Hi All

Today, two thirds of the population believes that there is other intelligent life in the universe and 40%-50% (and growing) believes in the reality of the UFO's and aliens or what is more broadly called the UFO phenomenon. That still leaves the rest of the population who either haven't thought about it, don't care or are in the highly skeptical camps who don't believe any of it.

I encourage you to watch two stories, one about David Grusch who I have talked a lot about already, and an older story about Travis Walton, who alleges that he was abducted in the 1970's. I have picked these two stories because they are two of the best that I have reviewed which illustrate many aspects of the UFO phenomenon. Another abduction story about Betty and Barney Hill in the 1960's has also been investigated many times and has some physical evidence will be reviewed in a future update. There is another story about Bob Lazar who claims that he worked on the reverse engineering of UFO's at S4 in Area 51 and, as time goes on, more information about the validity of his claims has come forward about the validity of his claims has come forward. But I place the overall credibility of his story just behind David Grusch, Travis Walton and the Hills.

These are not trivial, simple stories. They are complex and require a considered and thoughtful mental approach. Skepticism is fine but you need to consider all the information as a whole and then ask yourself why would they make stuff up. Yes, hoaxes do happen and are uncovered in due course and freely admitted to by serious researchers. But several well documented hoaxes do not mean that thousands of other well documented and researched events are not real. Yes, events can be misinterpreted and that is why you need to look for corroborating information from different perspectives before you just rely on a knee jerk reaction that the story is BS.

It only takes ONE real (based on the strictest definition of real) event for it to be true - aliens exist and they have been to earth. We don't know who or what they are. We don't know their agenda other than well documented concerns about our development and use of atomic weapons. We don't know why they just don't go to the White House and hold a press conference.

They are likely physically, emotionally, biologically, socially, intellectually, spiritually so different from us that we currently can have no understanding of what they are like. Assuming that they are just like us only a lot smarter will lead us down many false paths as to what they truly are. They may not even be extraterrestrials. They could “simply” be us visiting from the future. Or trans/interdimensional beings who live in a multidimensional “heaven”. For anybody to say that it is impossible simply puts you in the same category as our cave man ancestors who could only understand what was right in front of them. That doesn’t mean that every crazy idea is possible. Maybe just some of the crazy ideas are possible. We don’t need them all to be true for the UFO phenomenon to be true.

The two best stories follow:

David Grusch is the Catalyst for Getting Disclosure Done

Further to my last update and my focus on the impact of David Grusch’s testimony I have listened to several longer interviews with him and I am very impressed with his credibility, insight and experience with the specific allegations and experiences with the specific allegations about UFO's held by the military industrial complex, reverse engineering activities and existence of alien bodies, all happening over the last 90 years.

For those of you who agree with the impact of what I have described so far and look forward to future disclosure you may not need any more information about David Grusch. But if you are totally skeptical about his claims, or if you just want reassurance that you (and me) are not crazy, I would strongly recommend that you spend 90 minutes watching the first part of his interview with Joe Rogan. The interview does go a lot longer but the first 90 minutes covers the essential part of his story. Some of you may react to Joe Rogan and I am not here trying to defend or support him, but I will say that he asks a lot of good, in-depth questions. There are some use of language issues in these kinds of podcasts which are, I guess, now normal in social media but the key information is still there. After watching this I would challenge anybody to ask why would he make this up? Having said that, a lot of what he has said has already been confirmed by the testimony of others as I described in the last update. His fascinating commentary on why the UFO disclosure legislation was suddenly killed in the December funding bill approval fight is interesting.

The Best Documented Alien Abduction Case

The Travis Walton abduction story was made into a famous film called "Fire in the Sky", fairly entertaining for sci-fi buffs. The film changed some of the facts for entertainment purposes so I some of the facts for entertainment purposes so I would not just watch the film as your source of factual information. But, when you actually look at the facts and details that are described in the documentary, that I am linking below, and listen to Travis Walton talk about his experience over the last 45 years it is a very impressive story. Not only is the actual abduction and evidence very credible, but the story also illustrates how the “disinformation” program worked. Allegations about a disinformation program sponsored by, what I referred to in previous updates, MIC or the military industrial complex are central to the historical record of a decades old UFO coverup. You all know the phrase “men in black” which is portrayed in a joking, sci-fi manner in several films. So you laugh at it, maybe are entertained, but in the end most of you will say “nonsense” - I know I did. I won’t give away any more about this, you should watch the video:
