Regular Fee: $900 – register after 30th April 2025

This 2-day workshop focuses on using Emotionally Focused Therapy (EFT) to help couples navigate the complex emotions that arise after infidelity. You will learn how to de-escalate negative interaction cycles by applying macro interventions through the EFT-TANGO framework as well as micro interventions to deepen emotional processing and create new positive emotional experiences. Through engaging lectures, practical demonstrations, and hands-on practice, you will gain a clear and practical framework to help couples move from crisis to reconnection.

Participants will learn:

- ✓ Build Therapeutic Alliances: Develop the skills to connect with both partners, gaining a deep understanding of the impacts of infidelity and the underlying emotional experiences that shape their interactions.
- ✓ De-escalate Emotional Reactivity: Learn strategies to manage heightened emotions and reduce the negative interaction cycles that contribute to disconnection.
- ✓ Apply Macro Interventions with the EFT-TANGO Framework: Master the five moves of TANGO to deepen emotional engagement, repair attachment injuries, and promote reconnection.
- ✓ Use Micro Interventions of EFT: Implement key in-session techniques to strengthen therapeutic alliances, encourage emotional vulnerability, and restructure attachment bonds.
- ✓ Address Common Challenges: Discuss how to navigate issues such as managing flashbacks, hypervigilance, and the urge to ask fact-finding questions. Learn to focus on the therapeutic process rather than becoming caught in content, while holding space for clients' intense emotions and maintaining self-regulation as the therapist.
