

The Arts in Downtown Zanesville

Join us for the December First Friday ArtWalk, December 5th from 5pm - 8pm.

The Art Loft

The Art Loft, at 26 N 3rd St, rear, is a working studio and gallery for Linda Graham, Sally Luburgh, Susan Nash and Susan Stubbins. They share a creative drive that is enriched by their sense of community, collaborative spirit, and their eagerness to support and promote each other and other artists.

Susan Stubbins is a mixed media artist. She works in paper collage and fabrics creating works that have been inspired by landscapes. Her work encourages the viewer to look closer and find their own meaning.

Susan Nash, a textile and mixed-media artist, is currently sharing her "Consider the Earth" series. Seven of the eight textile pieces features a silk screen image of Chief Sitting Bull, who, for Susan, epitomizes the native way of caring for the earth and all its inhabitants. This series is a plea and a reminder that we must all do our best to live more peacefully and sustainably.

Sally Luburgh is a weaver focusing on creating items to use in your daily life. She loves to use the items she makes and hopes other people do to. It is very luxurious to have an item that not only functions well, but is a joy to use.

Linda Graham is a mixed media artist favoring alcohol ink and encaustics. Her love of the outdoors and nature is reflected in the flowers and abstract landscapes she creates. You will find the use of brightly colored inks and encaustics a hallmark of her work.

Musical Guest: Dr. Laura Schumann, of Dr. Laura's Musical Adventures. Refreshments by Mary Ramos. We are eager to welcome you to our studio to share our work and process.

ZAAP featuring Rae Gandolf

Rae Gandolf is a Zanesville-based artist and veterinarian whose work explores the connections among people and animals, and the battle of left brain and right brain. Her art spans drawing, painting, sculpting, and public murals, often inspired by the extraordinary individuals and animals she encounters in her travels—from a spider monkey in Guatemala to a woman in Nepal.

Locally, Rae created the mural next to Harbor Freight on Maple Avenue, a piece that weaves together elements of Zanesville's history and community spirit. Her earlier sculpting work for Cottrill Studio includes a donkey, penguin and crane among other animals that can be seen in and outside of the studio in downtown Zanesville.

Rae's art training began with an exceptional high school art teacher who encouraged her to spend every extra hour in the art room and sent her to a summer art program at Wesleyan University. Since then, from a spray graffiti class at the Bellingham Mural Festival to online digital art courses and local workshops, most of her development as an artist has come through exploration, curiosity, and persistence. Her work reflects a deep curiosity about the world and a lifelong commitment to compassion, creativity, and expression.
