

Child's Well Visit, 7 to 8 Years: Care Instructions

Your Care Instructions

Your child is busy at school and has many friends. Your child will have many things to share with you every day as he or she learns new things in school. It is important that your child gets enough sleep and healthy food during this time.

By age 8, most children can add and subtract simple objects or numbers. They tend to have a black-and-white perspective. Things are either great or awful, ugly or pretty, right or wrong. They are learning to develop social skills and to read better.

Follow-up care is a key part of your child's treatment and safety. Be sure to make and go to all appointments, and call your doctor if your child is having problems. It's also a good idea to know your child's test results and keep a list of the medicines your child takes.

How can you care for your child at home?

Eating and a healthy weight

- Encourage healthy eating habits. Most children do well with three meals and one to two snacks a day. Offer fruits and vegetables at meals and snacks.
- Give children foods they like but also give new foods to try. If your child is not hungry at one meal, it is okay to wait until the next meal or snack to eat.
- Check in with your child's school or day care to make sure that healthy meals and snacks are given.
- Limit fast food. Help your child with healthier food choices when you eat out.
- Offer water when your child is thirsty. Do not give your child more than 8 oz. of fruit juice per day. Juice does not have the valuable fiber that whole fruit has. Do not give your child soda pop.

- Make meals a family time. Have nice conversations at mealtime and turn the TV off.
- Do not use food as a reward or punishment for your child's behavior. Do not make your children "clean their plates."
- Let all your children know that you love them whatever their size. Help children feel good about their bodies. Remind your child that people come in different shapes and sizes. Do not tease or nag children about their weight, and do not say your child is skinny, fat, or chubby.
- Limit TV and video time. Do not put a TV in your child's bedroom and do not use TV and videos as a babysitter.

Healthy habits

- Have your child play actively for at least one hour each day. Plan family activities, such as trips to the park, walks, bike rides, swimming, and gardening.
- Help children brush their teeth 2 times a day and floss one time a day. Take your child to the dentist 2 times a year.
- Put a broad-spectrum sunscreen (SPF 30 or higher) on your child before going outside. Use a broad-brimmed hat to shade your child's ears, nose, and lips.
- Do not smoke or allow others to smoke around your child. Smoking around your child increases the child's risk for ear infections, asthma, colds, and pneumonia. If you need help quitting, talk to your doctor about stop-smoking programs and medicines. These can increase your chances of quitting for good.
- Put children to bed at a regular time so they get enough sleep.

Safety

- For every ride in a car, secure your child into a properly installed car seat that meets all current safety standards. For questions about car seats and booster seats, call the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration at 1-888-327-4236.
- Before your child starts a new activity, get the right safety gear and teach your child how to use it. Make sure your child wears a helmet that fits properly when riding a bike or scooter.
- Keep cleaning products and medicines in locked cabinets out of your child's reach. Keep the number for Poison Control (1-800-222-1222) in or near your phone.
- Watch your child at all times when your child is near water, including pools, hot tubs, and bathtubs. Knowing how to swim does not make your child safe from drowning.
- Do not let your child play in or near the street. Children should not cross streets alone until they are about 8 years old.
- Make sure you know where your child is and who is watching your child.

Parenting

- Read with your child every day.
- Play games, talk, and sing to your child every day. Give your child love and attention.

- Give your child chores to do. Children usually like to help.
- Make sure your child knows your home address, phone number, and how to call .
- Teach children not to let anyone touch their private parts.
- Teach your child not to take anything from strangers and not to go with strangers.
- Praise good behavior. Do not yell or spank. Use time-out instead. Be fair with your rules and use them in the same way every time. Your child learns from watching and listening to you. Teach children to use words when they are upset.
- Do not let your child watch violent TV or videos. Help your child understand that violence in real life hurts people.

School

- Help your child unwind after school with some quiet time. Set aside some time to talk about the day.
- Try not to have too many after-school plans, such as sports, music, or clubs.
- Help your child get work organized. Give your child a desk or table to put school work on.
- Help your child get into the habit of organizing clothing, lunch, and homework at night instead of in the morning.
- Place a wall calendar near the desk or table to help your child remember important dates.
- Help your child with a regular homework routine. Set a time each afternoon or evening for homework. Be near your child to answer questions. Make learning important and fun. Ask questions, share ideas, work on problems together. Show interest in your child's schoolwork.
- Have lots of books and games at home. Let your child see you playing, learning, and reading.
- Be involved in your child's school, perhaps as a volunteer.

Your child and bullying

- If your child is afraid of someone, listen to your child's concerns. Praise your child for facing fears. Tell your child to try to stay calm, talk things out, or walk away. Tell your child to say, "I will talk to you, but I will not fight." Or, "Stop doing that, or I will report you to the principal."
- If your child bullies another child, explain that you are upset with that behavior and it hurts other people. Ask your child what the problem may be. Take away privileges, such as TV or playing with friends. Teach your child to talk out differences with friends instead of fighting.

Immunizations

Flu immunization is recommended once a year for all children ages 6 months and older.

When should you call for help?

Watch closely for changes in your child's health, and be sure to contact your doctor if:

- You are concerned that your child is not growing or learning normally for his or her age.
- You are worried about your child's behavior.
- You need more information about how to care for your child, or you have questions or concerns.
