Business Focus

Fall 2026- Winter 26-27

What's ahead and best strategies to travel efficiently

Fall and winter are always a busy travel time for those doing business. Trade shows, client meetings and those in person meetings to close up deals and contracts for the coming year. Depending on where you are coming from or going to it can be smooth sailing (flying) or it can be an adventure (mess). Instead of delegating your trip planning to an admin or assistant let professionals handle the details. Do you really want a close connection in O'Hare in the middle of December?

We recently worked with a client who was going to Marseille, France to present at a conference. As an academic her school planned the air travel as is their policy and the hotel as the conference host was providing the accommodation. She asked us to review the flight options that were provided to her and we were able to help her select an option that avoided close chancy connections and select seats that were going to be the most comfortable and convenient for her. She wanted to add on a week in France to experience more of Marseille and get a few days in Paris while over there. We were able to find her a nice local hotel for the night after the conference, arrange train tickets to and from Paris. Of course we were able to put together a good local agenda for her few days in Paris. With her return to Marseille we were able to arrange various sightseeing and boat tours with diving and swimming activities included. This was accomplished all within her budget. As an academic it was definitely not a large budget so we searched for bargains and ways to get the most out of it to give her a memorable adventure that won't be hurting her wallet. Another important component was to find lodgings that were suitable (safe, clean and comfortable) near the train stations she was transiting as she had some late arrival times. This was accomplished using our tools.

One of our partners has great adventures and even simple sightseeing tours just about anywhere you are going. Feel free to click the link and browse the seemingly endless options. Hack of the month:

Proper Planning

Planning a trip but there are so many flight options and the prices are all over the place

- Curated Travel Advisors can do the research and planning for you.
- Curated Travel Advisors can sort through all the options and narrow it down to the two or three best options
- You : Let us know which of them work best for you then show up when the itinerary tells you to.

The cheapest option isn't always the best option. Some things that can be overlooked such as number of connections or length of layovers and where they are. A 45 minute layover in Las Vegas is not the same as a 45 minute layover in Houston.

Thank you!
