Brenne Whiskey Tasting Notes

BRENNE ESTATE CASK

The first single malt in the word aged exclusively in French Limousin Oak and Cognac casks, Brenne Estate Cask is twice-distilled in a copper alembic still, and aged for a minimum of six years.

On the nose: The whisky has perfumed fruit and French patisserie aromas with creamy and complex sugar notes of rich creme brûlée and burnt caramel.

On the palate: notes of banana, tropical fruits, and warm spices like cinnamon and clove.

BRENNE TEN

Brenne Ten is an annual release marrying about four different hand-selected barrels. The spirit is fermented and distilled in alembic Charente stills and aged for a decade in a combination of new French Limousin oak and Cognac casks. Brenne Ten shares the Estate Cask's DNA, but with a deeper, striking richness.

On the palate: this whisky features our signature creamy fruit-forward taste, but with notes of dried fruits, chili, black pepper, spices, and dark chocolate.

Spirits of Whisk(e)y correspondent Chef Louise Leonard, had this to say about this remarkable French Single Malt:

Wow, this Brenne is like nothing I've tasted before! Everything from the beautiful blue label embossed with a gold fleur de lis to the fact that a former ballerina created it, this whisky screams France. The caramel and floral notes take me straight to a park in the 9th arrondissement in springtime where I'd be sipping this straight after a great meal with nothing more than a big wedge of triple creme Brie, a touch of fleur de sel, some fresh cherries and the smell of spring flowers.
