Like nothing else

Thermal healing is one of the therapeutic systems that has gained most significance. When a person is exposed to a hot spring bath, they receive the direct action of temperature as a shock, and the minerals are deposited in the subcutaneous cell tissue, and from there, they exert their action thus activating the organic metabolism through the hypothalamus-suprarenal axis. The thermal secret lies in the rythmical game it provokes, being translated into tension-relax /activity-rest. The effect of this kind of waters over the body is multiple and complete.
