Kirkland, WA — Kembel Technologies today announced that the company is actively working toward a strategic merger with a well-established, profitable marketing firm. Due to federal insider-trading regulations, the name of the firm and its ownership cannot be disclosed at this time. "This merger gives us exactly what we need to scale our AI projects and strengthen our position in the marketplace," said Mark Kembel, Chairman and CEO of Kembel Technologies. "Both companies complement each other exceptionally well, and we look forward to finalizing the deal once our offering is complete."

The partnership is expected to enhance Kembel Technologies' ability to commercialize and distribute its AI platforms across multiple sectors, creating expanded opportunities for investors and stakeholders.
