A Spirit of Community

There is a famous quote by Walt Disney which reads: "I only hope that we never lose sight of one thing—that it was all started by a mouse."

Likewise, I like to believe that this same type of sentiment is at the heart of Walnut Grove's Flying Pigs Festival—namely, an appreciation of our town's origins and the belief that even a simple idea can grow into a lasting tradition by bringing the community together, welcoming new neighbors, and by honoring the people who built the town we now live in. - E.M.
