LETTER FROM THE FOUNDER

Sexual violence prevalence is on the rise. It pains to see dreams shuttered due to the outcomes of sexual violence: all lives matter, more so young girls who have a special part in my heart. I can relate to the pain, trauma, and effects of sexual violence, so I have set out this organization to help those in the same situation recover. This organization has reached out to over 3,000 girls within our different projects in the past few years. I am glad that we are taking steps to help out and making a significant contribution to this space. But we will not relent and seek to do more. This strategy paper comes as a more guided approach to realizing our objectives and a development masterpiece for the goals we envision to attain in the coming three years. I thank God for the team working with me in Kenya; Josephine, Debra, Penny, Rosemary, Purity, and Eddy. I am grateful to them for setting out the goals outlined in this paper. I am looking forward to more engagement and service to these individual beneficiaries. Again, I thank God for my board that has also been supportive in various aspects. I am humbled by the achievements and look forward to more extraordinary things.

OUR STRATEGY

Our community-based approach makes the people we reach partners rather than just beneficiaries.

Wounded Healer recognizes the vital role of the community involvement in preventing and ending sexual violence. As part of comprehensive approach, we know we need each other from partner organizations, government representatives, Policymakers, young and old advocates, survivors, and children .

Empowered the teachers on how prevent sexual violence in their school how to identify and respond to cases from their students

Together with Planned Parenthood Action Women's March Portland Maine Women's March Global rallied to defend our reproductive rights and against Texas law that bans abortions when a fetal heartbeat could be detected, which occurs before most women know they are pregnant at the six-week. The new ban does not contain exemptions for rape or incest.

Our experiences with the girl's survivors of sexual violence shaped our beliefs to fight for reproductive freedom.

Trained the religious leaders on how we can incorporate the sexual violence lessons with teachings in religious teaching

Door to door outreach in 4 towns to create more awareness of sexual violence and share the resources available to prevent more cases

Body Safety Education aims to empower younger children with skills and knowledge that will lessen the likelihood of them becoming victims of childhood sexual abuse. Our program is musical & animated so that it can be shared with children in schools, nursery schools and homes.

We form groups/ clubs in schools for 50 students per school meeting one and half hour a week for 10 hours. The students are awarded certificate of completion and resources to create their own peer group of 5 students.

"Being part of Wounded Healers has helped me gain friends who love me and encourage me to become a better girl and believe in myself"

“ Wounded Healers gave me an opportunity to dream again. I am now in secondary school, my school fees fully paid and I will become a lecturer in future. ”
