

TRINITY ALPS TREK

A WILDERNESS BACKPACKING TRIP

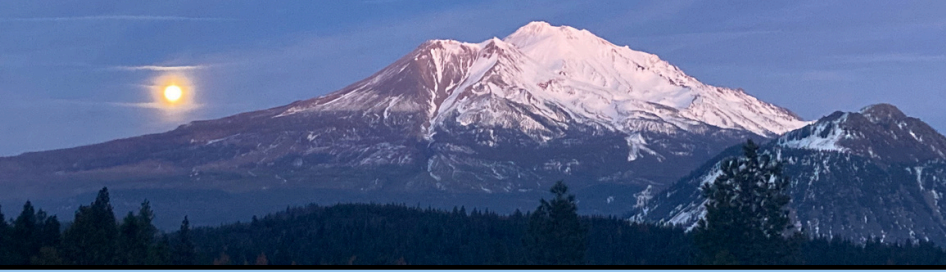

The Trinity Alps Wilderness encompasses over 500,000 acres in Northern California. Home to many 8000 foot summits, the Trinity Alps is teeming with wildflowers and hidden meadows. On this 5 to 8 day wilderness trek, you can expect to see chiseled granite peaks, lush meadows, glacial lakes, rushing streams, bubbling springs, and views that take your breath away.

This trip is a perfect companion trip to an academic study topic, and we can make time each morning for study and writing before the day's hike. Hiking and the necessities of expedition travel are punctuated by the rhythmic task of setting up our wilderness camp next to a lake or along a bubbling stream. Here, students will work in teams to set up tents, gather firewood, and prepare food.

All participants will learn backpacking and backcountry navigation skills, experience the hardship and joy of challenging hiking, learn to identify plants, carve wooden spoons, and at the end of the day swim in crystal clear alpine lakes. As the stars come out, we reflect on the day's travel, and enjoy the camaraderie and feeling of togetherness that comes at the end of a day well spent with friends.
