IF YOU'RE ON A BUDGET

If you are pretty flexible with your flower choices and were open to suggestions of more affordable flowers and were willing to keep it simple, it can be more affordable than what's listed above. (As long as flower pricing doesn't change dramatically. Flower costs varies season to season etc., but normally tends to stay around the same for baby's breath, white hydrangeas, and regular roses).

FLORAL VARIETIES THAT TEND TO BE MORE AFFORDABLE:

- *Regular Roses
- *White Hydrangeas (sometimes blue, pink, or purple are also affordable, but it depends on the season etc.)
- *Baby's Breath
- *Carnations
- *Peruvian Lilies, aka Lily of the Incas, aka Alstroemeria

FLORAL VARIETIES THAT TEND TO BE MORE EXPENSIVE (DEPENDS ON SEASONS):

- *Garden roses (the really full roses with many petals)
- *Peonies
- *Oriental Lilies
- *Orchids
- *Tulips (in the spring they tend to be reasonably affordable, but in the off-season, they are either very expensive or entirely unavailable)
- *Succulents (Depends on the number you want. If you're wanting just a few accents, then they are not unreasonably expensive. It also depends on the season and what type you're looking for. Succulents in arrangements/bouquets also need the extra time/materials to be wired into the arrangement.)
- *Any specialty flower that is not commonly carried by wholesalers
- *Specialty color flowers (this includes anything that doesn't naturally occur or flower colors that are hard to obtain naturally. It depends on the season and what's in stock. Bright colors tend to be hard to find at times...like bright purple (Lisianthus can be an option for deep purple, but tends to be more expensive than roses, which can come in lavender but not deep purple), Royal Blue (sometimes blue hydrangeas are in season and are actually really affordable, but sometimes the wholesaler won't guarantee what color blue it will be – could be a lighter blue rather than a true royal blue).
