

Run #2143 Sunday 24th May, The Bakers Arms, Maldon Rd, Danbury

Hares:- C*nt Dracula & Corpse Shagger

Today met at The Bakers Arms in Danbury, as part of their annual beer festival. The C*nt had returned from Thailand especially to lay this trail for us today! And in addition, he (and several others) also visited the pub yesterday to check out the selection of beers – all the things they do for the hash!

There were 24 of us in the circle, including several returnees, William & Louisa, Captain Nibbles (+2), Woodpecker & Slimcock, as well as two visitors with Tiny Tears, including a lady (over 80!) who had hashed over 40 years ago! It was also good to see Sooty back with us.

A special mention to Tiny Tears who had returned from an epic trek across Scotland, surviving in all weathers with a bit of wild camping along the way, Well Done Tiny Tears!

We set off towards Hopping Jacks Lane, and the hare was chuffed that he seemed to have tricked the locals into going one way, when we actually went the other! Finally we ran the usual route up near the allotments, around the church and then back down the hill and past the Cricketers. Along the way Vicky Vomit was identifying the bird song, a lovely Nightingale was singing in the trees, although Heapo seemed to doubt this – and immediately got his phone out to check out the facts! There was also another incident apparently, where Pulled Out called out to a woman who was walking along carrying a milk bottle!

We finally caught up with Corpse at the beer stop in the National Trust car park on the Common. It was a hot day, so the drinks & melted chocolate were well received!

We then wound our way back through the Common, up and down the steepest part, and through the wettest part! The runners then ran back along the main Common path, with Fourplay & William taking a 'short cut' to meet back up with Sir Casey at the top of the hill.

Once back at the pub, we all sat in the lovely beer garden, and all the different beers were tested. Several hashers also had food, and a lovely afternoon was had by all, especially those who stayed a little longer and also took part in the tasting of the Bake off competition!

Anyway – the down-downs were awarded as follows, Woodpecker & Slimcock for their return, the Hare for his wonderful trail, Liq Allsorts and Dr Deaf for having a dog called Teddy (!), Tiny Tears, Fourplay & William and Louisa.

On! On!
