and Doug, their mother and their step-dad. Karl was a proud grandfather of four. His youngest grandson Billy described his grandfather as "nice, great, and funny".

Karl tried to retire after a successful career in mainframe computer marketing at IBM and Amdahl, but found himself keeping busy with a variety of jobs. Grooming the grounds at Orchard Lake Country Club and Birmingham Country Club afforded him the chance to hit the links himself when the clubs were closed. Most recently Karl formed Wolverine Legal Services. Finding adventure in everything he did, Karl loved to travel and took his family on wonderful trips to fun locations including Walt Disney World, Boyne and a cross-country motor home trip. Karl took Shirley on many wonderful trips including Jamaica and cruises in the Baltic Sea and Alaska. He was particularly fond of London and Anna Maria Island, Florida. Karl was a lifetime learner and voracious reader. He loved the game of golf and anything related to the University of Michigan. Open-minded and respectful of differing opinions, he read both the Wall Street Journal and The New Yorker. Karl enjoyed masterfully creative entertaining. He was a past board member at Forest Lake Country Club and participated on many committees at the First United Methodist Church of Birmingham.

We will always remember favorite quotes from Karl, including:

- Super Fantastic!
- Why can't it be Christmas twelve months of the year?
- Hard work and product knowledge
- Love one another!

- Imagination is more important than knowledge
- WGCS (World's Greatest Computer Salesman)
- Ice cream and tootsie rolls cure everything

Karl maintained his humor, positive attitude and strong faith throughout his cancer battle. We are pleased to know that he is now celebrating comfortably in heaven with his son, brother and other family and friends whom he missed so dearly here on earth. Go Blue!

Karl is survived by his beloved wife of 52 years, Shirley and children, Rebecca Klipfel and Katie (Don) Kirkpatrick. He is also survived by his grandchildren, David, Douglas, Julia, and William, and many nieces, nephews, and friends. Karl is preceded in death by his son, William (Donna Klipfel-Tuka) Klipfel, and brother, Ernest Klipfel.

She was born 03 Aug 1904 in Battle Creek, Calhoun Co, Michigan, and died 22 Apr 1996 in Santa Cruz, Santa Cruz Co, California.

Notes for Carleton Grey Genebach:

St. Thomas Episcopal Church was filled yesterday afternoon with old friends and associates gathered in final tribute to Carleton G. Genebach, executive vice president of the United Steel & Wire Co. The Anglican service was conducted by the Rev. William A. Simms, rector, and burial was made at Memorial Park. Mr. Genebach died unexpectedly early Wednesday morning August 22, 1956 at his home, 265 E. Hamilton Lane, after 40 years as an employee and executive in the company. Offices and plants of the company were closed and employees from all segments of the firm joined with representatives of industry, banking, business and the professions in mourning the passing of a friend. Although the family had suggested memorial contributions to the Michigan Heart Fund, which can be made through the Battle Creek Community Chest, floral tributes were received at the Shaw Funeral Home in greater profusion than experienced in recent years. At the church, flowers were arranged with simplicity, with baskets of white and red flowers at either end of the bier and groupings of red roses on the altar. The wealth of flowers permitted a generous distribution to the city's hospitals, the American Legion and Veterans hospitals and to local nursing home.

As the funeral party left the church the casket was draped with the American flag by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, of which Mr. Genebach was a member. At the graveside the flag was folded by Alton C.

Britton and Ralph H. Lemm and presented to Mrs. Genebach. Following the services more than 50 out-of-town friends were received at the Genebach home for a buffet luncheon. In addition to those previously mentioned, relatives and friends; who were here from other communities included: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Simons Jr. of St. Joseph; Charles Wiselogle, Lafayette, Indiana; Wayne Husband, Kokomo, Indiana; Edward Feist, Kalamazoo and Keith and Welton Mayette of Jackson.

Lowell Burke¹² Genebach (George Jacob¹¹, Carl Friedrich (Charles)¹⁰ Gengenbach, Johann Jakob⁹, Christina Katharina⁸ Jedele, Michael⁷, Johannes⁶ Jedelin, Johannes⁵, Martin⁴, Martin³, Hans², Jakob¹) was born 13 Oct 1898 in Jackson, Jackson Co, Michigan, and died 08 Sep 1978 in Battle Creek, Calhoun Co, Michigan. He married Mildred Tobey 28 Jun 1922 in Michigan, daughter of Winifred A. Tobey. She was born 30 Jun 1902 in Michigan, and died 09 Feb 1986 in Fairfax, Virginia.

Notes for Lowell Burke Genebach:

In 1917 Lowell Genebach started 1 game at quarterback and another at right halfback for the University of Michigan football team. He was also on the 1918 University of Michigan football team that won the National Championship. He played on the 1920 University of Michigan baseball team and was a catcher.

Services for Lowell B. Genebach, the prominent civic leader and churchman who died Friday Sept. 8, 1978, will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in St. Thomas Episcopal Church. The Rev. Charles P. James, rector, who will officiate at the Requiem Celebration of the Holy Communion, said Friday that Genebach was "a man devoted to the service of the community, but also to the service of people." "I think that all of that grew out of his love and devotion for the Lord.

Genebach, 79, of 225 W. Columbia Ave., had served on the St. Thomas Church vestry for 30 years and had been the recipient of several church awards, including the Bishop's Cross. In March, he was named outstanding churchman. But James said: "He wasn't just a Sunday worshipper. He really put his shoulder to the wheel in religious matters." Battle Creek Mayor Frederick R. Brydges, who spoke of Genebach's "deep interest and abiding faith in the religion of his church," recalled his association with Genebach on several civic ventures, including the Military Affairs Committee of the Battle Creek Area Chamber of Commerce of which Genebach was chairman. "I did appreciate the model of hospitality and warm friendship that were such a cardinal part of the man's character," Brydges said.

U.S. Rep. Garry Brown, R-Schoolcraft, also cited Genebach's association with the military. "Where there were things to be done, such as planning an Armed Services Day luncheon or other events relating to the military presence in Battle Creek, Genebach was always one you could depend on. He was a doer not a talker," Brown said. He also credited Genebach for helping to build Battle Creek's reputation as "a good assignment for the military due to the arm of friendship and hospitality extended by those such as Lowell." Brown said, "Lowell was a very sincere, warm and extremely loyal gentleman never one to be ostentatious and often kept the things he did in the background." Kermit Krum, who had been active with Genebach in chamber of commerce activities for many years, called him "a great guy who extended the friendship of himself and the community to those who move around a lot (the military) in government circles." Genebach was given an Enquirer and News George Award in 1965 for his efforts on behalf of the Military Affairs Committee. An active patron of the arts in Battle Creek, he was eulogized as "a loyal and fine (Battle Creek Community Concert Association) board member" by Mrs. Lawrence G. Fell, herself a patron of the arts and longtime president of the association. "It seems like he was always on the (Community Concert) board and most of us remember him for his interest in opera," she said. Funeral arrangements are in charge of Shaw Funeral Home. Visitation for Genebach will start Sunday. "I did appreciate the model of hospitality and warm friendship that were such a cardinal part of the man's character," Brydges said.

Notes for Mildred Tobey:

May 6, 1956 - When Mildred Genebach plays Judith Bliss, the actress, in Noel Coward's "Hay Fever" for the Battle Creek Civic group this month, she will be doing a role for which she tried out 23 years ago. She didn't get the part then, as she was deemed not efficiently mature, and it was taken by Mary Redner, who was herself not too mature. But Mrs. Genebach has played many stellar roles since 1933. Included in Mrs. Genebach's appearances are two versions of Vinnie, wife of Clarence Day, one in "Life with Father" and the other in "Life With Mother". In the father one, William Smith was her husband and in the other, Gerhard Lindemulder. When she had the Tallulah Bank-head role of Regina in "The Little Foxes" an unusual incident happened. Linwood Brown, who was playing Ben, was called away by illness, and Mr. Lindemulder stepped into the cast at 6 p.m., playing the role after one rehearsal.

Mrs. Genebach set a new record in 1935-37. She won the Moon - Journal "best player" award for three consecutive seasons - for Eustacia in "Dover Road", for Mrs. Phelps in "The Silver Chord" and for Lady Chaney in "The Circle". The winner was decided by a committee of three each time. In "Strange Bedfellows" Mrs. Genebach played Julie, the grandmother, and in "You Can't Take It With You" she was Penny, the amateur authoress. Back in the Pagan days she appeared in various one-act plays, including "The Artist", which she and Al Beller presented after only two days of rehearsal. Mrs. Genebach always had a yen for acting, which began when she was 10 years old. But her mother wanted her to be a pianist, so she studied with Wilhelmina Smith and laid a good foundation. Though born in Kalamazoo, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Tobey, she was graduated from Battle Creek High School. Later she studied at Rockford College in Illinois.

Dramatics seem to run in the Genebach family. This afternoon the daughter, Jeanne (Mrs. Martin Gal in private life; Jeanne Tobey in the Guild), is appearing on TV in New York City as Sagarnio in Maurice Evans' color production of "The Cradle Song." Lowell Genebach, Jr., has just appeared with the West Point Players as Jules in "My Three Angels." When overseas, Lowell did the senator in "John Loves Mary" in Germany. Jeanne has done much professional work as a ballet dancer (in Broadway's "Oklahoma") and in dramatics. In "Hay Fever" Mrs. Genebach will appear with William Dragg of WELL as David Bliss (her stage husband), David Rogan (of New York) as Simon, Larry Collins of WBCB as Richard Greatham, the diplomat, and others. The first performance will be given May 24. "The Cradle Song" can be seen over WOOD and WJBI from 3 to 4:30 this afternoon.

Mildred (Tobey) Genebach, 83, of Reston, Virginia, retired Battle Creek businesswoman and longtime community-service leader, died Saturday Feb. 8, 1986 in a hospital in Fairfax, Virginia. She was born in Kalamazoo, moved to Battle Creek as a child, and graduated from Battle Creek Central High School. She also attended Rockford College in Illinois. From 1960 to 1975, she was president of Pilot Inc., a tow-bar and trailer-hitch manufacturer, with national distribution of its products. She was a founder in the 1930s of the group which became the Battle Creek Civic Theatre, and served as the theater's first president in 1947. For more than 40 years, she was involved in every aspect of the theater from backstage to acting, and supported the purchase of the present theater building as an important step in the revitalization of downtown Battle Creek and the Michigan Mall. She also directed the financing and staging of operettas in 1958 and 1959 with the Battle Creek Community Chorus as part of the Cereal City Festival. She was named a 1959 George Award by the Battle Creek Enquirer for community service. In 1963, she was chairman of the local United Negro College Fund fund drive. She was a life member of the Battle Creek Civic Theatre board of directors, and a member of St. Thomas Episcopal Church and its Service Guild, the Battle Creek DAR Chapter, Battle Creek Country Club, and Athelstan Club. Her husband, Lowell B. Genebach, died in 1978. He was a former president of the old United Steel & Wire Co., patron of the arts and community service leader.

Surviving are a son, Lowell B. Genebach Jr., with whom she resided in Reston since 1984; a daughter, Jean Gal of Kalamazoo; eight grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren. Services will be at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in St. Thomas Episcopal Church. Memorial donations may be made to Battle Creek Civic Theatre. Arrangements are by Shaw Funeral Home.

Marriage Notes for Lowell Genebach and Mildred Tobey:

Simple but beautiful in all of its appointments was the wedding which took place at 10 o'clock this morning June 28, 1922 in the chapel of St. Thomas Episcopal Church, when Miss Mildred L. Tobey, only daughter of Mrs. Winifred A. Tobey of 33 Guest Street, became the bride of Lowell B. Genebach, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Genebach of Garrison Avenue. The chapel was beautifully decorated for the occasion with a profusion of lilies, Yucca blossoms and daisies, tastefully arranged in tall wicker baskets. Bouquets of the blossoms further beautified the altar. At the appointed hour the wedding party entered and approached the altar to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march. Its members included the maid-of-honor, Tis Charlotte O'Brien, who wore yellow organdie; the four bridesmaids, Miss Catherine Coburn, who wore green organdie, Miss Margaret Coburn, pink; Miss Barbara Flint, blue, Miss Margaret McGee, lavender organdie. The gowns were all fashioned alike, along very simple lines, and all wore organdie hats to match their gowns, and carried bouquets of old-fashioned flowers. Little Barbara and Carolyn Veley, cousins of the bride, from Kalamazoo, in dainty frocks served as flower girls, strewing rose petals in her path. The bride was lovely in a short gown of white crepe meteor with pearl trimming, and wore a long wedding veil fastened to a bandeau of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Winifred A. Tobey, who gave her away. The groom was attended by his brother, Carleton G. Genebach. James Bryant, William Riley, Earl F. Freeman and Charles Bradley served as ushers. Sixty relatives and friends, which included guests from Kalamazoo, Detroit and Jackson, witnessed the wedding service which was read by the Rev. Wm. G. Studwell, rector of the church.

Immediately following the service at the church, the wedding party motored to the Battle Creek Country club where the breakfast was served. The tables were beautified with bouquets-of old-fashioned flowers and candles, while the mantel was banked with red rambler roses and hollyhocks. Many beautiful gifts were received by the young people. Both are graduates of the Battle Creek high school. The bride later attended Rockford college and the groom is also a graduate of the University of Michigan. He is now associated with his father and brother in the United Steel and Wire company of this city, occupying the position of sales manager. Following an extended motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Genebach will spend the summer at Goguac Lake. Many pre-nuptial parties have been given for the bride and groom, the final function being the rehearsal dinner which was given Tuesday evening at the Battle Creek Country club by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Genebach, covers being laid for 20 guests.

Two Battle Creek Georges who have been involved in a variety of volunteer services to this community are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today June 28, 1972. And Mr. and Mrs. Lowell B. Genebach of 301 Woodland Drive will be sharing the festivities and memories with more than 100 friends at a reception tonight at the Battle Creek Country Club. It's being given by their daughter, Mrs. Martin (Jean) Gal of Kalamazoo, and their son, Lowell Genebach Jr., of Reston, Virginia.

Several poster-sized enlargements of the 1922 wedding will be on display. They show the proud young manufacturer and former University of Michigan football hero with his petite and smiling red-haired bride, the former Mildred Tobey. The ceremony was at St. Thomas Episcopal Church where both are still active and the reception was at the old Battle Creek Country Club, where they still belong and he is a past president. With their wide variety of interests and friends, talk tonight could range from business to politics, theater, church, sports, the military or even the OK Corral of gun-fight fame. And on every subject, you'd find Genebach involvement.

Each received a George Award at a different time and for different contributions to the community, making them the only husband and wife to hold such honors. (The Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Ryan, the only other husband and wife Georges, received a joint award in one field.) Mrs. G. became a George in 1959 for her "steady and active interest in the Battle Creek Civic Theatre" and for successfully producing operettas in connection with the Cereal City Festival in 1958 and 1959. Her steady and active interest in theater dates back to 1932, when she was one of the organizers of a community theater group. She served five terms as president, was a long-time and now is a lifetime board member and still an ardent worker for theater. Besides being an organizer and producer for many shows, she appeared on stage, too, and was named best player 1935-37 by the former Moon Journal. Her favorite roles, however, came later in Noel Coward's "Hay Fever," as Vinnie the wife in "Life with Father," and as Regina in "The Little Foxes." She also found time in the early 1950's to serve with the Battle Creek Ground Observer Corps and was Calhoun County cochairman of the 1963 drive to help support the United Negro College Fund.

Genebach's George Award in 1966 lauded "his effort and donation of countless hours and personal funds toward making governmental and military visitors feel at home here." These activities included...planning the social itinerary for a group of NATO representatives...a similar assignment for 41 military attaches assigned here temporarily... serving as chairman and co-chairman of the government affairs committee of the Greater Battle Creek Area Chamber of Commerce and...organizing and getting started the largest Navy League Chapter in the United States. The award called him "one who never says no when asked to do something for the community," and the description was apt. For in addition to his duties as president of United Steel & Wire Co., started by his father in 1909, Genebach was active in church and civic affairs, Republican politics and on numerous ranking committees for the National Association of Manufacturers.

At St. Thomas, he served on the vestry for 30 years, 10 as a senior warden... has been superintendent of the church school for 25 years and still is...and was the first Battle Creek man to receive the Bishop's Cross, highest award given a layman by the Episcopal Church. He also has been a long-time board member of the Episcopal Diocese of Western Michigan, where he was a trustee for the Bishop Whittmore Foundation. As general chairman of the Religion in American Life (RIAL) program here in 1962, he was instrumental in starting the publishing of daily front page prayers in the Enquirer and News for several years.

Active in Republican politics for many decades, he was an early supporter of George Romney, serving as regional director of Romney's Citizens for Michigan Group and on a cabinet committee during the gubernatorial campaign. Other community activities ranged from heading a Community Chest Campaign to serving on the boards of Community Concert Association, Battle Creek Symphony, Michigan National Bank, the Battle Creek Area Development Corp. the Chamber of Commerce, Calhoun County Tax Allocation, and the United Health Welfare Fund of Michigan, while also serving as chairman of its Calhoun County group. Though Genebach is no longer connected with the company founded by his father, he is still far from retired. After selling the firm in 1959 to Debco Corp. of Chicago, a holding company, he continued as president for two years and then remained on its board of directors until "retiring" in 1964.

Meanwhile, the Genebachs in 1962 had purchased Pilot, Inc., which makes trailer hitches and tow-bar units, and keep regular office hours there. To this day, Genebach is considered to be one of U-M's biggest boosters and football fans. He played varsity quarterback and right halfback on the 1917 and 1918 football teams. His eyes twinkle as he talks about his coach, the legendary Fielding Yost, and his biggest thrill calling the plays against Cornell and piling up a 42-0 score against the then-powerful Big Reds.

After graduation, Genebach joined his father's business but continued his interest in athletics. He played semipro ball, assisted Battle Creek Central High School football coaches Tommy Thompson and Jimmy Bryant and for two years was baseball coach. Another extra-curricular activity that covered a quarter century was officiating at high school and college football and basketball games. Highlight was serving as lineman for the famous Army-Notre Dame game at Yankee Stadium in 1946, when the score was 0 to 0.

A Civil War buff and collector, Genebach also has an abiding interest in the OK Corral in Tombstone, Arizona. His father, the late George Genebach, bought the corral in 1936 to preserve it for posterity. After his father's death in 1944, Genebach gave the historical site to the City of Tombstone for a token fee and the provision that the corral would be used only as a memorial park and not be resold to a private interest for any purpose. Even with all their involvement here, the Genebachs visit the corral periodically, just to be sure it is being preserved as a bit of the past for future generations like their eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Several years ago she was instrumental in pestering the Purina Dog Food Company for so long that they eventually delivered a semi-truck full of dog food to the local PAWS group for the benefit of all the dogs in care at the time. She will be laid to rest with the ashes of Checkers, her last dog, to accompany her.

Notes for Raymond Christian Jedele:

Body found, believed to be missing North Carolina man - By LAUREN KING, The Virginian-Pilot October 10, 2007

A body believed to be that of a missing man was found Tuesday in southern Chowan County, six days after he was reported abducted from his Ahoskie yard. Donald Bradley Smithwick, 33, was reported missing Thursday about 6 a.m. by a 911 caller who said Smithwick was accosted by a man dressed in black and then taken away in his Dodge pickup... Raymond Christian Jedele, 38, of Kill Devil Hills, was charged with first-degree kidnapping and held on a $10 million bond. Smithwick's ex-wife, Janet Denise Harrell 33, of Chowan County, was subsequently charged with being an accessory to a crime after the fact and was being held on a $3 million bond. Both were being held at the Hertford County jail. Jedele, a Kitty Hawk police officer, was placed on disciplinary suspension without pay.

For the respective roles they played in the kidnapping and subsequent murder of Ahoskie resident Donald Bradley "Brad" Smithwick, Raymond Christian Jedele, 41, and Janet Denise Harrell, 36, will now sacrifice their freedom. While some feel their punishment pales in comparison to the nature of the crimes committed against Smithwick, the victim's family members appear to be content with the judgment handed down last week. The Roanoke-Chowan News-Herald has obtained a copy of the statements made by the Smithwick family prior to District 6B Resident Superior Court Judge Cy Grant Jr. handing down the prison terms for Jedele and Harrell. On Nov. 23, Jedele pled guilty to one count of first degree murder for the Oct. 4, 2007 slaying of Smithwick. Jedele, a Kill Devil Hills Police officer at the time of the murder, received a sentence of life without the possibility of parole. Jedele was facing the death penalty if a jury had found him guilty of capital murder. That trial was scheduled for early January 2011, but never made it to that point as Jedele accepted a plea arrangement. Also on Nov. 23, Harrell, Smithwick's ex-wife, pled guilty to second degree murder and received a sentence of 157 to 198 months (13 to 16 years) in the North Carolina Department of Corrections. She was facing first degree murder charges.

"After lengthy discussions with the family members of Brad Smithwick and the investigators involved in this case, I allowed the two defendants in this case to plead guilty," said local District Attorney Valerie Asbell. "This was a difficult decision that was made out of deference to the wishes and desires of the family members of Brad Smithwick. The decision to allow Raymond Jedele to receive life without parole was consistent with the family's wishes," Asbell continued. "Smithwick's family members thought that Jedele should spend the rest of his life behind bars so that each and every day he could remember what he did to their loved one. The family felt that life without parole was a more agonizing punishment than the possibility of receiving the death penalty." She added, "The decision made regarding Janet Harrell's case was difficult on all of the family members because everyone felt like she planned the entire crime; however, members of the family wanted to spare the victim's children the trauma of a trial at their tender ages and the possibility of them having to testify against their mother." Asbell noted that in making this decision, "The family, law enforcement officers and I took into account the certainty and finality of the guilty pleas as opposed to the uncertainty of a not guilty verdict based on the evidence against Janet Harrell. I was prepared to go forward with the trial of both of these cases; however, I always try to consider the family members and their wishes because they are truly the only victims left to suffer," Asbell stated. "I agreed with the family members in this case that a certain outcome outweighed the mental anguish of an extended jury trial."

During the sentencing of the defendants, both Sindi Smithwick, the wife of Brad Smithwick, and Connie Smithwick, the mother of the victim, spoke to Judge Grant about their feelings about the two defendants. Sindi Smithwick first read a letter to the Judge that was written by Samantha Smithwick, Brad Smithwick's daughter. Among other things, Samantha wrote, "It is sad that on my birthday, Christmas, or important events that my dad is not there. It's hard to go places and see other kids spend time with their father and not me.... I loved my Dad more than anything else but now I have a missing piece out of my life. Just to know that I love my dad and Janet and Ray took that away from me. Janet said she loved me, well it really showed how much she loved me with her actions." After reading Samantha's letter, Sindi made a lengthy statement to the court about her marriage to Brad and also read a letter written by her earlier. Mrs. Smithwick stated, "This man you see in front of you (Jedele), the one that took an oath to serve and protect, was too weak-minded to see through the lies and deceit that caused him to commit such an unthinkable crime. I feel sorry for him. I feel sorry for him because he not only took a life, but is giving up his life based on a lie." On Janet Harrell, Sindi Smithwick stated, "She had a dark side and a double life that would horrify anyone and that life was exposed as a result of the recent custody battle (over parental rights to two children) that she lost. The sad thing is that Brad knew far too well the truth about her but no one wanted to listen until after his death. Even now, this man beside her (Jedele) is still oblivious to her true self." "My children will only know what a great man their father was because of the life he lived and gave for them," she continued. "They will grow up having to live with the fact that the woman that gave birth to them took the life of their father, and all because he refused to give up the fight to get his kids into a stable home."

In her statement to the court, Connie Smithwick stated, "The instant that trigger was pulled and Brad's life here ended, he was standing with his father in heaven. The act they (Jedele and Harrell) did was very selfish, hateful and evil.... I pray you both think of Brad every day, I hope you have the picture burned in your memories of the last breath he took. I know someday I will have to try and forgive you for taking my son's life. I will have to answer to God for my decision, and you both will have to answer to God for the decision you made on October 4, 2007." Before sentencing Harrell, Judge Grant told the Smithwick family how sorry he was for the loss of their loved one. Judge Grant also commented on the plea taken in regards to Harrell's case by stating to the family that Asbell did a fantastic job and it was an appropriate sentence based on the evidence. "May God continue to bless this family and give them strength in the upcoming months to learn how to live with this senseless and horrible act of violence," Asbell concluded.

Brad Smithwick, 33 at the time of his death, was abducted from the driveway in front of his home. His body was found two days later in Chowan County. An autopsy revealed he had been fatally shot in the head on the day of his abduction. Jedele was arrested later on the day of the abduction and charged with kidnapping. That charge was changed to murder upon the discovery of Smithwick's body. Harrell became a suspect in her ex-husband's slaying after law enforcement officials learned that Brad Smithwick had been awarded custody of his and Harrell's two children a day before his abduction.

Still in serious condition at University Hospital is John G. Bihlmeyer, 27, of 7926 Schneider Rd., who was rushed to the hospital in the Superior Ambulance Co. helicopter, Thursday Feb. 6, 1969, after ahead on auto crash. His wife, Sandra, also 27, was also injured in the mishap, and is reported in good condition at the hospital. The driver of the second car, Gary G. Paxton, 22, of Manchester, was released from the hospital on Friday. Exact cause of the accident was not known. Sheriff's deputies said Paxton's car, east bound on Austin Rd. near Parker Rd., apparently veered across the center line and struck the Bihlmeyer car head-on. Because of the severity of Bihlmeyer's injuries, deputies feared that ambulance transfer to the hospital might take too long; they called for the helicopter which is stationed in Wayne County. It arrived at the accident scene within a few minutes. Mrs. Bihlmeyer and Paxton were transported by ambulance.

Notes for Harold P. (Zeke) Zilka:

Ballston Spa - Harold P. (Zeke) Zilka, born Nov. 21, 1938, the son of Frank S. and Mary Zilka (deceased), passed away Monday, Jan. 7, 2013. He was the beloved father of his sons, Frank S. Zilka II and his wife, Suzanne, and grandchildren, Katie, Andrew and Jon; and Timothy R. Zilka. Zeke enjoyed a close relationship with his in-laws, the Mann family of Queensbury. He was predeceased by his wife, Jane Widmayer Flynn, and survived by his stepdaughter, Christine Flynn Curran and her husband, Dr. Joshua Curran.

Zeke graduated in 1956 from Johnstown High School, where he lettered in five sports per year. Prior to high school graduation, he was offered a scholarship to the University of Buffalo for football but chose to attend RIT for baseball and engineering and graduated with a degree in mechanical engineering. As a starter at RIT in baseball, he drew the attention of major league scouts and received no less than seven opportunities in professional baseball.

In 1960, he married Olivette Bunner Williams, his lifelong friend and the mother of their two sons, Frank and Tim. She survives him. His athletic career after college included being an original member in 1962 of the Glove Cities Colonials semi-pro football team. He played semi-pro baseball with the Schenectady Kralcs through the '60s, and in 1968 he took up the game of golf. His golf career spanned 44 years, having won numerous area golf tournaments. He was a member of Edison Club, Mohawk Club, Glens Falls Country Club and Saratoga National Golf Club. In 1978, Zeke set a modern-day course record at Edison Club. Zeke qualified and played as an amateur in the BC open in Endicott and was low amateur for the tournament. Zeke was an avid skier and a certified member of Professional Ski Instructors of America. He was a member of the West Mountain and Gore Mountain ski schools. Zeke was an avid outdoor sportsman and a member of the Gooley Club since 1962. He received his pilot's license in 1964.

In 1960, he joined Schenectady Chemical Co., and in 1972 he joined Pneutronics Group Inc. as a sales engineer. In 1981, he struck out on his own and incorporated H2O Technology. His sons, Frank and Tim Zilka, joined their father in 1984 as partners and the three grew the business to a multi-state operation. That business was sold in 1992 to Waste Management. In 1993, he incorporated Tech Services International, a pipeline cleaning and consulting company in which he remained active until his passing. He felt that Obama and the present administration were out to destroy small business.

He never missed his sons' athletic endeavors, his granddaughter Katie's ski races or lacrosse games or his grandsons', Andrew's and Jon's, football games. He played golf and hunted with his sons and grandsons until he entered the hospital Dec. 12, 2012. He touched the lives of many people as an athlete, outdoorsman and entrepreneur. He was dearly loved and will be missed by many, including his beloved dogs.

Relatives and friends are invited to a celebration of his life at 5 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 15, 2013, at Saratoga National Golf Club, 458 Union Ave., Saratoga Springs. In lieu of flowers, the family would appreciate donations in Zeke's name to Saratoga Hospital Foundation, 211 Church St., Saratoga Springs, New York 12866.

Child of Robert Hutzel and Virginia Barnette is:

+ 3402 i. Roberta Lee¹⁴ Hutzel, born 17 Aug 1944 in Madison, Dane Co, Wisconsin.

2369. Shirley Ann¹³ Jedele (Earl Emanuel¹², Immanuel (Emanuel)¹¹, Johann Jacob¹⁰, Johann Jacob⁹, Jakob⁸, Johannes⁷, Johannes⁶ Jedelin, Johannes⁵, Martin⁴, Martin³, Hans², Jakob¹) was born 06 Jul 1928 in New York City, New York, and died 10 Oct 2017. She married Dr. Kenneth Herbert Eskelund 19 Mar 1950 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan. He was born 13 Feb 1924 in Waterville, Kennebec Co, Maine, and died 30 May 2013.

Notes for Shirley Ann Jedele:

Winslow - Shirley J. Eskelund, 89, passed away peacefully at home on Oct. 10, 2017. She was born on July 6, 1928, in New York City, the daughter of Ruth (Hastings) and Earl Jedele. Shirley graduated from University High School in Ann Arbor, Michigan, in 1947. She continued her education at Michigan State University (MSU) and in 1951 earned a bachelor's degree in journalism. While at MSU, Shirley met Kenneth H. Eskelund and on March 19, 1950, they married in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Shirley and Ken moved to Waterville in 1953, where she focused on raising her family of three boys. She became active in many local organizations and served as the chairman of the Interim Department of the Waterville Women's Club for several years. She served on the board of United Way of Mid-Maine and the Sunset Home. Shirley was a constant friend, supporter and volunteer for the Maine Children's Home for Little Wanderers for over 50 years. She served various capacities including one term as president of the Friends. She served six terms of office on the board of directors between 1976 and 2007. She was much-recognized for her service to these organizations. Especially meaningful for her was recognition by the Maine Children's Home, both with a tea at the Governor's mansion as well as the naming of their conference center on their Silver Street Campus as the Eskelund Center. She also opened her home to local organizations and hosted fund-raising functions for many charitable groups.

When her family was mostly grown, Shirley went to work at Waterville Junior High School Library as assistant librarian. She enjoyed her work with librarian Ann Benbow and stayed for 15 years. She also worked for several years for Maine Biological Laboratories, in Winslow.

Shirley was an outstanding cook and loved entertaining; she hosted many dinner, cocktail, and holiday parties. She enjoyed art in all forms and became an accomplished watercolor painter. Shirley hosted a weekly painting group at her Schoolhouse Studio in Winslow for many years. Shirley truly loved her summers at the family camp on Snow Pond in Oakland. She was an avid swimmer, swimming regularly in the lake, at Colby College in the winters, and then in her much-cherished pool at her home in Winslow. Shirley loved to travel. She and Ken vacationed in several destinations in Europe, including Majorca, Spain, Austria, and Sweden, as well as in Hawaii, and Japan. She especially treasured the family ski vacations to Austria and Colorado. For over 25 years, she and Ken traveled to their timeshare condominium, Westwind II, on Cable Beach, Nassau, Bahamas, where they made many lifelong friends.

Shirley was predeceased by her loving husband, Dr. Kenneth H. Eskelund, of Winslow. She is survived by her son, David Eskelund, and his wife Cindy Grabinski, of Gray; her son, Donald Eskelund, and his partner Heidi Jacobs, of Winslow; and her son, Richard Eskelund, and his wife Carol Paradis, of Sidney.

The family would like to offer their thanks to dedicated caregivers who came to love Shirley and who made it possible for her to live out her life in her own home. A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 18, at the First Congregational Church, 7 Eustis Parkway, Waterville. A gathering for friends and family will follow the service, at the function hall of the church.

Notes for Dr. Kenneth Herbert Eskelund:

Waterville — Kenneth Eskelund was remembered Thursday for giving generously to many causes, particularly those involving children. Eskelund, 89, of Winslow, died Wednesday night at a Portland hospital after he fell ill at the Alford Youth Center annual appeals dinner, according to Ken Walsh, the center's chief executive officer. Eskelund was taken to an area hospital before he was transferred to Portland, Walsh said. "The amazing thing is, he loved the children so much and his last act in life was here at the youth center," Walsh said Thursday.

Eskelund and his wife, Shirley, were known throughout central Maine and beyond for their philanthropy. Besides giving to the Alford Center and spearheading fundraising and construction of the center's second floor, the couple gave to the Maine Children's Home, MaineGeneral Medical Center, Humane Society Waterville Area, Muskie Center and United Way of Mid-Maine Inc., among other charities. They were named honorary campaign chairpersons of the United Way's capital campaign in 2007.

Their accolades include the Mid-Maine Chamber of Commerce's Distinguished Community Service Award in 2007 and Good Will-Hinckley School's Rev. George F. Hinckley Humanitarian of the Year Award, in 2000. Eskelund was named Outstanding Philanthropist of the Year in 2001 by the Northern New England Chapter of the Association of Fundraising Professionals.

Dr. Eskelund (MSU '51), 89, Winslow, Maine, died May 30, 2013. Prior to retirement in 1993, he was president of what was known as Maine Biological Laboratories, a company he co-founded in Winslow in 1957. MBL produced poultry vaccines and in later years included a laboratory for the development of inactivated viruses. Prior to the establishment of MBL, Dr. Eskelund managed CMT Company, the broiler-growing division of Fort Halifax Packing Company in Maine. Before that, he worked for the South New Jersey Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory for a year and was with the state veterinarian's office in Indianapolis. During his career, Dr. Eskelund also co-founded Maine Poultry Services, Maine Poultry Consultants, and Northeast Laboratory Services; did poultry disease diagnostic work; and consulted for Maine broiler-producing companies. He was a longtime member of the American Association of Avian Pathologists.

Dr. Eskelund received several honors, including the AAAP Special Service Award in 2000 and the Michigan State University Distinguished Alumnus Award in 2005. He volunteered his time and services to several civic organizations and causes, and in 2001, he received the Philanthropy Day Award from the Northern New England Chapter of the Association of Fund-Raising Professionals. Dr. Eskelund and his wife were recipients of the Distinguished Community Service Award from the Mid-Maine Chamber of Commerce in 2007, and, in 2009, the Alford Youth Center honored them with the naming of the Kenneth and Shirley Eskelund Kids Room. The Maine Children's Home for Little Wanderers recognized their contributions with the naming of the Eskelund Conference Center Building on its campus. Dr. Eskelund was an Army Air Corps veteran of World War II. His wife and three sons survive him. Memorials may be made to the Boys and Girls Club/YMCA, 126 North St., Waterville, ME 04901; or Maine Children's Home, 93 Silver St., Waterville, ME 04901.

by: Kenneth H. Eskelund Date: 2005 Revised: Kenneth H. Eskelund 1924 - 2013

Growing Up: I was born in Winslow, Maine in 1924. I lived close to a rural area, next to the farm of Donald and Frankie Corbett. Don hired some of the neighborhood kids to hoe corn, help with haying, etc.

Perhaps he favored me, and between my junior and senior years in high school he gave me the responsibility of growing 20 acres of pickling cucumbers. I had to hire and supervise other kids (as I recall, about 15) to pick tons of cucumbers. This was a most valuable experience.

Introduction to Veterinary Medicine: This was also made possible by Don Corbett who recommended me for a job with a local veterinarian. When I graduated from high school, the State of Maine was trying to clean up Brucellosis of cows. They hired "Veterinary Helpers" to assist veterinarians taking blood samples of cattle. As such, I also assisted Dr. Ingham (a local veterinarian) with most of his work whether it be cows, dogs, cats or horses.

Military Service: World War II was well underway and I knew that I would soon be drafted. Therefore, I applied and was accepted to attend New England Aircraft School at the Boston Airport, studying aircraft mechanics. After being drafted and completing basic training, I was Prepared assigned to the U.S. Army Air Corps and was sent to a school in Glendale, California where I studied to become a propeller specialist. After training I spent much of my time in the service at Fairfield Susan Army Air Base in California. However I spent about 4 months in Okinawa and another 4 months in India before returning to the U.S. and completing my 3 years of service at West Palm Beach, Florida.

Veterinary School: After one year of pre-veterinary studies, and thanks again, I believe, because of the recommendation of Don Corbett, Dr. Frank Witter and others, I was accepted into Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine against heavy odds. Once again, timing was with me. I was in the last class that was able to graduate in only 5 years of college.

Chickens: Between my sophomore and junior years in Veterinary school, I returned to Winslow and had another challenge from Don Corbett. He had bought an old mill building in Benton Falls that had to be made ready to brood 20,000 baby chicks arriving on July 6 to be raised as broilers. At the time, this was probably one of the largest flocks of chickens in the U.S. So without warning, I was introduced to chickens and also chicken diseases. Because of that experience, I took special interest in learning more about poultry diseases in my junior and senior years in college. The regular curriculum had very little about poultry diseases.

Personal Life: While a student at Michigan State University, I met and dated Shirley Ann Jedele. We were married on March 19, 1950 while I was a junior in college. Our first son, David, was born exactly nine months later. We both graduated from MSU in June 1951. After moving to Maine, we had two more sons, Donald on Sept. 7, 1954 and Richard on May 31, 1957. We built our first (small) house on Upper Main Street in Waterville in 1953 and our second (large) house on Outer Western Avenue in Waterville in 1965, where we lived for 23 years. In 1988 we built our retirement home on Outer Clinton Avenue in Winslow, overlooking the Sebasticook River. We have two lots with a total of 8 acres of land. We even have our own cemetery with three headstones dating from the 1800's. Our ashes will be buried here. In 1993 I bought the old Lipman Hatchery building at an auction. This building is almost across the street from our home. This also included a 100-year-old, one room schoolhouse which had been used for storage. We refurbished the old schoolhouse as a historic building and as a painting studio for Shirley and her friends.

Employment: When I graduated from veterinary school in 1951, I made a decision, after checking available job opportunities, that I would venture into chickens (Avian Medicine) which nobody else was interested in. I was hired by the South New Jersey Poultry Diagnostic Lab. I drove to Vineland, New Jersey with Shirley and our 6-month-old son, David, with all of our possessions in a small trailer. We spent a not so good year there until I was offered a job with the State Veterinarian's office in Indianapolis, Indiana. I was the first veterinarian in Indiana (and probably in the U.S.) to be assigned to avian regulatory medicine. I was given free range to cover the State and to set up poultry disease control programs. It was a good experience, although I don't believe I accomplished very much in the year that I spent there. After about a year in Indianapolis, Don Corbett appeared once more. At that time, the Maine poultry industry and Don's company (Fort Halifax Poultry Co.) were growing rapidly in the production of broiler chickens. He convinced me to return to Winslow to manage his broiler growing company. He was a great innovator and with his guidance we had a very successful operation. In my three years with the company, production grew by several times over.

Maine Biological Laboratories, Inc. (MBL): During my time in Maine, I worked closely with Dr. Harold Chute, a professor and poultry pathologist at the University of Maine in Orono. As the poultry industry grew, so did disease problems. Without a great deal of forethought, in 1957 we decided to produce poultry vaccines, and started Maine Biological Laboratories (MBL). We started by servicing the large Maine poultry industry but after two years we were granted a federal USDA license permitting national sales of our vaccines. The company was sold to Norwich Pharmaceutical Company in 1966. Under their management the company was not doing well so I was able to buy it back in 1975, with John Osbourne as my partner. John had been MBL's first employee and production manager since starting MBL. MBL was the first manufacturer of poultry vaccines to develop killed virus vaccines. Although they were highly effective, they were not well accepted by the poultry industry because of their high cost of production and they had to be injected into each bird. In the late 1970's, MBL developed a killed virus vaccine against Infectious Bursal Disease which was far superior to other vaccines that were used to control this disease and it gained wide acceptance. This led to the acceptance of a number of other MBL killed virus vaccines and combinations thereof. Within a few years killed virus vaccines were being marketed worldwide. Over the following years, MBL had three major expansion projects and developed a major international business and employed about 70 people. In 1981, MBL appointed TriBio Labs of State College, Pennsylvania to distribute MBL vaccines in the U.S. As this association grew, I acquired a minority interest in TriBio Labs in 1985 and served on their Board of Directors until TriBio Labs was sold in 1998. I sold MBL to the GHEN Corporation of Japan in 1998. I stayed on as president for 5 years until my retirement in 1993 at the age of 69. During my time with MBL, I traveled extensively to the major poultry growing areas of the U.S., working with poultry companies and poultry disease research laboratories and attending scientific conferences on poultry diseases. I presented 22 scientific papers at such conferences. In 1979, MBL made an agreement with Venkateshwara Hatcheries in Pune, India to train their technicians in poultry vaccine production and to help them establish their laboratory in India. Over the next nine years, I made a number of trips to India for consulting and to speak at poultry disease meetings throughout India. After selling MBL to the GHEN Corporation, I made several trips to Japan for consultations and conferences.

Maine Poultry Services (MPS): In the early 1960's, there were hundreds of small commercial poultry flocks in Maine. Vaccination of these flocks was quite new. To encourage vaccination, I set up a vaccination service for poultry farms. As this grew, I solicited Thomas Teague as a partner and started Maine Poultry Services. It employed several crews that traveled to broiler farms and vaccinated and debeaked hundreds of thousands of young broiler chicks each week. Later they distributed poultry equipment. Tom Teague was totally responsible for operating this company and I later sold my interest to him. With the demise of the poultry industry in Maine, his company became Teague Distributors in Fairfield which distributes lawn and garden equipment.

Maine Poultry Consultants (MPC) and Northeast Laboratory Services (NEL): In 1961, I solicited Dr. William Gerencer, who was a former classmate at Michigan State School of Veterinary Medicine, to join me and we established Maine Poultry Consultants (MPC). This company provided poultry disease diagnostic services to the Maine poultry industry and also distributed poultry vaccines and pharmaceuticals. As the demands of the poultry industry for services grew, we started a new company named Northeast Laboratory Services (NEL) to provide analytical services in the areas of microbiology and chemistry. This soon grew to include these types of services to other industries and we later manufactured microbiological supplies for sale to hospitals and clinics. NEL and MPC were located on the China Road close to MBL. With the demise of the Maine poultry business in 1973, MPC was merged with NEL. By 1998, NEL had been expanded four times and employed 55 people. At that time, it was sold to BINAX, Inc. of Portland, Maine and I was elected to the Board of Directors of BINAX, Inc. This didn't work out well for them, and rather than see the company close, I bought it back in March of 2001. Rodney (Beau) Mears joined NEL as a partner and CEO to manage the company. As of this time (Nov. 5, 2005), the company employs about 70 people and is doing business nationally. The future looks bright.

American Association of Avian Pathologists (AAAP): I have been a member of AAAP almost since its inception. I attended my first annual AAAP scientific meeting in Dallas, Texas in 1967, and have attended every annual meeting since then until 2003. The AAAP scientific meetings have played an important role in my professional life. I have met and worked with the best poultry professionals from universities, businesses and federal labs. They were often the source of information that greatly helped me develop new and improved vaccines and to grow my business. I credit AAAP as being a major factor in the rapid development of avian medicine. I have served on several AAAP committees over the years, most notably the audit committee which I chaired for many years. I had always been concerned about the lack of teaching of avian medicine in most veterinary colleges. Most veterinary students had no idea of the potential for a career in the huge poultry industry. Therefore, in 1988, I funded the Kenneth H. Eskelund Preceptorship program through the AAAP Foundation. The stated purpose of this program is to provide financial support to enable veterinary students to obtain practical experience in various aspects of poultry medicine to encourage them to consider careers in this field. The program has funded an average of six students annually, many of whom now are pursuing successful careers in avian medicine. A few years later, I also funded a similar program, the MSU Summer Internship at Michigan State University which funds one student annually to gain avian health experience.

Miscellaneous: During my working years, I did not have much time for social clubs. However, I was a member of the Lions Club for several years and later the Kiwanis Club for several years. I served on the Waterville School Board for four years in the early 70's. In 1967, I was elected to the Board of Directors of Federal Trust Company in Waterville. When this bank was sold to the Merrill Trust Company of Bangor, I was elected to their Board of Directors. When Merrill merged with Fleet Bank of Maine, I became a member of the Fleet Board. This Board was disbanded in 1987 when Fleet merged with Norstar Bank.

Retirement: I retired from MBL in 1993 but have kept very busy ever since. I have devoted a lot of my time working with charities. My favorite is the Boys and Girls Club/YMCA at the Alford Youth Center, a nine-million-dollar facility in Waterville, Maine. I have been active on their Board of Directors since 1998 and have been honored in many ways including the naming of the Kenneth and Shirley Eskelund "Kids Room" which is the after-school room where some 200 kids from 4 to 8 years of age receive a hot meal each school day. Both Shirley and I have been named to their Hall of Fame and I am a member of their Heritage Circle. Although I retired from their board in June of 2005, I have remained active on their Endowment Committee and in other ways. I have also been on the Advisory Board of the Muskie Center, the Senior Spectrum Agency on Aging for since 1996. I have been delivering Meals on Wheels for them for over 10 years. I have been a major supporter of this organization. In 2002, I personally conducted a capital campaign to build an addition on their building to gain much needed space. This has been named the Kenneth and Shirley Eskelund Solarium. I have been serving on the Board of Directors of Thomas Teague Biotechnology Park (an incubator) since its inception (about 2000). This is on land donated by my ex-partner of MPC. The main road through the park has been named Eskelund Drive. I was told that this was done because I have been credited with introducing biotechnology to Central Maine. Actually, at the time (over 40 years ago), I don't think that I had ever heard the word – "biotechnology."

Awards and Honors: The most prestigious honor that I have ever received was the Distinguished Alumni Award presented at Michigan State University on October 20, 2005. Distinguished Alumni Award. The plaque which I received states: "This honor is awarded by Michigan State University Alumni Association to alumni that have attained the highest level of professional accomplishments, demonstrated exemplary voluntary service on a local, state, national or international level, and posses the highest standards of integrity and character to positively reflect and enhance the prestige of Michigan State University."

In 1996, I was elected to Life Membership of the American Association of Avian Pathologists. In 2001, I was awarded the Philanthropy Day Award for "Outstanding Philanthropist of the State of Maine", presented annually by the Northern New England Chapter of the Association of Fund-raising Professionals. One person is chosen annually as the leading philanthropist for the State of Maine. At the 2000 annual meeting of the American Association of Avian Pathologists (AAAP), I was awarded their Special Service Award. This is awarded to one person annually "..... for the lifetime service to the organization and for accomplishments that benefit the poultry health industry." This is the highest award of AAAP.

In June of 2001, I was elected into Honorary Membership in the American College of Poultry Veterinarians in recognition of ".... Philanthropy and exceptional service to the profession and the poultry industry for more than 50 years". In September of 2000, Shirley and I were awarded the Revered George F. Hinkley Humanitarian of the Year Award by Good Will - Hinkley School. This award is presented to "..... Individuals who exhibit dedication and loyalty to enriching the lives of others through tremendous service to their community". In March 1994, I received a Certificate of Appreciation from the New England Poultry Health Conference "For contributions of time and expertise for the betterment of the poultry industry of New England." In January 1986, I received an Outstanding Service Award from the National Pigeon Association for the development of a vaccine against a serious pigeon disease (I believe that I am the only non-pigeon person to ever receive this award).

In the past Shirley and I have been honored as follows: •Naming of the Kenneth and Shirley Eskelund Conference Center Building on the campus of the Maine Children's Home for Little Wanderers.

This is Shirley's project. •Naming of the Kenneth and Shirley Eskelund After-School Program Room (the Kids Room) at the new Alford Youth Center (Boys & Girls Club/YMCA) in Waterville, Maine. (1998) •Membership in the Good Will - Hinkley Heritage Society of the Good Will Hinkley Home for Boys and Girls - "Providing a legacy for future generations". This is a short dead end road that was cut off by the construction of another major perpendicular road behind MBL. Esther L.¹³ Gross (George Edward¹², Maria Rosina¹¹ Jedelee, Johann Jacob¹⁰, Johann Jacob⁹, Jakob⁸, Johannes⁷, Johannes⁶ Jedelin, Johannes⁵, Martin⁴, Martin³, Hans², Jakob¹) was born 19 Dec 1918 in Lima Twp, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, and died 19 Nov 2013 in California. She married Dr. Alexander (Al) Hatoff 23 May 1942 in Traverse City, Grand Traverse Co, Michigan, son of Isadore Hatoff and Gertrude Feigelman. He was born 14 Feb 1916 in Brooklyn, Kings Co, New York, and died 05 May 2002 in Walnut Creek, Contra Costa Co, California.

Notes for Esther L. Gross:

Esther G. Hatoff (December 19, 1918–November 19, 2013) Longtime East Bay resident and Midwest transplant, Esther Gross Hatoff, passed away peacefully on November 19, 2013 with her children at her side. Born on a farm in a German-speaking community near Ann Arbor, Michigan, she moved with her family to nearby Saline in 1925. There, she excelled in school and graduated from the University of Michigan, Phi Beta Kappa. On completing her studies, she joined the psychology staff at the state hospital in Traverse City where she met her future husband, Alexander Hatoff, a visiting pediatrician in residence.

Their marriage in 1942 took Esther and Alexander to Richmond, California and the war effort at Kaiser Shipyards. There, Al served as Kaiser Hospital's first pediatrician. Ann Elizabeth was born in 1945, followed by David Edward and Brian William. During this period, many lifelong friendships were forged in Berkeley, Oakland, Piedmont, Walnut Creek, and Alameda, many of which continued to Esther's death just before her 95th birthday. After her children were in school, Esther attended CSU, Hayward (now East Bay) to earn a Master's degree in psychology. Thereafter, she would serve as a psychologist for Oakland Public Schools.

Passionate for the underdog, Esther supported equal rights for all and tolerance for individual beliefs-values she instilled in her offspring. Her life blended modernity and tradition. A person who savored reading The New Yorker, traveling the world, exploring ideas, and discussing a wide range of topics, she delighted in friends and family, serving meals they appreciated and entertaining with flair.

Esther found her greatest joy in time shared with her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. Daughter Ann (John Hammerman); son David (Julie Hatoff); son Brian (Linda Reynolds); grandchildren Megan, Alison, Jillian, Quinn; and five great-grandchildren will miss her deeply and strive to live her legacy. Esther was preceded in death by her parents, Edward and Bertha Gross, and her sister, Ruth Marion, and her husband, Alexander Hatoff.

The family suggests donations in Esther Hatoff's memory be made to the Salvation Army, St. Anthony's Foundation, or any organization providing for children.

Notes for Dr. Alexander (Al) Hatoff:

Alexander Hatoff, M.D. of Walnut Creek, California, died May 5, 2002 at the age of 86. He is survived by his wife of 59 years, Esther Hatoff and by their children Ann Rapp of Modesto, California, David Hatoff (Julie) of San Clemente, California and Brian Hatoff (Linda) of Alameda, California, as well as by four grandchildren - Megan, Alison, Jillian and Quinn. He is also survived by his sister Dorothy Jahre of Brooklyn, New York.

He grew up in Brooklyn, New York, graduated from Cornell University, and received a Master's degree in Public Health from the University of Michigan and his medical degree from the University of Rochester. His career in pediatrics spanned many years including private practice in Oakland, California, chief of pediatrics at Highland Hospital in Oakland, California, Director of Chapters for the American Academy of Pediatrics in Evanston, IL and medical consultant for the State of California. A private interment will be at Mountain View Cemetery with the family present.

Notes for Julie A. Swan:

September 1, 2006 - For the second time in less than a week, the MiraCosta College Academic Senate, which represents the school's faculty, anguished yesterday over the fate of a popular top administrator who was abruptly placed on paid leave. Julie Hatoff, vice president for instructional services since 1984, was told to clear out her desk by 5 p.m. Aug. 25, Senate members said. The members were unsure who ordered the move – the college's president or the college's attorneys.

Faculty member Tom Severance, in an impassioned half-hour speech yesterday, called Hatoff an icon at MiraCosta and the statewide community college system. At the beginning of the meeting, the president and vice president of the Senate announced their resignations. President Brent Pickett and Vice President Lynne Miller said their decisions were not in protest over Hatoff's departure, but were related because of the stress and time away from their families caused by the turmoil of the Hatoff situation.

Although no official reason has been given for Hatoff's ouster, many faculty and nonteaching staff members said it was the latest in an administrative housecleaning after a campus scandal last spring involving the unauthorized sale of thousands of palm trees on the Oceanside campus. Severance noted that Alleen Texeira, head of the horticulture department, also has been placed on leave, and Eileen Kraskouskas, the dean of vocational education and Texeira's boss, was asked to retire. Miller asked those in attendance yesterday to attend the college's governing board meeting at 4 p.m. today. She asked that at least five or six speakers sign up to address the board during a public-comment period. In addition, the Academic Senate has asked to present a report on its concerns at a board meeting at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday in Aztlan Rooms A and B on the Oceanside campus, 1 Barnard Drive.

Miller and Pickett said Hatoff's situation is in the hands of attorneys and there's little they can do, although a task force of Senate members will "investigate the investigation." Kraskouskas, Hatoff and Texeira have hired lawyers and are not speaking to the media. Members of the audience yesterday said that now may be the time for MiraCosta, one of the few nonunionized community colleges, to consider forming a collective-bargaining unit. Others said there may come a time for a vote of no-confidence in the college's president, Victoria Muñoz Richart. Miller said that now is not the time.

The college issued no immediate announcement last week of Hatoff's leave. Upon request, public-relations director Bonnie Hall supplied a two-sentence statement: "Dr. Richart was informed this morning by college attorney, Daniel Shinoff, that the vice president of instructional services will be on leave until further notice. "Dr. Richart appointed Dick Robertson, vice president of student services, to also serve as interim vice president of instructional services." Hall said yesterday that the letter from Shinoff did not give a reason for his announcement that Hatoff would be on leave. Neither Shinoff nor Richart returned calls for comment yesterday. During the leave, Hall said, Hatoff will receive her annual salary of $200,803. Hatoff began her career at MiraCosta in 1971 as an English instructor. She was named vice president of instructional services in 1984. "She was the most beloved person," retired instructor Larry Nugent said later. "She's given her whole life to MiraCosta and is really well-known throughout the state." MiraCosta's governing board turned over the palm tree matter to the District Attorney's Office. Hall said yesterday that district attorney investigators have asked for further information from college officials, but she could not say what they requested.

MiraCosta College's Julie Hatoff - Came to MiraCosta in 1972. Taught English and humanities concentrating on literature of ethnic Americans, women's studies, and the intellectual history of the European inter-war period. Served two terms as Academic Senate President and department chair. Elected to the statewide Academic Senate and served as its secretary.

Founded with two colleagues from SFFCC and L.A. Valley the English Council of 2-Year Colleges (ECCTYC); cofounded the North County Higher Education Alliance with colleagues from CSU San Marcos and Palomar Community College.

Appointed Vice President, Instructional Services in 1984. Served as head of SDICCCA Chief Instructional Officers and member of statewide executive board before election in 1992 as President, California Chief Instructional Officers. Joined the Executive Committee of National Council of Instructional Administrators; elected its President in 2002. Represented NCIA on Workforce Development Commission.

August 21, 2007 - Oceanside - An ousted MiraCosta College administrator is suing the public college for $24 million, saying officials violated state labor laws when they fired her and accused her of failing to supervise workers and cooperate with an investigation into the illegal sale of palm trees. The administrator, Julie Hatoff, filed the suit in May, alleging breach of contract, negligence, extortion, harassment and labor law violations. The lawsuit names the college, former President Victoria Munoz Richart, all seven members of MiraCosta's governing board and former trustee Henry Holloway.

A scandal erupted at the college in December 2005 when a whistleblower alleged that officials in the horticulture department were raising and selling palm trees for personal profit. The ensuing 17-month probe led authorities to charge one school employee, Alleen Texeira, with a single count of theft. A handful of other employees, including Hatoff, were disciplined or resigned.

A copy of the suit obtained by the North County Times last week shows Hatoff is seeking $14 million in general and special damages, as well as punitive damages of $5 million from Richart, and $1 million each from the board members who supported Richart - board president Charles Adams and trustees Carolyn Batiste, Rudy Fernandez, Gregory Post and Holloway. Hatoff's attorney, Tracy Warren, said Monday that her client would not comment on the lawsuit.

Jim Downs, a spokesman for Taxpayers Saving MiraCosta -- a group that has backed Richart and the board majority - said the lawsuit is a waste of money and has little or no chance of prevailing. Jonathan Cole, president of the Academic Senate and a supporter of Hatoff, said he was not comfortable offering opinions about the monetary details of Hatoff's suit.

A 36-year employee of MiraCosta College, Hatoff oversaw all educational programs as the top instructional administrator. She was one of several employees investigated by the college's private attorney during the palm-tree probe. Hatoff was cleared of any criminal wrongdoing in the internal college inquiry; a separate investigation by the San Diego County district attorney's office also found no evidence of illegal activity by Hatoff.

College officials, however, accused Hatoff of failing to properly supervise employees and refusing to cooperate in the investigation. She was placed on administrative leave as vice president of instruction in August 2006 and dismissed from the post in June 2007. Hatoff drew pay for her $200,000 cabinet-level job throughout her leave. She is still on the college payroll as a tenured professor of English on leave, college officials said.

In her 39-page lawsuit, Hatoff claims that Richart had "no credible evidence that Hatoff played any part in the palm tree incident, yet for over one-year Richart led an entire college community to believe otherwise." Richart abused her position to "satisfy her own personal agenda, which included forcibly and inexplicably ousting" Hatoff due to personal friction between the two women that arose after Richart took the reins of MiraCosta in summer 2004, the suit states.

The five trustees who are being sued for more than $1 million each are part of a board majority that supported Richart throughout her tenure at the college. In her suit, Hatoff said the trustees "blindly obeyed the self-serving mandates" of Richart, who negotiated a $1.5 million buyout of her contract in late June. In regard to Hatoff's lawsuit, several legal maneuvers are in the works, including a motion by Hatoff attorney Tracy Warren to disqualify the law firm representing MiraCosta College. The motion to bar the firm, Stutz, Artiano, Shinoff and Holtz, is scheduled to be heard Friday.

Adams, the board president, on Monday offered his full support for the work of Stutz, Artiano, Shinoff and Holtz, saying the firm has served the district well. On Aug. 31, a hearing is also set on a motion by college attorneys to dismiss Hatoff's case. On the same day, the attorney representing Richart will ask the court to dismiss the case against his client as a nuisance suit.

March 10, 2016 - The San Ysidro School District sued attorney Dan Shinoff and his firm for malpractice. The suit settled without any admission of wrongdoing. The district also filed a complaint against Shinoff with the State Bar of California. Fallout from a palm tree scandal at MiraCosta College led to the departure of several administrators and lawsuits.

Palm Gate - Before there were solar panels in South County, there were palm trees in North County. In 2006, a MiraCosta College employee complained that colleagues were using college resources to grow privately owned palm trees on the Oceanside campus and planned to sell them for personal gain. The college ordered up an investigation through Shinoff's firm.

Shinoff turned to Bob Price, a private investigator who heads the San Diego company ESI International Inc. and whose credentials include 10 years working for the FBI. All told, Price's 18-month probe and all the fallout from it cost $6.8 million. A district attorney's office investigation resulted in one criminal conviction for a $305 water theft by a college employee.

Some of the concerns about the illicit palm trees turned out to be baseless. The palms were donated to the college years earlier, it turns out, but weren't properly documented. But the ordeal turned the college upside down for several years and led to the departure of top administrators via deals negotiated by Shinoff, and lawsuits by employees, fought by Shinoff.

Among those who sued and settled was the school's vice president of instruction, Julie Hatoff, who was accused by the college of knowing about the theft and doing nothing – something county prosecutors reportedly found no evidence of. Hatoff tried to get Shinoff removed as counsel for MiraCosta, alleging he and Price failed to make it clear she could be targeted and made false promises of attorney-client privilege. Hatoff also lodged a complaint with the State Bar. The outcome of that complaint is unknown, but Shinoff bears no public record of discipline on the State Bar website. Hatoff, who declined to comment for this story, eventually settled with the college in 2007 for $542,000.

Three college trustees obtained their own legal counsel separate from Shinoff amid the turmoil. One said in a declaration they "all sought and received independent counsel precisely because we did not believe that Shinoff was acting in the best interests of the College," but rather in the interests of the college president, Victoria Munoz Richart. Richart, with Shinoff's help, negotiated an exit from the college in June 2007, just three years after arriving. And it cut her expected term short years before her contract was supposed to end.

She walked away with a new deal worth $1.6 million. But that wasn't the end of it. In 2009, a taxpayer challenged the settlement in court and proved it exceeded the 18-month contract payout limit in state law. Richart, who did not comment for this story, began repaying the money in small increments, but with her deal overturned, her claims of a hostile work environment were revived. She sued the college in 2011, saying she was wrongfully terminated.

That same year, MiraCosta cut ties with Shinoff's firm. Richart's case was finally settled last April. College officials today say MiraCosta has come a long way from those dark days. Charlie Ng, MiraCosta's vice president of business since 2013, said as for the 18-month payout limit, "We are aware of that now when we enter into settlements, and we expect our attorneys to know that."

"I think that as districts spend time with an attorney and see more and more results like that, it is certainly in their best interests to make another choice," Ng said. "There are some that are better than others, but I don't know that any attorney has even been perfect." "I suspect the reason Shinoff is not with us is we wanted to go another direction. The direction we headed in is with the expectation that these kinds of things could be avoided," Ng said. "Being sensitive to settlements, that's the lesson. And paying attention to our attorneys."

2380. Dorothea Elizabeth (Dorothy)¹³ Zahn (Olive Elizabeth¹² Gross, Maria Rosina¹¹ Jedele, Johann Jacob¹⁰, Johann Jacob⁹, Jakob⁸, Johannes⁷, Johannes⁶ Jedelin, Johannes⁵, Martin⁴, Martin³, Hans², Jakob¹) was born 10 Mar 1919 in Lima Twp, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, and died 05 Mar 1995 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan. He was born 09 Jul 1920 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, and died 04 Mar 2008 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan.

Notes for Dorothea Elizabeth (Dorothy) Zahn:

In her early twenties, Dorothy Elizabeth Zahn enrolled into The Hamilton College of Business, in downtown Ann Arbor. It was there that she would learn basic office skills, such as typing and short-hand. For a period of time, she worked as an office clerk for a local business in downtown. With the desire to be closer to her young children, she decided to leave her job. She would, however, continue her career from home.

With her decision to work from home, Dorothy became a typist. Most of her clients were students of the University of Michigan, working on their doctoral dissertations. However, on occasion she would also work for aspiring authors. Along with turning handwritten manuscripts into type, she would also provide editorial suggestions, and creative input. One of her most notable clients was the author Donald Hall, a protégée of the famous poet Robert Frost (who briefly taught at the University of Michigan, in the 1920's). So appreciative of her work, Donald Hall would go on to credit Dorothy's input, in his book titled Life Work.

Upon his return from the war, Robert Foster would find employment as a mill man, at Fingerle Lumber Company – located on the edge of downtown Ann Arbor, just eight blocks from his home. It was here that he would spend the remainder of his career, crafting custom pieces of finish trim for homes, as well as building pews for local churches. He would retire from the profession when he was in his early 60's.

It was in their retirement that Robert and Dorothy would fill their days with such activities as golfing, and spending time with their grandchildren – Kevin, Jill, Jennifer and Jeff, during the warm summers at the family cottage on North Lake. It too was also built by K. Fred Foster. Working side by side, an addition was later built by both K. Fred and Robert. It was in the early spring of 1995 that Dorothy would take ill, with complications from diabetes. After a fulfilling and cheerful life, that began on a rural farm in Dexter, she would peacefully pass away at nearly the age of 76, on March 5, 1995.

Notes for Robert James Foster:

Robert Foster was K. Fred's and Mary's fourth child. Along with his four other siblings, he grew up on the edge of downtown Ann Arbor, and attended Ann Arbor High School, located on the corner of State Street and Huron Street. Always busy, at the age of twenty Robert was given one of his first jobs, as a gas station attendant at Liberty Gulf Service. The following year he became a millworker for O.E. Thompson & Sons, in Ypsilanti. In the years following, he would hold such positions as a factory worker, and an assembler for Ford Motor Company – traveling with a group of fellow workers every day, from Ann Arbor to Detroit. In his early twenties, Robert would meet a girl named Dorothy Zahn. She was a farmer's daughter – growing up just a few miles outside of Ann Arbor, in the village of Dexter. Dorothy Zahn was born on March 10, 1919, to Samuel G. Zahn and Olive E. Gross. She was the youngest of the couple's two daughters. Her mother Olive would pass away when she was only 11 years old. She would be left alone on the farm with her father, and sister Gertrude.

Robert and Dorothy were eventually engaged, and the couple was married on August 9th, 1941. They would move into one of the homes that K. Fred Foster had built – located at 547 Sixth Street, in Ann Arbor. Situated on the Old West Side of Ann Arbor, it was the perfect place to start a family. Less than a year later, Dorothy become pregnant with the couple's first child. Over the years, they would raise two children together:

Judith Louise – born October 29, 1942

James Robert – born July 3, 1946

It was soon after the birth of their daughter Judith (Judy), that the nation was thrown into a state of turmoil, as the United States would enter World War II. It was within a year or two of the start of the war, that Robert would be drafted into the Army, to fight in the European campaign, against the Germans. Serving as a communications officer, he would go on to fight in the bloodiest battle of the war, known as the Battle of the Bulge – a major German offensive that would claim the lives of 19,000 American soldiers. Robert would survive. He returned to Ann Arbor in 1945. Shortly after, the couple gave birth to their second child, James Robert Foster.

It was in 1953, that Robert and Dorothy would buy a second house. Purchased for the price of $7,500, it was located at 714 West Madison Street, and sat adjacent to the back of their property. It was a historic, small one-bedroom home. It would primarily serve as a rental property throughout the years – most often to students and faculty of the University. Their son James would briefly live there in the early 1980's.

Robert would survive without Dorothy for another 13 years. His elder years were spent along side his dog Sam. From the small woodshop tucked away in the corner of his basement, he would toil with small carpentry projects, such as door knockers and lawn ornaments – his pieces usually being given away as gifts, to family and friends. It was in the morning hours of March 4, 2008, that Robert would sit alone in his favorite living room chair, adding the finishing touches of paint detail to one of his projects. Doing what he loved most, it was then, in the quiet of his own home, that Robert Foster would peacefully pass away of old age. He was 87 years old.

Robert James Foster of Ann Arbor, Michigan, age 87, passed away peacefully at his home on March 4, 2008. He was born July 9, 1920 in Ann Arbor, MI, the son of K. Fred and Mary (Braun) Foster. He enjoyed over 50 years of marriage with his wife, Dorothy (Zahn), deceased.

Mr. Foster served in the Army during World War II. Retirement from Fingerle Lumber Co. allowed him time to pursue his hobbies, which included golf, visits to the family cottage at North Lake, and woodworking. He leaves a daughter, Judith L. Ripple of Gainesville, FL, and a son, James R. and his wife, Leonor Foster of San Francisco, CA; four grandchildren, Jeffrey and Jennifer Ripple, Jill Whitehill, and Kevin Foster; and a great-granddaughter, Isabella Whitehill.

Cremation has taken place. A private memorial service will be held. The family requests that a donation to the Michigan Parkinson Foundation be sent in lieu of flowers. There will be no visitation. Arrangements entrusted to the Muehlig Funeral Chapel, Ann Arbor.

As Howard and Mary began their life together, they were relocated to many places due to Military placement. Mary pursued her career as a high school teacher, settling into the Flint area where she remained for many years to raise her family. Mary was extremely proud to be a teacher and found working with adults at Mott Adult High School very rewarding. Traveling the world with her husband, Howard, gave Mary memories that lasted a lifetime. Her travels took her throughout the United States, Europe, Asia and beyond. You were apt to find Mary lost in a good book, researching a favorite topic, or with friends playing a round of Bridge. She truly was a "hostess with the mostest". As an active member of the First Presbyterian Church in Flint, Mary will be remembered for her independent and positive spirit. Mary leaves a legacy of faith and family for many to cherish.

Mary is survived by her daughter, Nancy (Bob) Plummer of Traverse City, four grandchildren, Tara (Jason) Maynard of Grand Rapids, Jon (Heidi) Plummer, Rebecca (Pete) Plummer-Mead and Anne Plummer, all of Traverse City, three great-grandchildren, Terin and Rudy Maynard and Avery Plummer, one niece and four nephews with their families and many other loving family members and friends. Mary was preceded in death by her husband, Howard F. Gross, a son, Douglas F. Gross, two sisters, Anne Amendt and Alice Gibbs.

Memorial Services will be held at 2 p.m. on Friday November 21, 2008, at the First Presbyterian Church in Flint, located at 746 S. Saginaw Street. The Rev. Dr. John L. Musgrave will officiate. In lieu of flowers memorial contributions may be directed to the Community Foundation for Mason County, care of Daisy Marsh Reek Fund, P.O. Box 10, Ludington, MI 49431, or the First Presbyterian Church Memorial Fund, 746 S. Saginaw St., Flint, Michigan 48502-1508. There is a special place in the hearts of the Gross family for Kathie Fralick. The love, care and comfort that Kathie provided for Mary while living at Just A Whisper will always be appreciated. "Give yourself credit. You have the makings of a beautiful angel." The family is being served by the Reynolds-Jonkhoff Funeral Home, www.reynolds-jonkhoff.com

2390. Norman Frederick¹³ Mayer (Armin Nathaniel¹², Martha¹¹ Jedeled, Johann Jacob¹⁰, Johann Jacob⁹, Jakob⁸, Johannes⁷, Johannes⁶ Jedelin, Johannes⁵, Martin⁴, Martin³, Hans², Jakob¹) was born 14 Sep 1922 in Dansville, Vermilion Co, Illinois, and died 24 May 2019. He married Jeannette Horschler 1956 in Tarrant Co, Texas, daughter of Robert Horschler and Daphina McCubbies. She was born 13 Sep 1932 in Amarillo, Potter Co, Texas.

Notes for Norman Frederick Mayer:

Norman Frederick Mayer, Dad, Opa, left this earth peacefully the morning of May 24, 2019. He was preceded in death by his father Armin Mayer, his mother Olivia Mayer and his brother, Gordon E. Mayer. He is survived by his amazing and selfless wife, Jeannette Mayer, his sister, Miriam Ward and his three children: Gordon (Char) Mayer, Mindy (Tony) Yacullo and Sandy (Tim) Fish. He is also survived by 5 grandchildren: Kristy Mayer-Mejia, Jen Mayer, Lauren Yacullo, Steven Fish and Amanda Fish and a soon to be great-grandchild, Babymingo.

Norm was born Sept. 14, 1922 in Danville Illinois. Prior to attending college, he joined the military serving our country as a pilot in the Army Air Corps/Airforce in World War II. When the war ended, he attended and graduated from the University of Illinois with a bachelor's degree. He went on to be hired by Travelers Insurance and worked in Grand Rapids, Michigan and Chicago, Illinois before moving to their home office in Hartford, Connecticut in 1956. Through his sister Miriam, he met Jeannette and he wooed her away from becoming a flight attendant with American Airlines and they married on June 9, 1956. Norm passed away just 16 days before they would celebrate their 63rd wedding anniversary.

Norm and Jeannette set up their first home in an apartment in West Hartford, Connecticut and welcomed their son, Gordon in December 1957. They moved to Simsbury, Connecticut in 1959 and in 1960 welcomed Mindy to this world. 5 years later, Sandy was added to the Mayer family and the Mayer family settled in West Simsbury in 1970.

Norm was no doubt the patriarch of the family. He loved his wife, children and grand-children fiercely. He took a chance and bought a cottage in Silver Lake, New Hampshire where he took the family for summer and winter vacations. Norm remained with Travelers for 40 years when he retired at age 66. Norm and Jeannette provided so many wonderful opportunities for family gatherings over the years not only at the cottage at Silver Lake, but also at their home on the 2nd hole of the PGA course at Harbor Town Golf Links in Hilton Head, South Carolina and their beautiful hillside home in Hood River, Oregon overlooking the Hood River and Columbia River. Special night was a given every evening at 5pm where Norm would enjoy two Dewars on the rocks, and some special special nights, even a third. Norm loved having his family all gather together. Our last gathering was 3 years ago celebrating Norm and Jeannette's 60th wedding anniversary. His unusually close family and our unwavering love for one another is his greatest legacy. Though our special nights, which will live on among all of us, come in a close second.

Norm, Dad, Opa will be missed; however, we know he is finally at peace, no longer suffering. To take the words from his grand-daughter Amanda, "Opa, we are at ease knowing you are not in pain anymore. Let us know how the scotch tastes on the top of Mt. Hood."

A memorial service will be held at 4:00PM Saturday August 10, 2019 at Anderson's Tribute Center. The family will host dinner and drinks in Norm's honor immediately following the memorial at Taqueria (1210 13th Street – between B and C Streets). In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations to be made to Providence Hospice of the Gorge or Fish Food Bank (C/O Anderson's Tribute Center 1401 Belmont Ave Hood River, OR 97031). Arrangements are under the direction of Anderson's Tribute Center (Funerals • Receptions • Cremations) 1401 Belmont Avenue, Hood River, Oregon 97031.

Notes for Judge Arthur Mumford Smith:

Arthur M. Smith was born September 19, 1903 in Scott, Indiana the son of Ora Lynn and Genevieve Mumford Smith His father was a country lawyer. He attended public schools in Webster Township and Ithaca Michigan and graduated from high school in 1920. He attended the University of Michigan and received an AB degree in 1924 and his LL.B. at the law school of the same institution in 1926. In the same year he was admitted to the Michigan and Illinois bars June 14, 1926. Art Smith married Elizabeth Barbara Allan. They had two children Arthur Allan a lawyer and Caroll Jean (Mrs. Dwight A. Lewis). He had five grandchildren and was a devoted grandfather.

Smith commenced the practice of patent law in Chicago with the firm of Williams, Bradbury, McCaleb & Hinkle, where he stayed until 1929. While there he attended some classes at the Armour Institute of Technology and the University of Chicago. He then moved to Detroit where he practiced general and patent law with the firm of Wiley, Streeter, Smith & Ford as employee and partner until 1931. He then opened his own office in Detroit, practicing by himself until 1933 when he joined the firm of Dike, Calver & Gray, which was succeeded by Gray & Smith until 1946. He then forsook the big city and opened his own office in nearby Dearborn conveniently located near his home in Inkster, Michigan his successive partnerships being Smith & Olsen; Smith, Olsen & Kotts; Smith, Olsen, Lewis & McRae (Lewis was his son-in-law) and Smith, Wilson, Lewis & McRae.

The Smiths lived in Ford country in a marvelously well-constructed house which was one of those which Henry Ford had built for some of his supervisory personnel in his paternalistic fashion demanding the best workmanship. The Smiths became well acquainted with Henry Ford's widow. Arthur collected books about Henry Ford and liked to tell stories about him.

From 1951 through 1959 Arthur Smith lectured on patent law at the University of Michigan Law School, as a result of which he produced first and second editions (1954 and 1964) of his "Patent Law, Cases, Comments & Materials." Another of his well-known writings is "The Art of Writing Readable Patents," done for the Practising Law Institute in 1958.

The nomination of Arthur Smith to be a CCPA judge came about in a strange way. The organized patent bar had recommended a list of patent lawyers to the Administration and Smith was on the list but another man, from Chicago, was initially selected and had neared the end of the selection process at which an FBI check was being run. When Smith heard that he said, "Well I guess that's it." He was in Washington at the time and returned to Dearborn thinking it was all over. Much to his surprise he heard a few days later that the President would like to nominate him. The Chicago man had been the victim of some politically troubling publicity in the Chicago papers which in no way reflected on his qualifications and the Administration decided to drop him and go to the next man on the list.

President Eisenhower sent the nomination of Arthur Smith to the Senate on March 25, 1959, and at the same time nominated Associate Judge Eugene Worley (a Democrat) to be Chief Judge thereby getting credit for nominating at least one judge from the other party. The Senate confirmed both on April 29. On May 4 a regular court hearing day, there was a joint swearing in ceremony in the IRS building courtroom. Mr. Justice Tom Clark had been invited to administer the oath to Judge Worley a fellow Texan. Retired Judge Joe Jackson initially presided since there was no Chief Judge and Acting Chief Judge O Connell (by seniority) had been home ill, or at least away since December 4. Justice Clark first swore in Judge Worley, Judge Jackson holding the Bible thereby creating the Chief Judge who was to hold the office until June 1972. Then Judge Worley administered the oath to Arthur Smith, Judge Rich putting his robe on him. A recess was then declared and the new judges held a reception in the courtroom for their friends. When the guests had departed the court returned to the bench and proceeded with the hearing of arguments in three cases. Judge Jackson sat too to make a fifth because although a vacancy had just been filled an active judge was on the sick list a judge who never returned but whose letter of retirement was not forwarded to the President until April 10, 1962 nearly 3 years later 3 years and 4 months after his last sitting and 8 years after he had become eligible to retire on full pay.

Judge Smith's principal hobby was being a Lincoln scholar. In Michigan he was a member of the Abraham Lincoln Civil War Round Table and in Washington he was a member of the Lincoln Group of Washington and its Vice President 1963-64. He was a member of the speakers bureau of the Lincoln Sesquicentennial Commission. His library contained a considerable quantity of Lincoln material and he was particularly interested in Lincoln's relation to the patent system as a patentee himself and as author of the words inscribed on the Commerce Building where the Patent Office long had its home stating that "The Patent System Added the Fuel of Interest to the Fire of Genius".

Judge Smith was also active in the Metropolitan Methodist Church and a former trustee of the Methodist Union of Greater Detroit. He was an ardent gardener and considered himself just a country boy. One opinion he particularly enjoyed writing is in the case of In re Le Grice 49 CCPA 1124 301 F.2d 929 133 USPQ 365 (1962) having to do with the patenting of a rose plant but involving questions of patent law which were of greater importance later, in the field of chemical patents. It is a long opinion including some poetry. He somehow managed to find the rose involved in the case on the market and planted some bushes in his front yard.

As a member of the Court, Judge Smith took a very active interest in improvements such as the reproduction equipment and court procedures. In February 1965, he went out to sit with the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals and brought back an idea for a written vote sheet to improve upon the system of deciding cases only at conferences. It revolutionized the court's way of doing things and speeded up the decision process. With improvements it is still in use and is a great time saver. Before coming to the court he had become interested in the court's constitutional status through the Michigan Patent Law Association and when the question came up in the Supreme Court he played a very active role in procuring the filing of an amicus brief on behalf of the court. This subject is detailed in the next chapter entitled, "The Article III Episode".

Judge Smith's last case was one of some fame involving a computerized method of analyzing gas mixtures In re Prater 56 CCPA 1360 415 F 2d 1378 159 USPQ 583 (1968). It was argued in May 1968 and handed down the day Judge Smith died November 20, 1968. In other words it had gone over the summer Although a majority had joined the Smith opinion the Chief Judge was trying to have it reargued but a majority would not agree and so on November 20 it was still hung up On learning that Judge Smith had died at 4:00 AM the Chief Judge decided to hand the case down without voting on it himself and appended his two paragraph opinion in which he began by saying.

This appeal was argued May 9, 1968 and assigned to Judge Smith to write the opinion for the court Although Judge Smith had been strongly advised by his doctors to restrict his activities he continued with the wholehearted dedication so typical of him to rewrite and revise an opinion dealing with one of the most technical legal matters ever appealed to this court.

To set the record straight the statement about doctors having advised Judge Smith to restrict his activities which makes it appear that he was a sick man was entirely false. On the authority of his wife he had not been consulting doctors and as far as anyone knew he was well. He died suddenly in his sleep of a coronary occlusion at the age of 65 to the surprise of everyone particularly of the present writer who spent the 19th of November lunching and working with him and spoke to him on the evening of that day by phone. It had been a tense day over problems involving his Prater case created by the Chief Judge but he seemed to be retiring in the evening in a contented state of mind.

Funeral services were held in the Metropolitan Methodist Church on November 21, with a large crowd of admirers in attendance His wife children and mother survived him His present and former lawclerks were his pallbearers Interment was in Dearborn.

Notes for Donald Bruce Keck:

Donald Keck was born in Lansing, Michigan in 1941. As Keck grew up, his father, a physicist, and his mother, a teacher, created an environment that encouraged creativity and learning. During high school, Keck began working for his father's company, where he helped build a number of instruments used to monitor wells and groundwater. After graduating, he enrolled at Michigan State University (MSU) and was going to study electrical engineering. However, a conversation with his father regarding the narrow nature of electrical engineering caused Keck to change his major to physics. He graduated from MSU with a B.S. and an M.S. in physics in 1962 and 1964, respectively.

For his doctoral research, Keck studied molecular spectroscopy with C. D. Hawes and received a Ph.D. in physics in 1967 from MSU. A strong economy meant bright job prospects for the graduate. After visiting several companies and government labs, Keck took a position at Corning Inc. in 1968 working with Robert Maurer. Within a year, the collaborative work of Keck, Maurer and Peter Schultz would make important contributions to fiber optics.

In a series of experiments, the researchers found that adding titanium to fused silica strengthened the glass fiber and enhanced its optical properties. They later doped the glass with germanium. This step reduced the amount of light lost as a signal traveled through the fiber. Their work helped establish optical fiber, rather than copper, as the key conduit to transmit information.

Keck became vice president and executive director of research at Corning where he worked until his retirement in 2002. For their discovery, Keck, Maurer, and Schultz received the National Medal of Technology in 2000. Keck holds 36 patents and has authored more than 150 papers on optical fibers and related topics. During his career, Keck received an honorary degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and was inducted into the National Inventors Hall of Fame. He received the John Tyndall award from OSA and the IEEE/Photonics Society, the U.S. Department of Commerce American Innovator Award, the SPIE Technology Achievement Award, and Laurin Publishing's Distinction in Photonics Award. Keck served as editor-in-chief of the Journal of Lightwave Technology and generously donated his time to the OSA community. Most notable among his contributions: Keck chaired both the Finance Committee and the Executive Committee of OSA's Science and Engineering Council. He also served on the Board of Directors, the Board of Editors, a number of awards committees, and was on the OFC/NFOEC Steering Committee.

After retirement, Keck helped establish the Infotonics Technology Center in Canandaigua, New York. In 2010 the center merged with the Center of Excellence in Nanoelectronics and Nanotechnology. The new entity is known as the Smart System Technology and Commercialization Center.

Corning Glass researchers Robert Maurer, Donald Keck, and Peter Schultz made optical fiber, capable of carrying 65,000 times more information than conventional copper wire, a practical reality.

In 1970 Corning Labs' Robert Maurer (Ph.D. MIT, 1951), Donald Keck (Ph.D. Michigan State University, 1967), and Peter Schultz (Ph.D. Rutgers University, 1967) designed and produced the first optical fiber with optical losses low enough for wide use in telecommunications. Previously, the limiting factor was the amount of light lost during transmission. The key was restricting light loss to 20 decibels per kilometer (at least one percent of the light entering a fiber remains after traveling one kilometer). Scientists around the world had worked on the problem for years to no avail.

Optical fiber is the foundation for the global, multimedia telecommunications network of tomorrow. More than 90 percent of the U.S. long-distance traffic is already carried over optical fiber; more than 25 million kilometers has been installed, virtually all of it using the original design of Maurer, Keck and Schultz.

Invention Impact: The discovery by the group at Corning was quickly recognized as a breakthrough, paving the way for the commercialization of optical fiber and literally creating a revolution in telecommunications.

Inventor Bio: Born January 2, 1941 in Lansing, Michigan, Keck received his B.S. in 1962, M.S. in 1964, and a Ph.D. in 1967, all from Michigan State University. He joined Corning as a research physicist in 1968. He went on to become vice president and executive director of research until his retirement in 2002. In 2000, he received the National Medal of Technology in recognition for his work with Robert Maurer and Peter Schultz.

Dr. Donald B. Keck (born January 2, 1941) is an American research physicist and engineer most noted for his involvement in developing low-loss optical fiber. Keck grew up in Lansing, Michigan and attended Michigan State University, after which he joined Corning Incorporated's research department. As a senior research scientist for Corning, Dr. Keck, along with Robert D. Maurer and Peter C. Schultz, designed the first optical fiber with optical losses low enough for wide use in telecommunications, effectively launching the modern fiber optics industry.

Keck spent the entirety of his professional career at Corning, where he eventually held the position of Vice President and Technology Director of Optical Physics, during which time he guided the company into the field of photonics. For his work with optical fiber, he was inducted into the National Inventors Hall of Fame in 1993, and received the prestigious National Medal of Technology in 2000.

Early life - Donald B. Keck was born on January 2, 1941 in Lansing, Michigan, where he also spent all of his youth. An active and curious child, he participated in the Boy Scouts program throughout his early years. Keck's father, an educated physicist, had great influence over him, encouraging and inspiring his son to engage in scientific pursuits. During his childhood, Keck was surrounded by his father's prisms and lenses at home, spawning his interest in the science of light – his specialty throughout his professional career – at a very young age.

Education - Keck remained in his hometown for college, entering Michigan State University in 1958 with the intention of becoming an electrical engineer. However, during his undergraduate years, he was persuaded by his father to switch disciplines and study physics. As a result, he received his B.S. in Physics in 1962 and his M.S. in Physics in 1964, both from Michigan State. He encountered optical fiber for the first time during his second year as a graduate student, and was immediately fascinated. He subsequently continued his studies, writing his doctorate thesis on infrared spectroscopy, and ultimately received his Ph.D. in Physics from Michigan State in 1967. Keck's time spent at Michigan State was the foundation for his later success, providing him not only with a quality education, but also exposing him to the field of study in which he would later excel. Regarding his doctorate work, Keck said, "The particular thesis work I did revolved around infrared spectroscopy. I learned I like optics. I learned about materials and their different spectral responses. I was ready to hit the ground running at Corning."

Corning Years - After receiving his Ph.D., Keck began looking for a job. The market was booming for physicists in 1967, as both the space exploration and weapons development industries were thriving. Keck received numerous job offers, and had no intention of working for Corning until a recruiter visited the Michigan State campus and displayed a bundle of optical fiber. Intrigued by the fiber, Keck visited Corning Incorporated in Corning, New York, and met with Dr. Robert Maurer, who discussed Corning's optical fiber development project and its goal of building a low-loss optical waveguide suitable for transmitting data. After listening to Maurer, Keck accepted an offer from Corning, moved to New York, and began work as a senior research scientist on the project in January 1968.

Optical Fiber - In the early 1960s, demand emerged for a new telephone wire technology. Copper cables, which were the state-of-the-art at the time, were being pushed to their limit, as more and more telephone calls were being made. An international effort began to find the next great data transmission technology.

Initially, optical fibers – glass or plastic fibers which carry data in the form of light – were of little consideration for the job of replacing copper wires. The fibers that existed in the 1960s were high-loss; while they directed the light, they also absorbed so much of it that little of its signal remained after a few meters, rendering them useless for long-distance telecommunications. However, Robert Maurer, Keck's boss, believed low-loss optical fiber could be produced, and made its invention his goal. Maurer's goal was to invent a fiber with a loss, or attenuation, of 20 decibels per kilometer (db/km). At the time of Keck's hiring, the best optical fibers had attenuations of 200 to 1000 db/km.

Corning's Optical Wave Guide Project team, composed of Maurer, also a physicist, Keck, and Peter C. Schultz, a chemist, approached the task differently than other researchers. Instead of trying to improve upon existing fibers by using better raw materials, Maurer sought to explore the capabilities of new materials, including pure silica. The team devised a division of labor, where Maurer focused on physics, Schultz developed new types of glass, and Keck turned this glass into fiber.

They started work on the project as soon as Keck arrived at the beginning of 1968, and had little early success. They experimented with different glass compositions and methods of heating the glass. Finally, in August 1970, the team found their breakthrough moment: late one afternoon, after both Maurer and Schultz had left for the day, Keck took measurements of the newest batch of fibers he had heat-treated. When Keck noticed the light passed through the 65 foot fiber seemingly without any loss, he exclaimed "Good grief, what do I have here?" Keck took more measurements of the fiber, and discovered it had an attenuation of 16 db/km, exceeding the goal of 20 db/km. Upon this discovery, Keck wrote in his laboratory notebook, "Attenuation equals 16 db it says. Eureka," followed by an exclamatory "Whoopee!". Keck and his team had invented the first low-loss optical fiber; it was composed of heat-treated titanium-doped silica. Papers were written and patents were filed, and Corning introduced the fiber to the outside world, but it would take another 10 years before the telecommunications industry began utilizing their invention.

In the meantime, Keck continued to improve upon the fiber he had invented. He replaced the titanium-oxide glass of 1970 with germanium-oxide doped glass, and eventually achieved a consistent 4 db/km attenuation in June 1972. By the end of the 1970s, Keck had four critical inventions which secured Corning's place as frontrunner in the optical fiber revolution: fused silica doped with titanium; fused silica doped with germanium; the inside vapor deposition, or IV process, for making fiber; and the outside vapor deposition, or OV process, for making fiber, which would ultimately become the leading manufacturing method.

By 1979, Corning was mass producing the refined optical fiber invented by Keck in Wilmington, North Carolina. In the early 1980s, the telecom company MCI placed an order with Corning for 100,000 km of fiber a year, in effect signaling that the telecommunications industry had finally realized the revolutionary potential of Keck's invention. Today, more than 90% of long-distance data in the United States is now sent through the optical fiber Keck and his team designed and produced. Optical fibers, which can now carry 65,000 times more information than the copper wires they replaced, ultimately allowed for the development of the Internet in the early 1990s.

Later Work - After his initial success with low-loss optical fiber, Keck continued working with Corning to make optical communications more viable. Keck was responsible for inventing numerous optical couplers and splitters, which greatly extended the applications of optical fiber. He was elected Editor-in-Chief of the industry-leading Journal of Lightwave Technology in 1989, a position he held until 1994.

Moreover, Keck began to rise within the corporate ladder at Corning. After beginning as a senior research scientist in 1968, almost 30 years later, in April 1997, Corning appointed Keck the Division Vice President of Core Technology, Optics and Photonics – Science and Technology. During his management tenure, Keck was a key figure in establishing Corning's modern innovation ethos, and also helped guide Corning into the emerging field of photonics. By the end of his tenure with Corning, Keck was well-regarded in the scientific community as an expert within the fields of molecular spectroscopy, gradient and aspheric optics, guided-wave optics, fiber sensors and optical fiber waveguides, and research management.

After Corning - Keck retired from Corning in 2002, after spending 34 years with the company. Throughout his career, he served the company in numerous capacities, and at the time of his retirement he held the position of Vice President and Director of Research. Immediately after his retirement, Keck helped establish the Infotonics Technology Center in Canandaigua (town), New York, a collaborative organization between private industry and government focused on photonics and nanotechnology innovation. Due to his expertise in both photonics and research management, he was elected the first Chief Technology Officer of Infotonics, a position he held briefly.

Dr. Keck and his wife, Ruth Keck, currently reside in Big Flats, New York, outside of Corning, New York. He has two adult children, both of whom are also involved in technological fields: Lynne Vaia, a civil engineer, and Brian Keck, a software expert. He is involved in local philanthropy in Corning, holding board membership for the American Red Cross, the Community Foundation, and the Science Center. In addition to still consulting for Infotonics, Keck remains active in the science community, serving on the oversight board for the National Institute of Standards and Technology, the IPO Education Foundation Board of Directors, as well as holding the position of Vice-Chair of the National Inventors Hall of Fame Board of Directors. Furthermore, Keck is a benefactor of his alma mater, Michigan State University, where he also currently sits on the Advisory Board for the university's College of Natural Science, of which he was a graduate.

Oral History Transcript - Dr. Donald Keck:

Interviewed by: Tom Lassman Location: Corning, New York Interview date: November 2, 2004
Lassman: This is Tom Lassman here with Dr. Donald Keck, in Corning, New York, on November 2, Election Day, 2004, for an autobiographical interview. Thank you for taking the time to participate in the interview. I will start with some family background. You were born in 1941, in Lansing, Michigan? And, if you could give me a little background on your family history there, father's occupation background, mother's background and occupation?

Keck: Well, the background is so terribly important in weighing the foundation for what a person does in their career. My father was a physicist himself. There's rich rich history and content in his life, as well. He had studied at Michigan State University. Back in those days, you didn't often go right to school after you graduated from high school. He graduated as valedictorian. My dad graduated, as I said, as valedictorian of his class and then had to work a couple of years before he went to school.

Lassman: And, what's the time period for this?

Keck: He, well, he was born November 2, or November 1, 1905. So, he would have been ninety-nine this year. Died three years ago. Ninety-six and a half. Three years. No, two years ago, 2002. At any rate, he went to Michigan State, studied electrical engineering at Michigan State, was interested in science from the get go. He had five other siblings, one of whom went to college. The others, well the other, the other brother didn't, he was a farmer. Two of his sisters went to college. So, there was a history in the Germanic family of going to college. And, this was perhaps not that typical in those days. But, the Keck family believed in education, and very strongly so. So, he worked two years, put himself through school. He met my mother in East Lansing. She was born in East Lansing, grew up there, outside of East Lansing.

Lassman: Were your mother and father first generation born in America — how far back did they go?

Keck: My mother was second or third generation. My dad, my dad's mother came over from Germany when she was seven years old. My grandfather, on his, on my dad's side, had been here one generation already, and had participated in the family business in the Ann Arbor area.

Lassman: And, what was that business?

Keck: Well, there was a Keck furniture firm that was a major employer in Ann Arbor, Michigan. I don't know when it was founded, but they had a thriving furniture business in Ann Arbor, Michigan, and my grandfather worked as part of that. And, later he went into agriculture in Utica, Michigan. That's where my dad grew up. So, he went through school in electrical engineering and then taught at Michigan State University, taught in the physics department for a number of years. And by then he had gotten a masters degree, had studied with the geology department at Michigan State, and was gravitating toward geophysics as a career. That was not at all a typical profession in those days.

Lassman: This would have been in the 1920s?

Keck: Yes. 1926. Twenty-six he graduated from Michigan State. So he had a number of positions after that. He worked for a period of time, got into geophysical prospecting with Dow Chemical, and Pure Oil prior to the Depression.

Lassman: So, this was after he was done teaching?

Keck: After he had — I misspoke. I've got the history a little bit wrong. His teaching came after he came back from the Pure Oil exploration geophysical tour in Venezuela.

Lassman: How did he get to Dow Chemical?

Keck: After he graduated from Michigan State he eventually got into earth resistivity in a geophysical sense. And, I'm trying to remember whether he did the — he was already into geophysics at the time that he got the job at Dow Chemical.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: The number of scientists that were going into industrial firms — again, this was early in that evolution when industrial firms were recognizing the benefit of having trained scientists on their staffs in various capacities. At any rate, my father had spent some time at Dow Chemical. And, then went to Pure Oil, and did exploration, geophysics in Venezuela looking for oil, prior to the Depression. So, it was 1927, 1928, somewhere in that general time frame.

Lassman: Was Pure Oil a separate company?

Keck: Yes, as far as I know, it was not connected with Dow Chemical, if that's your question?

Lassman: When he was at Dow was there a research laboratory where he was working?

Keck: I think so.

Keck: He went, for a couple of years down to Venezuela prospecting for oil, for Pure Oil.

Lassman: And, what were the techniques at that time?

Keck: Well, he had worked with a gentleman by the name of Bill Rooney. I'm trying to remember where he came from. But, he was a physicist, and he had developed some earth resistivity measuring techniques looking at strata in the earth. That was apparently beginning to be used in the prospecting for oil reserves.

So, my dad led a small team down to Venezuela and for a couple of years they prospected in the Lake Maracaibo area, south of that. And, about that time the Depression hit, and Pure Oil called them back. During the Depression, he did various and sundry things like everybody did. One of the interesting things was — pearl buttons were the rage back in those days, and he picked up clams along the Muskegon River in Michigan, with the gentleman that he went to Venezuela with, a gentleman by the name of Frank Betz. And, Frank became a longtime family friend over the years. I knew him as we were growing up, as I was growing up. But, they'd collect clamshells in the Muskegon River and then drill buttons out of them and sell those for the clothing industry, because pearl buttons were a big deal. Somewhere around here [Laugh] I've got a bunch of pearl buttons and belt buckles. But, after the Depression he then taught at Michigan State.

Lassman: Did he go back for more training?

Keck: Well, not quite yet.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: He was at Michigan State with a masters degree, teaching in the physics department. And it must have been then in the, late '30s that Michigan State began to try and upgrade their physics department. They hired a young professor who had just gotten his PhD from, I believe, Iowa, or Iowa State. One or the other. A gentleman by the name of C.D. Hawes. And, that'll come back later on. And, they had to make room for this person on the faculty. And, Hawes had a PhD, and my father didn't. So, basically he was dismissed. They offered him some sort of a teaching position, but he was clearly not a tenure-track faculty. So, it was at that point that he decided to go on for a PhD, and he went to the University of Michigan, eventually getting his PhD in 1941.

Lassman: In what?

Keck: In physics.

Lassman: In what specific areas?

Keck: Well, he again, pursued this notion of earth resistivity, and developed some of the offshoots of the so-called Tice equations, basically solving Green's function in the earth, and did a joint thesis between the geology department and the physics department, at the University of Michigan. But, his degree was from the Rankin school, at the University of Michigan. And, I recall that at the time he said that S.A. Goudsmit was on the faculty at the University of Michigan and that he had studied under Goudsmit for one of his courses, I guess the electricity magnetism course. But, later on, as I studied physics of course, that name came up. And, so, that was kind of an interesting piece of family history.

Lassman: Can I just interject a couple of questions?

Keck: Sure.

Lassman: You mentioned that when your father went back to Michigan State that the physics department was in the process of upgrading itself? Do, you know a little bit more about what that context was?

Keck: It's in that treatise that he wrote. So, I can try and dig that out over the lunch hour, or a break, or whatever, and we can go through that a little bit.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: He did delve into that a little bit.

Lassman: That's fine.

Keck: As to who the chairman of the department was, and that information is in there.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: [137]

Lassman: And then, the other question I have is about the research that he was doing when he was going back for his PhD. What was actually happening within geophysics? Was he taking a more mathematical approach to prospecting? Was it becoming more professionalized in that sense? I'm just trying to get a sense of what the strands of research were in that time.

Keck: He tended to be more on the experimental side, which is, frankly, where I gravitated as well. But, he did develop a theoretical background for geophysics. All I remember is the so-called Tice equations that somehow — well, I think they're associated with earth resistivity. But, now having said that, they may have more to do with diffusivity in an aquifer. So, I may not get (or be?) too definitive on that.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: He did, he eventually did both of those things. After he got his PhD in '41, of course, the war was on. And, he went to the Naval Ordnance Laboratory in Washington, and the family moved down there. He got his PhD, I think, in December of '41, and I was born in January of '41. I was almost a year old by the time he actually got his doctorate. I have no idea where the monies came for that. I never did ask. He had earned, certainly, some with Dow Chemical and Pure Oil, and I suspect there was some of the Germanic tradition of saving money and so on. So there was never a debt associated with his college, as far as I am aware, for either he nor my mother.

Lassman: Did your mother also work?

Keck: She went to Michigan State. She studied English literature for the most part. Eventually taught school, got a teaching certificate, and taught school in Michigan. She stopped that when they moved to Washington, and I was born by that time. She basically became a housewife at that time and raised the family. In Washington, my dad used some of the same measurement techniques that he used in earth resistivity, basically a bridge measuring technique to for submarine warfare. And, apparently, they were looking to put sensors across the entryway to the harbors along the coastline, during the war, to detect infiltration of submarines. It was looking at the electrical potential that's developed between metals and seawater. They could pick up the minute potential by passing the current through the seawater and then looking for changes in that, at the bridge points. It was a four-point measurement system. He did that through the war. When the war was over, he returned to East Lansing, which was my mother's home, and at that point he started a private consulting business in geophysics.

There's a company now called Keck & Associates that he started when I was in high school around 1957. And, in fact, I worked for the company and developed a lot of the things that I learned how to do, as part of that, and under his mentorship. It was a wonderful experience growing up. My dad was just an excellent excellent teacher. And, at lunchtime, he and I would talk and he'd pose problems and then help me through to a solution of various mindbender types of problems and so on. It was just a rich environment to train, to mentor, a budding scientist. In many respects it was perfectly natural that I was going to gravitate into some field of science. I remember — I don't know how the story got back to me, but probably when I was first going to school, you know, kindergarten or first grade, or some grown-up asking what I was going to be, and I said I was going to be a geophysicist, and they didn't know that I knew the word, let alone what a geophysicist was. But, at any rate, it was just part of the growing up in that environment. And my mother was very strong on education. Obviously, very learned, and both of them were avid readers, and so I wound up doing a lot of reading as I was growing up. And for some reason or other, I've, I do more of my learning by oral techniques now than reading, but back then I did a lot of reading.

Lassman: You mentioned when your father came back to East Lansing in 1945, he started his consulting business? Was he consulting to the big oil companies?

Keck: No. He took an entrepreneurial approach. I don't know exactly how he got into it, but there may have been a gentleman by the name of John Farris, that worked for the State Geological Survey, the State of Michigan Geological Survey. I remember him coming to the house — I was in elementary school — and talking often with my dad, and asking questions and so on. And eventually, he got into the field of groundwater hydrology. He still used the same prospecting techniques that had grown up in the oil industry, but to look and be able to predict where you might, what strata you might find water in, and he eventually built that business. His primary client was the Layne Company, or a whole host of Layne companies that specialize in drilling wells for cities and municipalities. Layne Northern was the one in Michigan, but there's Layne New York, and Layne Florida, and Layne Northwest, and a whole host of Layne companies that had sprung up. And so, he wound up being essentially retained by them as his primary consulting service.

Eventually he started the company Keck & Associates, and started a two-prong company. One was the consulting business that would analyze geophysical data, resistivity data, electrical logging of wells, gamma ray logging of wells to ascertain what the geologic strata was, and then knowing the strata and the permeability of the strata he developed — and this is probably where these Tice equations come in, now that I think about it, having to do with diffusivity through permeable strata. Given the strata you solve the differential equation to predict the drawdown cone if a city started pumping, you know, a million gallons of water a day out of the thing, how far out does that cone stand in the surrounding countryside. He specialized in, as I was growing up, how you got water out of the aquifer. Jumping way ahead, when he sold the company to a young geologist, Bob Minning, at that time, environmental issues were the rage, and it was just the reverse. You wanted to know, if you dumped some stuff, where it was going to go.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: So, you turned the equations around and went the other way, which I always found somewhat interesting. He consulted for many municipalities through this Layne company, and eventually through International Water Supply in Canada, another large client, based out of — outside Toronto. At any rate, as these water demands from cities got bigger and bigger, why the litigation started cropping up, and so he wound up having to testify in courts of law as to — was a city impairing “Joe’s” well two miles outside the city when “Joe” suddenly ran out of water? That part he really didn’t much care for. But, the other part of Keck & Associates that I got involved with as a high school student — he began to build these instruments for the water industry that large companies like Schlumberger had for oil prospecting. They had all sorts of electric logging, and gamma ray logging, and multi-channels, and all sorts of things. My dad essentially, well innovated — I won’t say invented — the corresponding instrument for use by the small well companies. We built earth resistivity instruments that we then sold to the Layne companies, or anybody for that matter. I had a hand in building and developing a gamma ray logger. We put one of those together. We tried to build a seismograph. Seismometry was beginning to start finding a way into the groundwater industry. I built a little water-level recorder; recording the drawdown cone in wells was a big deal. You’d have little test wells and often they were small bore and the question is, “how do you go out and measure the depth to water as a function of time, while you pumped the primary well?” We built these little things that had a bob that went down and when it contacted the water’s surface it completed the circuit around through the earth, and we just set a little sensor circuit that would, if it, if the water went away why a motor would drop it down until it contacted again, and then it would sit there — or the other way around, the motor would wind it back up if the water level came back up. So, my first industrial experience was working for my dad’s company as a high school student, and later as a college student.

Lassman:Were these batch production instruments, or did you mass ...?

Keck:One of a kind.

Lassman:I see. Did that ever expand to manufacturing?

Keck:Eventually. Eventually Keck & Associates — well, I guess in its heyday it probably had twenty, twenty-five people, half of them doing the consulting part, and half of them doing the instrument building part. But, it was not a big, big industry, or big market or anything like that.

Lassman:On the consulting side, were they PhD physicists? Did your father recruit scientists?

Keck:No. Bob Minning had a masters degree, and a couple of the people he trained. Colleges weren’t teaching this sort of a curriculum, so it was essential on-the-job training. The Layne Company had a young fellow that wanted to get into this, and my dad took him under his wing. He was always a tremendous fan of education.

Lassman:Did he continue to teach, by the way, while he was in this business?

Keck:No.

Lassman:I mean formally.

Keck:To people like me. Yes. Not formally, no. But, I can’t tell you the number of people that he would slip money to for them to continue their education. I had a cousin that, well two cousins that I’m sure he subsidized heavily. Then he had a young fellow that worked with Keck & Associates, well two of them in one family, and he encouraged them and helped fund their college. And then a young fellow that was going to Michigan State that was putting himself through school doing odd jobs, wound up helping my dad prune trees when he was beginning — after my dad had retired and was in his seventies. And, he basically loaned him the money to go through school. Education was always high on the family hit parade.

Lassman:You mentioned siblings, and I want to make sure we go into this a little bit more. Were there any siblings who came into the business?

Keck:No.

Lassman:What were their backgrounds?

Keck:He had six brothers and sisters. My mother was an only child. One of my dad’s brothers, the oldest, got a masters degree and eventually became a professor at Michigan Technological University. In fact, he came up with a float process for extracting copper from ore that I believe is still, or was, some years back, still being used. He was the first in the family to become educated. My dad was the second to the youngest. The eldest daughter didn’t go to school. The next brother studied a little bit, but I don’t believe ever graduated. He studied agriculture, and eventually had a large fruit farm in the Detroit area. The next sister became a teacher and taught for many many years in the Detroit school system. And then my dad, and then the youngest sister became a pharmacist, but she and her husband had a pharmacy in the Detroit area. My mother was an only child, grew up on a farm, as did my dad. They were accustomed to hard work. And, one of my dad's favorite sayings was, "count that day as lost whose low descending sun, sees not from your hand some useful labor done." So, that was a kind of a mantra that I grew up with. And he came from the farm background. And I sort of growing up, prided myself that all my cousins were on farms. We'd go out, and Sunday dinners, and holiday gatherings, and so on, and you were always interacting with the farm community and so it became second nature to me to enjoy that sort of life, as well as the life that my dad was creating vis-a-vis his professional career. I had always, as I say, prided myself on being able to associate with all sorts of sociological strata, and I think that was an important trait as I evolved in my career.

Lassman: Now to focus on your childhood activities, and hobbies. Are there any things that stand out?

Keck: You asked about siblings. I, there was one brother that died, that was born two years before I was, and died two weeks after birth. And, at that time, the Rh factor was not well known. And, it turned out my dad and mother had conflicting Rh blood factors. I don't know whether that was the case in Ronnie's death or not, but in some sense I'm a bit lucky to even be here.

Lassman: Do you have other siblings?

Keck: No. I'm an only child. They, I guess they, after Ronnie died they learned about the Rh factor and basically decided that it just wasn't appropriate to continue to have more in the family, or try to. It would be too risky.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: I'm, I'm guessing. I don't know. So, my childhood, activities, hobbies, and so on. Where to start? Well, one of the other neat features of my growing up was that I grew up next door to my maternal grandparents. Paternal grandparents were in Detroit, so we'd go down there and visit them maybe every couple of months. Believe it or not, it was quite an ordeal to drive to Detroit.

Lassman: Was East Lansing primarily an agricultural community, removed from the big city?

Keck: Well, no. Lansing, at the time that I was growing up, was probably 50,000 people. It's probably now, it may be pushing a million. In East Lansing, the population came and went with the terms on campus. In the summer, it was pretty deserted. Well, we can get into that perhaps a little bit later. I wouldn't say it was a rural community. Clearly my relatives had farms on the outskirts; Grand Ledge, and so on, so there's lot of rich farmland around the area. But, I grew up a quarter mile east of the Michigan State campus. And, as I say, my grandparents, maternal grandparents lived next door. My grandfather was a very big influence on my life, as well as my father. My father, of course, brought in the professional and the engineering side. My grandfather never went to college, but he could do almost anything. The man had worked with his hands, had done every type of skilled labor in his lifetime, had been a fire chief, had been a deputy sheriff. I was constantly in awe of him as I was growing up learning how the world worked. But, his last jobs were as a carpenter. And so, he had a wonderful set of tools, and could make lots of things; as could my dad, he was a very skilled craftsman as well.

He could do woodworking, but also developed the ability to do machine, metalworking, and things like that, as well as the electrical and electronics and things like that. But my grandfather had obviously come from that agricultural side. So, one of the family mantras was, well, you didn't buy something if you could make it. Any number of tools they would make. My dad made a jigsaw. My grandfather had a homemade drill press. And, his shop at home had — you see the old factories with the long power bar, a motor at one end turning the long rod, and then you got pulleys. His shop had that. A drill press was connected to one. You unhooked the belt or hooked it up depending on what machine you wanted to run. It was always fascinating to be around my grandfather, and learn how to do things. And, we had a tractor, and had five acres on the Red Cedar River. Over time, we developed the low lying land along the river, pulled out all the willows and brush, and eventually created a large pond there that we kids skated on in the winter when I was in high school.

Lassman: Let's move on to your development of interest in science technology, mathematics. You mentioned your father had a profound impact on that?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: Were there tinkering? You mentioned chemistry sets, things like that? Books that you read?

Keck: Yes. My dad had, for his consulting business, he had assembled not only a rich chemistry lab, but also an electronics shop. We had an oscilloscope in the house, which was virtually unheard of today, a Dumont Oscilloscope. I think Dumont was one of the first. Well, it sprang out of radarscopes during World War II, and they gravitated into the scientific instrument business with the oscilloscopes.

Keck:I remember this big green oscilloscope. And, we'd hook up microphones to it and my dad would show me my signature coming out of the carbon microphones. I mentioned, this early notion that I was going to be a geophysicist, and that must have been kindergarten or first grade that I had this realization. My dad had all these things in the basement, and I would constantly be watching him do some experiment, or solder something together, and so I began picking up some of those same sorts of things. Lassman:Let me just switch the tape over.

Keck:Had an erector set I remember that they got me early on, and enjoyed in fabricating things away from the drawings that they'd give you. They'd say, "Build this. Build that." And, I didn't want to do that. I'd try and develop some things on my own. It must have been some sort of a science fair, maybe, about the time I was in sixth grade, so what would that have been, 1953? I built a motor. I had an electric train. I got it for Christmas. I had a transformer as part of the train, and my dad sort of sketched out what this motor should look like, and I remember it took a big spike, the largest one we could find, that was the shaft of my motor, a nail. A sixteen penny nail, or something like that, and cut the head off it, and that became the shaft of the motor, and it had a metal magnetic, the oscillating – what do I want to call it? It's not the armature. The starter on a motor, and I wound the coils. My dad had copper wire laying around as part of his activities in building these instruments [for his business]. And that motor, we first hooked it up with batteries, and then I eventually put it on the, on my electric train transformer. That was one of the first things to begin learning about commutators, and magnetics, and electricity, and so on. I've forgotten when my dad — I remember him teaching me the physics of a curve ball. I did sports and all sorts of things growing up. I wasn't totally obsessed with science as some, some of our learned and notable scientists are. I led a pretty standard kid's life, as I was growing up. Sports were big for me. Baseball was big. Soccer was not yet commonly seen in this country.

Lassman:Were there any books that you read as a child that were particularly influential, that guided your interest in science and technology?

Keck:Well, I remember the first science books that we got, must have been first grade or second grade, were fascinating and they were kind of generalist types of science books.

Lassman:Books that you had in school?

Keck:Yes. They were the things that interested me most in school. I can't say that I remember any science books.

Lassman:Popular books?

Keck:I remember reading the stories of dogs, as I was growing up. As I say, I enjoyed sports. There was a book that we counted the stories of a number of sports, of baseball notables. And, I enjoyed that. My mother had me reading in the Tom Sawyers, and things along that line. But, I don't remember that there were that many science books. We went to the library every now and again. I can't tell you the books that I remember taking out of the library. Well, at any rate, there was a hobby show that existed in Michigan. It was put on by Oldsmobile, as I was growing up, and I remember going to that and seeing all the things that kids were building. And, sometimes I'd go home and try and duplicate — it was a science fair — duplicate some of the things they had. I never entered it, and I don't know why. What else did we do growing up?

Lassman:What about religious orientation in the household and in the community; was that an important part of life?

Keck:Yes. My dad had been raised a staunch Lutheran, but as he got into college he and my mother began attending an interdenominational church, the People's Church, in East Lansing. Probably about the time that I was just beginning high school, there was a branch of that church that began in our neighborhood, close to our neighborhood, Edgewood United Church of Christ. That became the church that I attended during the formative years, high school and early college. Very much interdenominational, Protestant. I do remember as I was growing up that I thought that Catholicism was the favored religion and the Protestants were in the minority. But, little did I know, I guess. At any rate, we always had salmon loaf on Friday at school, and I hated salmon ever since that day. What other things did I do? Well I always enjoyed creating things. It was the only thing I can think of at this point. Model railroading was of interest to me, and more or less so from just buying the parts, but more on instrumenting the layout. It was probably in, again, fifth, sixth, seventh grades, that I had a layout down in the basement. I learned some of my first experiences with household power by blowing several fuses, reconnecting the wrong thing to the fuse box, and shorting things out.

So, you began to gradually learn through experience. But, my folks — they didn't ignore me by any means, but they let me try lots of things. They encouraged me to take things apart, see how they worked. So, from probably fifth grade on, if something broke in the house, first, my dad would take it apart. He'd see how things were put together, and then gradually he was busy consulting, so my mother would bring the thing to me and said, "Can you see if you can fix the coffee pot, or fix the toaster?" Or, fix this that, and the other thing." I wound up always tearing things apart and had the shop and everything there to do all of that. I've thought since then, one of the features of the National Inventor's Hall of Fame is they have a training area at the Akron Hall, where kids can come in and barter to, they bring something from home and they get so many credits for a piece of old equipment that's broken and then, kids will tear it apart and they'll get a coil for this, and begin to make stuff on their own. I always thought that was just a wonderful wonderful thing, because that was clearly one of the things that I enjoyed doing. I think it helped in my later career, of not being afraid to try something different, and tear it apart, and see how it works, and then put it back together and try and improve upon it.

Lassman:I see.

Keck:Cardboard boxes were important, again there's this creativity thing. I didn't have a lot of store-bought toys. You made your own. I loved cardboard boxes, and I'd cut holes in them and make crawl spaces, and make buildings for my model railroad set, as well as lots of electrical stuff. I built myself a big control panel for my model railroad set with all sorts of switches. Loved lots of switches and lights everywhere, and hooking things up.

Lassman:This would be a good point to jump into your high school time period. This would have been around the early to mid '50s that you entered high school?

Keck:Yes. I graduated in 1958, so I was a freshman in '53-'54.

Lassman:I'd like you to talk a little bit about your high school experience, if there were any mentors you had. Peer group, and so on, focusing on your interest in science and technology and broadening out to other areas of interest.

Keck:Math was always of interest to me, and it came easily to me. I enjoyed it all the way through elementary school. I remember somewhere in high school, well we had a, what I considered an excellent math teacher, Mrs. Kelly, Ruth Kelly. She just had a very good way of teaching math. I recall one day that a class was giving her lots of trouble, and she made some comment about how... They had already separated us into college preparatory and the vocational students, which I didn't really comprehend, I don't think, at that time. But, nevertheless, there was a tracking that they were doing with students.

Lassman:Was that vocational to go into local industries?

Keck:Yes. That sort of thing. I recall. Oh Sure. Mrs. Kelly was chastising our class because we were too boisterous and weren't learning, and so on, and she said, "You have geniuses in this class and it's a shame." And, I made some comment and she said, "Donald, you're the last person that should be making a comment like that." And, everybody interpreted that I was one of the people that had an IQ test that had scored at the genius level, and I don't know whether that was true or not, but I remember it. As I said, the math just seemed to come easily to me. And, perhaps it was her teaching techniques, but I enjoyed it, and I did well in math. I did terribly in English. Much to my mother's chagrin. One of the laments that I've had since then was that I enjoyed history in elementary and junior high, and then in high school I didn't pay enough attention, or didn't enjoy it. I don't know whether it was the teacher, or what, but I've often thought that that was one of the subjects that young people really need to learn more about. All the things we don't know in this world is the history that we don't understand. Harry Truman, I believe said, made some quote like that. I might perhaps come back to that later on. But history is so important in all that we do, and clearly in the sciences. I mean, if we don't understand what's gone before you how do you build on it and carry it to the next level? So Mrs. Kelly had a major impact on me.

Lassman:Was this a large high school? Our graduating class was fifty-eight, in 1958. I did not distinguish myself in high school. I graduated in the middle of the class. I enjoyed things, extracurricular activities. We did the normal things of dividing into boys and girls. But there was the group from, well the agricultural side, the rural part, and then there was the group that were growing up in the brand new subdivisions that Oldsmobile executives populated. They were the professional haves versus the have-nots. I recall that I had friends across the spectrum. One of my best friends later became best man in our wedding, Roger Shaw. He was scientifically inclined; engineering eventually was what he gravitated into. No I can't really say that — there were scientifically minded folks in both camps. I was going to say that more of the rural folks were destined to become the scientists and the engineers, compared to the professionals, but I can't really make that generalization in my high school. There were some in both camps. But, in my high school so much of it had come easy for me up through the seventh grade anyway. The eighth grade was probably the spot where I started thinking I had it made and sloughed off. I didn't particularly pay attention to the schoolwork. But Mrs. Kelly had an impact. And then, it may have been my freshman year, a new science, physics and chemistry teacher came to the high school, to [761] High School, Mr. Walbridge. He had a significant impact on me.

Lassman:How so?

Keck:Well, on two counts. Again, as I went through high school the only sport that I participated in — I was too short for basketball and too small for football, and so baseball was the only major sport that I played. And I wanted to pitch. I grew up next door to my best friend, Rich Belknap. And his dad had been a minor league ball player, a pitcher, in fact. And he'd go out evenings and hit fly balls to us, and teach us some of the intricacies of the game of baseball. I wanted to be a baseball player. And, somewhere along, in my growing up, my dad, I remember it vividly, he was running his consulting business and I came into the house and had been frustrated playing baseball and I said, "Dad, how do you throw a curve ball? What makes a baseball curve?" And, he took time out from the middle of the day, from work, and he was a magnificent artist, and he drew the baseball and showed the pressure differentials and the spinning ball, and Bernoulli, and so on. He didn't give me all those names, but basically told me the physics behind the baseball, and why it curved. And, so in high school, I didn't have a lot of speed but I had a wicked curve ball. And, in fact, I was trying to find the article this morning. I either threw a no-hitter or a one-hitter against one of the neighboring teams my senior year. I was our pitcher in my senior year. Batted 0.440. And, so as I say I got involved in lots of stuff associated with sports. Well, and the other thing I enjoyed were the extracurriculars. I got heavily involved in doing anything but schoolwork. So, there was an Audio Visual Club and we showed movies and ran the tape recorders and did all the electrical stuff, and so I naturally gravitated to that.

Lassman:That makes me think of this time period when you're in high school in the '50s, on the larger scale we're seeing this transition from vacuum tubes to solid-state.

Keck:Yes. One of my term papers was on the transistor. For high school English. I don't remember whether it was my junior year or my senior term paper, but one of the other of those years the transistor had just recently been invented by Shockley and Bardeen, and my dad had told me that John Bardeen was at the — I believe it was Bardeen — was at the Naval Ordinance Lab with him during the war. That's when he had known him. Again, interesting ties there, the relatively small scientific community that existed.

Lassman:Did you tinker with tubes and solid transistors, and that type of...?

Keck:Well, yes. Now, I'm glad you said that. I had totally forgotten. I made, I don't want to call it an organ, but a transistor that would oscillate different frequencies depending on what resistor you put in the base lead. I made little switches out of cutting up a tin can and stapling them on a board and had a rivet. When you pressed the tin can down and the tab on the thing would make contact and beep at one frequency and then the next one would beep at a different one. And I had, I guess I had eight notes.

Lassman:Did you do that at home?

Keck:Yes. Did that at home. And, that was in high school. Must have been early high school, because it was a crude, crude thing. I think that was before the term paper on the transistor. Well, I've lost it at this point. But, I should have injected that vis-a-vis hobbies and interests — my mother was a fan of breadth of knowledge; don't become too specialized too early. And so we bought a piano. It must have been fourth or fifth grade, I think, when I started taking piano lessons. Mrs. Schneider was the typical epitome of piano teachers back in those days. The person you think of with the ruler to slap your knuckles if you don't keep your fingers arched. But, I had good finger technique and so on, and I took lessons from her for six years. I can't remember when I stopped, but it must have been in junior high school. Well, fourth through eighth is only four years. Maybe I started in third grade.

Well, at any rate, I had taken six years of piano lessons and had gotten to a point where I could sight-read pretty well, and did enjoy it. I wasn't going to win any competitions or anything like that, but I do recall my music teacher, piano teacher needed to get accredited and so I had to perform before the Michigan State music faculty judging her ability to teach by playing pieces over at the campus. So, music eventually became important to me, and later on, interestingly, well Jim Hillier [of RCA], in fact, was one of the guys that was chatting about it. A great many of the inventors in the National Inventor's Hall of Fame also are very musically inclined. There is an affinity between science and musical arts for whatever reason. At any rate, that certainly came home to me later on. Another thing that I should mention, growing up, again my dad was —, “invent something. Don’t buy it, make it.” And, he could think of all sorts of ways to make money. And so, I was constantly challenged to try out some of these things.

One of the things that he had done early on was to reclaim silver from photographic solution. Back in the days lots of film — silver had precipitates coming out of the film processing and before you put electrochemical cells in the tank to automatically reclaim the silver, they were flushing all sorts of silver down the drain at the processing laboratories. My dad had this notion that if you picked this stuff up, in particular from x-rays, big plates, there was a lot of silver to be had. I’m sure it was the Depression mindset that trained him to this sort of thing. He had done some reclaiming of silver from photographic solutions. I remember then going around with him to pick up the “hypo” (sodium thiosulphate) solutions from, in particular, the tuberculosis sanitarium that existed in East Lansing or Lansing at the time. We had built a big box and lined it with plastic and we’d go with pails and pick up the hypo solutions from the sanitarium, carry it to this tank in the trunk of the car. Corrosive stuff. Then we’d go home. We have a cover on it but it always had sloshed out and so there were rust holes in the trunk of our car. But then you’d pass it through steel wool and you’d get a chemical replacement reaction taking place of silver. It takes the place of the iron in the steel wool, and you get silver wool.

Lassman:How much did you accumulate?

Keck:Well, as I was growing up, he had done this for a period and then had stopped. I guess I must have been in high school. And he encouraged me: “You need spending money, right? So, why don’t you try this?” So, I learned all about this. I remember going out to a junkyard and I got a big bathtub, an old bathtub, and brought it down in the basement. A steel, porcelain-lined bathtub. And I caulked up the outlets with tar, I think. At any rate, something that wouldn’t leak. And then I went over to Michigan State. There was one place on campus that had processing of film. Many other places already had these cells, the TB sanitarium had long since ceased to exist. It wasn’t needed anymore. I did the same thing he did. I went and got buckets of hypo solution, brought it back, poured it in the bathtub, and then I had a whole bunch of test tubes that I’d pack full of steel wool, and had a serpentine path. It was fun to watch the silver gradually replace the steel wool. You can see it migrate through these tubes. As it was getting the last one, why I’d stop the things and take the first ones out and dump the silver sludge out and replace it. I eventually got about $70 back.

Lassman:That’s a lot of money.

Keck:Selling the silver wool to Goldsmith in Chicago. Don’t ask me why I remember that name. He was a metal refiner in the Chicago area that we sent the stuff to.

Lassman:Well, in the fifties, $70 is a good hunk of change.

Keck:We got a lot of change back. I could fill up the tank, and gasoline was — I think when I got my driver’s license, gas was eighteen cents a gallon.

Lassman:Far cry from today.

Keck:Just a little bit. Just a little bit. So, I learned a little bit of chemistry as I was growing up. What else did I do? Well, yes, the transistor was around.

Lassman:Well, you had mentioned when you were on the AV Club; you were interested in extracurricular activities with the AV?

Keck:Yes. Yes. Yes. Yes.

Lassman:Things and so on.

Keck:Yeah. Audiovisual. And then, I didn’t want to act on stage, but they needed a stage manager. So, I became the stage manager and created the sets and the lighting for all the plays. I think I started doing that as a sophomore, and understudy to one of the seniors at the time. And, I took over. I remember one, we needed a spotlight for one of the plays. Didn’t have a spotlight in those days. So, I got a slide projector and made a little hole the right size in a piece of cardboard, and put in the slide projector and ran it across and it made a nice white spot on the stage, that I could illuminate the particular individual that we needed to highlight. And, we needed to dim the lights. And so we went over to Michigan State — and I’ll come back to why a little later on — and got a big variac from the physics department.

Lassman:I’m sorry?

Keck:A variac. A variable transformer.

Lassman:Oh. Okay.

Keck:That would handle the amperage that I had on the stage lights. So, instead of flicking them off why I could actually dim them.

Lassman:Oh. I see. Yeah.

Keck:And, so again ...

Lassman:More of the mechanical ingenuity?

Keck:Well, the creativity.

Lassman:Comes out?

Keck:And the innovation. It was the part that I remember.

Lassman>You mentioned with the, when you were talking about your peer groups, others, in East Lansing. Ultimately, I take it there was a heavy auto, was there an automobile presence there.

Keck:Yeah. Yeah.

Lassman:I mean, primary manufacturing?

Keck:Yeah. Of course, Olds started in Lansing. R.E. Olds, his house we used to, now it's a museum, and we'd visit it, and I remember visiting it. So, that was, that was big. We didn't have any science museums at the time. Now, now they've, what the physics faculty at Michigan State had a large hand in creating a science museum in the Lansing area.

Lassman:I want to get a sense of where the graduates of the high school were going? Were they going to work in local industry? Was there a group like you that was planning to go to college?

Keck:Yes.

Lassman:What was that?

Keck:Very much so. There were two tracks. There was a college track and the vocational track. A couple of the fellows were growing up on family farms, and they later took over the family farm. They probably made more money than all of us put together by selling the family farm. And, it was right at the outskirts of a growing metropolitan area. It got to be very valuable countryside. Dick Dickinson had a family farm. Ron Unruh[981] who married a a cousin of mine had a farm. Bob Cooper, my catcher on the baseball team, grew up on a farm. But, the college track, Roger Shawl got a masters degree. No. He got his doctorate in civil engineering, and eventually worked his way up through, I think he wound up at NSF, eventually, in some director-level position. The class valedictorian, who wasn't in science, but very industry politics-oriented, Ted Warner. I just learned, when he called me up a few days ago after learning I was the so-called father of fiber optics, that he had spent the last six or seven years with the Clinton Administration as Assistant Secretary of Defense. So, he had certainly made it big. And, I'll be honest with you, I don't know where the rest of the class has gone.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:We were not a very well connected class.

Lassman:When you were preparing to graduate in 1958 what were your thoughts about post-secondary education?

Keck:There was no question I was going to go to college. The question was where? When I was born, there was an uncle, Uncle Lute, a bachelor uncle that had taken out a savings bond, a $1,000 savings bond in my name. I always knew I had the money to go to college. But, we certainly didn't have the money to send me anywhere. My dad had done okay, and we were probably in the upper middle class, but we weren't making the money my dad and mother were making while, as I said, was a housewife and did lots of volunteer things after I had graduated. She never, never went back to teaching school. But, you know, we didn't have the money to send me to an Ivy League school, or anything like that, and frankly, it never crossed my mind.

Lassman:I see.

Keck:MSU, I was a quarter mile east of the campus. It was the street I grew up on. Michigan State had become such a part of life. When I was a Boy Scout, we got to usher at the football games. I had this silver reclaiming business with the school, with one of the departments there. And, this professor, C.D. Hawes that had taken my dad's place at Michigan State, was still in the physics department, and our families became very close friends. The guy had taken my dad's place, and my dad, mother, and they became fast friends. I'll fill you in more on that later on. I grew up with his [C.D. Hause's] son. We were about the same age. Jerry was a little older than I was. But, growing up we both had cottages on the same lake up in the middle of Michigan. So, summers we were up at the lake all the time swimming, and boating, and this, that, and the other thing. Both of us got into boats. My dad loved to fish. Duane Hawes, C.D. Hawes, loved to fish. So, they went out fishing, and Jerry and I went frog hunting, turtle catching, swimming, and eventually water skiing. That became a big part of my life. I had saved — I had a paper route. I guess I had that probably freshman, sophomore, and junior year. I think I gave it up my senior year. But, that gave me enough money. And with the money I earned from that I could afford to buy an outboard motor.

My dad bought a boat that I could put a large outboard motor on. So, I had a little twelve-foot boat with a 25-horse power engine on it. Moved pretty well for its time. And I, Jerry and I grew up water skiing. And, he had a boat. He loved woodworking. He had a beautiful wooden boat. At any rate, much to my dad's chagrin, we learned how to water-ski instead of fish. And, later on, as a junior in high school, we went down to the Grand River in Lansing and started water skiing. My high school buddies, Roger Shawl, and Don Harvey, John Haga, those four were the main ones. Alan became a schoolteacher. I don't know whether he specialized in anything scientific. But, we were all pretty good at math, and kind of prowled around a lot together. They were from the rural side of the tracks. And Ted Warner, and Chuck Sauer, and Case Hoonhout[1096], they were from the other side. The "haves" side of the tracks. And, they were all good in math. So, we were in this math class together, and so on. Oh gosh that was one that I remember, when I was eighteen. We had a substitute for Mrs. Kelly. Mrs. Kelly we, she was a good teacher, but we really misused her.

Lassman: That's fine. Go ahead.

Keck: I can't remember the substitute's name, but he was an old fellow, balding, short, and he was an excellent substitute teacher. He collared us boys and captivated us, when Mrs. Kelly was out sick for something. I remember one of the first views of physics I had was from this guy. We must have been sophomores, I guess. Somebody was goading him. I don't know the context now in which he said it, but he had the kid come up to the front of the class, and he said, "I bet I can push as hard as you can," or something to that effect. He put his hand up, and encouraged the kid to put his hand out. And he said, now push. And he pulled his hand back, and the kid went down. And somehow, he wove it into Newton's law. The reaction doesn't equal the opposite reaction. For some reason that stuck in my brain too. But there are two more stories I wanted to get in. Mr. Walbridge...

Lassman: This is the physics teacher?

Keck: This is the physics, chemistry teacher. The normal regimen was you took chemistry in your junior year and physics in your senior year. I'd had him for chemistry, and enjoyed it. But gosh. We were cutups. I remember in one chemistry class — oh gosh, what was it? Well, there was one kid in class that just, well he was very naive, and we were always playing pranks on the poor kid — Jerry Largent. He was all there, but he just wasn't swift. And so, in chemistry class we had it rigged up. We told him before class that when we give him the signal he was to turn on the water. And, we had a hose hooked up that was going to go into somebody's lap down the way. When he turned on the water, of course, the hose was stacked [Laugh] in his lap. Anyway, so this happened in Mr. Walbridge's class. He knew something was going on. He didn't know exactly what we'd done, but he eventually found out and let us get away with it. I always liked Mr. Walbridge.

Lassman: In the physics class that he taught, I'm curious about the content? Granted this was in high school but was he introducing you to some of the latest developments in physics.

Keck: No. Pretty fundamental. When I say fundamental, pretty routine sorts of physics.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: Mechanics, motion of bodies, friction. Those sorts of things. We must have gotten into light at some point, but I'll be honest with you, I don't remember it in high school. I remember doing the inclined plane experiments with blocks of wood, and things like that, and enjoying it, and being fascinated by it. Mr. Walbridge was, again, he was eclectic. Somehow, he played baseball too, and I remember him coming out, the senior year, I was pitching, and he showed me how to get more whip in my throwing motion. He was an interesting fellow. He lost his wife while we were in school, from cancer, I think, but I'm not sure. He had a beautiful baritone voice, and I wound up accompanying him in a number of assemblies. He would sing the National Anthem, or the Lord's Prayer, depending on what the thing was. But, the one that stands out in my mind, I remember — I hadn't studied the theory of music. My teacher, I'm sure, had given it to me, but I hadn't paid a lot of attention to the theory, and I lament that to this day. I was more into the mechanics of the music, and sounds, and things like that. And, I remember, for some reason or other, I found it easier to play sharps than flats, and Mr. Walbridge gave me the Lord's Prayer music. I think it was in four flats, and I transposed it to three sharps. Well, of course this moved it up a note. And, I remember him straining to hit the high note. And, he came over to me and asked later on. And then he understood what I had done. But, I didn't give it a thought that he might have trouble hitting the note. But, that one sticks out in my mind. The other thing that I remember in building things; we talked about the transistor, and there were all sorts of circuits that were out and around, things that you could build using the transistor. The notion — the transistors that first came out was Raytheon CK721, 722, 723.

Lassman: These were transistors you could buy?

Keck: Yeah, you could buy. Had three wires coming out the bottom, and a little thing the size of your little finger, with the active element. We were burning out several of them before you learned how to hook the things up. But, people would publish circuits that you could build using a transistor. I'm sure the organ was one of those. You saw a circuit someplace and then went down to the shop and put it together. We had old speakers laying around, and so I could build the thing. But, one of the things that they built was a bi-stable oscillator-type thing where you put in one of the base legs and it would flip one way and allow current to go through this leg. Or, if you put the opposite polarity on, why, it would flip the other way. It would latch one way or the other depending upon how you biased the base of the transistor. So my dad wound up using it in one of the, in designing one of the earth resistivity instruments. We needed to take the DC batteries that we took out in the field and get an AC signal to put power to the electrodes in the earth resistivity instrument. He had experimented and played with a smaller vibrator, bi-stable oscillator-type thing. I said, "You know, I could make a tachometer out of that." And, by this time, I must have had my outboard motor. And then I was wondering how I could get a tachometer on my outboard motor. I had put this transistor circuit together. I remember, in fact, I made a plastic box to put it in, and went down to "Plastics Manufacturing," and I had watched them making pieces, gluing them together with the methylene chloride.

Lassman: This was a private company?

Keck: Private company from whom we bought plastic parts and pieces that we used in the resistivity instruments that I was building for my dad. I just watched how they did some of the things, and then built myself a little box about, three inches square, and two or three inches deep. And, I put my model vibrator bi-stable oscillator circuit in there, and had a meter on it. I just hooked it up to the spark plug and pulled off an impulse, and had this, these transistors flopping back and forth, and giving rise to a voltage that could dictate a reading on a meter. I built a tachometer. I always thought that was one of the neater things that I had done. Other things that we did, a neighbor boy — rocketry was just starting to come into vogue. My dad had, during the war, he would go over to the Library of Congress. He was down in Washington by himself. My mother and I stayed in East Lansing. He would go back periodically and consult with the Naval Ordnance Lab.

Lassman: This was during the war?

Keck: This was after the war — WW II.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: Yes, I misspoke. And, he'd go over to the Library of Congress and read in the evenings after work. He didn't have anything else to do in the city of Washington. I remember one of the things he brought back was the formula for gunpowder. We fixed up some gunpowder; I don't know now what I did, but later on, I was probably in high school, maybe a senior, and the kid next door had gotten a rocket somewhere. And, rocketry — '58, Sputnik. He had this toy rocket. I don't know how he knew that I knew how to make gunpowder, but we mixed up some gunpowder. Boy, we could have blown the house apart. Didn't have to worry about OSHA [Occupational Safety & Health Administration], and any of that stuff. At any rate, this, we put it in the rocket and we had a couple of wires and touched it off, and up the rocket went, two or three hundred feet in the air.

Lassman: When you were in high school, at this time, what are you doing during the summers, in between?

Keck: Generally worked for my dad. In the company.

Lassman: Okay. I see.

Keck: And then weekends we'd go up to the lake. Water-skiing. Starting my junior year, in Lansing, there was a dammed up section of the Grand River, and they had a boat launch, public boat launch. There was a boat club there, Lansing Boat Club. The river was not used at all. It wasn't polluted. It was brown. The water wasn't clear, or anything like that. And we never could figure that out. We kids started going down there in the summer, after work. I'd hitch my boat up and take it down, and we'd water ski on the Grand River. There was nobody else around. It was beautiful. You could go for miles up the river. And, I had my tachometer on the boat, of course. Well, at any rate, we met up with a couple of guys up the river that had a much bigger boat. They had twin seventy horsepower Mercury engines on the back of a catamaran. A "Powercat". They saw us water-skiing, and they started paling around with us, and of course, we had this big boat. So, we decided we'd start putting on water ski shows. We got pretty good at it. We had slalom people, and eventually we built pyramids. I usually climbed. I was one of the smaller guys so, Al Harvey and John Haga were the two bigger guys. And, they'd ski the bottom and I'd climb up to the top on the three-person pyramids. And later on, we got to the point where we got some girls involved. And, they'd climb up to the top and we would, I think we built a five-person pyramid. We tried to put a person three, three tiers high. Never could get one up there.

Lassman: That's pretty ambitious.

Keck: But, we continued that into graduate school; and college we were still going down there. Because Ruth would get on, my wife would get on my shoulders, and we'd ski around on a slalom ski with her sitting on my shoulders. And, eventually we got so we could ski without any skis. I could do that. We had a nice little water ski show that we'd put on for people on a Sunday afternoon. So that was one of the things we did in the summertime.

Lassman: In addition, you said, to working?

Keck: In addition to working.

Lassman: To working for your father?

Keck: A lot of —, the message in all of this is, to young kids is, you know, you can have a well-rounded career, and a well-rounded growing up experience, or whatever, and you don't have to specialize until at some later point. You can still have a very successful career. But, you're laying the seeds all the way along. This notion of building things rather than buying them, that we got from my grandfather, and from my father, and so on, were all, all important then later on with the things that I did as an industrial scientist. I remember my grandfather and me built a hay rake. He came up with the idea. We tore apart an old, I don't know, you've seen the great curved tines that they used to have on hay rakes?

Lassman: I can't say as I have.

Keck: Obviously not.

Lassman: But, I'll take your word for it.

Keck: Well, he knew of a fellow up in the rural outskirts of Lansing, an old family friend, who had a rusty old hay rake. We went out and got these long curved tines that had a spring on them. We brought that back. We built a hay rake. Let's see, I was probably in junior high school for this. We're not even through page...

Lassman: We're just at the top of page two [of the question list]. That's fine. We've got plenty of time. We get to the end of high school, you've decided to go to Michigan State, and you had this connection with Hawes, Professor Hawes in the physics department.

Keck: I really didn't connect with any professor during my undergraduate work.

Lassman: Did you start out knowing that you were going to major in physics?

Keck: No. I originally had signed up at Michigan State in electrical engineering. The transistor had obviously come out a couple of years ahead. It looked like there was going to be lots of jobs in semiconductor activities.

Lassman: You're thinking about this already, as a freshman?

Keck: Well, in high school we had a guidance counselor, Mrs. Lamb, Thelma Lamb. Had all the seniors go through a career course where we looked at all sorts of different careers, and the term paper was you had to pick the career and explain why you wanted to go into it, and things like that. And, we didn't get too specific. Engineering was the one that I think I wrote on, as I recall. As I sort of had in mind that engineering was the direction that I was going to go, as opposed to straight science in physics.

Lassman: Is this the term paper you wrote on the transistor?

Keck: Different course, different term paper. It was just one on career guidance, and so on. The reason I was laughing at Thelma Lamb; because I was not doing particularly a stellar job of my high school career, and as I say graduated in the middle of my high school class of only fifty-eight, I remember my folks later on telling me that during one of the parent-guidance teacher conferences, Thelma Lamb had told them that Don had better start looking at a vocational education, that he wasn't going to be a professional, that he just didn't look like he could make it in any professional occupation.

Lassman: Interesting.

Keck: They didn't tell me this until much later in my life. So, at any rate, I was accepted at Michigan State in spite of my mediocre grades. My kids did all sorts of studies of different schools, and what's the best school. And, you know, they knew the rankings. I don't remember any of that.

Lassman: And, was that typical among your peers?

Keck: I think. Yes. You didn't know that much about the world. You were much more regional in your focus. Well, remember, that from my parents' generation, they didn't move more than twenty-five miles from where they grew up for the most part. My mother grew up twenty miles from Grand Ledge where she was born. And, my dad, a little bit better, he got out of Detroit and came up to East Lansing, so regionalism was much more the norm. I remember somewhere along the line thinking to myself that now I was going to be a citizen of the world, and not stay in the home area. I honestly don't know about the rest of my classmates, how many of them are still in the Lansing area, and how many of them left. I've cited two examples. I do know that people left and did very, very well in very high places.

Lassman:When you entered as a...

Keck:Go ahead.

Lassman:When you entered as an electrical engineering student...

Keck:Well, actually...

Lassman:As an engineer.

Keck:I submitted my application as an electrical engineer. Somewhere along before the first class my dad and I had a talk. I don't remember specifically the things that were said, but he counseled that a physics education would give me much more breadth and an ability to go in any of a number of directions, whereas electrical engineering would be very, very specific. His council was to get the broader physics education. And, I don't remember now whether it was before I actually started the first class that I wrote to Michigan State and asked to change majors. Or whether it was when I first entered. But, I changed my major to physics very, very early on, at that juncture. In some sense, it didn't matter. The first two years were pre-programmed. I mean, you took a set of broad, broadly based courses in sociology, social science, communications skills, writing, speaking, natural science was required of all the, all the students. What in the heck was the fourth one? There are four base courses. Oh math, of course. And then some general math course.

Lassman:Were there any language requirements?

Keck:No. I had taken two years of Latin in high school. For the most part, I don't remember a thing about Latin. It was supposed to have helped me greatly in grammar, but in high school, I really wasn't paying a whole lot of attention, frankly. Now I do lament that, that whole, well, period. I did not cover myself with any kind of glory in high school and wished, in retrospect, that I'd studied more. For some reason or another, in college, that notion got out of my system. I don't know what it was that caused me to change my outlook, but I realized I had to do better. And, I remember vividly the middle of the term of your freshman year, the principal of the high school came over to school, to college, and got a number of the school graduates, the Okemos high school graduates that were at Michigan State, together, and just was asking us questions about how we were prepared. At the time, we had our midterm grades. My grades were higher than any of my high school colleagues. And, the principal of the high school was absolutely flabbergasted, Mr. Harrison. At any rate, so from almost day one in college I changed my way of thinking, and began to study harder and do better.

Lassman:In the physics department, were you taking engineering courses along the way?

Keck:No. I moved into a full-blown physics curriculum. You took sophomore physics, the general physics course, and I remember that — no I take it back. It was later on. Alfred Leitner was the fellow that taught the sophomore physics class. And, he was good. He loved to teach. Alfred Leitner.

Lassman:You took physics during freshman year also?

Keck:No. The regimen was, you took, sort of like high school. You took chemistry in your freshman year, and then physics was reserved for your second year.

Lassman:Got it.

Keck:So that you had your calculus math class in your freshman year. Took physics in the sophomore year.

Lassman:In high school, then, how much math did you have in high school? How far did you go?

Keck:In those days we didn't do calculus. We had algebra I and II your freshman and sophomore years. Trigonometry was the junior year. And then geometry, I think, was the senior year, or vice versa. I don't remember now.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:We had not gone into any calculus in those days. So, the first calculus I had was in college. That was a rude awakening for me. I did not do well in college math, even though I'd done well in high school math. Actually, later on [I] realized that I learned most of the math that I know in my physics class, not in the mathematics class. The mathematics at Michigan State, at the time they prided themselves as being the epitome of mathematicians, and so it was an esoteric mathematics — the only word I can think of to describe it. The practicalities of it were just not that forthcoming, in the calculus and advanced calculus. I think the differential equations class that I had; that was good. That was, got very practical, but Professor Lehrer wrote the book, in fact, and did a nice job of it. But, most of the later math that I learned was done in the, later on in the physics classes, quantum physics, or whatever.

Lassman:What was it about that that made it easier for you to pick it up? Learning it in that physics context as opposed to the mathematics department?

Keck:I heard a term used a few years ago at a National Academy of Engineering discussion of education in the sciences and math. They called it metacognitive learning. The gist of it was that if it's something out of your experience base that you're learning, hearing something and relating it to, you learn it much better, and in a longer lasting form. The only explanation I can give you was that the physics was talking about real-world problems and things like that. I could relate to it and get a handle on it as opposed to just doing some mathematical manipulation or operation, or prove, you know, some proof or what have you. At any rate, I still would argue that I learned most of my mathematics in my physics classes, not in any of the math classes that Michigan State taught, anyway.

Lassman:So, you've taken me up through your sophomore year.

Keck:Yes. That Fred Leitner really turned me on to physics in that class. He was just an excellent teacher, and made it fun. The sophomore physics experiments that he ran, just masterfully, masterfully done. He was an old German, heavy German accent. But, he was my first experience with the physics department. Later on, to my chagrin, when I got into the meat of the physics course and physics department, I learned that the head of the physics department at the time was pressuring Leitner. Fred wanted to be a good teacher, and the physics department at the time was pushing for him to become a research scientist. They wanted a heavy research base. They wanted people doing work outside of the teaching; that you weren't to be known simply as a good teacher. You had to be known as a knowledgeable and reputable — not reputable, but a well-known scientist in your own right by publishing learned works and things like that.

Lassman:Had that not been the case in the physics department?

Keck:I can't give you a whole lot of history on that, but clearly, for this tenure of Sherwood Haines — I mean he had a long tenure.

Lassman:He was the chairman?

Keck:He was chairman of the physics and astronomy department. Clearly he was moving the department to be a much more research-oriented department as opposed to someone, somebody that was content with good science teaching. And, that always bothered me, because I thought you had to have a balance. Leitner was good at it, and wanted to be known as a teacher of young minds. Later on, it turned out, he made some NSF films on superconductivity, and so that was his research. He was still teaching, but he brought money into the department doing NSF grants to film, do these teaching films on superconductivity. But, he eventually left Michigan State, and he had a profound impact on me later on. As a matter of fact, and went to West Point. I don't believe he's still there. He may not be alive any longer but he had left.

Lassman:Talking about your instructors, generationally was this a younger group or an older group?

Keck:Ah, good question.

Lassman:In the physics department.

Keck:A mix. Fairly balanced. Leitner was probably one of the older ones, and then we had some younger ones. One terrible one that taught an electronics course that just could not teach. But, yes, the older ones knew their way around and clearly, they were the ones from whom you learned — from whom I learned the most. But, they had a number of young ones. Well no, I guess I can't say that. Julius Kovaks was fairly new in the department, and he taught quantum mechanics. He was a fairly recent acquisition. They had done a little bit of hiring and gotten a couple of younger people, but by in large it was a middle to later career type physics department.

Lassman:Was there a connection with the engineering departments?

Keck:No.

Lassman:As an undergraduate?

Keck:The College of Natural Science and the College of Engineering could have been on two separate campuses for all the connection there was. Although, well I shouldn't say that. The engineers had to come over and take sophomore physics.

Lassman: Okay. That's what I was going to ask.

Keck: So, yes. The College of Natural Science provided a service to the university by teaching that course. I remember my dad, I guess, trying to instill in me a good feeling toward physics and science, and said that when he taught the sophomore physics course, if you remember that, he had any number of medical, premed students that were taking the course and they just couldn't hack it and couldn't understand it. He was always holding the physicists at a higher plateau than some of the people who later took care of our good health. But, I mean obviously we know now that you need all kinds, and there are other types of learning and the ability to store and so on.

Lassman: Let me go back just for a second. You mentioned your father, again. When he was teaching there in the '20s, did he have an active research program also, or was it just teaching?

Keck: The only reason I'm hesitating, Tom, is that he told me about one experiment he ran one day, about putting a beaker of water at the focal point of a paraboloid out in the sun and watching it to see it boil. And, it didn't. And, we added some India ink to the water, and it boiled instantaneously from the increased absorbed energy, and splattered India ink all over him. I think the true answer is that Michigan State probably didn't have a research component in those days.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: It was not a research university; other than just from curiosity of the professors in trying various and sundry things to demonstrate for classes. I think that's the context in which the India ink experiment was tried. He was trying to find, something he would show in a lecture model demonstration as to focus.

Lassman: Getting back to the curriculum that you were taking. At what point do you start getting exposed to some of the newer advances in physics — you mentioned there was someone there who taught quantum mechanics? I'd like to get a little more information to your first exposure to the frontiers of physics, if you're getting that at this point in your education. And, also, again, what kinds of textbooks are you using?

Keck: Well, the textbook that we used in sophomore physics was Sears and Zemansky.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: Red book.

Lassman: Was that a commonly used book?

Keck: I believe that was probably, at the time, the most widely used sophomore text around the nation. Now, I may be wrong on that. I always lamented, by the time I was in graduate school, or freshman, or first-year graduate school, Halliday and Resnick ...

Lassman: That's the textbook I used in ...

Keck: Came into being, and it was so infinitely better than Sears and Zemansky.

Keck: So, this would have been '63.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: And, how long it had been out, I don't know. But, I can look it up and find a copy. I probably still have the text. Cutting-edge science.

Lassman: And, I'd be interested to know what courses you were.

Keck: Well, the general regimen was that in your junior year, for the majors, you took mechanics, you took electricity, and magnetism, as I recall, and a math class, probably differential equations. And I, others of my friends, Roger Shawl for example, took a lot more electives than I did. I tended to take more of the offerings in the physics department itself. My electives were, physics — astronomy was an elective course for me. It was only a one-credit course that was taught by the physics department. So, you got kind of the old-style physics, the mechanics, the electricity and magnetism in your junior year, and then modern physics, I think was what it was called, and optics were in your senior year. Usually, that was the sequence that people took. And what else? What else did we take? I guess solid-state physics was in one of those. They would have been more on the cutting edge. There was an electronics course that I said this one terrible young professor taught. His name escapes me now. Frank Blatt taught solid-state physics, and he was an experimentalist, and he could not teach solid-state physics to save his soul. But solid-state physics was kind of just beginning, with the transistor beginning to be one of the mainstream courses. I guess you would say it was on the cutting edge.

Lassman: Okay. I see.

Keck: Fermi surfaces and that sort of thing. Paul Parker taught modern physics, he taught the Schrodinger equation, and the Bohr theory of the atom, and that sort of thing in the modern physics course.

Lassman: Is it called modern physics, or ...

Keck:I think it was called modern physics. I'll have to go down and look. I don't remember. A thin book. Solid-state — what did we use? I think we used Blatt's notes. He was an arrogant guy, full professor, and I think he just gave us mimeographed notes.

Lassman:You didn't have a textbook?

Keck:I don't remember in undergraduate having a textbook. In graduate solid-state — what's the famous solid-state textbook?

Lassman:Kittel?

Keck:That's it.

Lassman:Charles Kittel?

Keck:Yes.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:Oh my, now I don't remember. You're taxing me. I'm going to have to go down and pull out my transcript somehow or another, assuming I can find them. But, there must have been some sort of a quantum mechanics course too, but it was taught from, it was probably taught from a wave into things. Well, no, it must have been — Jim Gordon was the teacher. And, I can't remember whether we had that in my senior year or whether it was first year in undergraduate school.

Lassman:He taught quantum mechanics?

Keck:Well, I don't know that it was called quantum mechanics. Now, what would it have been called in...? My first exposure to the Schrodinger equation. And he was a magnificent lecturer, worked over at the cyclotron. He was hired — Michigan State, I guess about the time I was an undergraduate, began the building of the cyclotron, and a lot of my colleagues in the physics department worked over at the cyclotron for extra money.

Lassman:This was as — colleagues? As an undergraduate?

Keck:Yes. And I didn't. In fact, I didn't work at all. Well, I was still working, as an undergraduate, with my dad's company, any time that I had. That was how I was getting the money and doing all these things. Well, I can't remember on Jim Gordon. I'll have to think more about it. But, he was a magnificent teacher, and he was blind. Or, legally blind. He wore very thick glasses and probably could see, you know, shapes and that sort of thing. But, just had a magnificent penmanship and you would see him feeling his way along the board to find where to put the — but, he did a magnificent job. So, that was my first exposure to the new wave particle reality sorts of notions that were — I guess that while I'm here, no, they weren't on the cutting edge, by any means, at that time. [NAME 615] and all those who done their work in the mid-twenties and so on. But, the implication was that it was still believing, thinking at the time in physics.

Lassman:Well, when you think about that, your undergraduate curriculum, would you say that there was an emphasis more on the experimental side versus the theoretical side? Maybe that's a different way to put the question?

Keck:No, it would definitely have been more on the theoretical side.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:Well, I mean, the classic experiments were described and taught, Michael C. Morley, and so on. Paul Parker, who taught the modern physics class, I'm sure he brought in examples of that. And, Goudsmidt, with the electron spin. So why would I say it's more theoretical? Well, I mean, just because, you know, you've got to learn that, that set of mathematics associated with understanding how the world works, and so on. You were learning more — well, that's when I learned my mathematics, is in those undergraduate courses. Far more so than in the math classes. So, eventually I graduated, as an undergraduate, with honor.

Lassman:In '62?

Keck:In '62. And, the graduate record exam was just starting to come into being, I think.

Lassman:Let me backtrack just for a second.

Keck:Go ahead.

Lassman:Just when you were getting ready to graduate, what were your thoughts about a career?

Keck:Oh, there was no question I knew I was going on to graduate school.

Lassman:What was the thinking there?

Keck:I'm sure I told people privately that in contrast to my engineering friends, Roger Shawl in particular who could, who had been schooled to be able to do something useful from the get go, I didn't think my physics education positioned me to do much of anything. And, that I just had to go on and take the next step in that education. Now, knowing absolutely nothing about industrial corporations and how so much of the training is on the job, and learning that you had the sufficient base to do more than you thought you could. But clearly, in my mind, I hadn't learned as much as I needed to learn. Not as much as I thought I needed to learn.

Lassman:What, what are your peers doing, when they're graduating? Are they going on to graduate school at MSU, or different universities, or are they moving into industry? I just want to get a sense of what the class, what your class is doing, or if there are trends there? If what you're doing is different?

Keck:Well, two of my closest associates, or friends in undergraduate didn't go on. One of them took a job with Goodyear Aerospace. The other one went on to get an MBA, Probably made more money than I have. What did Marti Schwarzman do? I don't know, but she was having a rough time of it, so she, my guess is she didn't go on. I don't even remember now. I think we had twenty physics graduates.

Lassman:Was the undergraduate program small?

Keck:I mean, I looked at it, you know, your sophomore class was 200 strong, and a huge lecture hall, and I don't think I knew what was going on in those days. And, here I thought most of these were physics people. Well, they're obviously not. They're engineers and premed and all sorts of stuff. So, our modern physics class, which slowly began to, the beginning of my senior year, we began to gel and know the people around us, there was probably only twenty or twenty-five people. Well, I would wager that it was probably half and half, that half would go on and half didn't.

Lassman:Half would go on to graduate school?

Keck:Yes.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:That's what I mean. But that's purely a guess.

Lassman:As an undergraduate, when you're getting ready to finish, are you being encouraged by faculty members, to go on to graduate school? Are they preparing students for careers in teaching and research?

Keck:I'd have to say that the counseling that I got as an undergraduate was not all that great, that the physics — I can't even tell you today — I think Bill Kelly was my, was supposed to be my academic advisor. And, I don't recall that he ever gave me very good advice. I think most everything that I did was much more as a result of interactions with my father than it was with any of the faculty at school.

Lassman:What was Kelly's background?

Keck:I want to say high-energy nuclear. Having said that, that may not be right. It's probably medium-energy nuclear. It was nuclear physics, and he would have been at Michigan State for three or four years.

Lassman:So, he was one of the young...?

Keck:He was younger faculty, and therefore probably hadn't yet gelled and what mentorship, what you had to give to young students.

Lassman:Were there any other faculty members who filled that role?

Keck:Well, I don't remember any of them encouraging me particularly to go on to graduate school. I remember Paul Parker, who taught modern physics, and later he was associated with my graduate group, I remember, vividly, sitting in his modern physics class — and he was another one of those excellent teachers who just made things very interesting, little anecdotes, or the way he said things, or the way he presented it — and I'd sit in his class and envision myself teaching. I fancied that I could, I could do what he was doing, someday. But he was just impressive, and yet not arrogant, and you could readily relate to him as being someone that you'd want to emulate. But, I don't remember any counsel to go on to graduate school. As I said, the graduate record exam, I think it was just being, or just coming out, or coming into being, or maybe I was just naive and it was the first time that Michigan State administered it. But, they gave it to us as juniors. I remember taking it then, and doing not well. Then I think I took it as a senior. A 95th percentile sticks in my mind.

I don't remember the top scale, but I think it was in the high percentiles. So clearly, I had learned a lot more physics by the time I graduated than I knew as a junior. Obviously not too surprising. But they wanted us to take it anyway, as a junior, so they could begin getting some benchmarks and benchlines, and there was something associated with the department that they were encouraging us to take that. But the other part that I remember, Sherwood Haines, I mentioned him as the chair of the department, and he was your, well I held him up as the epitome of the arrogant physicist. Every conversation it was about physics, and always trying to show how learned he was, and so on. I never, for some reason or another, that never dissuaded me from wanting to be a physicist, I don't think I ever wanted to be the physicist that, you know, was the one that was the most quoted, or the most published, or that sort of thing, which was what he encouraged all the faculty to aspire to. As I say, he was definitely trying to upgrade the physics department, as I perceived it, to get on a national, to-be-recognized, scale.

Lassman: That might have had something to do with your decision maybe not to follow that track?

Keck: Possibly. But I just remember that working in the background. I don't remember...

Lassman: I don't want to put too much emphasis on it.

Keck: Necessarily being swayed by him, but I remember him as being someone that I didn't want to emulate.

Lassman: Okay. I see.

Keck: And Parker as being someone that I did.

Lassman: But before we jump forward, into the graduate experience, there are a couple of things I want to ask about. And one that, in particular, you mentioned, when we were talking about the curriculum, you took an optics course.

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: I want to ask a little bit more about that. First, to get a sense of what that course was, and what it is that you're learning, and also to see, is there then in the beginning, on your part of the development of an intellectual interest in this field, where you're beginning to go from the broad, generalization to actually where you're thinking a little bit more about, "Well, here's an area that I might be interested in." Specialized?

Keck: Yes. Absolutely.

Lassman: Tell me that story.

Keck: So, guess who the professor of optics is? C. D. Hause.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: Our family friend. And, I don't recall him as being — well, part of it was, there was so much baggage that came along with Duane Hawes. He was a wonderful individual and I don't mean to belittle him at all, but I knew he'd had a nervous breakdown. He had been chair of the department prior to Haines coming, and I suspect the stress and things just had gotten to him. And so, as a friend of the family we knew of that. Well, I just knew him too well. But, he taught a good optics course. He was not a great lecturer, but certainly adequate.

Lassman: Do you know what his background was, before he came to Michigan State?

Keck: I don't. I never looked back to see what his thesis was. He came to Michigan State and eventually created a molecular sciences group at Michigan State that he and Thomas Harvey Edwards, and Paul Parker, were principals. So, there's a molecular spectroscopy and molecular physics group at Michigan State that he had built over the years.

Lassman: And, do you know a rough time period when this is? That he would have been doing this?

Keck: Well, I was the next to the last graduate student that he had. And, he's probably had twenty. He was well along in his career at the time that he was my professor. So, I don't know. Well, as far as I knew his career was associated with infrared molecular spectroscopy. And he built a spectrometer, infrared spectrometer, from scratch, at school. And then I assume that while he was chair of the department he used that as a time to build up the group, and Parker came in as the theorist for the group. And, Harvey Edwards was the experimentalist. Hawes was much more of an experimentalist than he was a theorist.

Lassman: There was an active research program in this field?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: A long-standing, time period?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: Yes. So the optics course; typical optics, lenses, and we did lots of retracing, lots of early lens design. I remember him telling me that aspherics were not, he couldn't make them. Which, I found out after I got to Corning. But, he had told us that a Schmidt corrector, a 48-inch Schmidt corrector, with the aspheric profile of a telescope primary, could record better pictures than the 200-inch Palomar telescope. That was the benchmark. I do remember growing up being enamored with the 200-inch telescope. It was made in the mid to late '30s.

Lassman: Didn't Corning make the lens?

Keck: But, I remember reading a book or seeing something, about the making of the Palomar telescope. And that would have been in high school. So, that fascinated me. So the optics, we did lots of lenses and it bordered on the aspherics. The part that I enjoyed most was when we got into wave optics. And, Fabry-Perot interferometers, and Michaelsen and began to do interferometry, and that, that aspect of optics, physical optics. No. Yeah. I don't know. What do we call that branch of optics anymore? Physical optics is the lenses, well now wave optics are.

Lassman: Did you also have connections to his research? This molecular research group, at all?

Keck: No.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: No. As an undergraduate I must have spent most of my time working with my dad. And, while I probably should have, I didn't do any of the work that my colleagues were doing. A lot of them had odd jobs, part-time jobs in the physics department there at Michigan State.

Lassman: During summers, are you going back and working for your father also?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: Just a few more questions on the undergraduate side? Extracurricular activities, things that you're doing?

Keck: As undergrad? We had a hockey team. An intramural hockey team that we, well we kids played pond hockey. I mentioned that we carved out this pond behind our house, and in the wintertime, it froze over, and it was just about the right size for a hockey rink. So, all my high school buddies, on a Sunday afternoon instead of watching the football games we'd be over there playing hockey. Went to Michigan State, and there were enough of us still there, around, that we had a team. And, oh, I vividly remember that first game. We signed up. Al Harvey found our way around and signed us up for an intramural game, and we learned we were supposed to appear at the hockey ring on such and such a time, and so on. And, the day before, Al came around and was making phone calls desperately saying, "Hey, I understand the guys that we're playing against have got pads and everything, and they raise the puck, and this is real hockey." And, we didn't have any pads, and we didn't have any gloves, or anything. So, we took pieces of cardboard, corrugated cardboard, and taped them to our shins and that was the only padding we had in these games. And, I don't remember whether we won or lost the first game, but we played and — oh good grief. I don't remember whether it was sophomore or junior year. We played for three years, and the team morphed over time as various of my colleagues would leave school and go to some other school, or do something else totally. And so it started out as high school buddies to begin with, and then by the time we, I guess we placed second. I don't think we won it. But one year out of twenty, thirty fraternity teams and everything, we placed second. And, that was the year that we were playing one of the games, some guy propped his stick in my mouth in order to be able to stand up, as he was falling down. So, my two front teeth are capped, as a result of hockey. We didn't have mouth guards or anything in those days. So, that was one extracurricular thing that I did.

Lassman: Were there things, as part of the university, too, that you did? Organizations?

Keck: Well, we started a physics club. The first physics club at Michigan State. Was it under the auspices of — I was going to say Sigma Pi Sigma, but I'm not sure that's right.

Lassman: That's the physics honorary?

Keck: Which eventually I was inducted into. I don't remember, now, the physics club. But, I remember we formed it, and I was elected president.

Lassman: What kinds of things did you do?

Keck: Not a whole heck of a lot. We had speakers come in.

Lassman: Speakers from...?

Keck: Well, it was a regular colloquia series that the university had. And so, the club would attend those.

Lassman: The university or the department?

Keck: The department. I'm Sorry.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: The physics department. And, I remember these were always, the epitome of learned lecturers, that you couldn't understand or, at least as an undergraduate you couldn't understand.

Lassman: And were you expected to attend these?

Keck: No. It was purely voluntary.

Lassman: And do you remember any of the...?

Keck: Notables? No.

Lassman: Okay. What encouraged you to set up this physics society?

Keck: I don't remember whose idea it was. It may have been Haines', Sherwood Haines'. But, he just thought it was something that students should be doing. One of the things we did, I think we held some sort of a session with new potential physics students, physics majors. We encouraged them, or told them what, being a physics major was like, and that sort of thing. So, I remember that. There was one presentation we had to make, and I don't remember now with what that was associated, some visiting group that the physics club was asked to make a presentation, and tell what we did, and so on. And I don't remember what I said. I just remember we had to do it. Obviously, it was not terribly memorable. The physics department didn't have a lot of — well, we eventually had a softball team. And, with my baseball background that put us in good stead. And one year we did, I think it was probably my senior year, we fielded a real good team because some fellow from, I had no idea where, asked us if he could practice with the team. It turned out he was a softball pitcher. And, the guy could throw a ball, a softball fast pitch, and make it just bounce around and do all sorts of things. Nobody else on the team could catch the guy except me. So, I wound up as his batting mate and we, by in large, would strike out the opposing team. It was just a question of us to get a run or two. And, so we did pretty well. So, those other things that I grew up with as a high school student carried with me. I still enjoyed that breadth of activities and the sports.

Lassman: Did you keep up with the piano?

Keck: I did. But, for my own enjoyment. I wasn't taking lessons anymore. And, I — there was a period after I stopped taking music lessons where I didn't do anything. And then one day, I just started playing for a matter of enjoyment, and began to pick up more and more pieces of music and learn pieces that I heard on the radio, or heard at a concert, or something like that. So, eventually playing Chopin and things like that from the classical age. But the lament that I had was my buddy Rog Shawl, from high school, could play by ear. Never took a music lesson in his life, and he could play any pop tune that came along. And, so all the girls at all the parties, why Rog was the center of attention. And, here I could play the classical repertoire to some degree. That didn't cut it. And, to this day, I still lament that I can't sit down and play in a cocktail setting at the piano. But, I did continue playing the piano in college and did eventually pick up some pop tunes. But, I play for my own enjoyment.

Lassman: Another question here. When does the future Mrs. Keck appear on the scene?

Keck: Graduate school.

Lassman: What's that story?

Keck: Well, it must have...?

Lassman: You had known each other, is that right?

Keck: No.

Lassman: You had mentioned the water skiing?

Keck: Well, yes, but we did that, we still were doing that in graduate school.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: And now, I'm going to have to ask her whether it was my freshman year, freshman graduate school year, or sophomore. I think it was my first year as a graduate student. And, it was about this time of year. And, my boat was still in the water up at a lake, in Lake Michigan. And, Roger Shawl, my high school buddy, must have been going on for his masters at Michigan State. So, he went on. Ted Warner eventually went on and got an advanced degree, and those are the only ones of my high school class that I know of that went on to graduate school besides myself. And Roger had this girl in whom he was intently interested and wanted an excuse to meet with her, because she was about to marry somebody else, and had been asked. And so, Roger said, "Could we double date, and go up?" I told him maybe this weekend I had to go up and get the boat. He said, "Oh fine. I know a, we'll get a date for you and we'll go up and get your boat." And, I didn't know anybody at that time that I thought of to date. And, Rog had met Ruth at some college gathering, I think associated, well I'm sure associated with the Lutheran Church in East Lansing. And somehow, Roger had gotten associated with — I don't think Jeannie was part of that. But at any rate, so Jeannie Niedermeier and Rog, and Ruth and I went up to pick up my boat. And that was my first date with Ruth, a blind date. And then we just kept dating from that point on, and eventually married in '65. This would have been '63.

Lassman: And so, what's her family background?

Keck: She came from, comes from the upper peninsula of Michigan. Her family is Finnish, one hundred percent. Maternal grandparents, I believe, came over from Finland. I'm sorry, paternal grandparents. Maternal grandparents were here. Grew up in a very, very small town of Ewen, Michigan in the Upper Peninsula. We often kid her that there are fifty people in town, if you count the dogs and the cats. And, she came down to Michigan State, and obviously, we met there.

Lassman:What was her field of study?

Keck:She was studying what they now call human ecology. Home economics was what it was called at the time. Her dad was a county extension agent who had graduated from Michigan State and liked the upper peninsula; had grown up there, and returned. And, basically was helping the farmers in that area make a living. Bringing the latest agricultural, and ways of running farm businesses to the people in that area. He did that until he retired. I can't tell you the year now. You'll have to ask Ruth.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:So, at any rate, Rog asked Jean to marry him on the way home in the back of our car. And, eventually she said yes, and they've been happily married ever since. And, Ruth and I eventually got married two and a half years later.

Lassman:Would you like to take a break? This might be a good place.

Lassman:Resuming on Tuesday afternoon. We were talking just briefly about the optical physics course you had taken. And then your completion of your undergraduate studies, and now moving into graduate school. You might have mentioned this before — oh, did you want to say something?

Keck:Well, I was just going to begin to tell you about the graduate school. And, I don't remember exactly how it came about. I hadn't done much in the way of thinking about a response to go to graduate school.

Lassman:That's what I was going to ask you, if you had?

Keck:But, one day Duane Hause, Professor Hause, came to me and said that if I wanted to continue with graduate studies that he had, he would give me a graduate assistantship in his molecular spectroscopy part of it. I didn't know that much about molecular spectroscopy. I had kind of liked all the stuff I was learning, quantum mechanics, associated atoms in the modern physics course, and things that I'd learned there. And, a number of, I mention MSU had a cyclotron that they, I think, had started building when I was an undergraduate, but then it continued into graduate school. And, they were the ones that had all the money in the physics department. High-energy physics was the rage and everybody that was going to be a real physicist was going into high-energy nuclear physics. And, Kelly was doing low-energy nuclear physics. That's really his department. My advisor that I had mentioned earlier. He was my undergraduate advisor.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:It just triggered with me that he was in low, low-energy nuclear physics. But the preponderance, the department was moving in the direction of high-energy or low-energy, in nuclear physics. And, Henry Blosser had been hired to lead the cyclotron work at Michigan State. So, a lot was work in that direction. I knew I didn't really want to go in that direction. That hadn't appealed to me. We did a smattering of nuclear physics, I guess, in one of the undergraduate courses, and that just didn't turn me on. So, when Hawes offered me the assistantship — and he must have done it early in the year of my senior year, probably while I was taking his optics course. So, again, [we] didn't have any more money than we had when I went into undergraduate. So this seemed like a good offer and I didn't know anything better to do, so I continued my career at Michigan State and got both the masters and ultimately a PhD at Michigan State, working in the molecular spectroscopy group there with Hawes.

Lassman:Did you think at all about not continuing on in graduate school, of pursuing other career options?

Keck:No. As I said earlier, the notion I had coming out, as an undergraduate in physics was that I needed more training to be marketable. I'm sure out of naiveté, but, well I knew if, I had mentioned that I had envisioned myself as a physics teacher, a la Paul Parker, and what a role model he was, and knew that I couldn't teach if I didn't have a PhD. So, at that point I, there was no question I was going to go on to graduate school. And, my dad had a PhD and so it was just perfectly natural that I would continue on, continue on with the PhD.

Lassman:You mentioned there's the low and high-energy physics research going on at the cyclotron. Then there's Hause's group in molecular spectroscopy. Are there other fields that are going on?

Keck:Yes. There was work in low-temperature solid-state physics. There were a couple of professors doing that. Well, three. Jay Cowen, Frank Blatt, Bob Spence. Spence was doing nuclear magnetic resonance. Cowen was doing electron spin.

Lassman:That's relatively new at this point?

Keck:Yes. Spence would gradually build up a feeling for which ones of the professors were well known in the broader physics community. And Spence was kind of the old vanguard of the faculty. He was the most published in this new field of nuclear magnetic resonance, and had done some original work, and built up early capability in that area. Cowen was a fairly young professor, but very dynamic. My best friend in graduate school, George Johnston, worked for Cowen. And so, our groups were continually getting together, and he was doing low-temperature, electron spin. I've forgotten what Frank Blatt was doing. There was a group that was doing cryogenics. Leitner had started it. Leitner was still there during my graduate schooling. I guess he left Michigan State after I graduated. But, there was someone else that joined, and I can't tell you know who that was that was doing, again, low-temperature physics. There was a group, Egon Hiedemann, in ultrasonics, that was at Michigan State. And, Hiedemann had a name from back in Germany or Austria, where he'd come, from whence he'd come. So, he was well published, and presumably nationally known in ultrasonics. Blosser was beginning to make a name for himself in the cyclotron circles. But, I think the general, my general impression of Michigan State — I confess I don't know whether I formed this after I had left and began to see more of the world, but was that it was ... Well, basically the status of Michigan State. But, as I say, I judged that it was really mediocre in the overall spectrum of places that were teaching physics. And, Haines, clearly, was trying to increase its stature. And, he hired Michael Harrison, and I believe he came out of the RCA laboratories. I mean, he was trying to get some of the industrial people back in to bring the latest techniques, technologies if you will. Harrison was in, he was a solid-state physicist.

But, Blosser's was really the group where they were adding people and high-energy nuclear physics, so all sorts of designers and mathematicians to calculate cyclotron orbits and shapes of pole faces for magnets, and very sophisticated stuff, chewed up tons of computer time, and really were the, well, the bulk of the department, both in students as well as faculty. And, we always kind of looked askance at them being in some of the other lesser fields, as they envisioned it, lesser fields of physics. But, at the end of the day, the training we got was perfectly adequate to get out and do a job in physics. And so, I'm, I really never lamented the fact that I, when I got to Corning, there were lots of MIT people, and people from Caltech. And some of the notable schools. But, I never really felt that I was ill prepared, or anything like that, coming out of Michigan State. Got kind of a good physics education grounding, and so on.

Lassman: In graduate school, this is in '62, you already mentioned that there's a very strong emphasis toward the nuclear physics. Do you come in with a large class of graduate students, a small class? How many are joining the spectroscopy group?

Keck: Well, not a lot because the spectroscopy group didn't have tons of money.

Lassman: Where did a lot of that money come from?

Keck: Largely NSF. Harvey Edwards had an Air Force — I think it was an Air Force contract? I was about to say Army contract, but I think it was Air Force. And, Hawes had an NSF. And, I think Harvey Edwards also had an NSF contract. But, these were not capable of supporting, you know, twenty or thirty graduate students. Our group was probably, at its maximum, I think there might have been six graduate students. Well, let's see, Hawes had three and — well, maybe seven. Maybe seven between Hawes and Edwards. Paul Parker, well I guess, yeah, if I include the theory side, maybe eight in the molecular group. But, the cyclotron would have twenty or thirty graduates.

Lassman: So, it was much bigger?

Keck: Yes. So my guess is that half of the students in our graduate class — you know it's interesting too, the graduate class almost seems to me to be larger than I recall the undergraduate class. And, hadn't thought of it until this day, but there were clearly, there must have been sixty or seventy graduate students. Our undergraduate class, I don't think, was that large. So, we were attracting people. They were all doing the cyclotron, in a brand new facility, and on the ground floor, and that sort of thing. Because clearly there were a goodly number of students who were in that area.

Lassman: When you were coming in, what were the big questions in spectroscopy and optics at this time, and what's the state of the field in relation to nuclear physics, solid-state?

Keck: Oh boy. The big questions?

Lassman: And, you can take that further into your graduate year too.

Keck: Well, D.H. Rank at Penn State had just published his calibration spectrum. He had done super careful measurements on hydrogen cyanide, and — what was the other material — carbon monoxide, as reference spectra to be used in the measurements in standardization of other spectral measurements. And so, that was quite an advancement in the whole field of spectroscopy. Lasers weren't on the scene. People were envisioning that there might be some way of using them in spectral measurements, but people hadn't yet come up with that technique. Helium-neon was the only laser that was out and about.

Lassman: That was just a few years before?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: In the late '50s?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: That this...?

Keck: Yes, I mean this is '63, and [in] '60-'61 Townes, and Schawlow had the optical maser and Ted Maiman had demonstrated the first optical laser using a ruby rod. I remember, Bob Terhune from Ford Motor Research came up to MSU. He was beginning to do some experiments with lasers. Emmett Leith, I think he was at Ford, too, was starting to make holograms. Now, this must have been a mid-graduate career, '64 or '65, to that time frame where people were beginning to find some unique uses of a laser. So, that was a new wave that was coming along.

Lassman: Were there a lot of growth prospects for the field?

Keck: Well, in the solid-state field, understanding semiconductor materials and things like that was clearly the rage. When you asked the question, the spectroscopy field was so old that, I don't know it just, incremental progress all the way along and I don't remember it as a — I guess, I guess the forefront — Gilbert Amat, in France — I can't tell you what school — had written some theory for polyatomic molecules that — I remember attending the, there was a big symposium at Ohio State University, a molecular spectroscopy symposium, which I understand is still going on today. And, Amat was one of the big names that came to that, and always gave learned theoretical papers and so on. Rank was, as I said, was a big name. [092 O'Riley] Rao at Ohio State was doing leading work. And, mostly involved polyatomic molecules and getting high resolution spectra being able to explain more and more of the structure of molecules up to the seventh decimal place. And the laser hadn't made its way in. It wasn't for a good many years after that that the laser got in. There was a little bit of work going on in microwave spectroscopy.

So, you'd have a small camp that was doing that. Most of the rest of us were doing infrared. Hawes wanted, he suggested a couple of thesis areas. One was to continue some of the Zeeman and magnetic rotation work that had been started by the graduate student just ahead of me, who was still there when I came, and was just finishing up, Joe Aubel. So, I could have done that, or another suggestion made was to look at the excited state of molecules, which would have entailed, somehow getting them up into an excited state either photonically or, I guess, primarily photonically was what he was envisioning, and look at excited state spectra that hadn't yet been looked at. And, Paul Parker, who was really working with Harvey Edwards, was sort of the way that the group was divided, Hawes was still interested in diatomic molecules, and looking at the magnetic properties of them. Edwards was picking the polyatomic molecules, a lot of the methyl groups, methyl chloride, and methane, methyl halides, and things along that line. Parker was doing theoretical work, trying to advance those sorts of theories and get the next element in the series expansion of some of those systems. Yeah. So, I guess I can't tell you the raging topic of the day.

Lassman: That gives me a pretty good lay of the land.

Keck: And the cyclotron is just in trying to get up and running. Well, yeah, I mean, fundamental particles that were just out and about. You know, the mesons hadn't been around very long. Pion mesons, so nuclear physics was clearly where, but out of the new parts of physics were going on.

Lassman: So, where does your research track go? What do you start working on, and how does that evolve over the course of your graduate career?

Keck: Well, as in many departments, the older graduate students mentored the younger ones. Joe Aubel was a Lansing native who was a dyed-in-the-wool physicist, had joined Hawes' group. Joe was my mentor when I was a graduate student. You began learning the intricacies of this spectrometer that was home-built at Michigan State. It was basically an old boiler — four feet in diameter, and probably eight feet long, quarter-inch steel walls. I had no idea what it had been used for, but I presumed Hawes, and maybe Edwards — I can't even tell you that history, it predates me by a long stretch — had taken a boiler and with a cutting torch cut it two, and put a hinge on the one side — and then had built a gasket that you could put all the way around, so it would evacuate this huge cylinder. And then, they had an optics platform in the middle of it, our optics were twelve-inch diameter gratings and paraboloids, to build an infrared spectrometer. And, we, so I, well I enjoyed the experimental, having grown up with all the, you know, doing all the stuff I had been doing with my dad, and wiring, and this, that, and the other thing. And, Joe was very much an experimentalist. So, he and I just worked and I learned all the intricacies of the spectrometer, and how to run it. We had just gotten a new detector.

A fellow at, I think Syracuse, was making them in his lab. It was lead sulfide. But, he had made a lead selenide or telluride. And now I don't remember which. You'll have to look back in my thesis. It was coolable, cryogenically coolable, with very little background noise. We learned how to operate that. Joe Aubel had — I guess they had a magnet built. There was a homemade magnet there, but they had bought a new one with some of the NSF funds. We had a 600-gauss magnet, long hole in the middle of it, and also it had a fairly long pathway with a nice uniform field. We'd put our vapor materials in this container inside the magnet, and we ran our optics beam through, through this multiple traverse cell, they called it. So, basically [I] learned the ins and outs of the spectrometer. And then, Harvey Edwards had wanted to increase the resolution of the instrument, so we improved some of the optics while I was there. They had bought a new paraboloid with [a] better figure, twelve-inch diameter. And, in terms of funding in the university, you're living on shoestrings. We really were. Funding was not large. And so, you made do with the things you could get. And, if it was a specialized piece, you sprung for that. And we got a new paraboloid.

So, I helped realign the spectrometer. And then Harvey wanted to increase the resolution of the instrument. And the reason that the slits that we had on the input and output of the spectrometer weren't as good as they could have been, as sharp and as nice as you would want, and the edge resolution on the slits were, dictated now what resolution you could get in your spectrometer. So, I undertook that, I don't know where I got the notion, but that razor blades would form a better slit for the spectrometer. So I went out and bought razor blades from Gillette, and everybody I could find, and brought them back and microscopically examined them, and so on. And it turned out Wilkinson Sword had a Weck blade, used in barbers shavers at the time, you know, haircuts. And those turned out to be the smoothest blades that I could find. I wound up mounting those on the slits that we had in the spectrometer. I had to figure out how to get them parallel, and we realigned the spectrometer. And, low and behold, it improved the solution of the spectrometer by about a factor of two.

So, that was part and parcel of getting my thesis, because I needed that resolution. We were running these Zeeman and magnetic rotation spectra, so we were looking at the fine structure of some of these spectral lines, and I needed the resolution. And, with those razor blades why we could resolve the lines. And so eventually my thesis about the near-infrared spectra of nitric oxide, with this lead telluride detector we could move out to longer wave lengths than we had ever been able to, at Michigan State. And nobody had yet put the magnetic and Zeeman spectra of nitric oxide in the fundamental band stretching, stretching vibration. And so, I went out to five microns and got the spectrometer working and took those spectra and then — well, at that time we had a theory as to what was going on, why the magnetic rotation spectra — I'm not sure that it's pertinent...

Lassman:I'd like to hear it.

Keck:To your history, or what have you, but basically that magnetic rotation spectra comes about when you shine polarized light on molecules in the presence of a magnetic field, and you get a rotation of the plane of polarization ala the Faraday effect. If you put it between crossed polarizers, why you basically analyze the polarized signal that you get coming through. You won't get enough detail in what I just said to be able to put in anything in the history books. But, at any rate, we sort of knew the theory behind it, but nobody had written down equations that would predict the magnetic rotation spectrum of a molecule. So, my thesis eventually revolved around writing out the theory of, solving Hamiltonian equations for the spectrum that I was observing. Then computers were just now starting to come in. When I first joined the group, they were fitting the spectra — that is doing least-square fits on our Friedman electronic calculator. It was all a mechanical, electro-mechanical calculator. And we were doing complicated, least squares reductions on this hand calculator for these polyatomic and complicated spectrum. Well, as I, well computers were just starting to come in. Michigan State hired one of the leading computer people at the time and they brought in, bought for the university the latest control data computer. It was the fastest computer, so everybody said. It had the biggest memory, 30,000-bit memory. Can you believe that?

Lassman:Yeah.

Keck:So, I learned computer programming, Fortran programming, and programmed the computer to predict the spectra response of these magnetic rotation spectrum and then overlapped them with my experimental results, and indeed showed that I could predict exactly what I was observing experimentally. So, that basically became my thesis at the end of the day. What else is there to say about that?

Lassman:On the one hand this kind of fits into the tradition that you're coming in with, right. Building things.

Keck: Yes. Improving them. Being creative. Coming up with a new way of making something rather than buying something.

Lassman: Because you couldn't buy it in this case?

Keck: Couldn't buy it in the stores.

Lassman: So, the money that was coming in from grants, like NSF...?

Keck: Basically paid our salaries. At Michigan State, you had to do a year of teaching assistantship that the department paid for and then you could go and do a research assistantship. So, my first year as a graduate student, in fact I assisted Hawes in the optics course. You never learn a subject as well as when you teach it. And so, by getting in there and teaching the optics course why I was a lot more skilled in the, well in working with the spectrometer then, and understanding what I had to do in the optics, and so on, to record the spectrum and things like that. I missed one — in between my — you asked about summer work. I mislead you. I guess it must have been the summer between my senior year and first year in graduate school that Hawes had a contract to look at, well to fund a student for some summer work. There were a couple of projects that he had suggested to me — Fourier transform spectroscopy was just coming into vogue. A French, oh gosh, Pierre Conti, I want to say. I'm not sure that's right. Whoever came up with Fourier transform spectroscopy had a master's thesis on it. And, I remember reading that, and we finally decided that that was too big a project to conduct in the summer time. And so I took this project — in that list of papers, there was one on multiple Edser-Butler bands. And we basically innovated a multiple-slit to look at the output spectrum of Fabry-Perot interferometer. And, well you would use a slit source and shine that on a Fabry-Perot Etalon and it'll...

Lassman: I'm sorry. Shine it on a what?

Keck: Fabry-Perot etalon, basically two parallel plates but aluminized. This is a form of interferometer. Normally you would shine a parallel beam on it and the interferometer, because the light, you know you make multiple bounces and they have to, they'll interfere with one another unless they're exactly a wavelength apart, a path length, depends upon the spacing of the two plates. And then your output, you see a banded spectrum. If you put a wedge in the plate you get nice parallel spectra lines, assuming you shined a monochromatic light source on it. And the spacing between the spectra lines has a very definitive relationship to the wavelength of light that's coming in. The idea we came up with was instead of having a single slit on the spectrometer that illuminates this Fabry-Perot Etalon, we'd put in a multiple slit. Two, three, four, five slits, and now each one of those created their own set of fringes, and the output of the Fabry-Perot interferometer. And, if you chose the wavelength appropriately you could space those out so that this was fringe from slit one, here is the next fringe from slit one. You could make the fringe from slit two, three, four, five, fit just exactly between fringe one and the next fringe one. And then two, and take over again.

So, they'd have this beautiful set of, we called them channel spectra. And the notion behind it was in calibrating the infrared spectrometer, what you do is you use the spectrometer to illuminate one of these Fabry-Perot Etalons, and you get this nice regular set of fringes that you can record along with your spectral of whatever material you're taking. And these now, you know, exactly what the difference in wavelength is from fringe, to fringe, to fringe, to, you know, six, seven decimal places, you know, if you had them all calibrated. And so, these became the markers by which you could calibrate your spectrum. And, the notion was, if we had multiple slits why we could have a vernier on the scale if you will. Well, we never pulled it off, but that first paper that I wrote, and we published in — I've forgotten where we published it. Maybe the Journal of Physics, I think.

Lassman: Let's see. I think I have ...

Keck: Or was it, maybe it was the American Association of Physics Teachers.

Lassman: Oh, this is 1964?

Keck: Yeah. Probably.

Lassman: Inter — Interferometric Observation of Flat Surfaces and Multiple Edser-Butler Bands.

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: I think it's that first paper.

Keck: That's the one.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: Who's the publisher?

Lassman: American Journal of Physics.

Keck: Yes. So, that was my first publication. And that was just a lot of fun. Working with optics in a dark room with a spectrometer. I mean, I was happy as a clam.

Lassman: Was this spectrometer, was there just one there that you were all working on? Or, were there multiple instruments?

Keck: Well, that one was just a little student spectrometer in the optics lab. We didn't need anything special for that. But, the goal was to take that and bring it over to this great big infrared spectrometer that we had built, had much much higher resolution.

Lassman: I want to ask one other question about the computation? You mentioned that you shifted from the manual calculator to the computer. So, did you, did you also then improve the computing capacity over time to the point where you could do more predictive — maybe I'm not phrasing this right — more complicated scenarios with the spectral analysis?

Keck: Yes. Very, very much so. I mean, prior to that, all you could do was mark the centerline of a spectral line. And then, you'd try and take that spectral line and apply it to whoever's solution, [Hamiltonian] solution for the energy levels of that molecule was in vogue at the time, and hope that you could fit the spectrum and identify each spectra line was due to this vibration, or this one, or whatever. You're trying to relate it to the physics of a molecule, what was going on. With the computer you could actually predict the line shape and begin to say why it had a given width, and why it tailed off in a particular way because of [perturbations] with some other vibration mode or rotation mode of a molecule. You were able to go much further and add additional terms in the theoretical solution of where the energy level should be. And carry it out to the next, next orders in the series expansion of things. And, a lot of mine was, in fact, putting in the spectra response of the line shapes. You know happily someone had written down an equation for shapes of spectral lines somewhere between a [pure Gaussian] shape and an Lorentzian shape with long tails. And, it turned out that I juggled the term so that I could begin to match my spectrum, and then that related back to some property of the molecule. I've forgotten now, at this point, exactly what that was. But, yeah, you were able to do just so much more with the computer than we had ever been able to do before, more in terms in the expansion, as well as looking at details of the spectrum.

Lassman: Okay. Two questions. The first one is — well, actually, let me start with this one. So, you're doing research, are you also doing more, is there more coursework or is it primarily just doing... research?

Keck: The regimen was that your first three years were largely coursework, graduate courses. But, mixed in with that, the first year you had to teach a course, so you got your teaching requirement out of the way. And then, the second and third years you were being paid as a research student, research assistantship. As I said, I was learning the spectrometer, from Joe Aubel, and helping him gather the data for his dissertation. But, all the time you're taking coursework. At the end of the coursework, where we had a weeklong set of exams, you wrote exams for five days all morning. Exams were all morning, for five days running, starting with I guess mechanics and then E & M, and I guess there was one on solid-state. There was probably one on quantum nuclear, and I've forgotten now how they titled the courses. And, I remember, well Ruth and I were married by then. I had originally said I wasn't going to get married until after I got my degree. We got married midway through, and the week that I was taking exams her mother was visiting us. We lived in the main housing apartment at the college, so we were in the bedroom and her mother was out on the couch. And, her mother is a wonderful person. She was a wonderful person. But, having a mother-in-law there while you're writing exams is, it conjures up all sorts of nasty thoughts. But, I mean, we wrote the exams in the morning and then studied for the next one until midnight, and went home and got some sleep, came back, wrote the exams the next day.

Lassman: Pretty brutal schedule.

Keck: Yes, well that was set to weed people out, and it tended to. I think we got, I guess you got three chances at those, and if you missed after the third chance, you were basically relegated to the master's degree and graduated. No, that's not right. There was another exam, a qualifying exam before you got to the PhD track. The freshman and sophomore years of graduate school, you began taking graduate course but there was a qualifying exam that you, and that was on all aspects of physics. That's when I, that's when Halliday and Resnick came into the fore for me. Basically, I learned a great deal of physics studying for those sophomore physics exams. And it's basically on theory, but they covered the full spectrum of physics. A whole bunch of us just got together, and got Halliday and Resnick, worked problems in Halliday and Resnick, and that was just a much superior book to Sears and Zemansky that I had studied three years earlier. And, you had to pass that qualifying exam. If you got an "A" on it, you could go on for a PhD. If you got a "B" or less, well if you got a "B" on it, you could study for a masters. And if you didn't get — if you got lower than a "B" you got to take it, I guess you got to take it three times. And if at the end of the time you still hadn't gotten a "B" or an "A," you were essentially washed out. And then the preliminary exams you still had some finite number of times that you could take them, but you were already, you had already gotten a masters degree by that time. Assuming you passed the qualifying exam with an "A." So, that was the sort of regimen. Professor Hause, Duane was so nice. As soon as he began hearing the word on how I'd done on the exam, why he called me up that evening and told me how I'd done.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: So, I knew right away. I don't know, by Wednesday they had corrected the Monday exam, and Tuesday, and so on. And, you know, I knew I was doing well on those. And, it turned out I guess I'd got, it was either the highest, or the next highest score of twenty or thirty of us that took the exam. I felt really good about that. I was number two. There was a fellow, Fred Gillman, one of these child prodigies. He had graduated from high school, age fifteen or so, or something like that, and came into quantum mechanics, or came into Michigan State, the physics department, went through in two years with a four-point and that sort of thing, and then was continuing on to graduate school. At one point rumor had it that he had stepped into teach one of the quantum, graduate quantum mechanics courses, one day. He was taking the course, right? The professor — he wasn't in my section. But, he had scored higher than I did, I guess.

Lassman: When you were, when you were doing this, your graduate research and the molecule that you worked on?

Keck: Nitric oxide.

Lassman: Nitric oxide, that's it. Was there any...?

Keck: Think automobile pollution. That's the thing that Corning's catalytic converter cleans up.

Lassman: That's right. I knew that. But, when you were working on this, are you thinking at all, and not just you specifically but also within the group, is there any connection to industrial application?

Keck: Interesting. Well, my question is, when did I start thinking industrially? And, the reason I say that's interesting was that I remember as I was beginning to do interviews — but I don't remember now who made comments, or where I got the notion, but there was a certain stigma attached to a physicist leaving academe. I don't know if it was Haynes, or Harvey Edwards, or, but [in] my mind, I think from virtually day one, [I] was on the notion that I was going to go into industrial physics in some capacity or some job. And, I guess it was just from the experience with my dad's company, as a starter. And then we'd have, well the colloquia speakers. I mentioned Emmett Leith, and Bob Terhune from Ford Motor Company. I mentioned earlier the colloquia happened primarily, I mentioned, as an undergraduate. Graduate students were much more scholarly encouraged to attend colloquia than undergraduates. I probably began to see those that were coming from academe were doing evermore esoteric sorts of theoretical discussions, and learning more and more about less and less, and that sort of notion than, some of the industrial folk that came in and would tell us about the latest thing in holography, or that sort of thing. Well, more experimental, more interesting to me anyway.

Lassman: Well, you mentioned two Ford researchers. So...

Keck: Well, they just gave colloquia.

Lassman: On topics specifically...

Keck: That they were doing. It was their work at Ford Motor. It had to do with light. It had to do with lasers. And so, it was of interest to our group. I don't remember whether they came in specifically to our group, or whether they did general colloquia, now that I think about it.

Lassman: So that could be one possible connection that stuck in your mind about industrial work? How did you like teaching?

Keck: I enjoyed it. I didn't have a lecturer section, or anything like that. It was a laboratory section. You learned more about your subject. As I said, you never learn it so well as when you teach it.

Lassman: What's making you think about an industrial career versus an academic career?

Keck: I guess it was just this notion that I wanted to see something that someone would use coming out of the work, as opposed to something that would merely reside on a library shelf someplace. I probably never espoused that until today. You did remind me of some notables that had visited our group though.

Gerhard Herzberg, a famous molecular atomic physicist.

Lassman: That name sounds familiar.

Keck: A physicist. He's written, there's a two-volume set, one on diatomic and one on polyatomic molecules. He did his work in Canada. And, Boris Stoicheff was another name in spectroscopy circles. He visited. I think Gilbert Amat visited once. And D.H. Rank from Penn State visited. And those would have been specific to our group.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: For the broader colloquia, I don't remember the notable names there. And so many of them were probably in the high-energy field, and that was just not where my brain was.

Lassman: Did you also collaborate with other science departments in the molecular spectroscopy field? I think, for example, in the chemistry department there might be some areas where there could be collaboration.

Keck: There certainly could have been. But, in those days, collaboration was not in anyone's thinking.

Lassman: How so?

Keck: Well, at Michigan State it just wasn't. You know, you were hired because you were an expert in your field, and experts are expert unto themselves. They don't need anybody else. And so, there was a lot of "siloism," if you will, and interestingly I now sit on the Dean of the College of Natural Sciences Advisory Board at Michigan State, and have been, for probably ten years, and we counsel then, that exactly as you're pointing out, they really needed to collaborate with other departments. The funding organizations over the years have demanded that you can't be a "silo" any longer. You've got to be collaborative with other groups, either at your university or even better yet at other universities. But as I was coming through school that was, I won't say it didn't occur but I don't remember any of the physics faculty that had any collaborations outside of the physics department.

Lassman: You mentioned earlier when you were moving toward the end of your graduate career, that you were thinking about working in industry. That was something that the faculty didn't wholly endorse? Can you talk a little bit about what that experience was like, and what you made of their comments about leaving the academy for an industrial career?

Keck: Well, I obviously didn't take much of it to heart. And, I guess I'd already made up my mind that I thought I knew what industrial research would be like, and, as I say, I wanted to see some tangible fruits of my labors being used by someone. But, the stigma at that time, well I don't know if it was propagated by Haines as chair of the department, was that physicists taught other physicists. And they did learn basic research and so on. More so than trying to apply their physics training to do something, something else with it. But, I didn't interview for any academic positions when I graduated.

Lassman: How about your colleagues, other graduate students who were finishing up with you or who were in your class? Did they pursue academic careers, industrial careers, a mixture?

Keck: It was a mixture. One of Hawes' students, Glenn Mann, was teaching down at Texas Tech, I think. Joe Aubel, my mentor, went down to the University of South Florida. [He] got an academic position there. At least two of Harvey's graduate students, Lou Schneider and Dick Peterson, graduated essentially with me, both went into universities. The other half of us went into some industrial positions, or government laboratory. One of Hause's students, Mel Olman and Ron Hill, went to Sandia National Laboratory. Kent Moncur, he went industrial initially. And, I did too. And, Pete Wilson — where'd Pete go? I don't remember. So, it was a mix, assuming the two associates at Sandia, [it] was more an industrial laboratory than an academic laboratory. I'd put it in that category. It may well have been in those days. It wasn't the national laboratory when they went. Sandia was subsequent to their going there, it was taken over as a national lab.

Lassman: A couple of more questions on the graduate. When you're getting your PhD at this time, this is also during the Cold War? Was there any impact on your research specifically, or within your group, or even within the physics department, of Cold War priorities along the lines of classification of research results or the imposition of security restrictions, things like that, given the growth in government contracts for research?

Keck: I don't think there was any military defense-oriented work going on at Michigan State, that I remember. Well, the Air Force was funding some of Harvey's work, and there was other government agency funding in some of the other departments; not all of it coming from NSF, is what I mean. But where it fit in to some defense program, I never knew. The Air Force saw fit to fund Harvey's work in polyatomic molecules. But, we had no capability. And, as far as I know there was no direct connection with anything in the classified arena. Now, having said that I can tell you that one of the agencies that interviewed on campus was the CIA. And, in fact, I went and talked to a CIA recruiter and eventually had a job offer with the CIA.

Lassman: This is when you're finishing up?

Keck: Yes.

Lassman: Okay.

Lassman: Before we get to the CIA offer, and career choices, during this period the Vietnam War is going on. Draft status. Was that an issue?

Keck: Yes. Very much. As long as I was a student I had a student deferment. When I left then, and came to Corning, I was married already and, but I believe Corning had to send some sort of request for continued deferment, after my employment with Corning. I'm pretty sure Bob Maurer, a couple of years running had asked for a continual deferment. And then the war was — when did it finish, '70?

Lassman: The formal withdrawal was '75, I think, when the last U.S. troops left.

Keck: Okay. But, the draft, or the need for them was sooner than that?

Lassman: Yes. That was earlier.

Keck: So, it was three years that Maurer had to submit. At the time, I was probably on the hawk side of things. If my nation was believing, or leaders of the nation were believing that this was a war that we should be fighting we should be in there and so on, but I guess my feeling was that I could contribute more to the effort by being a scientist and doing good technological work that might feed into the military activity. But that was certainly my rationale for wanting and maintaining the student deferment, and so on, as opposed to going into the draft. I don't recall whether my draft — they had draft numbers, and mine was, I'm pretty sure, well down the list. I don't remember whether that was before I got married, but I remember having a 2-S draft card. Well, I didn't worry a lot about it. I didn't pay a whole lot of attention to it. As I say, I figured I could do a better job for the country by learning physics and doing a good job of that. And yes, I had a deferment, and continued.

Lassman: I have just another general question here. Lessons learned in graduate school? Is there anything that stands out?

Keck: Lessons learned in graduate school? Well, I used to have a bunch of sayings on my wall. I don't know where they came from. I found a bunch of old placards, and I had been asking if I remember any of them. They're probably around here someplace, because I'm a prodigious saver of stuff. But, I had little phrases that I tacked up. Here are examples of some that have come later in my life, some of which are somewhat original with me or paraphrasing of things.

Lassman: I like this one. "Leadership is the art of wondering complex simple."

Keck: I have no idea whether any of those will stick with anybody but...

Lassman: Well, I wanted to throw that out to see if there were any things that particularly shaped your ideas and views about, not just physics but about industry, about applications and connecting your research to new technologies, or further down the road about these questions of leadership and management, and things like that?

Keck: I'll tell you, Tom, nothing leaps out at me, other than that I began to pick up little phrases like that, and they were on these cards. And, I had my office adorned with them. And I'll be darned if I didn't, could conjure up saying it right now. But they were pithy truisms that you see out and around. But, the other thought that ran through my mind, of course the Vietnam Era, the folk singers were out and about, and we had a resident folk artist in the physics department, Goodtime Charlie Taylor, who worked with Jerry Cowen. He must have come my sophomore year as a graduate student. And, Charlie was a guitarist par excellent, and of the new wave of behavior. Well he wore blue jeans and a sport coat. The first of the crowd to do that. Always had his tan sport coat, corduroy sport coat, and blue jeans on. And on weekend nights, he would perform at the Fat Black Pussycat. So, all of the folk songs and the protest songs associated with that era were part and parcel of Ruth's and my growing up, and we've enjoyed some, you know, sing along with Peter, Paul, and Mary, and the [Kingston] Trio, and John Denver, and all those ever since.

Lassman: That raises another question about the culture of Michigan State during this time period. Was there an anti-war culture there, or a counterculture at Michigan State during this time?

Keck: By no means as strong as Berkeley, or Penn State, or anything like that. Probably the strongest was, hootenannies that we would have in some of the buildings, and on the weekend, we'd get all the folk singers and they would be singing protest songs, and things like that. I was more or less of the mindset, growing up in rural America, that our leaders knew best, and if they said, you know, we should be at war, well we should be at war. So, those weren't protest parts that probably stuck with me. Bob Dylan's

"Blowing in the Wind" song was probably closer to something that would have stuck with me as a philosophy or lessons learned, or questions that we should continually ask ourselves. "How many times must the cannon balls fly?" And so on. So, those were probably the things that shaped much of what we've done later on in life, as much as anything.

Lassman: All right, now moving on then, to the beginning of your career choices. So, you got your PhD in '67? Would this have been in the spring of '67?

Keck: No. December of '67. I didn't go to my graduation. I wish I had now. I've forgotten why. I guess I was probably interviewing. But, as I was graduating the semiconductor bubble hadn't yet burst. So, industry was thriving. Monies, I guess, from the war effort or whatever, were going into all the high-tech companies. There were jobs all over the place, very plentiful.

Lassman: You mentioned the CIA. Tell me that story.

Keck: Well, I interviewed. My first interview was at IBM.

Lassman: Why don't you take me through the chronology of interviews?

Keck: Let me take you through the sequence of all that. My first-ever plane ride, first-ever trip out of East Lansing, Michigan, other than vacation trips with my parents, was hopping on a plane at Metropolitan airport in Detroit and going to Yorktown Heights, to an IBM lab.

Lassman: Did they come to campus to talk to you first, or how did you get that?

Keck: I think so. Some did it that way. Others, perhaps another one of the group had interviewed with someone, and so we shared addresses and so on. I don't remember, honestly. But, IBM invited me for three interviews. One at Yorktown Heights, one at East Fishkill, a development laboratory there, and one out at Almaden.

Lassman: In California?

Keck: In California.

Lassman: That's the disk drive lab?

Keck: Doing storage.

Lassman: So, my visit to Watson Lab, I remember the two people I interviewed with, Euvial Beraket and Janus Wiljanski. Beraket was a typical arrogant physicist?

Keck: Definitely the arrogant physicist, and I didn't get the job offer from Watson Lab.

Lassman: You did?

Keck: I did not. And Janus Wiljanski was one of the foremost lens design specialists. I assume data storage and optical techniques for what that group was focusing on. Got an offer from the development laboratory at Poughkeepsie.

Lassman: That would have been in the semiconductor field?

Keck: Well, one of the projects they wanted me to do was to figure out some ways of using lasers to repair circuits, semiconductor, or chip circuits that had been not working, so that they could—if a lot of semiconductor chips had an error in them, or a defect, to fuse wires or fuse connections in semiconductor circuitry, was what the Watson Lab thing was about. New uses of lasers and operating on chips, and things like that.

Lassman: That's interesting, actually. Were the, was the production of semiconductors still, from the financial standpoint, I guess, was the cost high enough that it was very important to make repairs in the chips rather than just...?

Keck: I can only guess.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: But, I'm assuming so. Some guy by the name of William Pliskin was the name of the other fellow, and I think he was up, it must have been at the development laboratory. He was a little bit more down-to-earth. And somewhere on that visit I learned about radio frequency sputtering, that was just being applied at the time. If you put a material around a cathode, and then pass an alternating current through it, in the presence of a plasma, then you can actually pop off atoms, molecules, from the parent material for traveling at some velocity, and if there's a substrate, coolants, or cooler substrate, they'll condense on that substrate, then you'll begin to lay down a layer, or film, of a particular material. So, it was a new technique for thin film deposition that was beginning to, I assume beginning to make its way into technological circles, a fairly new technology.

Lassman: And this a person you spoke to at Yorktown, or at East Fishkill?

Keck: Well, I don't remember.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck:I remember on the IBM visit I learned about radio frequency sputtering. That's important because later that was the basis of the invention at Corning for fibers. How history pieces together. Well, so at any rate, I got an offer from Almaden. I got an offer from the Fishkill Lab, Watson Lab didn't, I wasn't good enough for them.

Lassman:What was your impression then of IBM overall?

Keck:Well, of course, this is your first trip, on any interview trip, so I was just blown away by what I was seeing. Clearly impressed, beyond belief. So, I interviewed first with IBM, then Goodyear Aerospace. One of my own graduate people had gone down there. He came back to Michigan State recruiting, and invited me down, and so I went down to Goodyear Aerospace.

Lassman:This was Goodyear Tire and Rubber?

Keck:Bingo.

Lassman:In Akron?

Keck:They had an aerospace lab, largely funded by Air Force funds, out on a lake outside of Akron, and they were learning to put on, or make synthetic rubber or some polymer coating on materials that would be impervious to electromagnetic radiation reflections. Anti-radar sorts of materials. They wanted somebody that had enjoyed or knew something about electromagnetic theory. One of the graduate courses that I most enjoyed was a graduate course in electricity magnetism, a Fred Leitner talk. And, I remember — I'll have to give you, or get you a copy of — what the hell's the name of it? The story of the optical fiber — because in there I recalled the day that Fred Leitner had began taking us through the wave equations of electromagnetic wave equations and showed the square root of new epsilon was equal to the speed of light. And, that was like a theological revelation to me. When he put that on the board, it just seemed like God's universe came to closure in that one lecture. That made such an impression on me. I always liked electromagnetics, and in particular, waves, and if it involved photons, you know, at that end of the spectrum, optics, why so much the better. So, Goodyear, it was perfectly natural to go down and interview. So, I interviewed there and got a job offer from them.

Lassman:And, this was a military-funded lab? Was that separate from their primary R & D facility?

Keck:I think so. It was probably in the same division, but I honestly couldn't tell you today whether it was — those are questions that wouldn't even have occurred to me at that time.

Lassman:All right.

Keck:What's the organization structure?

Lassman:Yeah. That's right. But that's a different kind of setting than the IBM setting?

Keck:Oh absolutely.

Lassman:That's interesting.

Keck:The other companies that I interviewed with, well I had interviews with TRW, and it was in the L.A. area, and I called up and just cancelled the thing. After I'd been to San Francisco and interviewed with IBM, as I said, and then I went up to Los Alamos — not Los Alamos, Lawrence Radiation Lab, and interviewed with them.

Lassman:In Berkeley?

Keck:Outside of Berkeley. It's in Livermore.

Lassman:Lawrence Livermore National Lab?

Keck:Yes. Out in the valley. They wanted me to work in a sensors group, and again involving electromagnetics, and how could they do remote sensing of bombs, and telemeter the information back. I interviewed then with Martin Marietta in Denver, and I don't remember anything about that interview. I don't know what the project was. The other one was the CIA.

Lassman:What was that? Tell me about that one?

Keck:I did it purely as a lark. My colleague, my friend in graduate school, Mel Olman, who went to Sandia, had heard the CIA was coming around and doing interviews. And, he went over and interviewed, and came back and told me about it. I was curious as to whether I could get in. This probably shouldn't be down in print, should it?

Lassman:Well, I can stop it if you'd like. I'd be happy to do that.

Keck:We may excise it from the file. But at any rate, I went down. Everything was very clandestine, as you might expect. I interviewed with a guy on campus, and he must have written up something favorable about me, because a few days later I got a plain brown wrapper in the mail with instructions to come down to Ann Arbor, Michigan and talk with one of the field operatives.

Lassman:What was the position they were...?

Keck:I hadn't a clue yet.

Lassman:

The first session that this guy on campus was talking to you about was like an information session?

Keck:Just a general CIA interview. Yes.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:The CIA is interviewing. "We have a host of positions. I can't tell you anything about them. But, would you like to come down?" "All right." So, I drove down to Ann Arbor one morning around summertime. All they gave me was an address. It was a nondescript building outside of Ann Arbor. I walked in the door, and there was nobody around, and a big long office, with a desk in the back. And, nothing. Absolutely nothing in that building. You know, it was, all this — could have held a square dance in it. And, the door opened — you know, I called out, and a door opened and a guy came out from the adjoining room. And, I looked in there and there was host of electronics, and I assume radio and telemetry equipment, and things like that to keep him connected with the central office. And, apparently that interview went fine because the next thing I knew I got a plain brown wrapper inviting me to come down to Washington. So, I went down to Washington, then, and interviewed with one of the groups. And there began to learn a little bit more about it. They needed people to analyze the technological capabilities of the Asian nations. So, they were beginning to worry about the fact that Asia was building up its technological capability, and wanted people to analyze the scientific literature. So, it would have been just an analysis job of, you know, somebody will hand you translated text and you're supposed to figure out what the real capability would have been given they wrote that learned paper, and this, that, and the other thing.

That interview must have gone well, because the next thing I knew there was this long DoD, something or other form to fill in to check my security clearance to go for a security clearance. But interestingly, that interview, I'm pretty sure it was that first trip to Washington, the guy pulled out a top secret document and was walking me through it, and showing me what sorts of things they were doing. He showed a photograph of a runway, I think, in Cuba. This is circa the Cuban missile crisis. And, it was comparison photos that they were digitizing and computer comparing I guess. And showed the second one, the computer had highlighted an extension that had been added to the runway. But, they had graphics capability for pointing out, accentuating differences from, you know, one picture to another. I don't know if it was his boss or a colleague walked into the office and said, "What are you doing showing this guy top secret?" "Well, I assumed if he was interviewing with us, he was cleared." Well, I hadn't been cleared yet.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:So, at any rate, the fourth trip down they, I had already filled in the classification form and I had, we later found FBI agents talking with Ruth's folks up in the Upper Peninsula. And, I assume my folks, but I don't know that. My neighbors. And, the fourth contact was again down in Washington, at Langley Headquarters, and off George Washington Parkway, and there they put me through a lie detector test, and informed me that an employee of the CIA would go through one of these a year. Well, I passed it okay, but quite frankly a polygraph test is an unnerving experience, or at least I found it so. I said, "I don't want this."

Lassman:And that was it?

Keck:That was the last I had for the CIA. They sent me a job offer and I politely said, "Maybe I'll help my country in some other capacity."

Lassman:Interesting.

Keck:But, it would have been interesting work, and they, I asked them, at one point, whether a person could publish scientific articles, and so on. "No," they honestly said, "No. You know, there's the open world and then there's the black world. And, we publish in the black world, and yes, you'll become known in that world in the same way that other people are in the open world. And if you want to have that as a career, why we can offer it to you."

Lassman:Okay. I see.

Keck:But it, I'm sure it would have been fascinating, fascinating work. It sounded like it was much more reading. And, obviously analysis. But, it didn't sound like it was, you know, experimental work, and things that I had grown up with and enjoyed.

Lassman:That was very different?

Keck:Yes. Now, I had done those interview trips. And I was about ready to flip a coin and make a decision.

Lassman: Did any of them stand out as particularly attractive?

Keck: Well, I liked Lawrence Livermore. Or I just liked that arena and it sounded like an interesting project, with sensors. With Goodyear-Aerospace I wasn't that enthralled. The IBM thing sounded interesting. The IBM, both IBM, Almaden and Poughkeepsie, would have been very interesting. Today I would recognize those as more developmental labs as opposed to the basic research at Watson. But, that was fine. I could see concrete uses for whatever you'd be doing there.

Lassman: Can I ask you a quick question about the Watson Lab?

Keck: Sure.

Lassman: You mentioned the one physicist you interviewed with.

Keck: You mean Beraket?

Lassman: Beraket. You said he was —

Keck: Struck me as being arrogant.

Lassman: Arrogant in a sense of IBM physics research, or arrogant just as a —

Keck: Both.

Lassman: In this time period in the late '60s, Watson is still a relatively new lab.

Keck: Oh yeah. Creme de la creme.

Lassman: Yes. You were just talking about your interview with Beraket and whatever it was that made you think that he was impressed with himself and IBM research at this time.

Keck: Well, just the attitude he had toward me.

Lassman: I don't know what it was. Was his attitude a reflection of what IBM research was at this time, or what it was supposed to be, or was it just of him personally as a physicist, in terms of how impressed he was with himself?

Keck: Oh my golly. Well,...

Lassman: Maybe that's too detailed.

Keck: Well, it's too long ago for me to remember details. I met Janus Wiljanski years later up at The University of Rochester's Institute of Optics, and I had already achieved some notoriety, and often wondered if he remembered that I did interview with him. I never did ask him. And Beraket, I don't know whatever happened to him. I had asked a couple of people I know at IBM about him, and obviously, he is long since retired. I don't, I couldn't tell you any longer today when in the interview process I formed the impression of him or why that I did. But he was very definitely, seemed to be looking down his nose at what I had described in my seminar for them, and things like that.

Lassman: I see.

Keck: And then just, he just wasn't particularly interested in having me there. It struck me.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: Now, the one part that I didn't cover — when I was still back at Michigan State, I mentioned several industrial scientists had visited us. I neglected to tell you that Corning had an industrial scientist that visited the physics group at Michigan State, had been doing it apparently for a good long time, his name was Gale Smith, Dr. Gale Smith. I later found out that he and my dad studied together at the University of Michigan. And, Gale was one of the senior people at Corning.

Lassman: What was his field?

Keck: Well, he ran the equivalent of Corning's NIST, National Institute of Standards and Technology. Our measurements and analysis group, at the time that I joined Corning, I think he had done work — Corning had entered the electronics field, making tin-oxide capacitors and resistors. I think Gale had done work, or led a group in that field, and eventually with Corning, we had a business in precision resistors and capacitors for many years. But, by the time Gale was visiting, that I saw him at Michigan State he was already in a management, director, senior director position at the Corning lab. But, he visited pretty regularly. And, I probably, second year I was in graduate school I remember Gale coming around, and even do one-on-one visits with all of Duane Hawes' students. So, he and Duane, somehow, had a connection. But, I don't know that he visited all that many other groups within the physics department. But, he didn't go to the placement bureau and wait for students to come to him. He came into the laboratory, and he would usually bring something from Corning, some aspect, something that industrial research was working on.

Lassman: So, this was a personal connection he had?

Keck: Yes. I think so. But, you know, I never asked Gale, and I never asked Duane about that. I don't remember. I don't know. Well, on one of the visits Gale brought a short piece of fiber optic. The bundle type of fiber that was around starting in the '50s, and that Corning, in fact, made. And it was clearly the first time I had seen a fiber optic and was enthralled by what he was telling us and so on. Gale came for a number of years and then hadn't come for quite a while. And, I'm about ready to make a decision among the companies that I just described for you. And, low and behold another Corning employee, Bill Lister, who had been a graduate from Michigan State out of Hiedemann's ultrasonics group, and had gone to Corning, and he was now taking Gale's place as a recruiter, and came back.

Lassman: Was he there, he was there before you were?

Keck: He was there before I was, but we overlapped.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: And then Bill graduated, and a year, year and a half later he came back to Corning and said, "Well, by all means, you have to come down to Corning and visit."

Lassman: Can I ask just one quick question? You mentioned when...

Keck: Smith?

Lassman: Smith. Gale Smith came and showed you the fiber optic cable, had you done any investigating prior to that or known anything about the fiber optic? That was your first introduction?

Keck: That was the first introduction for the fiber optics.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: So, Bill invited me to Corning. This was December of '67. And, in fact, it turned out my grandfather, Ruth will give you the date, but my grandfather died, and my interview was the day after he died. And, then I got back in time for his funeral. I was to interview with three groups, I think. There was a group at Corning, physical research, and Bob Maurer ran fundamental physics research. Sammy Halliby had something in semiconductor, and Andy Herzog had [the] materials group, of some sort, as I recall.

Lassman: Did Smith and Lister talk?

Keck: Apparently.

Lassman: And then you were invited out for the interview?

Keck: Well, I forget whether Bill invited me on the spot, or whether he went home and then somebody called me and invited me out. I don't remember that. But anyway, I visited Corning in December of '67, and then Bob, and Sammy, and then Andy Herzog each told me a little bit about their group. Now, Bob Maurer was looking for someone to come and work in the fiber optics arena. And, he described the notion that telecommunications using optics, its time maybe had come, and that they needed a transmission medium and he needed someone to run the fiber optic project at Corning. He had had a couple of people working part-time on it, and I guess I found this out later, but at any rate, long story short, they offered me a job in Bob's group. And, it sounded like electromagnetics propagation, optics, and I liked the arena, although it was nothing like today. Corning invited Ruth out the very first visit. No other company had invited her along, on any of the interview trips. And, Corning had enough experience with the fact that it's fairly remote, they knew they had to bring her in and impress not only the candidate but also the candidate's family. And so, from the get-go she came in and they toured her all around, and we kind of liked the area. And, she was from a small town, and Ewen, Minnesota wasn't that big. And, I really liked the sort of work that was being described by Maurer. So, I took the job at Corning, and basically wrote letters back to all the rest of the companies and said, "Sorry."

Lassman: What were your impressions of Corning as a research organization, in comparison to a place like IBM Watson, or Almaden or even Lawrence Livermore, Goodyear?

Keck: I recall having made that much of a, noted that much difference between them. I mean, clearly Watson Lab, the equipment, the capabilities, the sophistication of the things they were working on seemed more than I saw in any of the other labs. Then at Los Alamos, they didn't show me a whole heck of a lot. It was more talk "and here's what you'd be working on." Martin Marietta was, I guess I did see an optics lab there. And Almaden there was an optics lab. Goodyear, we were out in a barracks on the shore of some lake, where that work was going out. But, I think Corning's overall laboratory and the people I talked to, and their description of the importance of research to them, it was on a par with what I was seeing at Watson. Clearly there was some differences in physical layout and the size of the laboratory. You know, Watson was huge. And, all of the IBM facilities are huge, compared to what I saw at Corning. But, a beautiful setting up on the hill, overlooking the valley. Finger Lakes region.

Lassman: Sullivan Park was already there at that time?

Keck: Yes. It had been built in '63.

Lassman: Okay.

Keck: That's when we moved from the valley up to the hill, when the laboratory was built. I probably met Gale Smith on that visit as well, because I talked to him on previous visits. I can't believe that I wouldn't have had a contact with Gale. One of the follow-up things that impressed me very much about Corning, they were, after my grandfather's funeral we were, a day or two, well, it was probably the next weekend, having Sunday dinner, and the phone rang and it was the director of — well, Bob's boss, director of physical research here at Corning, Chuck Wakeman, basically saying, "Gee, sorry I missed you. Bob spoke highly of you. We would like to have you come and join us," and so on. And nobody else had done that. And that, that did carry a lot of weight. So, Corning did things right.

Lassman: Okay. I see.

Keck: And, they offered the highest salary, which today might surprise me a little bit. But, it was, at the time.

Lassman: Okay. I wonder if there's some of that family, you know, influence there with the recruitment?

Keck: Extra care?

Lassman: Yeah. Extra care for incoming recruits?

Keck: It could well have been. It could well be. Because, well they had someone, well Gene Abercrombie was the person who later met many times over a time at Corning, and she toured Ruth all around, and showed her the where to shop, and where the housing developments were, and so on.

Lassman: When you came in, so then there's Maurer's group, which is the one you joined. And number two there was Herzog's group, and...?

Keck: Sammy Halliby was the person. And he, it turned out, was a Michigan State, had — well, gosh. Now, I'm not sure. I was going to say he was a Michigan State graduate some years earlier. Because one of the things that they did, almost immediately, was pressed the new PhDs into recruiting the next generation of students, and I went back to Michigan State with Sammy, interviewing on campus for students. I remember that so vividly. Sammy had a friend who lived just over the river from my folks in one of the nice subdivisions in East Lansing. And, Ruth and I had the car and we were going to stop off at my folks and say "Hi," while we were in East Lansing. So, we dropped Sammy off at his friend's, and he said pick us up at such and such a time, and we got a flight down at Detroit Metro Airport, which is an hour and fifteen minutes away. And, so, Ruth and I appeared at his friend's house at the appointed hour and got in there. And, "Oh, come in and have a drink." And, Sammy is three sheets to the wind. He had the good sense to ask if I'd drive to the airport. But, he wound up leaving with about forty-five minutes to catch our flight down at Metro, and we got to get rid of the rental car. We made it. I have no clue how fast I was driving. Sammy was in the back seat just zonked. He kept talking to his friend. You know, he kept saying, "Isn't it time?"

Lassman: Have to get to the airport.

Keck: Oh my goodness. Life's little stories.

Lassman: When you met each of these individuals, Halliby, and Herzog, and Maurer...

Keck: It was at colloquia, well a seminar that we went down to give.

Lassman: Did you also meet, at this point, the senior research executives like Bill Armistead, and that group?

Keck: No.

Lassman: Was that actually after you got there?

Keck: Well, as I say Chuck Wakeman, Bob's boss, wasn't there. So, I interviewed with Wakeman's three top managers. There was one other one in the group, I think, but I don't remember now who it was. Bill Armistead, you didn't see the director of research. Or they didn't bring us into that level. Although, Wakeman reported to Armistead. So, you know, it wasn't that large an organization. There weren't that many layers in the organization.

Lassman: Were there other PhD physicists who came in with you at this time?

Keck: Felix Kapron had been there three months, maybe, before I came. Mike Teeter had come up from Texas. I guess Mike had been there a year and a half, maybe. Who else am I trying to think of? This other person. Well, the short answer is, yes. Corning apparently was in a hiring mode. The color television business was booming at the time. And, so, they would bring in a goodly number of people.

Lassman: And these were PhD physicists?

Keck: Yes. By and large.

Lassman: That were coming in?

Keck: By in large.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:Corning, the Houghton family, held technology in high esteem. They truly had the creme de le creme and they worked hard at it. Shoot, who the dickens else was there? Oh, J. H. P. Watson was the other manager in Wakeman's directorate. Oh, well, Pete Schulz, of course, my co-inventor. Pete had joined about six months before I came. And, at the time — Corning lab was organized according to disciplines. So, they had Chuck Wakeman's physical research. It was probably sixty, seventy scientists strong. And, they had John McDowell's chemical research, which was probably about the same size. And, Don Stookey, (inventor of pyroceram materials, and photochromic glasses, National Medal of Technology winner) whose name you may know, had a small group and they just gave Don whatever he wanted. So, he was the director and leading a small group, fundamental chemical research, I think, or something like that. And then Gale Smith had a metrology group that had all the measurement equipment that would perform the chemical analysis or physical properties measurements that you needed made, and so on. But, that was basically the organization. However, there was a math statistics group that had a big IBM mainframe computer that they utilized. And so, they ran the computer department, if you will. But, they had a few scientist PhDs that they hired as mathematicians that would help solve problems for others of us that needed it.

Lassman:I see. Was that all under the umbrella of a central research lab basically?

Keck:Yes.

Lassman:The machine development laboratory, that was a separate organization or was that connected at all to the central lab?

Keck:I'll be honest, I don't remember. Because there had been a number of strong personalities through the history of the organization. At some point, Armistead folded everything under his dominion. You had the machine stuff and the central lab was under Armistead. Whether that was the case when I joined, or whether Dave Liebson and Bill Armistead were on par reporting positions to the Houghton, Chairman Houghton, I don't remember.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:Clearly at some point Armistead became powerful enough and pulled it all under his leadership. It may have been when Dave Liebson retired, that they folded it in together. I remember hearing a story, subsequent to coming to Corning, — the laboratory had been down in the valley. And, when they made the first move up to the hill, the first building that went up there was — have you driven up to the hill?

Lassman:I have been up there.

Keck:You remember the building with the big funny thing on top?

Lassman:Yes.

Keck:It's called a Robertson ventilator. Any glass factory in the world you will see that type of cube on the building. And, it's basically just designed to get the heat out from all the glass furnaces. So, a gentleman by the name of Tom Howitt was asked by Chairman Houghton, this is before Amo Houghton, or current House of Representatives, Houghton, and before Jamie, clearly. It was their dad. And Howitt was asked to build a process research center up on the hill. And the senior Houghton had already decided he was going to build his laboratory up there, but he wanted Liebson, or not Liebson, Howitt to start the process research center so central to good glassmaking. And Howitt said, "Well. Fine. How do I get the money?" And he said, "Oh, just tell me what you need." So, Howitt went away and got some engineers working on it, and put an estimate together and said it'll cost $4 million to build this process center." Houghton said, "Fine. We'll do it." Didn't have to sign any papers or anything like that. No bureaucracy. The bean counters were totally out of the equation. Houghton said, "You got $4 million. No problem. Go build it." Howitt said he did. Put the thing, the process research center, I think it started before the '63 move to Sullivan Park. That was probably in '61, you know, 1960, '61, somewhere in that time frame. But, you know, whether another industrialist can say, "I've got the money. Just do it."

Lassman:Very little bureaucracy.

Keck:No bureaucracy.

Lassman:And was that also a similar process as well for your research program, the way Armistead ran the lab?

Keck:I don't ever recall worrying about budgets or anything like that. We were assigned a project and you worked on the project diligently. And, nobody ever said anything to us about money. I guess the first I remember hearing about money was when young Amo Houghton, now in the Congress, well just is relinquishing his congressional seat, was Chairman, and he was setting the goals for the corporation.

And, I don't know if it was the first or second year I was at Corning. Bob called us all into the office. Corning's sales were $200 million — no $100 million, and the strategy and the goal for the corporation was that within three years we would be at $200 million, which is a pretty spectacular goal. Doubling in three years is a good growth rate. That was probably the first discussion I ever heard on money, at Corning. And, we did it. The company, color television was still just booming. It was until '75, that they had the infamous guns of August.

Lassman: That was in August. But also at this time too, Corning had a semiconductor business. You mentioned Charles Wakeman. Didn't he leave at some point, around this time, to go run Signetics?

Keck: Signetics. Yes. They had bought Signetics, from whom I don't know. Corning already had the resistor and capacitor plant. And, MacAvoy, Tom MacAvoy had come out of the laboratory and was president. This was '68-'69, somewhere very early in my tenure, that they bought Signetics. I'm pretty sure they bought Signetics after I joined. But, somewhere between then and 1970 they signed the cross-license with Bell Labs. They put fiber optic technology in the cross-licensing equation to allow us to get the needed transistor patents for Signetics. And, in return, fiber optics was on the table from our side going their way. Anything we came up with in fiber optics would, they would have a immediate cross-license for. Yeah. And, I don't know. I don't know whether Wakeman went on and ran Signetics.

Lassman: I think he went and ran the laboratory down in North Carolina.

Keck: Yes. He went down and ran the Raleigh lab, when Gerhard Megla left, and then later went over to France and ran the French laboratory. I don't think he ever went to Signetics.

Lassman: I just wanted to get a sense of what the business sectors were at that time period.

Keck: Television was the big one. They always had the consumer, well always until a few years back. It was the science products that made the, all the glassware, scientific glassware. And then the electronics division. I think there were those four entities. There might have been — I've forgotten now. It must have been some years later, but they created the international division. But, clearly, a lot of those businesses were international later.

Lassman: The scope of research is really pretty broad the way you described it, physics, chemistry, metrology? Did you get a sense, during this time period, what research was like at other glass companies? Was Corning's situation, research set up similar? Was it very different?

Keck: Yes. The truthful answer is I was still pretty naïve and could only go by what other people said. It became clear that Schott was one of our major competitors, and eventually we found out that Schott was organized virtually identically with the way Corning was.

Lassman: I'm sorry. Who?

Keck: The two organizations.

Lassman: This other organization?

Keck: Schott in Germany. Schott Glass.

Lassman: All right.

Keck: It was almost as though if one organization changed why the other would mimic it, and vice versa. In terms of developments and so on. There weren't a whole lot of other glass companies in the U.S.

Lassman: The only other one that came to mind, I was thinking of, was Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Keck: We formed the joint venture with Pittsburgh Plate to form Pittsburgh-Corning to make glass architectural blocks. Then Owens-Corning to form fiberglass. They did containers, and we came up with a process for fiber, blowing fibers and put the two together to form Owens-Corning. So, there were joint ventures that sprang out of those interactions. But, we always used to say, the glass industry would have had three major components: the flat glass, which was largely [Libby Owens Ford], the container business, which was Owens Illinois, and then the specialty glass, which was Corning. We were the leaders in specialty glass. And, we didn't make flat. We didn't make [bottles]. And, if we ventured into something that looked like it crossed into those areas, well then we would use joint ventures.

Lassman: What did you see, coming in as a PhD physicist, academically trained, doing very advanced scientific research, coming into a company like Corning that has a very strong craft tradition, glass and glass making, what was your impression as a PhD physicist of coming into an organization like that? Was there a tension between the traditional craft-making, tacit knowledge, that had such a long history at Corning, versus your type of experience and expertise coming in? Was there a tension there or was there an easy collaboration? Was there a collaboration?

Keck: Well, if there was a tension, I didn't recognize it. The work that was going on around me, by colleagues, Nick Borrelli and the group was doing high power laser, glass laser work, so we had, well we had actually two organizations worrying about the possibility of glass lasers. They were on the cutting edge of finding new lasing materials. A gentleman upstairs — I mentioned, radio frequency sputtering at IBM — was in fact doing radio frequency sputtering to try and deposit films from either the resistor and capacitor business. Mike Teeter was working on the plasma discharges, looking at the possibility of some alternate display technique that might supply a cathode ray tubes for television. We were worrying about, was there a threat to our banner business out there? So, there was certainly lots and lots of high technology. Those are examples that came to my mind. Well, Jim, James H.P. Watson was doing work in superconductivity trying to make superconducting glass wires. And he had a, had the only way I can describe him is, have you seen the movie that involves Ichabod Crane? — Sleepy Hollow? — That is Walt Disney's adaptation of the Washington Irving, "Legend of Sleepy Hollow"?

Lassman:I haven't seen that.

Keck:Well, if you saw this caricature, his long face, pointy nose, and buckteeth, this was Dr. Norm Hindley. He was a theorist. A dear gentleman, but just not blessed with, with features that endeared him to many people. Brilliant theorist. He was working out the theory of superconductivity for Vycor nanoscale porous Vycor wires, glass wires. So, very advanced technologic work going on, but right down the hall you'd have a glass grinding shop. So, when you needed to make your laser rod, and polish the ends of the glass, you know, you went down to the crafts people and they'd polish the ends for you. So, it was a learning experience to be able to go down and get the crafts people to make the things you needed, and tell them why, and so on. And, frankly, I had described how in high school I made friends with the rural — the have-nots, and the haves, and so on, and I didn't have a bunch of problem in getting along in Corning, and getting things done that I needed done. There were oftentimes, well, in some of the early work, I needed a hole drilled in the center of a glass cylinder, a starting preform for some of the fibers. And so you go down, — the foremen of the craft shop were always a bit gruff and kind of wanted to put the young scientists in their place, and so on, and so on, but I had grown up knowing how to deal with that sort of behavior. And, gradually then, just through working with them in a nice fashion, got over it and befriended them. There was one fellow in the machine shop. I remember he built gorgeous gunstocks, just works of art. And, so, you'd go down and talk with him about his gunstock, and get him to telling you about the thing. So, if you showed an interest in their things then why they bent over backwards to elevate your project to a higher level. And so, you know, it's the normal interactions of other human beings that got your work done, and so on. Clearly there were people around that didn't know how to do that, and therefore didn't advance their projects as well as, well I was able to. Apparently. Well, clearly craftspeople existed. And you'd go down into the crafts end of things. It's a dirty environment. And, you know, but salt of the earth people and they would do every bit as good a job. And what they were good at as you tried to do in the high technology end of things. It was just a question of getting to know them and figuring out how to interact.

Lassman:Okay.

Keck:But, I had no problems. I must confess that some of the union rules got me in trouble a couple of times. We weren't supposed to do any wiring. You had to hire, or call an electrician if you needed to do that. And, there were a couple of times when I had grievances filed against me where I was taking the initiative of doing some wiring in the lab that I wasn't — it was simple enough. I was going to do it and not wait for somebody to show up two days later and do the thing. And, so, after the first one or two of those I learned to shut the door.

Lassman:And be much more careful.

Keck:Be much more careful about who knew what I was doing, and turn off the light if you could. And things like that. Well, by in large, but it's like everything in life. You learn the rules of whatever game you're playing. And once you learn the rules, then you can play the game much better.

Lassman:Okay. Well, this next one is, why don't we call it for now?

Keck:Okay.

Notes for Walter Martin Seitz:

Walter M. Seitz of Dearborn, son of Mrs. Emma Seitz of 304 E. Middle Street, died Wednesday, Oct. 25, 1967, as the result of an accidental shot fired from a .22 caliber rifle in the hands of a 15-year-old Salem Township boy. At the time of the mishap, Seitz was standing on a ladder picking apples on the Malcolm E. Ratliff farm, 9385 Spencer Road in Northfield Township, with George Sartor, a fellow worker, standing at the foot of the ladder.

According to reports of the accident, the rifle shot was accidentally fired by Andrew J. Milton, 15, of Pontiac Trail, as he was preparing to take a turn at target shooting. The gun belonged to Keith Ratcliff, son of the orchard owner, who had been shooting into a nearby pond. The two boys told investigating officers they were unaware anyone was in the orchard.

Seitz survived until an ambulance arrived but was dead on arrival at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor. Born in Lima Township April 26, 1912, he was a son of Fred and Emma Visel Seitz. He graduated from Chelsea High school in 1932 and attended Michigan State University for two years. Since 1935 he had been employed by the Ford Motor Company. He was a member of the Mt. St. Paul's church was scene of a lovely wedding Saturday evening August 30, 1941 when Miss Lillian Elsie Kern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kern, and Charles Holzhauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Holzhauer of Ann Arbor, were united in marriage. Rev. Wittbracht read the impressive double ring ceremony. The altar was banked with palms and flanked with baskets of gladioli on either side. Mrs. Lucille Henderson was organist and Kenneth Volz sang "O Promise Me" and "Because." The bride was given away by her father. Miss Arlene Kern, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Kenneth Holzhauer of Ann Arbor, brother of the groom, was best man. Robert Holzhauer of Flint, another brother, and Niel Kern were ushers. The bride was dressed in white, brocade taffeta, made princessstyle, buttoned down the back, with long sleeves and a sweetheart, neckline, her full skirt ended in a short train. Her fingertip veil was caught in a tiara of orange blossoms. She carried a spur of orchid gladiolas and wore a double strand of pearls. The bridesmaid wore pink brocade satin and carried white asters and gladiolas. The bride's mother chose for her costume brown cable crepe with white accessories while the groom's mother chose black with white accessories. Both mothers wore gardenia corsages.

A reception in the church dining parlors for about 100 guests followed the ceremony. A delicious two course luncheon was served with five former classmates of the bride assisting: Miss Alice Feldkamp, Arlene Lange, Doris Jean Henne, May Pfitzenmaier and Florence Seeger. Mrs. Edward Wild baked the wedding cake which was three-tiered and topped with a cluster of roses. The bride's table was centered with the wedding cake and flanked on either side with white candles in crystal candelabra and bouquets of autumn flowers. Bowls of autumn flowers and white candles were used on the other tables. The bride's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Visel, attended the wedding and one grandmother of the groom. The young couple were the recipients of many lovely gifts.

For her going away costume the bride wore a tan suit with matching accessories. After a short trip they will be at home to their friends at 401 Pauline Boulevard, Ann Arbor. The groom is employed at the Ypsilanti Stove Works and the bride is at the Hoover Steel Ball plant in Ann Arbor. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Howard, Kern, of Ann Arbor entertained at a miscellaneous shower Friday evening. Lavern and Patricia Aungst, also known as "Vern" and "Pat," celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Aug. 1, 2008, a few months early. They were married Nov. 28, 1958. The celebration was held at Saline United Methodist Church and the Saline American Legion Hall. Many family members attended from as far away as California and Hawaii. The celebration began with a slide show of their lives, from babies to their golden anniversary. The slides included photographs of where they met and the proms they attended, as well as photographs of their wedding and children, Scott, Russell and Randall, from childhood. The slide show also presented their sons' wedding photographs, and the couple's grandchildren.

The Aungsts have celebrated Halloween for 48 years with their extended family, so there also was a segment on Halloween, Aungst style. Christmas was shown through the years. Slides of Vern's and Pat's careers and retirement were shown, as well. As photographs of them through the years were displayed, the song "Through the Years" played. The show ended with their golden wedding photographs. The couple renewed their vows and read poems to each other. Pat, who wrote poems to Vern as a teen, also read a tribute to him. Granddaughter Kendra Aungst, Randy's daughter, laid red petals on the aisle runner and Brittney Shankle, Russ' daughter, laid gold petals down. Matthew Aungst, Randy's son, and Ashton Aungst, Scott's son, carried crystal holders with the scrolls on which Pat and Vern read during the ceremony. Parker Aungst, Scott's son, carried their rings in crystal. Jean Wilson played the piano during the ceremony. Kendra Aungst, 7, sang "Once Upon a Dream," a Disney love song. Pat Jensen, who also sang at the couple's wedding, sang "Through the Years." The Rev. James Tuttle presided over the ceremony.

Dinner followed with 150 guests. The couple's children gave a toast of what it was like growing up with their parents, and then everyone continued the celebration at the Saline American Legion Hall, where the couple celebrated their wedding many years ago. A wedding cake was duplicated to match their original cake. They were announced as they entered the hall through an arch of gold and white balloons and began dancing festivities. The Aungsts have lived in Saline all of their married life. Pat Visel Aungst is a lifelong resident of Saline. She was born on the old Visel farm on Moon Road.

- 3566 i. Roger Alan¹⁴ Finkbeiner, born 27 May 1959 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan; died 30 Jul 1964 in Saline Twp, Washtenaw Co, Michigan.

Notes for Roger Alan Finkbeiner:

A ticket for failure to stop within the assured clear distance ahead this week ended a Sheriff's Department investigation of the accident that took the life of five-year-old Roger Finkbeiner Thursday morning. A deputy today said there are no grounds for further charges against the driver of the car, which struck a wagon in which Roger was riding with his grandfather, on Jordan Rd. near Braun Rd. The impact toppled the child to the ground where the wheels of the wagon passed over his body. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Saline Community Hospital. Roger, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Darell Finkbeiner, of 5475 Austin Rd., and his grandfather, Jacob Marion, of 10509 Jordan, were seated at the front of a farm wagon which was being pulled by a tractor driven by the child's uncle, Marvin J. Marion, of 10605 Jordan. They were moving south on Jordan Rd. when a late-model station wagon, driven by Mrs. Judith N. Wise, 23, of 4250 Saline-Ann Arbor Rd., came over the crest of a hill, apparently went out of control, and skidded a total of 189 feet before striking the left rear of the wagon. Deputies said the distance from the top of the hill to where the wagon was struck is approximately 1,000 feet. Neither of the Marions was knocked from his seat by the impact, and both were uninjured. Mrs. Wise also escaped injury. The little boy was rushed to the hospital by his grandfather but died of severe internal injuries, a deputy medical examiner said. He was born May 27, 1959, in Ann Arbor.

Surviving are his parents; a brother, Dale; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Marion of Saline; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Finkbeiner of Ann Arbor; several aunts, uncles and cousins.

The Rev. H. L. Engel officiated at funeral services Sunday afternoon at Trinity Lutheran Church; burial was in Oakwood Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to the Trinity Lutheran Church building fund.

Notes for Elizabeth May Marion:

March 11, 2004 - Donald Feldkamp, 70, refused to let his wife become isolated and separated from a life they shared for so many years. Donald is a caregiver. The family farm is still in operation after nearly thirty-six years of ownership. It is a place where his wife, Elizabeth Feldkamp, 70, spent countless hours tending the neat rows of corn and soybeans and, in the early days, raising steers and pigs.

Now, when she looks out onto this 80-acre site, she leans unsteadily on the support of her husband, Donald. A fear of falling and a confused mental state caused by Alzheimer's has made her reluctant to go anywhere, but Donald refuses to let Elizabeth become housebound and isolated. This has become more of a challenge for him since he suffered a setback of his own, with heart surgery in September and a follow-up regimen of physical therapy. Donald is not alone. It is estimated that one in four homes in America has a caregiver responsible for most of the needs of someone in poor health fifty years or older and that figure is expected to increase.

When asked how he manages caring for his wife when he has his own health concerns, Donald says, "At the moment I am limited by what I can and should do around the house and farm, but my duties and love for my wife never falter. We are up by seven, washed, dressed and breakfasted by 8:15 when my daughter picks up my wife and takes her to Help Source, an adult day care center."

Every day doesn't run that smoothly, though, admits Donald. "When the barometer drops, it is terrible," he says. "It takes her over. The brain just doesn't function. She is unable to walk, and I worry about her falling, and she has fallen. Those are not good days."

Elizabeth May Feldkamp of Saline, Michigan, age 70, died Saturday, January 8, 2005, at the Arbor Hospice Residence in Ann Arbor, Michigan. She had battled Alzheimers for the past seven years. She was a 1952 graduate of Michigan Lutheran Seminary in Saginaw. More recently, she was employed by the Ann Arbor News, working there for over 13 years.

Notes for Donald Richard Feldkamp:

LOCAL FAMILY IS ONE OF 22 MILLION AMERICANS CARING FOR A LOVED ONE AT HOME

Donald Feldkamp, 70, refused to let his wife become isolated and separated from a life they shared for so many years. Donald is a caregiver. The family farm is still in operation after nearly thirty-six years of ownership. It is a place where his wife, Elizabeth Feldkamp, 70, spent countless hours tending the neat rows of corn and soybeans and, in the early days, raising steers and pigs. Now, when she looks out onto this 80-acre site in Saline, she leans unsteadily on the support of her husband, Donald. A fear of falling and a confused mental state caused by Alzheimer's has made her reluctant to go anywhere, but Donald refuses to let Elizabeth become housebound and isolated. This has become more of a challenge for him since he suffered a setback of his own, with heart surgery in September and a follow-up regimen of physical therapy.

Donald is not alone. It is estimated that one in four homes in America has a caregiver responsible for most of the needs of someone in poor health fifty years or older and that figure is expected to increase. On March 1, the Washtenaw County Chapter of the American Red Cross will launch a new program -Family Care giving. This is a nine-part program of one hour classes that help participants provide better care and gain an understanding of several different care giving issues, such as safety, nutrition, general care, legal and financial issues. Classes can be taken singly and in any order.

When asked, how he manages caring for his wife when he has his own health concerns, he responded, "At the moment I am limited by what I can and should do around the house and farm, but my duties and love for my wife never falter. We are up by seven, washed, dressed and breakfasted by 8:15 when my daughter picks up my wife and takes her to Help Source an adult day care center."

He goes on to say that not all days run that smoothly. "When the barometer drops it is terrible. It takes her over. The brain just doesn't function. She is unable to walk, and I worry about her falling, and she has fallen. Those are not good days," Donald explained.

If you are caring for a parent, spouse or friend at home, you know that ensuring a safe environment and providing even the most basic care can be overwhelming. Family Care giving offers a helping hand. The first classes will be offered in March. For more information about these classes or to register for a class call the Red Cross at (734) 971-5300. Through special arrangements, Help Source will provide respite care for caregivers who wish to attend a class but need assistance with their loved one during their absence.

She married (2) Robert Douglas Dunwoodie Bef. 1979. He was born 07 Nov 1913 in Clare Co, Michigan, and died 30 Nov 1990 in St. Clair Shores, Macomb Co, Michigan.

Notes for Betty Janke:

The life of one of Detroit's native daughters ended peacefully in her apartment on Thursday morning August 25. Betty Janke Dunwoodie was 18 days short of her 104th birthday. She had lived through times that included the end of World War I, the roaring twenties, the great depression, the discovery of the penicillin antibiotic and polio vaccine, World War II, the advent of TV, the turbulent 60's, a man on the moon, the turning of a century, and a world-wide pandemic. She just kept and going until her tired body and mind said enough, whereby she laid to eternal rest.

Betty was born in 1918 at Detroit's Harper hospital to Arthur and Edna Janke, who were descendants of German immigrants. Her childhood home was on Pennsylvania St. on Detroit's east side, which made for an easy commute to downtown Detroit for her father who worked as a civil engineer. As a young child she one day found a beat-up tennis racket in a neighbor's garbage, and she claimed it as if it were a magic wand. There must have been some magic in it because it was to be the start of a life-long passion for tennis that would eventually take her all about Michigan's lower peninsula, including to the clay courts of Castle Park near Holland, to the hard courts at Point Nipigon near Cheboygan, to the variety of courts in the Detroit Metropolitan area, and to everywhere in between. But to start, she had to learn how to hit the ball with her newfound prize. She acquired a very-used tennis ball and began practicing her ground strokes while using the back of her family's garage as a backboard. The garage wall was hardly an ideal hitting partner and a shot that hit a corner of the lap-strake garage wall would often send the ball down the alley with Betty (or her dog Yank) chasing in pursuit.

Betty graduated to neighborhood tennis courts as she grew. By the time she graduated from Detroit's Southeastern High School she was one of the best female players in the region. And she was soon to enjoy the company of Edward Devine Jr., an Indian village resident who became a Detroit City Junior Champion in tennis. After high school graduation she enrolled at Wayne University, and earned a bachelor's degree in art history with a minor in dietary science. While at the university she was a member of the university's women's tennis team, won Miss Wayne U honors, and joined the Xi Omicron social sorority, where she made friendships that were to last a lifetime. By this time World War II was approaching, and she and Edward were married in 1942. Edward joined the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) as an agent, which took them to Washington D.C. and a majority of their war years in Little Rock, Arkansas. After the war they returned to Detroit, where Edward joined his father's law firm of Devine, Kent, and Devine and the couple purchased a house on Everts St. on Detroit's east side.

In 1948 Betty gave birth to son Peter and three years later to son Matthew. After Matthew's birth the couple moved into a home on Notre Dame St. in Grosse Pointe. Although her two young children demanded nearly all of her time, she continued to play tennis when she could, playing principally at the Neighborhood Club courts and at the Indian Village Tennis Club. As her sons grew and entered school she had a little more time to play between being cook, chauffeur, cub scouts den mother, PTA liaison, referee (of her sons' impromptu wrestling matches), coach, and even official scorer at her sons' baseball games. She was once ejected from a Babe Ruth league baseball game for giving the umpire her opinion of his calls, but the ejection was rescinded when husband Edward convinced the ump that the official scorer was not ejectable. She also taught her sons to play tennis and the family of four would hit the courts for doubles matches.

Life throws challenges to its families, and in 1972 she and Edward were divorced. She subsequently married Robert Dunwoodie (another attorney), and they remained together until his death in 1990. All that time she continued to play tennis at places including the Country Club of Detroit, Lochmoor Country Club, the Wimbledon Racquet Club, or wherever tennis courts could be found. While not playing tennis, she volunteered at Cottage Hospital, played bridge with friends, joined the Nomads Travel Club, and would play rounds of golf which she would not-so-affectionately call "that horrible game." As she approached 90 years of age she continued to play the game she loved, even though it became difficult to arrange matches per the words of George Burns ("there are no women my age"). In her final years as an athlete she would hit balls twice a week with Joe Shaheen, a local tennis pro. "Move your feet" she could hear Joe tell her repeatedly. At 95 she moved them better than most. She finally retired from the game after her 95th birthday when she suffered a fractured wrist. She spent her remaining years at The Rivers and then Lakeshore Senior Living, and Sunrise Senior Living was her last and too brief a stop.

Betty was preceded in death by her brothers Kenneth Janke and Robert Janke. She is survived by her son Peter R. Devine (Janice), by her son Matthew D. Devine (Karen), by her grandchildren Rebecca L. Tanguay (Daniel) and P. Jeremy Devine, by great grandchildren Patrick E. Tanguay and Noah P. Tanguay, and by several nieces and nephews.

Interment will be in Detroit's Elmwood Cemetery.

Notes for Karen Sue Szuc:

Karen (Szucs) Ukele, passed away unexpectedly Thursday, October 11, 2018 surrounded by her family. Karen was born on May 15, 1945 in South Bend, Indiana to Paul and Maxine Szucs, who preceded her in death. Left to cherish her memory is her husband of 54 years, Barry Ukele. Together they had four girls: Carmen Ukele (Tim Wolfe), Carla Price (Dave), Coleen Manspeaker (Dave), Cara Hudson (Ted) all of Mishawaka. Cara preceded her in death in 2008.

Also surviving are ten grandchildren: Colin (Christina), Nathan (Lindsey), Adam (Erin) Wojtysiak; Wesley (Ashley) Holbert, Sara Hudson; Taylor, Alex Price; Trevor, Kaley, Trace Manspeaker, as well as six great grandchildren, all of Mishawaka. Two sisters are also left to cherish her memory: Norma (Don) Toth of Texas, and Ceal (Don) Sherwood of Florida.

Karen had wonderful memories of travelling and visiting with her sisters. Siblings who preceded Karen in death were: Paul Szucs (Diane), Sandy Szynski, and Tom Szucs. Karen was so proud of her family and enjoyed spending time with them all. There wasn't a day that went by that she didn't talk to at least one of her girls, if not all of them. She was famous for calling each family member on their birthday to very badly sing to them. We surely will miss these calls. She enjoyed fishing with her husband and helped with The Walleye Club in Mishawaka. She also enjoyed reading, garage sales, and her penny slot machines.

A visitation will be held on Sunday, October 21, from 1-4 pm at The Walleye Club, Mishawaka. A celebration of life to honor Karen's memory will be held directly at 4 pm at the club with a dinner to follow. Chapel Hill will be assisting the family with arrangements. Memorial contributions can be made to The Walleye Club for the MWA Ukele Scholarship. Our family will miss her presence forever, but know she is reunited with her daughter, Cara, and loved ones. We will rejoice in memories until we all meet again.

He was born 06 Jul 1948 in Ypsilanti, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, and died 12 Oct 2025 in Lima Twp, Washtenaw Co, Michigan.

Notes for Teresa Ann (Terry) Jedele:

Teresa Ann "Terry" (Jedele) Losey, of Dexter, Michigan, age 67, passed away on May 14, 2016 at her home with her family at her side. She was born September 25, 1948 in Ann Arbor, Michigan the daughter of Ormond and Joan (Stierle) Jedele. She lived in the Dexter area for the past 43 years. She was an extraordinary woman and was full of life. She was the real deal. She enjoyed quilting, knitting washcloths, bingo, traveling, snorkeling, catching lobsters, shrimping, eating ice cream at the Outrigger, gardening, playing cards, shopping for bargains, and playing pool volleyball. She was very active in Faith Lutheran Church where she also sang in the choir. She loved Christmas and everything about it (just ask the Griswold's!). She was especially devoted to her family, and loved anything to do with her grandkids and helping out her favorite daughter.

On September 30, 1968 she married Harold A. "Hal" Losey, and he survives. Also surviving are two children: Shannon (Dave) Agar of Pinckney, and Shawn (Mike) Kennedy of Texas; four grandchildren Spencer, Samantha, Izabel, and Mackenzie; three siblings: Ronald (Jill) Jedele of Saline, Sandi (Gary) Graff of Chelsea, and Richard (Renee Holly) Jedele of Pinckney; also her mother Joan (Keith) Chambers of Pinckney. She was preceded in death by her father.

A Memorial Service will be held on Tuesday, May 17, 2016 at 11:00 a.m. at Faith Lutheran Church in Dexter with Pastor Mark Porinsky officiating. Visitation will be at the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home on Monday from 2-4 and 6-8 p.m. Expressions of sympathy may be made to the family.

Notes for Harold Allen (Hal) Losey:

Harold Allen "Hal" Losey, age 77, of Dexter, Michigan, passed away peacefully with his family by his side on October 12, 2025 at his home in Lima Twp, Michigan. Harold was born on July 6, 1948 in Ypsilanti, MI, the son of Richard and Donna (Price) Losey. He served in the US Army from 1968-70, and then was transferred to the Reserves being discharged in 1974.

On September 30, 1968, he married Teresa A. "Terry" Jedele, and they were married for nearly 48 years before she passed away in 2016. Hal worked as a lineman for Michigan Bell, retiring after 27 years of service. He was an extraordinarily patriotic man with a witty sense of humor until the very end. He loved music and had the talent to play almost anything he picked up. His favorites were piano and guitar, and he even performed on a stage in Nashville, when his daughter challenged him. He was an avid outdoorsman. He enjoyed hunting and fishing, although we definitely knew it would rain when he went, but that didn't stop him. He was a talented woodworker and could usually be found doing some sort of wood working or whittling something out of one piece of wood. He was an all around handyman and could fix most anything. He loved traveling and spending time with his family and especially his grandkids, and he was the only man we knew who still used a paper map to plan his travels. He was active in the Chelsea Senior Center and the Vietnam Veterans of America.

Hal is survived by two children, Shannon (Dave) Agar of Pinckney, and Shawn (Mike) Kennedy of Texas; his step-son, Andy Steiskal; his step-daughter, Megan (Jeremy) Powell-Float; four grandchildren: Spencer, Samantha, Izabel, and Mackenzie; six step-grandchildren, Emerson, Hudson, Shelby, Greyson, Camryn, and Colton; and his siblings, Kris Losey, Paul (Karen) Losey, Eric Losey, and Gary (Mary) Losey. He was preceded in death by his parents, and his first wife, Teresa "Terry", and his second wife, Margaret "Mokie".

Visitation will be held at the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home, Chelsea on Wednesday, October 15, 2025, from 2-4 and 6-8 p.m. A Memorial Service will be held at Shalom Lutheran Church, 1740 M-36, Pinckney, on Thursday, October 16, 2025 at 10:00 a.m., with Pastor Dan Quagliata officiating. Burial will follow at Great Lakes National Cemetery in Holly, Michigan. In lieu of flowers, the family kindly requests donations be made to Freedom River in memory of Hal Losey.

Marriage Notes for Julie Niethammer and Mark Choate:

Hurricane Harvey tried to put a damper on the wedding of Julie Niethammer and Mark Choate, but the show went on anyway. The couple are now happily hitched and honeymooning in Iceland, far north of the current storm action in the Atlantic Ocean. "We still got married on Sept. 3 in Magnolia, Texas, just outside of Houston," said Julie, a 2012 Dexter High School graduate, via e-mail on Tuesday. "We had to plan everything again. Thankfully, our families stepped in and helped." Niethammer shared her story of trying to spontaneously make arrangements for a Sept. 3 wedding after her original plans were destroyed by Hurricane Harvey.

Five days before the wedding Julie and Mark, a Houston native, had so meticulously planned, they found themselves pulling together with their families to make sure they could still say 'I do,' even though it wouldn't be at their planned venue, which was by then flooded. With the Houston airport closed, Mark flew to Dallas from Chicago, where the couple lives. Julie's parents also rerouted to Dallas while the bride confirmed that her other planned vendors — including a bartender and photographer, were safe and could still provide services. They were out of luck on finding a hotel or church to serve as a wedding location since they were needed for disaster relief, but were able to use as a last option the vacation rental home at which Julie's parents were staying.

On Sept. 3, with all new plans in place, Julie and Mark stood together on the front steps of the spacious two-story home, ready at last to be married. "I was filled with excitement, I couldn't stop smiling," said Julie. "I kept thinking to myself how much I love him and that I was looking forward to our future adventures. I love absolutely everything about him, especially how at ease he makes me." Mark, a man of few words, said while the hurricane had placed stress on the family, when he finally said his vows to the woman he loves, he felt "happy."

The couple, who met and fell in love at Michigan State University, continued the celebration with a party on the back porch that included gumbo and shrimp boil made by Mark's uncle, and side dishes provided by Julie's family. While not all their guests from out of state could make it due to flight cancellations, the new husband and wife will have another celebration in Michigan in November.

"It turned out lovely," said Julie of her Houston post-hurricane wedding. "It actually went really well for being put together in five days. This struggle actually bodes well for our marriage because it shows how much we can support each other through the ups and downs and very stressful times." The wedding will make a good story to tell their future children and Julie knows just what she will say: "I will tell them you don't have to have an extravagant event to know how much people love and care about you."

For some it's about beauty, for others it's about pride; but for these two families, it's about a rich Saline heritage. Members of the Stegenga family recently looked on as they watched their third Miss Saline named on Sept. 2. Nicole Stegenga became the most recent in a line dating back 25 years when her mother, Laurie Vogel Stegenga won the same title in 1978. Five years later, her sister, Beth Vogel Newman, reigned as Miss Saline of 1982.

"It was so exciting to have both daughters compete in the pageant," says Dorothy Vogel, mother of Laurie and Beth and grandmother to Nicole. "Watching Nicole compete on Tuesday took me back in time. Her grandfather, Bill, and I had to pinch ourselves. We couldn't believe we were there, 25 years later, watching Nicole compete."

The Vogels acknowledged the tough decision the judges had because all of the girls were "just delightful young women," says Dorothy. The Vogels have been involved in the fair for years and that played a part in why their daughters and granddaughter wanted to be involved in the Miss Saline Pageant. "I can't wait to see Nicole become involved in the community even more so than she is now. That is such an important part of being MissSaline," says Dorothy.

Notes for Gary William Jedele:

Gary William Jedele, age 60, of Saline, Michigan passed away on Saturday, August 20, 2022 after a brief battle with cancer. He was born October 16, 1961 in Saline, the son of LeRoy H. and Irene S. (Kruger) Jedele. On January 22, 1988, he married Judy A. Knoedler. Gary was a co-owner at Mid-Tech Inc. in Ann Arbor and was extremely proud of the business he helped grow. He had a love for farming, John Deere, classic country music, westerns, and a good nap.

Cherishing his memory are his wife Judy (Knoedler) and their two daughters, Emily (Stephen) Seger and Marissa Jedele, grandson Wyatt Seger, his mother, Irene, four siblings; Karen (Robert) Mills, Roger (JoAnn) Jedele, Keith Jedele, Marie (Doug) Bowker; his sister-in-law Dona Jedele, father-in-law Leonard (Annie) Knoedler and brother-in-law Bob (Annette) Knoedler.

He joined his father LeRoy, his brother Richard "Joe" Jedele, and his mother-in-law Dorothy Knoedler, in heaven.

Gary was a man that was always willing to lend a helping hand without a thought to what he would get in return; great for a laugh and sharing an adage that belonged to a different generation. He was a truly good man and will be sorely missed by those that love him. CITATION TO ACCOMPANY THE AWARD OF THE AIR FORCE CROSS

The President of the United States of America, authorized by Title 10, Section 8742, U.S.C, awards the Air Force Cross to Senior Airman Dustin H. Temple for extraordinary heroism in military operations against an armed enemy of the United States while serving with the 21st Expeditionary Special Tactics Squadron in Helmand Province, Afghanistan from 27 to 29 September 2014.

On these days, while attached to a United States Special Forces team, Airman Temple displayed extraordinary bravery and complete disregard for his own life as he and his teammates assaulted an insurgent safe haven. As overwhelming hostile fire continually suppressed his team, Airman Temple broke the assault on many occasions with danger close air support from F-16s, AH-1s, AC-130s and an MQ-1. Following a teammate being gravely wounded by a sniper, he put himself directly in the line of fire, and dragged his wounded teammate from the rooftop. With the evacuation helicopter inbound, Airman Temple again risked his own life to save his teammate, by carrying him across one hundred meters of open terrain. Despite overwhelming and accurate enemy machine gun fire, he remained on the open landing zone, providing covering fire while his teammates pulled back.

After he returned to the compound, enemy fighters surged within 40 meters after intercepted communications stated, "Take the Americans alive." Airman Temple immediately directed F-16s in danger close strafing runs, killing one insurgent and repelling the assault. As supplies dwindled, he braved open terrain again to retrieve critical ammunition from a re-supply helicopter. With continuous machine gun fire, he and a teammate sprinted into the open and dragged the supplies off the aircraft; however, unable to carry the entire load, they withdrew back to cover. Airman Temple called in danger close fires from F-16s to cover his team as they went out to retrieve the remaining ammunition. Despite the continuous machine gun fire, Airman Temple and two teammates again ran into open terrain to retrieve the remainder of the supplies for a second time.

At the end of the 48-hour engagement, he controlled 28 attack helicopters and 20 fixed wing assets for a total of 26 engagements while safely employing munitions at danger close range 75 times. Airman Temple's heroic and selfless actions directly resulted in confirmed 10 enemy fighters killed, and another eight estimated killed, while saving the lives of 38 friendly forces. Through his extraordinary heroism, superb Airmanship, and aggressiveness in the face of the enemy, Airman Temple has reflected the highest credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

More About Alger F. Bollinger:
Social Security Number: 386-32-2427

Notes for Mary Jane King:

Jane (King) Bollinger passed away peacefully on Tuesday, August 23, 2016 in Green Bay, Wisconsin. Jane was born in 1924 in rural Livingston County, Michigan, to Hazel (Nicholas) and Ira N. King. She graduated from Stockbridge High School in 1941. Jane and Alger Bollinger were married at the Plainfield United Methodist Church in December 1942. They were married for over 65 years, until Alger passed away in early 2008.

Jane and Alger raised their three children on the small Bollinger family dairy farm near Plainfield. As parents, they each worked double shifts to supplement the precarious farming income. Al worked days on the farm and nights as a skilled die-maker in Howell. Jane worked at home, caring over the years for twenty-three beloved foster children. Jane was a born musician; many neighbors and friends have appreciated her expressive soprano solos sung at weddings, funerals, and other occasions.

After their children left home, Jane and Alger sold the farm and moved to the Bollinger homestead at 405 Main Street in Gregory. Jane shared with Alger the love of music, gardening, and Siamese cats.

They enjoyed playing duets, Jane on the piano and Al on the saxophone. They worked on projects to benefit the Plainfield Church. Jane also worked for ten years at Book Crafters Publishing in Chelsea. Jane and Alger traveled in the U.S. and toured Europe and Mexico. As a widow, and while she was able, Jane lived in the little saltbox house she and Alger had built to downsize in 1984. Jane then went to live with a daughter and son-in-law in Wisconsin. Jane was a natural writer, who chronicled local life, both past and present, including genealogies of the King and Bollinger families. Her popular newspaper column, "The View From My Window," evokes the rhythms of nature, farm, and village.

Jane was preceded in death by her parents; four siblings: Trula Jackson, Emmett King, Donna Nicholson, and Phyllis Osborne; her husband, Alger Bollinger; and her son, Carl Frederic 'Ric' Bollinger.

She is survived by two daughters, Patricia Gayle (Raymond) Cole of Fowlerville, Michigan, and Joel Ruth (Randall) Pouwels of Green Bay, Wisconsin; sister-in-law Patricia Fitzgerald of Ann Arbor; grandsons Michael (Jill) Cole of Cedar Springs, Michigan, and Craig (Jennifer) Cole of Akron, Ohio; granddaughter Elanor 'Ellie' Phillips of Bentonville, Arkansas; great-granddaughters Caitlin Cole and Chelsea (Cody) McKay, all of Muskegon; numerous nieces and nephews; and Skeeter, her last Siamese cat.

A Funeral Service will be held at 11:00 a.m. on Monday, August 29, 2016, at the Plainfield United Methodist Church, with Rev. Dave Freeland officiating. Burial will follow at Plainfield Cemetery. The family will receive friends at the Caskey-Mitchell Funeral Home, Stockbridge, on Sunday from 6-8 p.m. In lieu of flowers, memorials may be directed to Jane's favored children's charity, Smile Train (www.SmileTrain.org, or P.O. Box 96231, Washington, DC 20090), or to the Plainfield United Methodist Church.

Marriage Notes for Woodard Niethammer and Marilyn Rehn:

Four hundred guests were in attendance as Miss Marilyn Dianna Rehn entered Central Lutheran Church Saturday June 1, 1963 to become the bride of Woodard Avery Niethammer. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rehn of Gig Harbor and the bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Woodard A. Niethammer. The Rev. Carl E. Lucky officiated before an altar made beautiful with white floral bouquets and candelabra.

The white motif was further carried out with the costumes of the bride and her attendants, colorful bouquets of red roses elegantly accenting the gowns' simplicity. The bride was lovely in a classically styled gown of bloom silk appliquéd with Alençon lace in a scroll and floral pattern. Seed pearls trimmed the bodice, which was designed with a crescent-shaped décolletage and long sleeves, tapered at the wrists. The full-length skirt, also trimmed with applique lace, extended into a chapel-length train.

On her head, the bride wore a pearl medallion to which was gathered a veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses in a sunburst design. Sentiment was provided in the antique handkerchief which she carried and which had belonged to a grandmother.

Miss Marsha Nixon was maid of honor. Mesdames Kurt Corey, Ed Bevis, Glen Vannoy, Lee Pierson and Lowell Smith, the latter the twin sister of the bridegroom, were attendants. All were gowned in white crystalline peau made with fitted bodices and bell-shaped skirts. Their red roses were arranged in colonial nose-gays. The rings were carried by Kevin Hilton, nephew of the bridegroom. Kelly Shaver was best man. Richard Rehn, brother of the bride, Kurt Corey, Gary Woodworth, Lee Pierson and Royce Hilt on were ushers. Richard Skurdall and Peter Dahl were acolytes. Mrs. Stanley Blackwood was soloist and Calvin Knapp was at the organ.

The mothers of the young couple joined in receiving guests at the reception which followed. Mrs. Rehn wore a mint green sheath of shantung with matching jacket and pink accessories. She also wore a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore an emerald green ensemble with white accessories and orchid corsage. Presiding at the silver coffee and tea urns were Mesdames William Yeo and Clara Bell, aunts of the bride, Mesdames Fritz Haberecht and Harold Woodworth. Others assisting with the festivities were Mesdames Claire Peterson, sister of the bride, Royce Hilton, sister of the bridegroom, Ben Pearson, Harold Ryan, Gus Backus, Charles Benton and Nick Babich. Among the guests were Richard Rehn of Casper, Wyoming, brother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. William Yeo, uncle and aunt of the bride, of McMinnville, Oregon, and Mrs. C. G. Bell, aunt of the bride, of Seattle.

The couple departed after their wedding for a trip to California, the bride wearing a gray ensemble with red hat and black accessories. Notes for Dr. Mary Christine Jackson:

Mary Ginnebaugh began international folk dancing in 2007, above the curling rink in the small, Maritime Province town of Wolfville, Nova Scotia. This international dance group was relatively small but well established and as a newcomer, Mary was welcomed to join in. It was the music that really stuck in her head and made this whole new learning experience so much fun. After leaving Nova Scotia in 2008 and returning to Green Bay, Wisconsin she was delighted to find there was a folk-dance group in Appleton ... the International Folk Dancers of the Fox Valley! With the encouragement of the late Betty White along with Linda Blohowiak, Becky Bookter and others from the Fox Valley, she continued to learn various folk dances from many countries and was even brave enough to teach a dance or two that she had learned from attending the Madison Folk Ball or the Door County Folk Festival.

Since moving to Milwaukee in 2021, she dances less than when she lived in Green Bay, but still enjoys dancing and attends the Madison Folk Ball and the Door County Folk Festival. Mary is still engaged in political activities, supports Great Lakes environmental research and works with the social justice initiatives of Milwaukee.

Mary Ginnebaugh received this award in recognition of her long-time service to IAGLR. Ginnebaugh, who is retired from Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, joined the association in 1985. Her recent service includes a term on the IAGLR Board of Directors, where she provided an important voice in financial strategy and the hiring of a new executive director. She also took on co-chairing the Conference Committee during a critical time as we returned to in-person meetings after the pandemic. In 2013, Ginnebaugh established the David D. Dolan Scholarship in memory of her husband and continues to provide oversight and financial support to the benefit not only of the graduate students conducting the research, but to the understanding and management of Great Lakes ecosystems. Ginnebaugh and Dolan, who also served on the board, received the Anderson-Everett award jointly in 2001.

He married Lois E. Hoffman 20 Jun 1959 in Grand Rapids, Kent Co, Michigan, daughter of Vincent Hoffman and Luella Cline. She was born 01 Jul 1937 in Michigan.

Notes for Norman Wayne Ginebaugh:

Norman Wayne Ginebaugh, 75, son of Gilbert and June Ginebaugh (deceased) and brother of Phillip (deceased), passed away Saturday, January 26th, 2013. He is survived by his loving wife, of 53 years, Lois; his children, Gregory and Kathy Ginebaugh, Charles and Sarah Ginebaugh, James and Amy Ginebaugh; his grandchildren, Deborah, Shawn and Andy Smith, David, Brian, Andrew, Collin, Jordan, Scott and Geoffrey.

Norm graduated from South High School in Grand Rapids and Western Michigan University with a degree in business. His entire career was in the financial service industry. While in his fifties, Norm retired and began his second career, following a calling to serve others, particularly children in need. In his later years, Norm focused his efforts upon benefiting Kids Food Basket, St. John's Home and local food pantries, logging thousands of hours picking up donated food and delivering it to the hungry. Norm was frequently recognized for his outstanding volunteerism and was the recipient of several awards including: Daily Points of Light, Booker T. Washington Volunteer Award, and the Humana Star Light Award. An active member of the North Grand Rapids Kiwanis Club, Norm enjoyed golf, gardening and cooking. Every Christmas, he loved dressing as Santa and delighting the children of St. John's Home. "Grandpa Norm" was a favorite of his grandchildren, both natural and "adopted". He will be greatly missed by his family and many friends for his generosity, humor and love of life.

Visitation will be held Friday, February 1 from 4 - 7 P.M. and again on Saturday, February 2 from 11 AM - 2 PM at the Heritage Life Story Funeral Home, Van Strien - Creston Chapel, 1833 Plainfield N.E. A private family service will be held. For those who wish donations may be sent to Kids Food Basket or D. A. Blodgett/St. John's Home.

Norman Ginebaugh will be remembered for his plentiful gardens and bread made from scratch, his unwavering work ethic and his complete devotion to his family, but what will be his lasting legacy is the way he selflessly gave so much of himself for the benefit of others. Whether he was delivering food to those in need, donating blood, or handing out gifts as Santa Claus, he reached so many in the community he called home throughout much of his life. Norm loved being a husband and father, but perhaps it was becoming a grandfather that was his greatest gift. A blessing in every sense of the word, he will be deeply missed while the impact he made in the lives of countless others continues to multiply in amazing ways.

Although the Great Depression covered our nation like a wet blanket throughout the 1930s, a young couple from Lyons, Michigan, was filled with unspeakable joy as they welcomed their son, Norman W., into their hearts and home on March 9, 1937, in Lansing. He was the first of two sons born to his parents, Gilbert and June (Prichard) Ginebaugh, and his father worked in the sawmill industry.

As a student Norm began his education at an elementary school in Lyons, and it continued at Sheldon Elementary School in Grand Rapids when his family moved there when he was seven years old. In school he was known as someone who was outgoing and friendly, and as a student at Grand Rapids South High School he was known as the class flirt. Right after graduating from high school in 1955, Norm went on to Grand Rapids Junior College and then transferred to Western Michigan University where earned his bachelor's degree in business.

Not to be forgotten during Norm's years in high school was his introduction to the young woman who would later steal his heart. Her name was Lois Hoffman, and although they didn't date in high school they did begin dating after he stopped in at the telephone company where she worked while he was a college student. They were married at Second Congregational Church in Grand Rapids in 1959 just a week after Norm graduated from Western Michigan University. Norm's strong work ethic began during his earliest years in the workforce when he began working in gas stations and doing other odd jobs as a young teenager. He even put himself through college selling diamonds and pots and pans. As a young newlywed Norm worked at Old Kent Bank and Trust Company before settling in at GE Financial where he remained for 13 years.

After learning the ins and out of his career in Farmington, Norm and Lois returned to Grand Rapids where they settled into a home on N. Park Lane Dr. N.E.. It was there that they raised their three sons: Gregory, Charles, and James. Norm made one final career move to a firm that was a division of Xerox Corporation. He enjoyed a successful career there as the local office manager. Norm and Lois joined Second Congregational Church where they were actively involved over the years.

Being with his family was always a priority in Norm's life. He was an active father who was involved in the Boy Scouts when his boys were in the program, and he was also there for their school activities as well. Summers often found them camping in a travel trailer as a family to places throughout Northern Michigan and also to other locations around the country like Yellowstone National Park, Mt. Rushmore, and Florida. As a family the Ginebaughs enjoyed golfing on the course at the Elks Country Club where they were members, and it was not uncommon for the family to gather around the campfire that Norm often made in the backyard.

Throughout his life Norm was a man of many interests. His family appreciated his cooking, especially his mac and cheese, and his neighbors fully appreciated his abundant vegetable garden. Norm liked fishing and took several fishing trips up North, and he also liked cross country skiing. After he retired at the age of 55 he and Lois headed to Alabama for a month during the winter in their motor home or fifth wheel. Norm also had more time for the game he loved - golf. He was an active Kiwanian and was awarded the honor of "Kiwanian of the Year". He was known for concluding the Kiwanis meetings with a bit of wisdom or encouragement called "A Notable Quotable".

Norm's life was forever changed when he heard a voice tell him to spend his time helping others while he was driving home one day. His efforts began by bringing joy to the patients at DeVos Children's Hospital where he was known as Grandpa Norm or Santa at Christmas time. Norm also worked as a volunteer at Lincoln School where he sponsored a pancake breakfast to help bring some added money into their fund for school furnishings. During this time he also began collecting surplus food to distribute to places in need such as Other Way Ministries with his fellow Kiwanian, Frank Churchill. In 1999 Norm began delivering food to St. John's Home and he also worked with the kids who lived there. Grandpa Norm is how he was usually known there as well, and as Santa during the holidays he always made sure that every child received a gift. A day of service typically found him leaving the house shortly after breakfast and heading to local grocery stores that had surplus food waiting for him. Norm then spent a good part of the day delivering the food to various pantries and ministries in the community. Norm also donated a total of more than 21 gallons of blood over the years.

Although Norm was always a humble man, his efforts didn't go unnoticed. He was awarded with the Family Futures Booker T. Washington Volunteer Award for his service to children as well as the Humana Starlight Award for his volunteer work with Access of West Michigan, Kids food Basket, and the Salvation Army's Booth Family Services and the Daily Points of Light. Norm was a finalist in the Senior Volunteer of the Year race for the 2012 Governor's Service Awards. Life became more difficult for Norm and his loved ones when he was diagnosed with cancer just this past spring, but his faith, courage, and optimism never wavered. A generous, compassionate, and vibrant man, Norman Ginebaugh was a treasure in the lives of those too numerous to count. His family, whether through bloodlines or heart strings, was his greatest gift. The timeless legacy Norm leaves behind will be carried on by the loved ones he cherished

Notes for Jean Marian Genebach:

The sons and daughters of Jean Gal are sad to announce the final passing of their mother after a prolonged, debilitating illness. She was born Jean Marian Genebach to Lowell and Mildred Genebach in Battle Creek, Michigan. Her first love was dancing, which led to a long career in dance and theater. In 1948, she won a role in the touring company of the Broadway musical, "Oklahoma!," when she was only 18. She met her husband Martin Gal (d. 2009), while enrolled as a dance student at the University of Texas and they married in 1951. They settled in Michigan, where they lived until moving to the Amherst area to be closer to their children. Jean led the "Rhythmic Choir" at Edgewood Universal Church in East Lansing for many years, taught children's dance and was the Director of the children's theater program at the Kalamazoo Civic Theater in the 1970's. Jean and Martin had many interests, including a Storytelling, once at the Smithsonian in Washington, DC, and a long-standing tradition of hosting charade parties for family and friends. In addition to her interest in the arts, Jean was heavily involved in the League of Women's voters and led the Michigan branch of the organization in the 1990's. To her children and, later, her grandchildren, she was a woman of tremendous positive energy, playfulness, and unconditional love.

Jean is survived by her five children, Hillary Gal (New York, New York), Graham Gal (Amherst, Massachusetts), Susannah Gal (Harrisburg, Pennsylvania), David Nelson-Gal (Palo Alto, California) and Alyson Gal (Milton, Massachusetts), eleven grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren. Professionally, Martin worked as an author, a producer at National Educational Television, which later became Public Broadcasting Service, a businessman and a real estate broker. He enjoyed writing, graphic arts and acting, along with charades, storytelling, country dancing and filmmaking.

He will be deeply missed by his wife of 58 years, Jean (Genebach) Gal, along with his children, Hillary Gal and husband Bill Kiley of New York, New York, Graham Gal and wife Francine Fink Gal of Amherst, Massachusetts, Susannah Baxter-Gal and husband Hilton Baxter of Binghamton, New York, David Nelson-Gal and wife Julia Nelson-Gal of Palo Alto, California, and Alyson Allen and husband Ralph Allen of Milton, Massachusetts. Michael Richard¹³ Kushmaul (Nelson Alvin¹², Edward Vanburin¹¹, Alvin Homer¹⁰, Joseph⁹, Johann Martin⁸ Kussmaul, Catharina⁷ Morlok, Anna Maria⁶ Jedelin, Johannes⁵, Martin⁴, Martin³, Hans², Jakob¹) was born 03 Jan 1948 in Jackson Co, Michigan, and died 16 Nov 2024 in Jackson Co, Michigan. He married Rosemarie Vickery 13 Dec 1970 in Bicester, England. She was born Aft. 1942.

Notes for Michael Richard Kushmaul:

Michael Richard Kushmaul Sr. was born on January 3, 1948 in Jackson, Michigan. He was one of three children born to the union of Nelson Kushmaul and Donna (Sackrider) Kushmaul Gauss. Michael attended Chelsea High School, graduating in 1966 before enlisting in the United States Air Force in November of 1966, where he served for four years. When he returned from his enlistment, he was gainfully employed by the Chelsea Proving Grounds until retirement. During his time in the Air Force, he met the love of his life, Rosemarie Vickery, in Bicester, England. They wed on December 13, 1970 in Bicester, England. They spent some time living in Germany before returning to the United States at the end of Michael's enlistment. They were blessed with one son, Michael Richard Kushmaul Jr.

Together, Mike and Rose enjoyed a life full of lake living, cruising around on their boat, and enjoying beautiful views over tea and coffee on the back deck. They also spent many years camping all over Michigan, making wonderful memories with their son and his family. Michael enjoyed all sports, specifically local Detroit sports. There was never a holiday that he hosted that didn't have a game on the television. Michael was a selfless, determined, hard working, and welcoming man. He was an outstanding father and an even better grandfather. Michael always welcomed everyone with open arms and would have done anything for those he loved. Michael would tell stories of his time in the Air Force and all of the skills he learned - from sewing clothes to packing parachutes, and cooking pizzas for his fellow troops. Following Michael's end of his journey with the Air Force, he worked many years at the Proving Grounds, where he continued his work in fixing things. Michael continued his devotion to fixing things in every aspect of his life by making sure his mother was taken care of. If there was ever anything his family needed fixed, he was there to fix it.

Michael showed a softer side once he became a grandfather and spent countless years creating memories with his granddaughters - from the custom train room, to the lake days, to being there for all the sporting events, to Thanksgivings at his house, there was never a dull moment with Michael. But most importantly, Michael was a loving husband. His wife, Rosemarie, was his everything. There was rarely a day they were apart. Michael was a funny, sarcastic man, and Rosemarie would simply laugh and shake her head at all of his jokes. Michael Richard Kushmaul Sr. passed away peacefully on November 16, 2024 at Henry Ford Allegiance Health in Jackson, Michigan surrounded by his loving family. He was preceded in death by his father, Nelson Kushmaul, his brother, Roger Kushmaul, and several aunts and uncles.

To cherish his memory, Michael leaves his mother, Donna Gauss; wife, Rosemarie; son, Michael (Christina) Kushmaul of Jackson; granddaughters: Chene (Greg) Wainwright of Ferndale, Rachel (Russell) Henry of Jackson, and Amanda (Zachary) Summerville of Monroe; one great-grandson, Roman Henry; and sister, Pam Kushmaul of New Mexico.

Friends may gather from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. on Thursday, November 21, 2024, at Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home, 901 N. Main Street, Chelsea, Michigan. A celebration of Michael's life will be held at 1:00 p.m., also at Staffan-Mitchell, with Pastor Mike Smith officiating. Procession will follow to Oak Grove East Cemetery for burial.

The family would like to specially thank nurses Nichole and Kelsie of Henry Ford Allegiance Health, 6-West, for their outstanding care and support throughout Michael's passing. Lastly, if you have ever met Michael, make sure to keep his memory alive by always having a LifeSaver mint on hand.

More About Nancy Anne Gross:

Occupation: chief executive officer at Moomers Homemade Ice Cream Traverse City, Grand Traverse Co, Michigan

Notes for Robert Edson (Bob) Plummer:

Jan 2018 - Hot summer days push as many as 2,000 ice cream lovers through Moomers' shop on North Long Lake Road. There are at least two good reasons for that: The award-winning ice cream is the perfect antidote to warmer temps and there are always new flavors to try. Started as a dairy farm nearly three decades ago by former first grade teacher Nancy Plummer and her husband Bob, the idea of making and selling ice cream seemed like a natural next step. Two of the Plummer's grown children, Jon and Becky, are now fully involved in the ice cream side of the family business. Visitors to the store today can look out over the Plummer's steeply rolling, 80-acre farm and see the small herd of milk cows who help make Moomers so popular. A fun fact: The name "Moomers" came from Nancy, who had always called calves "moomers." Jon Plummer said the name just stuck. "Kids can pronounce it. They can remember it. And kids are important in this business," he said. "It's turned out to be one of the best decisions they made. And it was done without branding or business experts."

Plummer said at first he wasn't sure about working so closely every day with family. But now he's completely engaged and can tick off many of the reasons why the business has prospered:

- Create and sustain high quality products. "That comes first, of course."
- Be there. "Work your business. Always stay on top of what's going on."
- Grow organically. "Don't stretch yourself too thin. Make sure the cash flow is where it needs to be."
- Understand your customers. "We are in the people business. People remember how the experience made them feel."
- Keep current. "We just met with [Northwestern Michigan College] to see if they have some new ideas that would be good for our business.”

- Develop new products. Experimentation, he said, “is pretty much endless.”
- Be bold. It’s OK to fail once in a while. “We tried asparagus ice cream and also a macaroni and cheese flavor. They were horrible. They went straight into the dumpster.”

A big challenge for Moomers is the seasonal aspect of the business. Half of yearly sales take place between June and August. Demand is so great, the staff – many of them young, first-time workers – expands to about 25. By comparison, in mid-winter, there’s a skeletal crew of just five or six. To ease the seasonal swings, Moomers has increased the wholesale side of operations. Another challenge surfaced with the enactment of the Food Safety Modernization Act in 2011, which Jon Plummer calls the “biggest food safety overhaul in 20 years.” For Moomers, this meant ingredients like local berries have to come from inspected, documented sources. But in typical fashion, he remains upbeat. “It means we have more hoops to jump through, but on the other hand, it’s good for customers,” he said. “We know we’re already doing it right when our food inspector comes here as a customer.”

Jack R. Knapp of Delaware, Ohio passed peacefully to his eternal life on Monday, February 11, 2013. Jack lived his life with such kindness. He simply was liked by everyone he met. He was born on February 08, 1942. Jack's one and only career after college was banking, starting in Detroit, then Baltimore and continuing in Columbus, most recently at Chase Bank, where he worked for 12 years. As a banker, he always gave his best to his customers. He grew up in New Hudson and South Lyon, Michigan, where he built elementary school friendshipsthat lasted throughout his life. He graduated from Ferris State University and was a member of Delta Sigma Phi. Jack loved the great Michigan outdoors, golfing, tending to his pond, bird feeding, working in the yard, the Blue Jackets and the companionship of his pets.

We are so thankful for our kind and generous neighbors who helped us through this difficult time. Memorial gifts may be sent to Canine Companions for Independence. Snyder-Rodman Funeral Center is honored to serve the family of Jack Knapp.

Notes for Cheryl Ann Curley:

Cheryl Ann (Curley) Visel, age, 61, passed away peacefully at her home on January 20th, 2016. Cheryl, faced her diagnosis of cancer with a positive fighting spirit that inspired not only her family and dear friends, but anyone who met her throughout her illness. Cheryl was preceded in death by her husband of 35 years John Wayne "Chub" Visel and is survived by her children William, Teresa, Eric, Bobbi, Nicki, Don and her 16 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

Cheryl, born to Ann & Ken Curley in Queens, New York grew up in West Islip, New York with her five surviving siblings; Ken (ToniAnn) Curley, Karen Ann (Eugene) Harran, Patricia (Al) Bertolone, Diane (Stevan) Mena, 7 nieces and 3 nephews.

Cheryl was an amazing artist who was nominated the most artistic in High School. She continued to use this talent throughout her life and provided multiple works of art for her friends and family that will be cherished forever. Cheryl spent the past 10 years living life to the fullest from skydiving to festivals and traveling the country. She visited Mayan Ruins, Watched the sun rise and set over the oceans and loved spending time with her loved ones she had not seen in years. Moments and memories she cherished deeply.

Cheryl said it was an honor to work with the U.S Military, Veterans groups, Charities, Motorcycle clubs and local companies with her embroidery business. She was quick to donate services and offer support to all of these groups. Her heart has always been, and always will be, with her Husband John (Chub). Her fondest memories are being with him in the Virgin Islands where they met and started their life together. They both often reminisced about starting their life together in the Islands and smiled at starting their life together in a tent overlooking the ocean. Making a point, it's not how you live as much as who you live it with.

Final wishes; Cheryl and John will be jointly released in the ocean in the Virgin Islands where they will return to the happiest moments of their life. Visitation will be Friday from 4-8 P.M. at Sherwood Funeral Home, Grass Lake. A celebration of Cheryl's life will be held at 11 A.M. Saturday, January 30, 2016 at Sherwood Funeral Home. Cheryl will be deeply missed by all who loved her.

He married Myrna Kay Palmer 23 Aug 1963 in Southfield, Oakland Co, Michigan, daughter of Ed Palmer. She was born 29 Jun 1941, and died 29 Aug 1999 in Brighton, Livingston Co, Michigan.

Notes for David Harold Schroen:

5, 4, 3, 2, 1... Houston, we have liftoff. David Harold Schroen has successfully returned to the Lord's kingdom on February 28, 2025. He was 83. While David was best known for being a happy, thoughtful, loving brother, husband, father, grandfather, and great-grandfather, little known is that he was a member of the Apollo Space Program team. After graduating from the University of Michigan with a degree in Aerospace Engineering and earning a Master's in Aerospace Engineering from the University of Southern California, David spent his early career helping America enter and win the race to the moon.

After the NASA program was retired, David returned to his home state of Michigan to spend the remainder of his brilliant engineering career with the Ford Motor Company. He was part of the team that developed the Ford Explorer years before the vehicle went into production in February of 1990. This revolutionary vehicle set the wheels in motion for a vehicle type dominance that continues more than 30 years later. While his professional achievements were literally "out of this world," Dave was best known for being a brother, husband, dad, and grandpa. He was the firstborn of Robert and Arlene Schroen of Chelsea, MI in February of 1942. Dave had three siblings: Duane, Sue, and Carol.

He married Myrna Kay Palmer in 1964 and raised three children: Jeff, Mark, and Tracy. Dave and Myrna's marriage was considered by all to be an absolute rock. They loved their children and helped create a true family foundation. Their home was a refuge and a residence to celebrate life for all.

In 1996, Myrna started her battle with cancer, and with Dave by her side, she returned to the Lord's kingdom in 1999. By the Lord's grace—and most likely some guidance from Myrna in heaven—Dave was able to meet Marie and once again spend another 25 years as a loving husband and stepfather. Dave's nature was optimistic and jovial. Every day, he proved the narrative false that nice guys finish last. His laugh will always be a part of the people who knew and loved him.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that you honor his memory by going out of your way to make someone's day. Hold your tongue and say something nice or kind when anger sets in. Play a round of golf—and regardless of your score, consider the day precious. A Celebration of Life for David will be held on Saturday, May 10, 2025, 11:00 a.m., at St. Paul United Church of Christ, 14600 Old US-12, Chelsea, Michigan 48118. A luncheon will immediately follow.

Marriage Notes for David Schroen and Myrna Palmer:

The engagement of Myrna Kay Palmer to David Harold Schroen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Schroen of Waltrous Road, is being announced June 6, 1963 by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Palmer of Southfield. Miss Palmer is a graduate of Southfield High School and is graduating this week from Eastern Michigan University where she is affiliated with Kappa Delta Pi honorary society and Sigma Sigma social sorority. Her fiancé, a graduate of Chelsea High School, is a senior in aeronautical engineering at the University of Michigan. An August wedding is being planned by the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kern, of Russell Street, attended their grandson David Schroen's wedding and reception in Southfield, Michigan, Friday evening August 23, 1963. Mr. Schroen married the former Myrna Palmer in a ceremony performed at the Southfield Methodist Church. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schroen of Chelsea and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Palmer of Southfield.

Assistant Professor of Chemistry

American Cancer Society Postdoctoral Fellow at Harvard Medical School, 2009

Ph.D. 2005, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

B.S. 1999, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Principal Research Interests - Ubiquitination and Degradation

The entire population of proteins in an organism, known as the proteome, is dynamic and rich in diversity. It is estimated that the human proteome consists of >200,000-2,000,000 distinct protein forms despite only 20,000 proteins encoded by the genome. Giving rise to this complexity are the myriad covalent modifications that occur on the side chains of amino acid residues embedded within proteins. The ensemble of alterations is termed posttranslational modifications (PTMs), reflecting the timing within the context of the central dogma in biology. PTMs consist of the covalent attachment of both small molecules (phosphate, methyl, glycosyl, or acetyl) and proteins, e.g., ubiquitin and ubiquitin-like molecules (UBLs). Many PTMs are entwined with one another resulting in dramatic physiological changes if a single node within the cellular network is malfunctioning.

Take for example, the two most abundant mechanisms for regulating protein function, phosphorylation and ubiquitination. Their codependence during the cell cycle and immune response relates miscues to aberrant cellular events on a global scale ultimately leading to the development of immune disorders and cancer. Against this backdrop, our laboratory is interested in the molecular details associated with the tethering of ubiquitin and UBLs to proteins. An intricate network of enzymes are responsible for carrying out the coupling and uncoupling of ubiquitin/UBLs to and from target proteins. Specifically, three types of enzyme — E1, E2, and E3 — attach ubiquitin/UBLs, and in most cases, assemble polymeric chains of ubiquitin molecules tethered to substrates. E1s activate ubiquitin/UBLs. E2s transfer ubiquitin/UBLs from E1 and couple them to an e-amino group of a lysine residue in the target, while E3s sequester specific substrates catalyzing the ligation to targets. The outcome of these steps can be reversed through the action of deubiquitylating enzymes (DUBs). Although a great deal is known about the overall ubiquitin cascade, it is unclear how the communication between E2-E3 controls ubiquitination; which substrates a given E3 is responsible for modifying; and how E3-catalyzed polyubiquitin chain formation occurs on a molecular level. Answers to these questions are not only critical for the development of new therapeutics but also for the functional interpretation of mutant forms of enzymes that lead to human disease. To address these questions we use ideas and methods from organic chemistry, biochemistry, molecular biology and cell biology.

Notes for David Frank Moegle:

Aug 31, 2011 - In any sport or hobby, rising to the top almost three decades after starting may seem to be an impossible feat for some. However, for 45-year-old Armada native David Moegle it was a year-long journey that brought him back to the top of the motocross world. Moegle won his first national motocross title in 1984 at the age of 18 after he began riding around his family's farm, next to Blake's Cider Mill on Armada Center Road, as a child. "Me and my friends would just get together and ride around all over the property," Moegle said. "My brother Jim and I would just ride for fun."

Moegle admitted that even after winning at an early age he was never consumed by the dangerous sport, especially because of the physical dangers. After Moegle broke his jaw in 1987 he stopped riding, for what he thought might be forever. Throughout his career he also endured injuries such as a broken femur, broken ribs, internal lacerations and innumerable trips to the hospital. "It was just time to stop after that," he said of the broken jaw. It would only be 12 years though before he would climb back on the bike and compete again. In 1999 he began riding again, but eleven months ago Moegle got serious about competing and placed his eye on the annual Red Bull AMA Amateur Motocross Championships in Hurricane Mills, Tennessee.

He knew that even though he would be competing in what may be construed as the tame Over 40 unlimited class, he would have to be in top physical condition to compete at the highest level.

"You have to be in incredible shape to go out there and compete with guys like that," Moegle explained. "It may sound like a weekend warrior type of division, but there are former pros out there that still have a huge desire to win." Moegle lost 62 pounds and got himself prepared through area and regional qualifying races along with over 20,000 other riders. As he advanced, his family - which is comprised of his wife Gina, sons Ryan and Riley and mother Jerry - was with him every step of the way. "My family and friends are the reason I still do this," Moegle said. "My kids are getting into it and I still love doing it." Moegle won several state championships throughout his career, but he was looking for a national championship when he headed south in the first week of August.

"The Amateur Nationals is the event every motocross racer in the country wants to compete in," said Event Director Tim Cotter in a statement. "A win at the Amateur Nationals gives a rider national notoriety and can serve as a springboard to a lucrative professional motocross career." Moegle admitted that he was not looking for a springboard of any kind when the week began. "Really all I wanted was to finish in the top three," he said. "There is some pretty stiff competition out there these days, so I would have been extremely happy with a top three finish." All the weekend traveling he had done while working as a technical service manager paid off with a first-place trophy and a feeling of pride. "It is really rewarding to pull off something like this," Moegle said of the win. "It is great for all the people who helped you along the way and your family for supporting you." "It is never worth all the work you put in because you can never get that back, but it feels pretty darn good."

He takes more satisfaction in holding bragging rights over rival biker groups in California than hoisting the trophy, but it has not galvanized his desire to pursue a "lucrative professional motocross career." "I never thought I would be able to do this when I got back into this 12 years ago," said Moegle. "Right now I have no plans for the future, but I am looking at some offers and we will see what happens, but nothing is set right now." He said he has been in some "serious wrecks" lately and knows the kind of condition he must be in to compete, but added he knows there is always fun to be had in the sport. "I have always been the guy out there joking and having fun and it has been great no matter where I was or what happened to me," Moegle said.

Notes for Cara Michele Ukele:

Cara Michelle Hudson, 37, of Mishawaka, passed away at 4:00 a.m. Tuesday, April 15, 2008, in Saint Joseph's Regional Medical Center, South Bend, surrounded by her family. Cara was born January 13, 1971, in South Bend, Indiana, to Mr. and Mrs. Barry, and Karen (Szucs) Ukele. She was the fourth of four girls in the Ukele family. Cara was a graduate of Penn High School, class of 1989, and was employed as the office manager at Associated X-Ray of South Bend. For the last several years, Cara was a homemaker. On October 21, 1995, the former Ms. Ukele was united in marriage to Mr. Ted W. Hudson.

Remaining to cherish her memory are her husband, Ted, along with their precious children, Wesley and Sara Hudson, both of Mishawaka; three sisters, Carmen (Mike) Wojtysiak, Carla (Dave) Price and Coleen (Dave) Manspeaker, all of Mishawaka; and her parents, Barry and Karen Ukele of Mishawaka. Surviving as well are her mother and father-in-law, Eugene and MaryJane Hudson, 14 nieces and nephews, aunts, uncles and many cousins.

Visitation will be held from 2 to 8 p.m. Thursday, April 17, in Chapel Hill Funeral Home, 10776 McKinley Highway, Osceola, Indiana. Graveside services will be held at 10 a.m. Friday, April 18, in the Good Shepherd Mausoleum on the grounds of Chapel Hill Memorial Gardens, Osceola. Cara loved to cook for our many family outings, and was known by her nieces and nephews as "the best cooker." She liked to work outdoors and enjoyed fishing. Cara loved her family dearly and was loved greatly in return. No words can express the loss we feel and how we will miss her every day until we meet again. We are certain Cara is at peace. Little did we know that day, That God would call her name. In life we love you dearly, And in death we do the same. It broke our hearts to lose you, Although you did not go alone, For part of us went with her, That day God called her home. In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made in honor of Cara's children, Wesley and Sara.

Lori Ann Garland, age 55, of Adrian, Mich., formerly of Monroe, passed away unexpectedly Wednesday, May 18, 2011 at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, Pontiac, Michigan. Lori was born Aug. 18, 1955 in Monroe, Michigan to Richard and Lois (Klingensmith) Salow. Lori married the love of her life, Chris Garland, on June 27, 1993 in Johnson City, Tennessee. Lori attended Monroe High School and was also a graduate of the Hamtramck Barber School. When Lori was three years old, she was chosen as the first "Miss Hospitality" (of Monroe) during Michigan week. Lori's kind heart and compassion for animals was very apparent at an early age, as any stray kitten or puppy "mysteriously" followed her home on a regular basis. Lori was an outgoing, fun-loving person who enjoyed her family, friends and many pets, fishing, her musical favorite Tom Petty, and NASCAR, especially #24, Jeff Gordon. Her love of family was only surpassed by her love for God.

Lori is survived by her husband Chris, sons Garret Salow, Chris Jr. and Randy Garland, all of Adrian; step-daughter Kristen Garland of Johnson City, Tennessee; parents Lois (Donald) Ritchie of Harrison Township and Richard (Betty) Salow of Knoxville, Tennessee; father-in-law and mother-in-law Jerry and Carol Garland of Elizabethtown, Tenn.; siblings Randall (Deb) Salow of New Boston, Michigan, Christina (Michael) Loudon of Warren, Michigan; step-brothers Larry (Sue) Pickens of Monroe, Michigan and Terry (Teresa) Pickens of Van Wert, Ohio; brother-in-law Dennis (Carol) Garland of Johnson City, Tennessee; sisters-in-law Tracy (Harold) Howell and Penny Garland of Johnson City, Tennessee. She also leaves behind to cherish her memory four grandchildren and her many aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces, nephews, great-nieces, great-nephews, extended family and friends.

Sadly, Lori was preceded in death by her grandparents, Charles and Emily Klingensmith and Norman and Viola Salow, all of Monroe.

Cremation is being handled by the L.J. Griffin Funeral Home, Westland, Michigan. There will be no public viewing, but the family asks that you keep them in your thoughts and prayers during this time. A memorial service is being planned for a later date. We ask that any memorials be made to the family in care of: Chris Garland and Sons, c/o 24524 Independence Dr., New Boston, Michigan 48164.

Michael Steven¹⁴ Olrich (Elizabeth Blanche¹³ Anderson, Elizabeth Margaretha¹² Haab, Johanna Martha (Hannah)¹¹ Jedele, Johannes F.¹⁰, Joseph⁹, Jakob⁸, Johannes⁷, Johannes⁶ Jedelin, Johannes⁵, Martin⁴, Martin³, Hans², Jakob¹) was born 16 Apr 1970 in Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Co, Michigan, and died 03 Aug 2013 in Durand, Shiawassee Co, Michigan. He married Casey Jean Camp 11 Nov 1994. She was born 12 Jul 1975.

Notes for Michael Steven Olrich:

Michael S. Olrich age 43 of Durand passed away Saturday, August 3, 2013. Funeral services will be 11:00 AM Wednesday, August 7, 2013 at Watkins Brothers Funeral Homes of Durand. Family will receive friends on Tuesday from 2-4 and 6-8 PM. Michael was born April 16, 1970 in Ann Arbor, Michigan a son of Ronald and Elizabeth (Anderson) Olrich. On November 11, 1994 he was married to Casey Camp. For the past 17 years, he had been employed by M.S.U. as a greenhouse researcher.

Surviving Michael is his wife, Casey Olrich; children, Taylor, Joslyn and Joshua; parents, Ronald (Kelly) Olrich and Beth Anderson and Joe Maksimski; brothers, John Olrich, Ron Olrich, Lant Blackburn and Nick Blackburn; sister, Gail Howe; and step-mom, Deborah Olrich.

Memorial Contributions in Michael's name are suggested to the family at this time to be put into an education fund for his children.

I cannot remember a message more shocking for myself than the one I received on Sunday about the passing of former Sprints on Dirt competition director and official Mike Olrich. I first met Olrich when he was assisting then series head Jason Fausey with the series. After Fausey decided to step back from running the series for the 2007 season Olrich came aboard. For some reason we both hit it off and remained in contact until his passing on Saturday. Olrich used to live in the same neighborhood I lived in; we both grew up in small towns, and just seemed to have a lot in common. One would be hard pressed to meet a nicer person.

Most of the memories I have of Olrich and my announcing days with the Sprints on Dirt series are intertwined together. From silly things like making last minute runs to get copies of membership forms, talking about family life during endless support division races, to being asked by him, "How do you think everything is going?" for what seemed like the 100th time we shared the adventure of being part of a racing series. I often joke when you are a race official the best you can hope for at the end of the night is for everyone to be safe and to not get yelled at. It was a running joke between Olrich and myself that he particularly enjoyed this sort of punishment as he coached youth sports in multiple seasons for all three of his children on top of being a race official. As much fun as he enjoyed us at the race track Mike was always quick to tell me what his son was up to in football and or his daughter in softball. At one point I joked he would take up coaching co-ed water polo with horses when he ran out of sports to be involved with during a particular season.

One thing about Olrich that always struck me even when he was a race official he commanded a universal respect from the competitors and rarely if ever heard a bad word about him. Another memory that stands out is the time he road with us to Ohsweken Speedway for the Canadian Sprint Car Nationals. My wife Stephanie and I picked Olrich up at his home where he thought the yard looked like a disaster. Mike worked in horticulture at Michigan State University, and I would love to have my hard look like what he considered to be a disaster. We listened to music, laughed, and even discovered Mike's love for Swedish Fish candy (I had never met anyone that ate them). One of the lasting memories from that trip was our visit in the hotel hanging out to have dinner while others ventured to casinos or bars for the evening. Olrich wasn't a party guy, but he very much enjoyed the company of everyone in the series.

After Olrich's officiating days were done I found myself wishing he was one of my neighbors instead of living across the state. We still kept in touch periodically via e-mail and saw each other at the race track. Every winter we would try to get our schedules to align for a race trip, but his sports schedule and my family schedule never seemed to line up. We did get to visit one more time during a very unusual situation where Olrich's house had multiple trees blown down before his daughter's graduation open house. I called and woke him up in the middle of the afternoon asking if he needed assistance, but was quick to mention how overwhelmed he was at the people that had helped him. Eventually the open house was held at another location and we had a great visit, fully expecting to see him again down the road.

While I am saddened by Olrich's passing and have a constant thought of his wife and kids on my mind at the moment, I am glad that when I look back at his life I got to experience so many great moments that I would not trade for anything. Like virtually everyone else I just wish we had more time to add to them.

Notes for Gary William Jedele:

Gary William Jedele, age 60, of Saline, Michigan passed away on Saturday, August 20, 2022 after a brief battle with cancer. He was born October 16, 1961 in Saline, the son of LeRoy H. and Irene S. (Kruger) Jedele. On January 22, 1988, he married Judy A. Knoedler. Gary was a co-owner at Mid-Tech Inc. in Ann Arbor and was extremely proud of the business he helped grow. He had a love for farming, John Deere, classic country music, westerns, and a good nap.

Cherishing his memory are his wife Judy (Knoedler) and their two daughters, Emily (Stephen) Seger and Marissa Jedele, grandson Wyatt Seger, his mother, Irene, four siblings; Karen (Robert) Mills, Roger (JoAnn) Jedele, Keith Jedele, Marie (Doug) Bowker; his sister-in-law Dona Jedele, father-in-law Leonard (Annie) Knoedler and brother-in-law Bob (Annette) Knoedler.

He joined his father LeRoy, his brother Richard "Joe" Jedele, and his mother-in-law Dorothy Knoedler, in heaven.

Gary was a man that was always willing to lend a helping hand without a thought to what he would get in return; great for a laugh and sharing an adage that belonged to a different generation. He was a truly good man and will be sorely missed by those that love him. Friends may join the family for a time of visitation on Wednesday, August 24, 2022 from 3:00 P.M. to 7:00 P.M. at the Robison-Bahnmler Funeral Home in Saline. Visitation will continue on Thursday, August 25 at the Salem Evangelical Lutheran Church in Ann Arbor from 10:00 A.M. until the time of service at 11:00 A.M. Pastor Paul Jansen will officiate the service. Burial will take place following the service and will be held in the church cemetery. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions in Gary's name may be made to Salem Evangelical Lutheran Church 7474 Scio Church Rd, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48103 and envelopes will be available at the funeral home and the church.

Amy Irene¹⁴ Niethammer (Woodard Avery¹³, Woodard Adolph (Woodward)¹², Gustave Adolph¹¹, Anna Maria¹⁰ Gengenbach, Johann Jakob⁹, Christina Katharina⁸ Jedeke, Michael⁷, Johannes⁶ Jedelin, Johannes⁵, Martin⁴, Martin³, Hans², Jakob¹) was born 30 Jan 1968 in Bellevue, King Co, Washington, and died 02 Apr 1999 in Ojai, Ventura Co, California. She married Chad T. Ellington. He was born 30 Aug 1969 in Florence, Pinal Co, Arizona, and died 17 Jun 2001 in Goleta, Santa Barbara Co, California.

Notes for Amy Irene Niethammer:

Los Angeles - A search-and-rescue team found the body of a missing Ojai woman at the bottom of a steep ravine north of Ojai on Monday afternoon April 5, 1999, close to her mangled black Jeep, authorities said. Coroner's investigator Jim Wingate identified the woman as Amy (Niethammer) Ellington, a 31-year-old mother who was reported missing Saturday by family members. Wingate said she apparently died in a single-vehicle accident. Ellington left her Ojai home the day before to drive to a relative's home in Pleasanton. It appears her Jeep veered off the road near the Pine Mountain summit and plunged 500 feet down a cliff, Wingate said. An autopsy will be performed today, he said. Ellington was reported missing after she failed to arrive at the relative's residence. She was driving to the Northern California community alone, authorities said. A sheriff's helicopter crew searching for Ellington spotted the Jeep around 1:45 p.m., officials said. Wingate said Ellington was married and had children, but he didn't have any additional information.

After Amy Ellington's car tumbled 500 feet off California 33 nearly two years ago, her husband wanted assurance no one else would die the same way. When a settlement was reached last week, Chad Ellington finally felt relief. Although the California Department of Transportation is not bound to build a guardrail or wall along the road, attorneys for both sides said something most likely will be constructed to make the road safer. "Nothing is going to bring Amy back, but when they build something that could save someone else's family this pain, that is the only consolation I have," said Ellington, a Goleta resident who lived in Ojai when his wife died. "I don't allow anyone I know to drive that road the way it is."

On April 2, 1999, Amy Ellington's car slid on a patch of ice and went over the cliff near Pine Mountain Summit. Attorneys say Ellington, 31, was traveling about 25 mph on her way to visit her son, who was staying with her mother in Livermore. Several hours later, Chad Ellington received a call from his wife's mother, who was wondering why Amy had not arrived. Ellington spent the next three days looking for his wife, driving past the spot of the accident at least eight times, he said. "I wasn't given the chance to save her because I didn't know where she was," he said. "She could have been lying down there for two days waiting for me."

On one drive along the road, Ellington said, he was driving about 5 mph and his wheels slid on the same patch of ice. At least two other area residents contacted him saying they had problems at the same spot. In addition to the barrier, Ellington and the couple's three children will receive $2 million from the state. Half the money will go toward an education fund to help the children pay for college. The other half will pay Ellington $1,000 a month for the rest of his life. The children will have the same arrangement when they reach 21. Ellington said any type of barrier might have saved his wife by giving rescue workers an indication of the accident site.

Caltrans attorneys said a guardrail at the site would seem to be a good idea, but added there are structural difficulties. A guardrail would make the road more dangerous by narrowing it, said David Simmes, deputy chief counsel for Caltrans. "We don't know what will go in there . . . there may be some other solution," he said. "We are looking at other options besides a guardrail to keep the road in safe condition for people who drive responsibly." Geoff Wells, attorney for the Ellington family, said he believes Caltrans will build a barrier at the accident site because the agency has acknowledged there is a problem. "There is inadequate protection at that corner for a driver that might encounter black ice," Wells said. "A lady died, and a number of other people had near-misses. They have to do something, because it's definitely dangerous."

Amy Irene Ellington, age 31, of Ojai, died Friday, April 2, 1999. She was born January 30, 1968, in Bellevue, Washington, and lived in Ojai for one year, coming from Fresno. Mrs. Ellington was a Waitress and Beautician, as well as a Homemaker. She was also a Courtesy Clerk for Vons Market. She was preceded in death by her father, Woodard Niethammer, on March 16, 1998.

Amy is survived by her husband, Chad Ellington, of Ojai; daughters, Haley and Brooke Ellington; son, Patrick Boyz; mother, Marilyn Niethammer, of Pleasanton, and brothers, Dard, Michaeli and Darren Niethammer.

A Memorial Service will be held at Clausen Funeral Home, Ojai on Saturday, April 10, 1999, at 1:00 P.M. Pastor Jan Nairn, of Holy Cross Lutheran Church, will officiate.

Community mourning loss of nine-year-old boy hit by car

One week ago today, 9-year-old Shawn Niethammer was in his fourth grade class at Vintage Hills Elementary School. Come Monday, his seat was noticeably empty. The Pleasanton boy was hit by a car Oct. 6 as he rolled out of a driveway on his bicycle in the 700 block of Palomino Drive--just a few blocks from where he lived, police said. The driver of the Lincoln SUV, a 53-year-old man, was heading eastbound on Palomino, just east of Norton Way to visit a friend nearby. It happened at 5:37 p.m. and as the collision threw the boy from his bicycle, he sustained injuries to his neck and spine that later proved to be fatal. He was wearing a safety helmet at the time. The driver immediately stopped at the scene of the accident and has been fully cooperating with police, according to Sgt. Michael Collins. No charges have been filed against the man and Collins said according to normal procedure, the case will eventually be forwarded to the county district attorney.

The vehicle was traveling at or slightly above the posted 25 mph speed limit, which isn't uncommon because on average, 15 percent of motorists drive slightly above the posted speed limit, Collins said. As of press time, the police department was withholding the driver's name. Collins said it's been years since a tragic event like this has happened in Pleasanton, but cautioned that incidents like these could potentially happen at any time.

"Almost every parent has had a kid go darting into the street and but for the grace of God nothing has happened," he said. "Unfortunately in this case, that's not what happened. It appears to be a momentary lapse of judgement." The bright and fun-loving 9-year-old will be best remembered by his loved ones as someone who loved to play sports and who always had a smile on his face. "He wanted to be friends with everybody," said his father, Darrin Niethammer. "He had a laugh that was so contagious that it would make anyone laugh. He was my little buddy and my life." Niethammer said Shawn was riding his bicycle from his mother's house to a friend's house just a few blocks away. When he discovered the friend wasn't home, he headed back out of the friend's driveway where the accident occurred. "That area seems to have a lot of school traffic for kids," Niethammer said. "I would like to see some speed bumps in there because it doesn't only stop speeding, but it makes people look too."

Shawn's step-father Pat Simon said he will always cherish the times he used to take him to Callippe Preserve Golf Course to play golf or the times he would take him along on his handyman trips to people's homes to make housecalls. "He would do anything for anybody and would always put other people first and at 9, you wouldn't think that," said mother Veronica Simon. She said she's been overwhelmed by the outpouring of support from the community. "So many people that we don't even know have come over and offered their condolences and brought meals and you don't know what a wonderful community you have unfortunately until something like this happens," she said.

Ron Hyde, a close friend of Pat Simon's has set up a bank account at the Bank of Walnut Creek at 249 Main St., titled "The Shawn Niethammer Memorial Fund for the Benefit of Youth Golf." Donations will go towards benefiting youths in golf camps who would otherwise not be able to afford them. The 9-year-old participated in the youth golf program this past summer at Callippe. At Shawn's school, efforts are under way to memorialize him as well as help his family, according to Vintage Hills Principal Carolyn Parker. Extra counselors were brought on campus to talk to students and parents about the incident. The students in Kasey Poet's fourth grade class have already found ways to remember their classmate, Parker said. Students are given a number that corresponds with where their name falls in alphabetical order and that number is used on homework and class assignments. Shawn's number was 20, and students asked that they "retire" his number so as to never forget him.

The school has also set up a bank account for charitable donations at Fremont Bank, 6654 Koll Center Parkway, Ste. 345. Anyone who wants to make a donation can either go to the bank or drop off a donation at Vintage Hills. The account is titled "The Shawn Niethammer Memorial Fund." The bank can be reached at 417-7671. Some parents have also sent out e-mails to city officials and local businesses to solicit donations to help defray the funeral costs for the family.

To honor Shawn's love of baseball, Vintage Hills will host a baseball drive in which students can bring in new or used baseball equipment that will be sent to an organization that will donate the supplies to needy Cambodian children. "I think Shawn would be happy to know that there would be a lot of kids with this equipment that they can play baseball with," Parker said. The school plans to have a memorial sometime next month.

Shawn Michael-Harold Niethammer is survived by his mother Veronica and her husband Pat Simon, his father Darrin Niethammer and his wife Tina, grandmother Marilyn Niethammer, grandparents Michael and Dorothy Berthelsen, stepbrothers Kyle and Sean and stepsister Robin and by his uncles, aunts, cousins and other relatives and friends. He was preceded in death by his grandfather Woodard Niethammer.

A private viewing was scheduled for Wednesday for the family, according to Graham-Hitch Mortuary. A service will be held today at 4 p.m. at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, 1020 Mocho St. in Livermore. In lieu of flowers, the family suggest memorial donations be made in care of the Holy Cross Lutheran Church to be used for children's charities, to junior golf or the Pleasanton National Little League.

Notes for Madison Elswick Eger:

Our Story (told by Madison Eger Ginnebaugh)

Our story started over 10 years ago, when we met while both enrolled in the junior sailing program at the Grosse Pointe Club. We quickly became friends, bonding over the fact that I had been coached by Kevin's brothers for several summers prior. For the next few years, our paths really only crossed during the summer months. We always kept in touch though: frequently picking up the phone to vent to each other about our hectic college course loads and sharing details of our recent sailing ventures.

When I moved back to Grosse Pointe in the spring of 2016, we almost immediately started running into each other pretty regularly. Every time it happened; we would vow to meet up soon. After all, we were finally living in the same state after so many years apart. We were both so busy though; Kevin started medical school that fall and I was still easing into my first real job. The timing was never right. Before we ever got the chance to do anything together, we would be bumping into each other at Costco again, making the same plans we tried (and failed) to make a few weeks before.

This continued for nearly a year until we ended up at the same sailing regatta early in the summer of 2017. Finally! An opportunity to spend time together was laid right out in front of us and we couldn't pass it up even if we wanted to. It was during that weekend that we were reminded of all our shared interests and how much we enjoy each other's presence. Even though our friendship had been long-distance for nearly a decade, it felt like we had hardly spent a day apart. We were (and still are) completely inseparable. By the end of the event, Kevin was already joking about marriage: at one point even getting down on one knee in the Bayview Yacht Club parking lot and proposing with a Coors Light. I wasn't able to give him an answer then, but almost a year and a half later he traded in the beer for a ring and I couldn't say couldn't say yes fast enough.

Melissa K. Wyler and Jason Jeffrey Rendel were married on a beautiful Sunday afternoon of July 3, 2005. The wedding took place at the Holy Cross Church. The church was decorated with beautiful multi-colored flowers. The attendants wore black and carried beautiful multi-colored floral bouquets. Chad Rendel was the best man, Craig Rendel was an usher, with Caitlin Rendel being the flower girl. A reception was held after the ceremony for the Bride & Groom at the Polish Center of Wisconsin. The same color theme was carried over to the reception. Melissa did a great job making all the arrangements for the wedding. It was a beautiful wedding and Grandpa and Grandma were very proud of their grandson. The whole family was there and enjoyed the time spent together from Friday through Monday.

Notes for Jonathan Wood Plummer:

March 2014 Traverse City - Jon Plummer always has been an artisan at heart. The former Hope College student has fond memories of his undergraduate experience in Holland: He majored in biology, minored in business and learned the art of craft beer making as an enthusiastic employee of a fledgling microbrewery on the edge of campus. "I got paid in beer," Plummer said with a laugh. "I worked at the original New Holland brewpub on Fairbanks Avenue. I was just a kid from Traverse City working at a brewery while I'm going to college. I thought, 'What's better than this?' I loved that experience there."

Plummer, 35, a 2001 Hope graduate, has put the same artisanal and entrepreneurial spirit into the popular Moomers Homemade Ice Cream family business in Traverse City.

He is part of a legacy operation in its 17th year that has appeared on ABC's "Good Morning America" and been profiled in USA Today for its reputation for hand-crafted frozen treats. He co-owns the business with his parents, Bob and Nancy, and sister Becky Mead. The sole Moomers retail location, 7263 North Long Lake Road, manufactures 60,000 gallons of ice cream annually and distributes a rotating lineup of 120 flavors to more than 90 commercial accounts within a two-hour radius of Traverse City, as far south as Cadillac. In its first year of operation, 1998, it produced 4,200 gallons of ice cream.

It has a lot of the usual flavors, but also scoops up Apple Crisp, Banana Bread, Cherry Cheesecake, Gingersnap, Lemon Poppyseed Muffin, Licorice, Play Dough, Red Pop and Toasted Coconut. All of the milk used in its ice-cream production comes from an 80-acre dairy farm adjacent to the property occupied by the retail store, which is just six miles outside of downtown. "Everything with our label on it comes from that building," Plummer said.

What really sets Moomers apart is the homemade goodness, Plummer said. He scooped samples for 1,000 travel professionals attending the Pure Michigan 2014 Governor's Conference on Tourism in Acme earlier this month at the urging of Grand Traverse Resort and Spa, the host site for the conference.

He hoped the exposure for Moomers would help spread the word throughout the state that families making trips to Northern Michigan might want to put this attraction on their must-see list. "We definitely are a destination. The ice cream industry is America. It's worth taking a night in March and giving ice cream away," Plummer said of the tourism conference. "It's good exposure. "We hope they tell their friends about us and come back and see us on their vacations." There is no place that sells Moomers ice cream in the Holland area. "Not yet. It's just baby steps. Maybe in the future," he said of the operation. "We don't want to be big and huge. It's a nice, small, family company, and we want to keep it that way."

In college, Plummer recalls going to Captain Sundae, 247 W. 40th St., to get his ice cream fix. Its specialty, however, is soft serve, not handmade, hard-packed ice cream like Moomers. So much of what he experienced in Holland reminded him of his hometown. He still visits Holland to catch up with former classmate and fraternity brother Matt Holmes, who owns Home and Company, 190 S. River Ave., and Tip Toes, 60 E. Eighth St. "It's phenomenal," Holmes said of Moomers. "I do what I can to send customers up there. It's a great product and they focus on quality. It's always on our must-visit list when we're in Traverse City."

It turns out Plummer ended up at Hope College on a whim: He fell in love with the school's blue-and-orange color scheme and decided the small-college atmosphere was a perfect fit. "Yep, I liked their colors. It's the only place I applied," he recalled. "All three of my sisters graduated from Grand Valley State University. The thing about Holland I liked is it reminded me of Traverse City -- small town, near the water, that's what I really liked about it. "Except, no Moomers. We did miss the ice cream from back home while we were at school."

Notes for Dr. Shawn Patrick Lakin:

August 7, 2011 - Downtown Royal Oak gets a lot of attention, but new schools superintendent Shawn Lewis-Lakin believes "the strength of Royal Oak is really the residential neighborhoods." Lewis-Lakin and his wife, Barbara, moved into Royal Oak in mid-July from Chelsea, Michigan. He has spent much of the summer listening and learning from the school district's stakeholders. He's been talking with civic leaders, parents, teachers, students and staff members in all categories, saying you can "do more when everyone works together." Lewis-Lakin said he's thrilled to be part of the Royal Oak community and believes strong neighborhoods are intertwined with public education. "You need both to be vital and viable," he said. "I've always believed education is the backbone of strong communities." Lewis-Lakin said he is always looking to the community for ways to improve student learning in the classroom, which is where he began his career.

After he graduated from Michigan State University in 1982, he taught chemistry in the Midland Public School District. "I was in my 20s, and at the time, Midland (home to Dow Chemical Co.) had the highest number of Ph.D. chemists per capita," he said. Lewis-Lakin joked that he felt pressure to make sure he graded homework properly. After teaching for three years, he decided to go back to school, getting a Master of Divinity degree from Yale Divinity School in New Haven, Connecticut. As an ordained minister, Lewis-Lakin honed his listening skills while serving as a pastor for United Methodist Church congregations for nine years.

"I have three kids — Peter, Abby and Kate," he said. "When I was a pastor (in the late '80s and '90s), I was always busy in the evenings, on weekends and holidays — the times when my kids were home." He wanted to spend more time with his children, so he went back into education. In 2000, he earned a degree from Wayne State University as an educational specialist. "I felt my work as a pastor taught me leadership qualities, and I wanted to move into a leadership role in education," he said. "But before I did that, I wanted to reimmerse myself in the classroom."

Lewis-Lakin took a teaching position in Trenton, where he taught middle school science for three years (1997-2000). From Trenton, he moved to assistant principal roles in Monroe (2000-01) and Chelsea (2001-03). In Chelsea, he moved up to the position of executive director for student performance, where he led administrators, teachers and support staff in reviewing curriculum, measuring student academic performance and expanding advanced-placement offerings.

In 2007, Lewis-Lakin became the superintendent of schools in Washtenaw County's Manchester Community School District. He credits that community for helping him to "be a better leader." Manchester has a student population of 1,200. There are 5,200 students in Royal Oak schools. "Royal Oak is a great place," Lewis-Lakin said. He said is impressed with test results coming out of the schools, noting the district has some of the strongest student performance results in southern Oakland County. He's also impressed with the staff, many of whom are in new leadership roles, including new principals at the middle school and four of the elementary schools.

"The transition is going smoothly," he said, adding that many staff who have left the district are providing positive support. "Continuity is important, but new people bring a fresh perspective." Budget concerns will continue to be an issue. He noted the district has faced challenges directly in the past and made difficult choices, but there are still many tough decisions to be made. "The community needs to appreciate that decisions made in Lansing have a real and significant impact on what happens in Royal Oak," he said. "There needs to be a commitment at the state level to value and invest in education." The new superintendent said that with every decision he makes, he asks himself, "Is this the best investment for student learning?"

Expect to see Lewis-Lakin and his wife, who works with families and couples at Samaritan Counseling Center in Farmington Hills, present in the community. The superintendent loves sports and plans to be visible at athletic events. The former track and swimming coach also plans to participate in the Detroit Free Press half marathon in October. Lewis-Lakin said he also has a great appreciation for the performing arts. All three of his children played instruments in high school. Daughter Abby, 20, is studying music education at the University of Michigan.

His son, Peter, 28, is an attorney working for the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office, and his youngest daughter, Kate, 18, is studying politics and government at Ohio Wesleyan University. Look for the new superintendent to be out and about at the Woodward Avenue Dream Cruise, too. The Lewis-Lakins purchased a home near Woodward Avenue and plan to check out the annual parade of classic cars on Aug. 20. "I used to have a 1994 Mazda Miata, but I sold it," Lewis-Lakin said. His current vehicle is more than 10 years old, so look for him as a spectator — not behind the wheel, he said.

January 24, 2017 – Royal Oak - Shawn Lewis-Lakin received a calling this summer that is moving him toward a new life path. Lewis-Lakin, 57, announced last week that he will retire from his position of superintendent of Royal Oak Schools effective June 30, 2017 to begin a new role serving as the senior associate pastor at Birmingham First United Methodist Church effective July 1. Lewis-Lakin said that since August, he has been engaged in a process focused on returning to full-time service in the church.

He has been an ordained United Methodist clergyman for nearly 30 years, serving as a lead pastor at both Pontiac St. James and Trenton First, and an associate pastor at Dearborn First United Methodist Church. He has also worked as a teacher and school administrator in Trenton, Monroe, Chelsea, Manchester and Royal Oak. A bulletin distributed by Birmingham First United Methodist Church states, "The timing of our needs at Birmingham First to find a senior associate pastor with strengths in human resources and administrative functions of the church, and Shawn's desire to combine both his call to pastoral ministry and his experience in organizational leadership and administration has truly been a movement by God's Holy Spirit."

Lewis-Lakin is a graduate of Michigan State University and also received his master of divinity degree from Yale University. In addition, he has an educational specialist degree in general administration and supervision from Wayne State University. "While I am excited about the new opportunity, this announcement is bittersweet," Lewis-Lakin said. "For nearly six years, Royal Oak has been my home. Our district employees, students, families and the community of Royal Oak will always be special to me. "Together, we have taken great strides towards making Royal Oak Schools a true community of excellence."

Lewis-Lakin said that every stakeholder involved in the district has done good work together to inspire learning, creativity and better prepare Royal Oak students for college and careers. "I have truly appreciated the opportunity to serve as superintendent," he said. "It is difficult to leave when there is such good people and such good work that is happening.” Lewis-Lakin said he will remain committed to the district and his role through the end of the 2016-17 school year. Lewis-Lakin said he is going with certainty and excitement into his new opportunity, but there is sadness in leaving; however, the superintendent said he knows the district is in good hands. “I have a lot of confidence in the commitment and the capacity of our school board and our district leadership team to move through this transition — not just successfully — but in a way that actually leads us to a better place in the district and community moving forward,” he said. Lewis-Lakin said the process to find his replacement is fully engaged.

“On behalf of the Royal Oak Schools Board of Education, we congratulate superintendent Lewis-Lakin and thank him for his hard work, dedication and service on behalf of Royal Oak Schools, students and families,” school board President Deb Anderson said in a statement. “As we wish him the best in his future endeavors, we remain proud of the work we have accomplished together. “We have a strong foundation in place and we will continue to reach for the standard of excellence Royal Oak families demand and deserve as we begin the search for our next superintendent.”

She married Jason May. He was born 25 Feb 1974.

Notes for Jill Marie Wellman:

Two sisters give birth to babies on same day 200 miles apart

Jackson, Michigan – Judy Wellman had a decision to make, and it was one no mother wants to face. On Sept. 14, 2012, both of Wellman's daughters, Amy Bontekoe and Jill May, were nine months pregnant and about a week overdue before they were induced on the same day. "My poor mother, she wanted to be with each one of us," said May of Sterling Heights. "She had to make a decision, so I told her to go to Cadillac to help with Amy's older kids." That's what Wellman did, and by the end of the night she had two grandchildren born on the same day about 200 miles apart.

May learned she was pregnant first and Bontekoe waited four months into her pregnancy to make her announcement. Once she shared the news with her family, the sisters stayed in constant contact throughout their pregnancies despite May living in Sterling Heights and Bontekoe residing in Cadillac. "It was a relief because you're not alone," Bontekoe said. "It was texting and calling every day. It was great to go through it with somebody, especially my sister."

The Tuesday leading up to the births, May called Bontekoe to tell her that she was going to be induced that Friday. Two days later, Bontekoe went to her doctor and was told she would be induced the next day. When May learned that, she sent her sister a text. The game is on, it read. "I texted to them that it's not a race, just two daughters having babies at the same time," Wellman said. "They used FaceTime, Facebook, and sent pictures back and forth, just to say everything was OK." Neither sister imagined she would be giving birth the same day as the other. "You assume you won't give birth on the same day," May said. "We were both overdue, both a week late. The whole thing is ironic."

With Wellman at Bontekoe's side in Cadillac, May was induced at 6 a.m. Sept. 14 at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. At 4:40 p.m., she delivered Lola Madelynn May, who weighed 7 pounds, 13 ounces and was 20 inches long.

Two hundred miles away, at Mercy Hospital in Cadillac, Bontekoe was induced about 8 a.m. and delivered Ben Lewis Bontekoe at 10:09 p.m. Ben weighed 7 pounds, 10 ounces and was 20 ½ inches long.

The babies met for the first time Friday as the families gathered at Western High School for a football game two days before the babies turned 1 month old. "We text a lot, it's harder to call," Bontekoe said. "But it's nice to have conversation to check on each other and compare notes."

Notes for Amy Lynn Wellman:

Two sisters give birth to babies on same day 200 miles apart

Jackson, Michigan – Judy Wellman had a decision to make, and it was one no mother wants to face. On Sept. 14, 2012, both of Wellman's daughters, Amy Bontekoe and Jill May, were nine months pregnant and about a week overdue before they were induced on the same day. "My poor mother, she wanted to be with each one of us," said May of Sterling Heights. "She had to make a decision, so I told her to go to Cadillac to help with Amy's older kids." That's what Wellman did, and by the end of the night she had two grandchildren born on the same day about 200 miles apart.

May learned she was pregnant first and Bontekoe waited four months into her pregnancy to make her announcement. Once she shared the news with her family, the sisters stayed in constant contact throughout their pregnancies despite May living in Sterling Heights and Bontekoe residing in Cadillac. "It was a relief because you're not alone," Bontekoe said. "It was texting and calling every day. It was great to go through it with somebody, especially my sister."

The Tuesday leading up to the births, May called Bontekoe to tell her that she was going to be induced that Friday. Two days later, Bontekoe went to her doctor and was told she would be induced the next day. When May learned that, she sent her sister a text. The game is on, it read. "I texted to them that it's not a race, just two daughters having babies at the same time," Wellman said. "They used FaceTime, Facebook, and sent pictures back and forth, just to say everything was OK." Neither sister imagined she would be giving birth the same day as the other.
